COAL STRIKE BEGINS BUT INJUNCTION HALTS LEADERS; PALMER TO PUSH FIGHT THOUGH LABOR CHIEFS PROTEST; FEDERAL TROOPS CONCENTRATED; MINES TO BE KEPT OPEN

BUDGET, PASSED, IS $273,689,485; CUT $43,529,144

YEAR'S INCREASE $25,664,051

Craig Insists Tax Rate Will Not Go Higher, but Refuses to Give Estimate.

CLASHES WITH HYLAN ANEW

Controller Forces Associates Again to Take Up What Was Done at Mr. Moran's Home.

The budget for 1920 was completed last night by the Board of Estimate, after Controller Craig, who twice left meetings on Thursday after differences with Mayor Hylan, had forced the board to consider anew the matters which were taken up Thursday night at the home of Robert L. Moran, President of the Board of Aldermen. The Controller asserted that Thursday night's meeting was illegal and intimated that he would take steps which would make the whole budget illegal unless the board reconsidered the items, one by one.

The total appropriations are $273,689,485, an increase of $25,664,051 over last year. A total of $43,529,144 was cut out of the budget as originally proposed.

Controller Craig, after the meeting, reiterated his assertion that there would be no increase in the tax rate this year. Neither he, nor any member of the board, however, would make any estimate on what the new tax rate would be.

"It is impossible to give even any approximation at this time," the Controller said. "There are so many matters in addition to the budget which enter into the tax rate that it would be useless to try to estimate. For instance, there is the new State income tax, which is going to have a great effect on the budget. No one knows now what the revenue from the State will be. Recently I heard it estimated at $17,000,000. At any rate the new law will result in a gain to the city."

There is some question as to whether the funds from the new income tax will be available next year. In case they are not the city will lose from its income more than half of the revenue it derives from personal taxes, since the State law exempts from municipal taxation all but tangible property.

Estimates of General Fund.

The general fund also has to be taken into account. It has been estimated at amounts varying from $35,000,000 to $53,000,000. This amount and the revenue from the State, as well as other revenues, are deducted from the budget total and the remainder is divided by 800,000 to give the approximate tax rate.

Although there was no renewal of the break between the Mayor and the Controller, yesterday's session was not lacking in acrimonious discussion. Several times it seemed as if the Controller would again leave the meeting.

Borough President Connolly of Queens accused Controller Craig of deliberately inserting in the budget a number of items, such as the Board of Education building estimates, with the intention of cutting them out, "so that the public would believe he was a great financier." This same charge was made against the board in a statement yesterday by Howard W. Nudd, Director of the Public Education Association.

At the beginning of the meeting Controller Craig asserted his intention of holding up the budget unless the board members reconsidered all of the matters they took up at President Moran's house.

"I want to say right now, to avoid controversy and complications, that you want to leave out all the items not acted on at a public meeting," he said. "I anticipate that any other course will be followed by a Supreme Court order. Any item eliminated at Mr. Moran's house should not be considered in the budget."

"We went to President Moran's house after you had left the meeting," Mayor Hylan said, "and proceeded to finish our business there. It was a public meeting."

"We went there after the Controller had picked up his marbles and gone home," said Mr. Connolly.

The Controller then made a motion to take up the changes made at Mr. Moran's house. The Mayor and Mr. Connolly insisted that those matters were already closed, but there was a disposition among the other members to humor the Controller. The question was finally settled by allowing Mr. Craig to take up each item. In nearly every case the other members of the board voted with the Mayor and against the

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Oct. 31.—Because of the continuance of the dock strike at New York and the consequent failure of food supplies to reach Porto Rico, Governor Yager has sent the following message to Washington:

"The stock of provisions in Porto Rico, especially flour, rice, and potatoes, has greatly diminished. Unless vessels arrive immediately with provisions, very serious conditions will arise. The soldiers of the Porto Rico Regiment have been reduced to a rice ration. If the strike continues a transport with provisions, especially rice, flour, and potatoes, should be sent to Porto Rico. The price of flour has nearly doubled in the last few days."

The Department of Justice has requested the public to report instances of profiteering.

NEW YORK NEARLY 100 PER CENT. DRY

COURTS RESTRAIN SALES

More than 75 per cent. of the saloons in New York City are closed and the vast majority of those whose doors are open are engaged in the legitimate sale of soft drinks and lunches, according to Federal agents. Against the very few who are violating the Volstead law all the enginery of the city and State police powers and the Federal Government are to wage unremitting warfare until the sale of alcoholic drinks is stamped out entirely, Federal officers said yesterday.

The Government, through Francis G. Caffey, United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, took two legal steps on its own behalf. For the first time injunctions were granted at the District Attorney's request temporarily restraining from the further sale of liquor saloon men who have been arrested in recent raids. The effect of this will be to place these alleged violators in contempt of court if they attempt further sales. A special provision of the act provides both fine and imprisonment for such contempt. The first injunctions were granted by Judge A. N. Hand in the Federal District Court at the request of Assistant District Attorney Earl Barnes in the cases of William Volka of 3,246 Third Avenue and Thomas F. O'Brien of 542 Bergen Avenue, Bronx. Later similar injunctions were granted against persons who have become defendants upon charges of violating the Volstead law. Such injunctions will be asked in the cases of all arrested persons hereafter, as a matter of routine.

Caffey Wants Suit Dismissed.

The other legal step taken by the Government was the filing by Mr. Caffey, as attorney for Collector of Internal Revenue William H. Edwards, of an application for dismissal of the equity injunction suit brought against the Collector by Dryfoos, Blum & Co., wholesale liquor dealers, of 42 West Broadway, whereby the plaintiffs seek to restrain Mr. Edwards from refusing to allow them to withdraw from bonded warehouses rye whiskey, brandy, and other liquors worth some $50,000. The plaintiffs in the original action alleged they would be irreparably damaged if they were not allowed to withdraw and sell the liquors before the prohibition constitutional amendment takes effect.

In his motion for dismissal Mr. Caffey says:

William H. Edwards, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Second Collection District of New York, named as the defendant in the suit protesting that the District of New York has no jurisdiction to entertain the bill of complaint herein, and not waiving that objection, but now and at all times insisting thereon, moves that said bill and divers parts thereof be dismissed, and assigns the following grounds for this motion, namely:

First—The suit is in effect one against the United States, and the bill does not aver or show that the United States has consented to be sued herein.

Second—This court is without power now to determine or adjudge the date of the conclusion of the war which existed on Nov. 21, 1918, or of the termination of demobilization.

Third—The facts alleged in the bill are insufficient to constitute a valid cause of action in equity.

Fourth—The War Prohibition act of Nov. 21, 1918, is valid and constitutional and still in full force and effect.

Fifth—It does not appear that the

PERSHING WANTS CITIZEN TRAINING AND SMALL ARMY

Would Limit the Standing Force to 275,000 or 300,000 Men.

FAVORS SIX MONTHS' DRILL

OUTLINES MILITARY POLICY

Tells Congress Committees Measure Provides Too Many Line Officers—Would Change Promotions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—As the "permanent General of all the armies of the United States," General John J. Pershing appeared before the House and Senate Committees on Military Affairs today, and for five hours gave his views on the reorganization of the army and the military policy which should be pursued by this country.

In many details he disagreed with the General Staff policies as presented in the War Department's bill. For example, he insisted that the standing army, officers and men, should not total more than 275,000 or 300,000, as against 575,000, recommended by the General Staff. In agreement with it he recommended universal military training for youths of 19 for six months. He favored this, even though there were never another war, for its physical and educational features and the preliminary and necessary training it gave in citizenship. The youths so trained would not be subject to draft in peace times, as the standing army would be maintained by volunteers.

"In considering the total strength of the army all of us should take into consideration the cost," said General Pershing. "We cannot afford to adopt the principle of a large standing army at the enormous expense indicated in this bill."

"Our position and influence in world affairs are no longer measured by our wealth and population, nor yet by our free and liberal form of government," said General Pershing, reading from a statement, "but by our purpose to maintain the high principles of justice and humanity upon which our institutions are founded. This influence bears a direct relation to the solidarity of our Government and our readiness adequately to defend our rights.

"Our success in the war was not due to our forethought in preparedness but to exceptional circumstances, which made it possible to prepare after we had declared war. It is my belief that had America been adequately prepared our rights would never have been violated, our institutions would never have been threatened.

Pershing's Military Policy.

"As a military policy we should have:

"(A.)—A permanent military establishment large enough to provide against sudden attack.

"(B.)—A small force sufficient for expeditionary purposes to meet our international obligations, particularly on the American Continent.

"(C.)—Such force as may be necessary to meet our internal requirements.

"(D.)—A trained citizen reserve organized to meet the emergency of war.

"In addition to preparing our young manhood to defend their country, universal military training brings many benefits which our Government should hasten to provide. It develops physical vigor and manliness. It develops mentality. It would decrease illiteracy. It teaches men discipline and respect for constituted authority. It encourages initiative and gives young men confluence in themselves. It better prepares young men for the duties of citizenship.

"Such training is especially needed among our alien population, who would learn something of our language and our institutions. All these benefits have been bestowed upon the men who composed our forces during the war, and the benefits of such training should be universally extended to all our young men. Through service it increases their patriotism. It broadens their views through associating with men of all classes. It is democratic.

"With reference to the chiefs of the various bureaus they should be selected from among the officers of their respective bureaus, but provision should be made by which any such officer could be relieved at the discretion of the President.

"Experience seems to indicate that after officers have efficiently served one or two details in a particular bureau their appointment should be made permanent, with the understanding they should, after each period of four years in the bureau, be attached to line organizations for a period of

Jugoslav State Reported on Verge of Breaking Up

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Oct. 30.—The Jugoslav State is reported on the threshold of a big crisis, and members of the foreign mission in Vienna are proceeding to Agram to be on the spot for the object of mitigating developments.

Jugoslavia is threatened by dissolution. The differences between the contending factions are too far reaching to be bridged over. Croatian, Slovenian, and Dalmatian territories are aiming to become independent from Serbia proper and forming a separate commonwealth, while the Central Government at Belgrade seems to be preparing for a conflict with Italy.

GRAND JUROR ASKS SWANN TO TESTIFY

PRIVATE TALK WITH JUDGE

Gossip Buzzes in the Corridors—Justice Weeks Says Jury Asked Legal Instruction.

The controversy between the District Attorney and the extraordinary Grand Jury growing out of the investigation of collusion charges in the recent strike of employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, which began when the jury sought to have special counsel replace the prosecutor, widened considerably yesterday when a member of the jury suggested to Mr. Swann that the jurymen would like to have him as a witness under certain conditions. The jury met at the Criminal Courts Building yesterday for the first time in a week, or since Governor Smith announced his refusal to designate special counsel for the jury.

There were several versions of what had occurred between the jury and the District Attorney. Mr. Swann was said to have been sent for by the jury. Another version was that he had gone voluntarily to the jury room and was surprised when told that it was desired to have him testify. The exact form of the question put to Mr. Swann could not be learned. It was said to be in substance as follows:

"Are you willing to be a witness and waive immunity?"

Judge Swann asked if the question had been put in the name of the Grand Jury, or had been asked by individuals of that body. He was told that it was an individual and not an official question by the jury. The prosecutor then said he would refrain from answering except upon submission of the question by the Grand Jury. It was said the jury immediately went into formal session. What occurred thereafter was not disclosed. There was an indication that the District Attorney and the jury had not reached an agreement, as the jury went to Justice Weeks's part of the Supreme Court within a few minutes.

Foreman Raymond F. Almirall was in conference with the Justice in his rooms for an hour while the other jurors waited in the court room. Mr. Swann, who had returned to his office, was sent for. The conference continued until Justice Weeks, who had adjourned court, returned and had the court room cleared of all persons except the jurymen, their stenographers and the District Attorney and his assistants. Justice Weeks said:

"The Grand Jury have requested certain information from this court in regard to the conduct of their business, and this is a private session of the Grand Jury."

District Attorney Swan said: "Your honor, the Grand Jury has come into court." He was stopped by the court with the remark: "Mr. District Attorney, I have stated that this hearing is a private session."

This part of the conference continued for several hours. When the jurymen and the prosecutor and his assistants departed none would discuss the purport of the discussion. Mr. Swann said:

"I want everything done in the open—in open court, but the court has enjoined secrecy."

Justice Weeks answered inquiries with this statement:

"I have instructed everybody who was in the room that it was a secret session. It was not the same as a court session, but a session of the Grand Jury held in the court room. The Grand Jury came to be instructed on the law in a case they were investigating, and I did not feel it would be right to expose anything they might ask."

The Extraordinary Grand Jury was originally convened to inquire into information regarding criminal anarchy in this city. At the request of the District Attorney, Justice Weeks instructed the jury to also inquire into the milk problem and the transit situation, which latter was called to the attention

PALMER TO ENFORCE LAW

HEARS GOMPERS PROTEST

Labor Leader Declares Issues Will Be Raised "Which May Not Be Confined to Miners."

RAILWAY MEN CONCILIATORY

Heads of Brotherhoods Offer Help to Attorney General to Bring About Settlement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The United States, exercising its authority through the Department of Justice, is prepared to meet the coal strike issue, and every power of the Federal Government will be invoked, if necessary, in forcing the mandate of the Federal court at Indianapolis, which today issued a temporary injunction restraining John L. Lewis and other officials of the United Mine Workers of America from taking any further steps in directing the coal strike. Attorney General Palmer made this clear today in discussing the Government's action.

The granting of the temporary injunction by Judge Anderson in Indianapolis was in some respects a shock for certain labor leaders in Washington who have been seeking to justify the present strike of coal miners. These men knew that action of some sort was pending, but they did not know until this morning that the first move of the Government would be through a court restraining order.

Soon after the news reached Washington that the court in Indianapolis had granted the temporary injunction Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor; Matthew Woll, Vice President, and Frank Morrison, Secretary, hurried to the Department of Justice to confer with Attorney General Palmer. The conference was long drawn out, and it is known that the leaders bitterly protested against the action taken by the Government. Previously Mr. Palmer conferred with the head officials of the railway brotherhoods, who, it is understood, took a somewhat different view of the situation—at least, that was the general impression about the corridors of the Department of Justice.

After they returned to the American Federation of Labor building, Mr. Gompers, Mr. Morrison, and Mr. Woll issued a joint statement, in which they asserted that the injunction would result in the creation of "new and disturbing issues," and adding that the issue "may not be confined solely to the miners."

The officials of the brotherhoods did not subscribe to the statement. Mr. Gompers said they had not seen it.

"Generally speaking," one of his subordinates said, speaking for Mr. Gompers, "the statement meets the approval of the brotherhoods."

The brotherhoods issued no statement of any kind to indicate their attitude. The only line on their position in the controversy was gleaned from an interview the newspaper men had with Attorney General Palmer, after his conferences with the two groups of labor leaders.

"The brotherhoods," said the Attorney General, "asked me for a conference, which I granted. We discussed the situation and Mr. Stone and his colleagues tendered their good offices toward bringing about a peaceful and orderly adjustment of the whole matter in issue. Mr. Gompers and his colleagues asked for a later conference and the two conferences were separate and distinct."

"What suggestions did you receive from the railway men as to a possible means of bringing the strike to an end?" Attorney General Palmer was asked.

"They wanted to know if organized labor could do anything to bring about an adjustment. I can only say now that my conference with them was entirely harmonious."

It is understood that the brotherhoods' leaders, while assuming a conciliatory and helpful attitude, told the Attorney General that they thought a mistake had been made in seeking to end the strike by injunction proceedings.

Statement of Federation Heads.

Samuel Gompers left Mr. Palmer's office at 4 o'clock. Two hours later the following joint statement was issued by Gompers, Morrison, and Woll, in the name of the American Federation of Labor:

"Throughout the period of the war and during the nation's time of stress the miners of America labored patiently, patriotically and arduously in order that the principles of freedom and democracy might triumph over the forces of arbitrary authority, dictatorship and despotism.

"When armed hostilities ceased last November the miners found themselves

Injunction, Which Will Be Enforced, Will End Strike, Says Attorney General

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Attorney General Palmer said tonight that the Government had resorted to injunction proceedings in the coal strike with the greatest reluctance, but that no other way of immediately dealing with the "unlawful" strike of the miners was possible. The Attorney General said:

This injunction stands apart from all other injunctions ever obtained in this country in that it is a case of the United States Government using its own courts for the purpose of protecting itself from a condition that would mean the paralysis of the Government itself.

No strike can go on without being directed, and if this injunction is obeyed this strike of the coal miners cannot continue, for this restraining order acts to make it leaderless so far as the national scope of it is concerned.

It goes without saying that the laws of this country must be obeyed and that the decrees of the courts of the United States must be obeyed.

ARMY REINFORCED IN COAL DISTRICTS

Baker Sends Troops to Wood—Bullard's Command to be Strengthened.

DETACHMENT IN HUNTINGTON

Two Battalions of 1st Division Sent from Louisville—State Troops in Colorado Fields.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Additional troops, drawn from military departments which apparently will not be concerned with the coal strike, have been moved to points in the Central Department and placed under command of General Wood, Secretary Baker said today.

Lieut. Gen. Bullard, commanding the Eastern Department, which includes parts of Virginia and West Virginia, also will receive reinforcements.

Special to The New York Times.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 31.—With the arrival here late today of three special trains conveying 900 infantry of the First Division, from Camp Taylor, Louisville, Kentucky, coal operators of the Guyan Valley, and Norfolk, and Western coal mining fields of southern West Virginia, both of which are non-union districts, declare the continued operation of bituminous mines having a yearly output of nearly 30,000,000 tons has been made certain.

The troops enter West Virginia on the specific request of Governor Cornwell, made to General Leonard Wood, commanding the Central Department at Chicago. A recent attempted invasion of the Logan field by union miners from the Kanawha and Coal River regions, both recently organized by the United Mine Workers, and a threat this week to make an armed invasion, combined to create a situation demanding the presence of the Federal troops. Since the war the State has been without a National Guard organization, and the Legislature has provided only a small State police force.

The regular army troops will be immediately dispatched to threatened points in the Guyan Valley and along the Norfolk and Western Railroad. On the latter road are pursued the enormous coal and coke operations of the United States Steel Corporation at Gary.

Colonel W. S. Harrell, commanding the battalion, will make his headquarters at Charleston. A machine gun company was to accompany him. One company of infantry was to be sent to Beckley and another to Clothier, both important coal mining centres.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 31.—Under instructions from the Central Department, 800 troops of the famous 1st Division, composing two provisional battalions, started on three trains early today for the coal fields of West Virginia.

Colonel W. S. Harrell, commander of the 16th Infantry, is commanding the contingent, which will detrain at Huntington, W. Va., and scatter in various towns. Infantry and machine gunners, the necessary medical detachment and staff officers left on the first train and two other trains followed, carrying more than twenty motor trucks and machine guns, rifles, small arms and ammunition.

Ammunition is being taken for extended service, said Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall, commander of the 1st Division. The troops which left today are part of the 2,500 troops selected from the 160th, 180th, 26th, and 28th Infantry regiments, 1,700 of whom remain at Camp Taylor under telegraphic instructions to be ready for entrainment for strike-affected centres.

The trucks are being carried to be used, it necessary, in transporting men and machine guns quickly from one place to another.

Altogether the contingent consisted of the 3d provisional battalion of the 18th Infantry, a machine-gun detachment from the 2d Machine-gun Battalion, a signal detachment from the 1st Brigade

OPERATORS WILL KEEP MINES OPEN

Plan to Work Central Field Pits Monday as Usual if Enough Men Turn Up.

WILL OBEY GOVERNMENT

Reaffirm Acceptance of President's Proposals and Say They Would Welcome Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 31.—Following a meeting at noon today of sixteen operators, comprising the Executive Committee of the central competitive field and representing Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Pennsylvania, T. C. Browster of St. Louis, Chairman of the committee, issued this statement:

"We have accepted in its entirety the President's proposal of Oct. 24, and reaffirm that acceptance. We welcome an investigation by a tribunal which the President may appoint, as suggested by him in the last paragraph of his statement of Oct. 26. We hold ourselves ready to comply at all times with any commands which the Government, acting in the interests of the whole American people, may deem it wise to issue."

Mr. Brewster said the statement set forth the position of the operators, and intimated that no further overtures would be made to the miners.

"We have assented to the proposition of President Wilson and are willing at any time to arbitrate, provided the mines are kept in operation pending negotiations," he explained. "But the miners have insisted upon a policy of unconditional surrender to their demands for a 60 per cent. wage increase, a six-hour day and a five-day working week."

Mr. Brewster said the committee had adjourned sine die, but that it could be reassembled if necessary very quickly. The mines would be ready to operate Monday morning as usual, he said, and, if enough men reported, work would go on.

The mines in the central competitive field have been practically 100 per cent. organized for many years, a member of the committee volunteered, adding that he expected these mines would be tied up. Some men would quit to stay out till the strike was over, some to look around and some for a vacation.

"The national coal strike will be just like a whole lot of little strikes. Its local conduct will be just like that of any other local strike," he said.

Railroads here received orders today to suspend placing coal and the loading of lake vessels. E. R. Bissell, terminal manager for all roads, today was expecting a general embargo on all coal movement except by special orders.

Railroads are trying to accumulate a thirty-two-day supply. Managers of several of the roads said today their stores were limited, but that they had received no reports recently.

Cleveland receives 25,000 cars of coal a day, of which 5,000 goes to public utilities and other necessary institutions. The railroads use between one-third and one-half of all coal mined.

UNION DENIES STOPPING STRIKE IN TWO STATES

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 31.—Although the strike of bituminous coal miners in Utah was called off today by John M. McLennan, Utah State representative of the United Mine Workers of America, advices reaching here tonight were to the effect that miners in Carbon County, where most of Utah's coal is mined, were quitting work when the shift in plans occurred.

"You are hereby instructed by the International Executive Board to withhold strike call so far as it affects coal mines in the State of Utah. Please act on receipt of this message."

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 31.—It was learned here late today that the Executive Board of the United Mine Workers of America, while in session yesterday, heard reports that messages, purporting to come from John L. Lewis, Acting President of the miners, and calling off the strike, had been received in union circles in Colorado and Utah. It was learned that no such messages had been sent, and their source was declared to be a mystery to union officials.

MINERS DISREGARD COURT

Workers Reported Quitting Collieries Throughout Country.

DEPRIVED OF LEADERSHIP

Injunction Restrains Chiefs from Aiding or Directing Walkout by Word or Action.

STRIKE FUND ALSO TIED UP

Lewis Says Order Is a Denial of Constitutional Rights and Will Not Avert Strike.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 31.—The strike of the bituminous coal miners called by the United Mine Workers of America was carried into effect by a large proportion of the workers tonight, with their national officers silenced and prevented from further activity by a temporary restraining order issued today by Judge A. B. Anderson of the Federal District Court.

While the strike order was not effective until midnight, many of the workers quit the mines at the end of the day shift. During the night reports came from districts throughout the country of men walking out or remaining at work, and it is impossible to estimate what percentage of the 425,000 members of the union have gone on strike, despite the restraining order. Reliable figures will not be available before Monday, it then, as there is usually little work in the mines during the week-end.

The national officers denounced the injunction in strong terms, but did not issue any final instructions to the local unions. The International Executive Board adjourned tonight sine die, and the members left for their homes.

"There is nothing for us to do," one member said, but he predicted that the coal miners themselves would carry out the strike without advice or [illegible].

Acting President Lewis [illegible] restraining order as an abrogation of constitutional rights, and said that he could neither avert nor settle the coal strike. Shortly after being served he issued the following statement:

"I regard the issuance of this injunction as the most sweeping abrogation of the rights of citizens guaranteed under the Constitution and defined by statutory law that has ever been issued by any Federal court.

"This instrument will not avert the strike by bituminous mine workers and will not settle the strike after it occurs. The injunction only complicates to a further degree the problems involved in an adjustment of the controversy."

President Lewis Is Silenced.

Lewis was active early in the day, sending telegrams to locals and preparing to carry the strike into effect, but ceased his activities and was silent after he himself had been served with the injunction.

The temporary restraining order was issued on a petition filed on behalf of the United States Government against Frank J. Hayes, President of the mine workers, and eighty-three other national and district officers by C. B. Ames, Assistant Attorney General in charge of the enforcement of the Food and Fuel Control act. The hearing of the case is set for 10 o'clock, Saturday morning, Nov. 8. The Federal authorities ask that at the final hearing the strike order be ordered recalled.

1. That the Lever act, [the Food and Fuel Control act,] a war emergency, prohibits restriction of the production or distribution of coal and curtailment of the supply—the objectives toward which it sets forth in its petition, the strike is directed.

2. That the United States holds contracts with the operators of 1,237 bituminous mines for the delivery of 387,000 tons of coal daily which the operators will not be able to supply if the strike is effective, thereby causing the Government financial loss.

3. That the Government has the right to protect the people against the violation of any statute by either civil or criminal action.

The sweeping scope of the injunction is made plain by the following specific things, which the officials of the mine workers are forbidden to do both individually and in their official capacities and in conjunction with any district or local unions or any committee thereof and all persons conspiring or agreeing with them and all other persons whomsoever.

"To issue any messages that the strike of the miners and mine workers in the bituminous coal fields of the United States heretofore ordered by the said defendants or some of them to take effect at midnight on Oct. 31, 1919, is to be enforced as previously announced or otherwise and to desist and refrain from doing any further act whatsoever to bring about or continue in effect the above described strike and cessation from work on the part of the mine workers in the bituminous mines.

"From issuing any further strike orders to local unions and members of local unions or to district unions [illegible] the purpose of keeping such strike in effect or for the purpose of supporting such strike by bringing about or maintaining any other strikes.

"From issuing any instructions, written or oral, covering or arranging for the purpose of supporting such strike by bringing about or maintaining any other strikes.

"From issuing any instructions, written or oral, covering or arranging for the details of enforcing such strike ordered to begin at midnight on Oct. 31, 1919.

"From issuing any messages of encouragement or exhortation to striking miners or mine workers or unions thereof to abstain from work and not to return to the mines in pursuance of such strike.

"From issuing so-called strike benefits or sums of money previously accumulated or subsequently acquired to assist such striking miners and mine workers to subsist while striking, or to aid them in any way by reason of or with reference to such strike and abstaining from work.

"From conspiring, combining, agreeing, or arranging with each other, or any other person to limit the facilities for the production of coal, or to restrict the supply or distribution of coal, or from aiding or abetting the doing of any such act or thing."

"Usually," Mr. Ames said, "the Government protects its citizens by the prosecution of criminals. But in this instance an emergency existed, with which that procedure could not cope.

"Had the Government waited for the criminal courts to function the wrong would have been done. The remedy by injunction remained open, however, and so the Federal authorities elected to enter a judicial tribunal on the basis of perfect equality with the defendants to fight for the rights of most of its citizens."

"Does that mean criminal prosecutions have been dropped?"

"Not necessarily. That will be considered later. The Government does not mean to be oppressive, but it is determined that no group of individuals shall persist in a course of outlawry.

Defends President's Stand.

"The contention of President Lewis of the Mine Workers that President Wilson reversed himself by holding that 'the war still is on wherein the miners' wage scale is concerned and off wherein prohibition is involved,' is balderdash.

"The Lever act provides by its own terms that it shall not expire until peace has been proclaimed by the President, and of course the President can issue no such proclamation until the treaty has been ratified.

"Unless the President wished to be false to his oath of office, he could not fail to enforce the Lever act. It would be like failing to enforce any other statute.

"When he spoke of prohibition he was dealing with new legislation." He said that he did not believe it would be appropriate to enact a war measure now, when war conditions no longer existed, but the President had nothing to say about the time the Lever act should remain in force. That period was fixed by Congress, and it has not expired.

"The present injunction is not without precedent. Several years ago in Illinois the Government brought and sustained a similar action against railroad employes who threatened to stop transportation, and was successful. The case is known as 'In re Debs.'

"It is a general principle of law, furthermore, that the Government is the 'father of the people'—the technical term is parens patriae—and in that capacity it has the right to protect the people in any and all circumstances against violations of law."

The proceedings before Judge Anderson occupied an hour and a half. Throughout the greater part of the night John B. Creighton, special representative of Attorney General Palmer in the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, has been in conference with Charles P. Tighe, special agent of the bureau here, United States Marshal Mark Storen and others, arranging for the service of the writs when they should be issued.

Shortly after 9 o'clock, Mr. Ames, United States Attorney Slack, Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Creighton entered Judge Anderson's chambers, where Mr. Ames read the Government's petition. He then spoke briefly of the strike emergency and of the Government's broad powers under the Lever act.

"The Government believes it is prepared to sustain this suit?" Judge Anderson inquired and Mr. Ames replied in the affirmative.

"Very well," said the court, and attached his signature to the writ without further parley.

Restraining Orders Are Served.

The restraining orders were served on the members of the International Executive Board in the board room at about 11:30 by Frank S. Ream, Deputy United States Marshal, assisted by other deputies. It was also served on Ellis S. Searles, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal, and Percy Tetlow, statistician of the organization.

When the marshals got off the elevator at the eleventh floor of the Merchants National Bank Building they walked straight to the Executive Board room and entered without knocking. Deputy Ream read the names and called on the board members to answer.

The first order was served on Lawrence Bramlett of Diamond, Ind. He was seated in the board room with other members.

"Lawrence Bramlett, Lawrence Bramlett, come forward," demanded Ream.

"Here," said Bramlett, who stood up.

As the names on the orders were announced by Mr. Ream the members answered "Here."

Answers were made by Hugh McLeod of Aame, Wyo.; John Cleary of Pittsburgh, N. J. Farry of Hazleton, Penn.; William Dalrymple of McAlester, Okla.; A. R. Watkins of Yorkville, Ohio; John J. Mates of Williamstown, Penn.; William Green, Secretary-Treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America; John L. Lewis, Acting President; Frank Walters of Jellico, Tenn.; G. L. Peck of Pittsburg, Kan.; W. D. Van Horn of Terre Haute, Ind., and Samuel Ballantyne of Boone, Iowa.

Some of the members of the board not in the room at the time were served later.

After the serving had been completed Ream said:

The marshals also had with them a number of orders to serve on district Presidents and Secretaries, but they were told by Mr. Lewis that most of the district Presidents had gone home after the conference of Wednesday.

The Government will seek restraining orders in several other Federal judicial districts, including Illinois, to give full effect to the writ issued by Judge A. B. Anderson. The reason for the new Government suits, which will give its legal fight against the walkout national scope, is that Judge Anderson's authority does not extend beyond his district, and many executives of the mine workers, whose activity the Government seeks to end, could not be reached by United States Marshals.

Among these is Fred Farrington, President of the Miners' District in Illinois, who is charged by the operators with responsibility for the union's radical demands. Farrington was in Springfield, Ill., the district headquarters, when the restraining order was issued here.

Ordered Strike Carried Out.

Shortly before the restraining orders were served on Lewis and his board, Lewis heard of the action in the Federal Court and sent instructions to all the districts to carry the strike into effect.

The telegram to J. R. Kennamer, President of the Alabama district, which was the same as sent to all other district Presidents, follows:

"Our position remains unchanged. Strike order issued Oct. 15 becomes effective at midnight in all of its provisions. We enter this great industrial contest serene in the knowledge that our cause is just and in conformity with our rights guaranteed by the Constitution and laws of the United States."

The telegrams were sent between 10:30 and 10:45 o'clock. The restraining order is dated 10:45 o'clock.

The sending of the telegrams to the district Presidents, it appears, was the last opportunity of the leaders to communicate with the district Presidents. When Mr. Lewis was asked about the telegram, he said:

"Yes, I dictated the telegram before the Executive Board met this morning. That was before any injunction was issued."

The board met shortly after 10 o'clock. The Deputy United States Marshals entered the Executive Board room and served the orders about 11:30 o'clock.

The board met again this afternoon. After the members gathered, but before the session began, they read the newspapers eagerly and some of them discussed the dispatch which said that the American Federation of Labor had complained to Attorney General Palmer against the action of the Government in obtaining an injunction.

One of the board members, referring to the injunction suit, said:

"It's the biggest blunder President Wilson has made. It will make the miners more determined than ever."

Lewis was asked whether he had received a telegram mentioned in a dispatch from North Dakot saying that the Governor had suggested that the State take over and operate the mines of that State. Lewis said he had received it, but would not discuss it.

"I have received telegrams from many Governors, from reformers, radicals and conservatives, from all sorts and condition, making conditions," he said. "I have a great stack of them."

Prevents Use of $15,000,000.

The temporary restraining order prevents the officers of the Mine Workers from distributing money in the treasuries of the head organization and subordinate organization. The Mine Workers have in the various treasuries about $15,000,000, it was estimated this week by one of the national leaders, much of which might have been available for strike benefits.

Mr. Ames and Mr. Mitchell left today for Washington, but the former announced that he would return to argue the application for a temporary injunction here on Nov. 8. The hearing on a permanent injunction will take place on Nov. 20, since under the law the defendants are entitled twenty days in which to answer the Government's complaint.

Judge Anderson, author of the writ, has presided as judge in many famous trials. He heard the McNamara dynamiting trial, sentenced Mayor Don Roberts of Terre Haute to the penitentiary for election frauds, and refused to grant President Roosevelt's request for the extradition to Washington of Delavan Smith, owner of The Indianapolis Star, for arraignment on a charge of criminal libel.

The United Mine Workers, it is said, are prepared to put all their $15,000,000 resources behind the effort of their general counsel, Henry Warrum, to tear down the barrier of silence which Judge Anderson's order erects between the national officers and their followers in the country's 4,000 soft coal camps.

The attorney was directed by President John L. Lewis late this afternoon to procure whatever assistance he required. Among the men discussed were W. G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury; Alton B. Parker, former Chief Justice of the New York Court of Appeals, and Edward F. Dunne, former Governor of Illinois. Mr. Parker has been associated with Mr. Warrum in the union's anti-trust legislation.

B. R. Batty, Vice President of the Ogle Coal Company, one of the largest sales agencies in Indiana, estimates that there is a fifteen-day supply of commercial coal on hand in this State for the industries.

Coal miners of Utah, most of those in Colorado, two counties in Kentucky, and a few scattered unions in other parts of the United States are exempted from the bituminous coal miners' strike order by action of the International Executive Board. It is estimated that the exemptions affect about 20,000 union miners.

The Utah exemption was ordered in a telegram sent by the Executive Board this morning to John L. McLennan, Utah State representative of the United Mine Workers, as follows:

"You are hereby instructed by the International Executive Board to withhold strike call so far as it affects coal mines in the State of Utah. Please act on receipt of this message."

A member of the Executive Board said Utah was exempted from the general strike order, as most of the unions there are newly organized and have no contracts with the operators. It was considered inadvisable to start the strike there because of the difficulty new unions sometimes have of holding out.

SILENT ON INJUNCTION.

But President of West Virginia Union Pledges No Disorder.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 31.—On the eve of the greatest coal strike in the history of the world, quiet prevailed in this city, which is situated in the heart of District Seventeen, the biggest bituminous district in the nation.

President C. F. Keeney of the District Mine Workers' organization tonight declined to make any statement on the injunction. On the other hand, T. L. Lewis, Secretary of the New River Coal Operators' Association, maintained that the injunction broke up any attempt to continue the strike.

All non-organized mines in this State will continue to operate to their fullest capacity, it was declared. some working overtime shifts.

President Keeney tonight said, "You may say for me that I guarantee to the public and to the State Government that there will be no disorder on our part, unless it be forced upon us. The miners of my district, through their leaders, have pledged themselves to abide by what I say." He said that the miners of District No. 17 would all obey the strike order with the exception of the two operations of the Solvay Collieries Company at the head of Paint Creek, one at Westerly and one at Kingston.

LAST APPEAL TO LEWIS.

Secretary Wilson Offered to Call All Operators Together.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—A copy of a message he sent to Acting President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America in an eleventh hour effort to head off the coal strike, was made public today by Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson.

In it Secretary Wilson offered to call the operators together at any place the miners might designate, in the event that the miners would meet in convention at the same time and place to discuss amicable means of settlement. Secretary Wilson said in his letter:

"In view of the impending coal strike and the disastrous effects sure to follow, I deem it my duty to urge upon you the advisability, under all circumstances, of another effort to avert the threatened stoppage of work in the bituminous coal fields set for Nov. 1. We are all agreed, I think, that nothing should be left undone to avert this calamity, and it is therefore incumbent upon the coal operators, the miners and the Government to co-operate by every feasible method of joint action to this end. Having this in mind, I urgently request your International Executive Board to reconvene at the earliest possible moment the delegate convention of the United Mine Workers of America for a further consideration of the whole question, and that pending the assembling of the convention and the consideration of the matters presented, the miners be notified by your board to continue at work.

"In which event, as Secretary of Labor, I will assume the responsibility of calling the operators of not only the central competitive fields, but of the entire bituminous coal fields of the country, to meet in the same city and at the same time set by your Executive Board for a reconvening of the delegate convention of the United Mine Workers. If you will give this request favorable consideration, I feel that the convention called in accordance therewith, with coal operators meeting in the same city, a way will be worked out that will be satisfactory to your membership, to the operators, and to the Government of the United States. I earnestly urge you to do this, feeling that if you do your course will be commended by the people of the United States and the dire consequences that will follow a nation-wide coal strike will be prevented."

394,600 MINERS OUT, ASSERT UNION CHIEFS

Reports Show That Soft-Coal Workers Are Ignoring Strike Injunction.

PREDICT COMPLETE TIEUP

Leaders Say Reliable Figures on Total to Quit Will Not Be Available Until Monday.

CHICAGO, Saturday, Nov. 1.—The bituminous coal fields of the nation this morning were in the grip of a strike in which, leaders of the union miners declared, already more than 394,600 of their members were out to remain out until the strike is settled. Thousands more of the miners whose total strength is roughly placed at 500,000 would be out tomorrow, they said.

The men already on strike, the leaders reported, were those who had left the mines today, taking their tools with them. Reports from the soft coal fields were very incomplete tonight, and even the union leaders agreed they would await tomorrow before being able definitely to know the number of men who had obeyed the strike call. But in almost every instance, the miners' spokesmen asserted that the tieups of the mines would be virtually complete.

Some union leaders refused to talk on account of the restraining order issued at Indianapolis.

But with the strike started officially at midnight, today being virtually a holiday in coal mining and Sunday also a day of non-production, it was generally conceded that not before Monday would the actual effect of the strike be known definitely. By that time union leaders will have nearly complete reports from union locals, and the coal operators will know to what extent they will be able to operate if they should decide to attempt operations.

The following table by States of men who left the mines today and tonight to obey the strike call is based on reports, in most instances estimated, received by union leaders throughout the country:

Arkansas	4,000	New Mexico	4,000
Colorado	5,000	North Dakota	1,000
Illinois	80,000	Ohio	40,000
Indiana	25,000	Oklahoma	6,000
Iowa	14,000	Pennsylvania	100,000
Kansas	12,000	Tennessee	2,000
Kentucky	20,000	Utah	1,000
Maryland	1,800	Washington	6,000
Michigan	2,400	West Virginia	40,000
Mississippi	1,000	Wyoming	8,000
Montana	4,000	Texas	2,500

While no reports were available from Alabama and Virginia, union leaders said there were numbers of men on strike, and thousands would be out today in the Southern fields.

PITTSBURGH MEN TO STRIKE.

50,000 in Western Pennsylvania Ordered to Walk Out.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 31.—Philip Murray, President of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, tonight issued a letter to mine officers of his district advising them that the coal strike was on at midnight, regardless of the temporary injunction granted in the Federal Court at Indianapolis by Judge Anderson.

He then closed his office and said he would allow things to work out as best they could, but inasmuch as he had not been enjoined, and the convention of miners' delegates had made it mandatory upon each district president to call a strike unless the demands were met, he elected to stand upon his procedure as the right one to take.

Unless something unforeseen happens before midnight 50,000 miners will lay down their tools in Western Pennsylvania tomorrow morning, 36,800 of whom have paid their dues in the organization to which they belong.

Some of the officers of District No. 5 of the United Mine Workers, if conversations are to be correctly judged, might waive their demand for a thirty-four-hour week, which is one point on which the operators have balked, it is said, from the beginning.

It is well known here that 65 per cent. of the miners of this district are unable to speak English at all, the other 35 per cent. being Americans and British.

MARYLAND MINERS CALLED

But Operators Post Notices That Mines Will Be Open to Workers.

Special to The New York Times.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 31.—Despite the Government injunction, William J. Trickett, Secretary-Treasurer of District 16, United Mine Workers of America, which includes the Georges Creek region in Maryland and the Upper Potomac field in West Virginia, says not a wheel will turn after midnight, which means that over 8,000 men will be idle and a weekly production of about 170,000 tons cut off.

While Trickett was making this declaration the operators were posting notices that the mines would be open as usual tomorrow for the reception of all men who cared to work.

KENTUCKY MINES OPEN.

50 Per Cent. in West Kentucky and 30 Per Cent. in Colorado Exempt.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The Department of Labor was advised today that the coal strike order had been rescinded in Hopkins, Webster, and Christian Counties, Kentucky, comprising one-half of the Western Kentucky fields, employing 6,000 miners.

MADISONVILLE, Ky., Oct. 31.—The order exempting Hopkins, Christian, and Webster Counties was received here in a telegram from W. D. Duncan, President of District No. 23, who advised that at an executive session in Indianapolis yesterday the United Mine Workers had upheld the contract between the operators' association and the union, which contained a provision against strikes in forty-seven mines in that region, effective from last August.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 31.—Action of the United Mine Workers in exempting 28 mines in Colorado from the strike order effective at midnight will result in the production of 15,384 tons of coal daily, or 30 per cent. of Colorado's normal output, according to a statement today by John G. Kerr, Secretary of the Colorado Coal Operators' Association.

All coal in transit or mined in Colorado not seized by the Federal authorities, will be commandeered by the State Government and distributed equitably, Governor O. H. Shoup announced today.

TO STRIKE IN TENNESSEE.

18,000 Coal Miners in District 19 to Go Out.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 31.—Eighteen thousand bituminous coal miners of District 19, comprising the East Tennessee and Southeastern Kentucky fields, will strike, N. E. Ellis, national organizer of the miners' union, declared tonight. Two thousand men working on night shifts in the district, he added, are to quit at midnight, while the others will not report for work tomorrow morning. Enough men will be furnished, he said, to protect the mine properties from damage.

None of the union officials would discuss the Government's injunction suit, and Federal court officials of this district said tonight they had received no instructions regarding the injunction.

TO RUN ALABAMA MINES.

Birmingham District Operators to Continue—To Protect Workers.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 31.—Here is the coal strike situation in the Birmingham district, as summed up by union, mine and civil officials:

"We expect to continue the operation of our mines."—Coal operators of the district.

"The situation is unchanged."—J. R. Kenman, President of District 20, United Mine Workers of America.

"We will not obey the injunction order issued at Indianapolis."—William L. Harrison, National Organizer, United Mine Workers.

"Every man who wants to work will be fully protected."—Chris Hatsfield, Sheriff of Jefferson County.

Sixty extra deputies were sworn in this afternoon by Sheriff Hatsfield, and more will be sworn in early tomorrow. The extra men already are being sent to mines to preserve order from the moment the strike order becomes effective at midnight.

According to an estimate by National Organizer Harrison, from 23,000 to 25,000 men will fail to report for work tomorrow morning, and Monday this number will be considerably increased.

Sheriff Hatsfield stated tonight that he had been assured by Governor Kilby of a sufficient number of troops to preserve order, should armed forces be necessary.

TO TIE UP SOUTHWEST MINES.

No Men Available for Replacing Strikers in the Region.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 31.—At midnight tonight 30,000 coal diggers in Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, and Oklahoma will come out of the shafts and throw down their picks. Coal production will halt. The miners of the Southwest are 100 per cent. organized. There are no men to take their places.

Efforts, through the office of Governor Henry Allen, to isolate the Kansas miners from the national organization and bring about a local settlement are futile. No hope is held out by F. W. Lukins, President of the Southwest Interstate Coal Operators' Association, and other operators.

OHIO MINERS QUIT EARLY.

40,000 Men Will Be Out Today, Union Officials Say.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 31.—Approximately 40,000 soft coal miners in Ohio will go out on strike tomorrow, despite many rumors to the contrary and despite the injunction issued against the strike at Indianapolis today by Federal Judge Anderson, according to President John Moore of the United Mine Workers of Ohio.

One of the features of the day's developments was the quitting of work early in the day by many miners in the Eastern Ohio coal fields.

INDIANA MINERS FIRM.

Official Says 30,000 Workers Will Ignore Injunction.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 31.—"Injunction writs won't mine coal," was the comment of William Mitch, Secretary of the United Mine Workers, District No. 11, when told today that Judge A. B. Anderson had issued a temporary injunction.

Secretary Mitch stated that the order would have no effect in the Indiana district, that the strike was regularly called and would be obeyed 100 per cent. by the 30,000 miners of the State.

MICHIGAN MINES ABANDONED.

Strike Order Unanimously Supported, According to Leaders.

BAY CITY, Mich., Oct. 31.—Operations in practically all Michigan mines were suspended for the duration of the strike when the shifts left work this evening, there being few mines in the State working night forces, William Stevenson, President of District 24, announced tonight.

"The 26,400 miners in the district are unanimously supporting the strike order," Stevenson declared, after spending the day visiting all the workings and interviewing the men. "They will stick to the finish," he added.

90,000 OUT IN ILLINOIS.

Operators Say They Will Make No Effort to Work the Mines.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 31.—When the whistles blew at the mines at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon 90,000 coal miners in Illinois laid down their tools, not to resume them until their demands are granted, they say, and the great coal strike was on.

Both sides claim that they are prepared for the struggle and are confident they will come out victorious. The coal operators say that they will make no effort to operate their mines unless the Government at Washington demands that they do so.

Frank Farrington, President of the Illinois United Mine Workers, has called a meeting of the State Executive Board for Monday morning to arrange details for the conduct of the strike. He refused to make any comment on Judge Anderson's injunction.

FUEL COMPANY FACES TIEUP.

Colorado Company Will Close Its Mines, Says Official.

PUEBLO, Col., Oct. 31.—H. C. Stewart, District Secretary of the union, predicted the bituminous coal strike would paralyze production in the properties of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, which does not recognize the union. This company is the largest single employer of labor in the mines of District 15.

The Victor-American Fuel Company, with ten mines, is the largest operator whose properties are exempt from the strike order.

TRINDAD, Col., Oct. 31.—E. H. Weitzel, manager of the Fuel Department of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, announced today that all company mines would be closed tomorrow morning and remain closed until adequate troop protection was afforded. Notices to this effect were posted at all the mines.

WILL PROTECT WORKERS IN PENNSYLVANIA

Governor Sproul Warns Striking Miners Against Parades and Violations of Law.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Oct. 31.—Governor William C. Sproul, in a public statement tonight, gave formal notice that "the full power of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, through all of its agencies, will be used to protect those who desire to continue to work" during the mine workers' strike. The statement follows:

"It appearing that the general officers of the miners' organization have definitely ignored the suggestions of the President of the United States and the offers of mediation by the Secretary of Labor, and have ordered a strike of those who would place allegiance to this leadership above their loyalty to the Government and their duty to their fellow-citizens, I give notice that the full power of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, through all of its agencies, will be used to protect those who desire to continue at work, and to suppress disorder wherever and whenever it may arise.

"The State cannot tolerate the intimidation of individuals nor interference with them in their peaceful and lawful occupations, and those who infringe upon the rights of others must not complain if they are treated as offenders against the peace of the Commonwealth. The carrying or possession of firearms, weapons or explosives, except by those especially authorized by law, must be rigorously dealt with by the officers of the Commonwealth at this time.

"The movement of large numbers of persons from place to place, whether in organized parades or otherwise, in times of unsettlement or excitement, may result in violence and danger, and the State cannot allow such movements nor any other demonstrations which might lead to disorder.

"The Government of Pennsylvania will protect its citizens and others who may be within the borders of the State in their rights, and those who interfere with these rights must expect to be dealt with as the laws of the Commonwealth provide, and to be pursued, apprehended, and punished now or hereafter if they offend against these laws. Solemn warning is given that every effort will be made to maintain the peace and that those who break our laws or the necessary police regulations of our municipalities and counties must take the consequences."

PLENTY OF COAL FOR HEATING HOUSES

Enough Anthracite to Keep Railroads and Industries Going Also for Some Time, Burns Says.

Frank Burns of the Burns Bros. Coal Company said yesterday that industries which normally consumed quantities of bituminous coal had been in the market for anthracite recently and that the large supply of anthracite already mined would help to keep railroads and essential industries in operation for a considerable period, without causing a shortage of coal for heating purposes.

"There is more anthracite coal above ground than there has been at any time since the war," he said. "It is expected that the Government will take what is sufficient for the railroads. In some other lines anthracite will probably take the place of bituminous to some extent. I don't think the extra call on anthracite will produce any shortage for heating purposes."

At the offices of the Consolidation Coal Company it was said that a considerable proportion of their employes had manifested a disposition to remain at work, and that the degree in which coal production was crippled would probably depend on the amount of intimidation and violence which the strikers employed.

Ernest Bohm, Secretary of the Central Federated Union, said that organized labor would support the strikers, and would resent the use by the Government of the injunction.

"I don't think it is right," he said. "The Government is coercing the mine workers, while allowing the operators a free hand. Nothing has been said against the obstreperousness of the operators, but it is always organized labor that is attacked. As far as the Central Federated Union is concerned, it will stand behind the mine workers."

in the paradoxical position where their intensive labors were being used to further enrich the owners of coal mines and merchants dealing in coal by the immediate reduction of the mining of the coal. Of course, the mine owners readily conceived that an overabundance of mined coal would seriously disturb the high prices of coal and endanger their large margin of profits.

"On the other hand, the miners found that with the constantly rising cost of necessities of life and with their income reduced over 50 per cent. because of idleness they had reached the limit of human endurance.

"Orderly and improved processes were invoked to negotiate a new understanding with the mine owners, and which would enable the miners to work at least five days during each week throughout the entire year and allow them a wage sufficient to enable them to live in decency and free from any of the pressing uncertainties of life.

"In attempting to negotiate this new understanding and relation the miners found that their plea for continuous employment would destroy the mine owners' arrangement to curtail the mining of coal so as to continue exploiting the public with high and exorbitant prices.

"The mine owners very clearly met the issue by appearing willing and anxious to negotiate, but only if the miners would first throw aside the only power at their command to gain a respectful hearing and fair consideration—the decision to strike whenever it was demonstrated fair dealings did not prevail.

"We are now faced with a coal strike of vast magnitude. The Government now proposes to intervene because of a possible coal shortage. Apparently the Government is not concerned with the manipulation by the mine owners which has made for present coal shortage and undue unemployment of the miners for the past eleven months. Instead of dealing with those responsible for this grave menace to the public welfare it now proposes to punish those who by force of circumstances have been the victims of the coal barons' exploitations. The miners are now told the war is not over and that all war legislation is still in force, and if reports received here are correct the Government intends to apply existing war measures, not against the owners of the coal mines, but against the coal miners. The Government has taken steps to enforce war measures by an injunction and it has restrained the officials of the United Mine Workers from counselling, aiding, or in any way assisting the members of this organization for relief against grievous conditions of life and employment.

"It is almost inconceivable that a Government which is proud of its participation in a great war to liberate suppressed peoples should now undertake to suppress the legitimate aims, hopes, and aspirations of a group of its own people. It is still more strange that a nation which may justly be proud of its Abraham Lincoln should now reverse the application of the great truth he enunciated when he said that as between capital and labor, labor should receive first and foremost consideration.

"The injunction against the United Mine Workers bodes for ill. An injunction of this nature will not prevent the strike, it will not fill the empty stomachs of the miners, it may restrain sane leadership, but will give added strength to unwise counsel and increase bitterness and friction.

"This injunction can only result in creating new and more disturbing issues which may not be confined solely to the miners. These views were presented to Attorney General Palmer in a conference this afternoon lasting nearly two hours by President Gompers, Secretary Morrison, and Vice President Woll of the American Federation of Labor."

Mr. Gompers refused to add anything by way of comment to the above statement. The local representatives of the miners also refused to make any statement, preferring, they said, to let the statement stand as an expression of their views.

Dr. Harry A. Garfield, the Fuel Administrator, had just left the Attorney General when Mr. Palmer received the newspaper correspondents late this afternoon.

"Has the injunction been violated yet?" an old friend of Mr. Palmer among the correspondents asked.

"I don't know. I hope not. The only information I have received up to now from Judge Ames in Indianapolis is merely an announcement that Judge Anderson has issued the temporary restraining order and that it is now in effect. The injunction now operates to prevent those in charge of the strike from doing any actual thing to carry it into effect from this time until it is vacated."

Mr. Palmer's attitude was that of an official who did not expect the order to be vacated.

"This is a restraining order rather than a temporary injunction," he said. "The strike order has, of course, been issued and the action taken in Indianapolis today cannot affect that order. But it will stop, if obeyed, the officials in charge from directing the movement of local organizations about putting the strike into effect. If obeyed the order takes the direction of the strike from the head officials and leaves the miners perfect freedom to quit work or continue at work as they may see fit.

"It will be for the courts," added the Attorney General, "to decide whether the order is violated. What the Government may or may not do depends entirely on what the officials of the United Mine Workers of America do. This order does not operate against the local officials of the mine workers' organization."

Mr. Palmer then told of his conference with Warren E. Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; L. E. Sheppard of the Conductors; J. J. Forrester of the Railway Clerks; L. J. Ross of the Railway Telegraphers, all of whom are brotherhood officials, and B. M. Jewell, T. J. McNamara and F. Hewett of the Railway Department of the American Federation of Labor, who participated in the conference.

Mr. Palmer said the Brotherhood did not argue, but simply offered their good offices "just as all good citizens should do" in a situation like the present. Mr. Palmer made it plain to them that if the miners would return to work and leave the settlement of their troubles to the national Government, President Wilson was ready immediately to appoint a commission of fair and just citizens who would investigate the whole matter at issue with a view to effecting a just and lasting settlement. Mr. Palmer added that the railway men appeared to be impressed.

"What about Gompers's mission?" Mr. Palmer was asked.

"Well," he replied, "they came here to urge their view upon the matter of the injunction. I explained to Mr. Gompers the necessity of the action taken and the manner in which this particular case must be differentiated from all other cases involving so-called government by injunction. I am opposed to such government and so is the Government. Injunction conveys the idea of an employer forcing his employes into submission.

"This, however, is a very different situation, and the Government has invoked the courts for the purpose of preparing itself against paralysis. It is not sought by what we have done to settle the merits of the strike, but for the purpose of preventing certain persons from doing something that is contrary to law. The Railway Administration has contracts for 360,000 tons of coal a day. The Government must run the railways, and so it must be that the Government can protect itself in its own courts, especially when it is necessary for the Government to protect itself from what I call paralysis.

"The Brotherhood men said that the Government had taken a grave step. No one knows that better than I do. This is a case standing by itself. The facts are without precedent. If the Government cannot protect itself in a case like this, we had better find it out now. I believe this is a strong Government, and I believe that the people of the country are behind it."

"Does the President approve what is being done?" was the last question asked the Attorney General.

"Certainly. That goes without saying," he answered.

STRIKE SITUATION SHOWN BY FIGURES

MANY NONUNION MINES

Output of Latter Given as 175,000,000 Tons—Estimates by States and Counties.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The following table, made up from data in the possession of the Government and from other reliable sources, gives a fairly accurate picture of the coal strike situation in the United States tonight, this statement being based upon the assumption the union miners have obeyed the mandate of their leaders and that the nonunion miners have remained at work.

The figures showing total annual production and number of men employed are from the files of the Geological Survey. The union and nonunion lineup was obtained from the miners' representatives and from representatives of coal operators.

The unionized mines in which the strike, according to the United Mine Workers of America, is effective, with the location of the mines by counties, the total annual output and the number of employes, as shown by the records of the United States Geological Survey of the Department of the Interior, are as follows:

Main Line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, from Johnstown to Turtle Creek, including Ligonier Valley.

South Fork Branch, from Windber south.

Baltimore and Ohio, Johnstown to Rockwood Junction.

These fields, together with unlisted non-union properties in the South and West, bring the total non-union bituminous production of the country to aproximately 175,000,000 tons annually, or about one-third of the total national supply of this kind of fuel.

KNOX DIDN'T CALL ON KING.

Answers Report That He Waited While Gompers Saw Albert.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Rising to a question of personal privilege, Senator Knox denied a report today that he was kept waiting in an anteroom while King Albert conferred with Samuel Gompers during the recent visit of the Belgian ruler in Washington.

"I never saw the King except when he appeared here in the Senate," Senator Knox said.

It was reported about the Capitol that Senator Knox had declined to accept a place on the Reception Committee of the Senate when his Majesty was welcomed.

Senator Knox also took exception to a remark made by Senator La Follette during debate on the Thomas coal strike resolution in the Senate yesterday. Mr. Knox said that Mr. La Follette referred to him as a member of the "coal delegation" when Senators Knox, Elkins of West Virginia, and several others were conferring in another part of the chamber.

Headquarters, field artillery, and medical and supply trains.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 31.—Major Gen. Lewis, it was announced here tonight, has ordered three companies of Federal troops to Knoxville, to be ready to enter the coal fields of East Tennessee or Eastern Kentucky in the event of trouble arising following the strike of the coal miners. The men are to be sent from Camp Gordon.

DENVER, Oct. 31.—Three companies of State troops, mobilized at Golden, tonight were ordered to proceed immediately to the coal fields at Frederick, Col. They are to entrain at 11 o'clock. Troops mobilized at Trinidad will proceed to the southern coal fields tomorrow, it was announced at the Capitol.

CAMP SHERMAN, Chillicothe, Ohio, Oct. 31.—Military officials at Camp Sherman said today they had not received orders to hold troops ready to entrain for coal-strike regions, but that they were prepared for such orders.

They said a battalion of 500 men drilled in strike and riot work could be entrained in an hour after receipt of orders. This battalion was assembled and inspected Wednesday with full marching equipment.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—With Federal troops in West Virginia, the Central Department of the Army, commanded by General Leonard Wood, expected no further troop movements tonight in relation to the coal strike, it was said at headquarters. The department, on which most of the burden of preserving order would fall in the event of serious disturbances, was prepared for any emergency.

The Central Department has approximately 10,000 regular army troops at various cantonments and army posts, within easy traveling distance of the larger part of the great coal fields. Between 25,000 and 30,000 troops are within the jurisdiction of the Central Department, and General Wood has authority to call on other troops in States where there are no coal mines.

GARFIELD RESTORES WAR COAL CONTROL

Export Is Stopped, Priority Established, and Maximum Prices Fixed.

GOOD STOCK IS ON HAND

Port Labor Troubles Have Added to Supplies for Home Use—No Immediate Shortage.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The United States Government tonight assumed control of every available ton of bituminous and lignite coal within the borders of the nation which had not actually been delivered by the railroads, in preparation for the battle with the striking coal miners. Here are some of the more important steps taken:

An air-tight embargo was placed on foreign export shipments.

Prices were fixed at the mine and the margin of profits which may be charged by the wholesaler, jobber and retailer regulated to prevent the public from paying extortionate charges.

The Railroad Administration, as the agent of the United States Fuel Administrator, was vested with full authority to divert any shipments of coal and otherwise control distribution, according to a priority list in order that the essential needs might first be filled and the best interests of the public served.

From this time there cannot be moved a single pound of coal of these classifications without the sanction of the Government and less essential needs must wait if the available supply is required to prevent suffering. Dealers who attempt to exploit the public will face fine or imprisonment. The people are called upon to support their Government on precisely the same basis as if the nation were again in the midst of the great world war and the same measure of patriotic compliance is expected, in the event that substantial sacrifices are necessary.

In order to extend all protection possible to the public the Administration has asked that the Food Control act, a wartime measure which covers the regulation of the coal supply of the nation as well as its food supply, shall be extended for a period of perhaps six months.

Up to a late hour tonight, no action has been taken by the Government for the resumption of its control over anthracite coal—the hard coal which is used so largely in households—but Fuel Administrator H. A. Garfield is keeping in hourly touch with the situation and will assume control at the first evidence that it either is being diverted from its normal uses or that there is a tendency on the part of mine operators, wholesalers, or retailers to increase prices. All must play the game in the best interests of the nation or expect immediate governmental action.

Developments of this nature gave cumulative evidence today that all branches of the Government, legislative and administrative, are getting behind the President in order to meet the crisis which the strikers in the coal mines have brought about.

No More Coal to Export.

The export embargo, to take the developments in the order given, was put into effect by the Railroad Administration through the power granted it to seize coal in transit in order to build up adequate coal supplies and prevent interruption of traffic. The lid was clamped down tight today and even coal at terminals which was not actually aboard ship, was seized. Where ships had practically completed loading they were permitted to continue preparations for sailing, but in no other instances were exceptions made.

In this way huge supplies of coal which were found at such ports as Newport News and Baltimore were retained for domestic purposes and these stores were considerably larger because of labor trouble in loading recently. The largest demand for export coal has come from Italy and some of the Scandinavian countries, but they now must wait. The policy is definite and will not be altered in any cases. The only coal available for shipping from now on will be that known as bunker coal—used for the ship operation.

The Railroad Administration will not quote statistics as to the available supply it has on hand, but large supplies have been in transit since the strike situation became threatening and it is believed that there is no immediate cause for alarm so far as the carriers are concerned in most sections of the nation, even though the supply of new coal may be practically cut off for some little time by the strike.

Price fixing at the mine and the regulation of the jobber, wholesaler and retailer, which had been abandoned as a government policy, was resumed through an executive order issued by President Wilson. The power to fix prices is vested in the Administration by the coal sections of the Food Control act, which remains on the statute books until formal declaration of peace, following the ratification of the peace treaty. The price fixing regulations merely had been suspended and the executive order had the effect of placing them again in operation.

The President's Order.

The President's executive order follows:

Whereas, the United States Fuel Administrator, acting under the authority of an executive order issued by me dated the 23d of August, 1917, appointing the said Fuel Administrator and of subsequent executive orders, and in furtherance of the purpose of said orders and of the act of Congress herein referred to and approved Aug. 10, 1917, did on Jan. 31, 1919, and on Feb. 20, 1919, execute and issue orders suspending until further order by the President certain rules, regulations, orders, and proclamations theretofore promulgated relating to the fixing of prices, the production, sale, shipment, distribution, apportionment, storage, and use of coal, and whereas it is necessary to restore and maintain during the war certain of said rules, regulations, orders, and proclamations:

Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, acting under authority of the aforesaid act of Congress, approved Aug. 10, 1917, do hereby revoke and annul said orders of Jan. 31, 1919, and Feb. 20, 1919, to the extent necessary to restore all of the said rules, regulations, orders, and proclamations therein suspended concerning:

(B) Fixing or regulating commissions of persons and agencies performing the functions of middlemen dealing in bituminous and lignite coal;

(C) Fixing or regulating gross margins or prices of wholesale and retail dealers in bituminous and lignite coal; and do hereby restore all of said rules, regulations, and proclamations to the extent herein provided, to full force and effect, as if they had not been suspended.

Inasmuch as it is contemplated that it may be necessary from time to time to revoke other portions of said orders of Jan. 31, 1919, and Feb. 20, 1919, and to restore to full force and effect rules, regulations, orders, and proclamations or portions thereof regulating the production, sale, shipment, distribution, apportionment, storage or use of bituminous and lignite coal, the Fuel Administrator shall, as occasion arises, restore, change or make such rules or regulations relating to the production, sale, shipment, distribution, apportionment, storage or use of bituminous and lignite coal as in his judgment may be necessary.

WOODROW WILSON.

The White House, Oct. 30, 1919.

The maximum prices fixed are those in effect when control voluntarily was relinquished. They are fixed by States, and for prepared sizes range from $4.60 a net ton at the mine mouth to $2.60 a ton. It is said that the maximum prices restored by the President's order are about on a level with those prevailing during the Summer. They are somewhat lower than prices quoted recently when it appeared that there was danger of a strike, but the difference is not great.

Alabama, $2.45 to $4.35; Colorado, $1.60 to $4.60; Illinois, $2.05 (lowest); Kentucky, $2.30 to $4.50; Ohio, $2.65 to $3.65; Pennsylvania, $3.25 to $3.65; Tennessee, $2.75 to $4.50; West Virginia, $2.45 to $3, and Virginia, $2.10 to $3.90.

The Fuel Administration's wartime regulations to jobbers provided that "for the buying and selling of bituminous coal a jobber shall not add to his purchase price a gross margin in excess of 15 cents a ton of 2,000 pounds, nor shall the combined gross margins of any number of jobbers who buy and sell a given shipment or shipments of bituminous coal exceed 15 cents per ton of 2,000 pounds."

The President's executive order gave to Fuel Administrator Garfield authority to use such provisions of the Food Control act relating to coal supply as he deemed necessary, and late today, when it became apparent that the strike was inevitable, Mr. Garfield, after consultation with Attorney General Palmer, issued an order, restoring the priority list, investing in the Railroad Administration the power to divert coal shipments. Instructions immediately were sent out by Director General Hines to regional directors to put the regulations in effect where occasion arose.

This sweeping order practically returned to the Government through the Fuel Administration and its agent, the Railroad Administration, the control over coal distribution exercised while the war was being fought, and would carry authority to refuse coal to all but the most essential industries in the event a grave shortage was faced.

The priority list of May 25, 1918, is restored as follows:

(A) Railroads.
(B) Army and navy, together with other departments of the Federal Government.
(C) State and county departments and institutions.
(D) Public utilities.
(E) Retail dealers.
(F) Manufacturing plants on War Industries Board's preference list.
(G) Manufacturing plants not on War Industries Board's preference list.
(H) Jobbers.
(I) Lake.
(J) Tidewater.

The order becomes effective at once. Mr. Garfield said:

"Our first duty was to protect the public. It would have required too much time to set up the old machinery of the Fuel Administration, so the Department of Justice will have charge of seeing that the maximum price list is observed and the Railroad Administration, with its staff already in the field, will direct the distribution.

"Any person who is charged more than the legal price for coal can obtain redress by applying to the United States District Attorney in his district.

"If the crisis is prolonged, it might become necessary to call on the producing district representatives of the Fuel Administration. Against such a contingency I have telegraphed these twenty-seven representatives to hold themselves in readiness to render any assistance necessary to the District Attorneys and the Railroad Administration. It is not expected that the State Fuel Administrators will be called upon at present."

MILKMEN GET FINAL OFFER.

Drivers Will Vote Today on Proposals—Deliveries Uninterrupted.

The employers committee of the New York Milk Conference Board, which has for the last two weeks been in conference with a committee of the local unions of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, and Helpers of America, last night submitted their final offer to the delegates. The proposal will be submitted to the men at a meeting to be held this afternoon. Meantime there will be no interruption of the delivery of milk, though the men's contracts expire today.

"We have every reason to believe that the offer fully recognizes the demands of the men both as to wages and improved working conditions," said L. Elkin Nathans, Secretary of the Milk Conference Board, "and that as a result there will be no interruption of the city's milk supply."

The men demand $50 a week and 2 per cent. commission on collections. They now receive $30 a week and 1 per cent. of collections. A compromise offer of $33 a week and 2 per cent. commission was refused by the men.

TO EXTEND FOOD LAW.

Palmer Asks That Control Be Maintained Six Months After Peace.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—In order that the Government may have law on its side to continue its fight against the strikers after peace is declared, Attorney General Palmer today asked that the amended Food Control act, under which the Government was now operating in the coal strike, should be extended for six months after peace is declared.

Mr. Palmer did this in a letter sent to Speaker Gillett of the House, and suggested the form of amendment which he asks the proper committee to consider without delay. Republican Leader Mondell said that the House would, of course, give the matter consideration and if it were found necessary to extend the act to aid the Government in its present plans, the amendment would be favorably acted upon. Mr. Mondell gave it as his opinion that it would not be necessary to adopt the amendment at once.

COOL TO ADMIRALTY'S PLAN.

British Don't Take Its Offer to Transport "Drummers" Seriously.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The announcement that commercial travelers and business house representatives may be permitted to take passage on British warships sailing for abroad, made Wednesday by Sir Hamar Greenwood, Under Secretary for Home Affairs, is not taken seriously as a means for aiding commercial travelers, either by the Admiralty or the London Chamber of Commerce. No inquiries by commercial men have been made since the announcement.

A desire to co-operate in the matter has been expressed at the Admiralty, but it is pointed out that ships going to distant ports are comparatively few, and that their courses are often diverted at sea.

At the Chamber of Commerce the opinion was offered that the discussion might be used as an opening wedge in realizing a previous proposal made to the Admiralty. This proposal suggests that instead of dismantling some ships they be converted for the use of British commercial purposes during a time when British traders believe the empire's business is suffering because their representatives are unable to get to foreign fields through lack of transport.

TROOPERS GUARD 2 BANKS.

Report of Robbery Plot Sends Constabulary to Katonah and Mt. Kisco.

BEDFORD, N. Y., Oct. 31.—On a report that one of the two banks was going to be robbed the State constabulary today dispatched five troopers from Bedford to Mt. Kisco and Katonah and they are now on guard at the North Westchester Bank at Katonah and the Mt. Kisco National Bank.

The constabulary was notified by Edward Tatham, one of the officials of the North Westchester institution, that Neville Hyatt, 16 years old, had given information that three young men were going to break into one of the institutions and that they had secured an automobile, firearms and other paraphernalia to carry out the robbery.

IRISH M. P. SENTENCED.

Blythe Receives a Year in Prison and Starts Hunger Strike.

DUBLIN, Oct. 31, (Associated Press.)—Ernest Blythe, Sinn Fein Member of Parliament, was today sentenced by court martial to a year's imprisonment for having in his possession a document advocating the persecution of relatives of the police.

Mr. Blythe disclaimed all knowledge of the document and characterized its proposals as abominable. The prisoner has gone on a hunger strike.

HOUSE UNANIMOUS IN BACKING WILSON

LEADERS DENOUNCE STRIKE

Republicans and Democrats Declare Authority of Government and Welfare of People Will Be Upheld.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. — With speeches denouncing the coal strike by leaders of both political parties, the House, without a dissenting vote, adopted today the Senate resolution approving President Wilson's announced determination to employ the power of the Government to enforce law and order, and prevent a coal famine during the coal strike. The resolution was passed by a vote of 266 to 0.

The speakers included ex-Speaker Clark, Democratic leader, Representatives Mondell of Wyoming, Republican leader; Longworth of Ohio; Madden, Cannon and King of Illinois; Towner of Iowa; Wood of Indiana; Kitchin of North Carolina; Garrett of Tennessee, and Conally of Texas. They showed that the House was a unity against the strike, and stood ready to support the Executive in his acts to avert a national calamity and industrial paralysis.

"The American people have reached the conclusion that the time is here when a few men in any walk of life shall no longer dictate the policy of the Government," said Representative Martin B. Madden of Illinois. "And they are not going to submit quietly to any determination on the part of any organization, no matter what it is, to declare against the interests of the whole American people."

"Both great political parties from time to time have exhibited a great desire to command the vote of people who in my judgment, are not loyal," said Representative Cannon. "That applies to some of the leaders who called this strike; it does not apply to the great mass of the people who labor, whether they labor in mines or on railways."

A request by Representative King for permission to insert in the Record a telegram from John L. Lewis, head of the Mine Workers, was blocked by an objection from Representative Blandon of Texas. Representative Rucker of Missouri, Democrat, later commended the keeping "that vile calumny upon the President of the United States" out of the Record.

Representative Kitchin chided Republican leader Mondell for having expressed himself yesterday as doubting the wisdom of Congress passing upon executive policies.

"I think the Committee on Judiciary did the proper thing this morning in substituting this Senate resolution for the Conally resolution, and I think the gentleman from Wyoming [Mr. Mondell] did the proper thing this morning in asking the unanimous consent of the House for the consideration of the Senate resolution," said Representative Kitchin. "However, I do not want the House to understand that I approve of the gentleman from Wyoming or any gentleman in this House, Republican or Democrat, for not trying long before today to get consideration of some kind of a resolution in this House to let these walking delegates and these radical labor agitators and leaders know that this Congress is behind the President, and that it is behind any other constituted authority in this United States to prevent consummation of a conspiracy upon the part of the Lewises and the Fosters and the Fitzpatricks of this country to take the very life of the nation and to destroy the very happiness, peace and content of our people."

Steel Men Unwilling Strikers.

Representative Wood of the Gary (Indiana) district asserted that the steel strikers were forced out by the union leaders against their will.

"The representatives of the American people," he said, "by sounding their voices at this time in support of the position taken by the President of the United States, can say not only to the people who are asked to go out and destroy their own interests, and the best interests of the people of the United States, but they can say to the American people that we are standing here ready and willing to represent the people, and that neither the autocracy of labor nor the autocracy of capital shall stand in the way of the proper conduct of our Government."

Former Speaker Champ Clark said:

"How many capitalists there are I do not know, but there are 110,000,000 consumers in this country. Without capital labor would be futile. Without labor capital would be as useless as a painted ship on a painted sea; and without the consumers both of them would be in as sad a case as was Othello, for their occupation would be gone.

"The capitalists are organized; the laboring men are organized; the consumers are not organized. But they can be organized. They will exercise supreme power in this land. They are beginning to be afraid that they are going to be ground between the upper and the nether millstones."

OPPOSE FIXED PRICE ON COAL.

Dealers Here Urge Workers Be Protected to Insure Adequate Supply.

The Wholesale Coal Trade Association of New York sent a letter yesterday to the President and to members of his Cabinet and of Congress protesting against the fixing of the price of coal. The letter says:

"The fact that there is no present general shortage of coal and that if the miners who want to work are given protection by the Government they will work leads us to make the following statement and recommendation:

"First—With proper police or troop protection there will be a sufficient number of miners who will be willing to continue at work to insure, with present stocks, an adequate supply to meet the emergency created by the strike.

"Second—Fixing a maximum price will curtail the operators' ability to meet the abnormal production costs caused by the strike, and will discourage the operators in their efforts to produce coal.

"Third—The law of supply and demand will take care of distribution better than any theoretical program.

"Fourth—The putting into effect of priority lists will result in unnecessarily overstocking certain consumers and allowing others to go without.

"Fifth—If there are attempts at profiteering, the machinery provided under the recent amendments to the Lever law may be used.

"We recommend that the miners be given protection, so that they may work in safety, and that consumers be allowed to procure their coal through normal channels without interference from Government departments or the Railroad Administration."

PENNSYLVANIA UNIONS TO MEET IN PITTSBURGH

Convention of State Federation Is Called to Demand the Rights of Free Speech and Assemblage.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 31.—A special convention of the State Federation of Labor has been called for tomorrow by the President, James H. Maurer of Harrisburg, and will be attended by about 500 delegates from labor bodies throughout the State. The convention is called to take action defending the civil rights and constitutional liberties of working people of the State. A report will be read on the new labor party of the State, and its relation to the steel strike. Maurer arrived here tonight, and said:

"This will be the most important convention the State Federation of Labor ever held. Delegates are coming from every nook and corner of the State. There will be at least 200 coal miners' delegates from the five United Mine Workers' districts in the State."

Asked if there will be any action taken on the steel strike, "There'll be action, all right," he replied.

A report will be made by the committee of eighteen which visited Washington on behalf of organized labor of Allegheny County and held conferences with the Pennsylvania representatives in Congress and with Attorney General Palmer.

One of the courses of action favored by some of the delegates already here is an ultimatum to Governor Sproul and to State and local authorities that further appeals to judicial and governmental authorities for relief will not be considered unless prompt and decisive action "restoring constitutional rights and civil liberties is forthwith taken."

The steel workers are watching anxiously the effect of the injunction restraining the coal miners, as they bank heavily on the coal strike furthering their own strike. It is believed by many that a coal tieup would hurt many of the mills much more than the strike now being carried on by the steel workers.

Some of the large steel companies in the Allegheny Valley mine their own fuel. The Allegheny Steel Company at Brackenridge operates its own mines, as also does the Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Company. Both collieries are conducted on the open-shop basis and are expected to continue production. The Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company has a mine at Creighton. The West Pennsylvania Steel Company has been using natural gas for some time.

Secretary W. Z. Foster of the National Strike Committee, returned from New York today, and said his mission had been successful and that they are now assured of financial support by the New York unions.

15,540 WORK IN YOUNGSTOWN.

Bank Gives Figures Based on Payrolls of the Steel Plants.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Oct. 31.—Figures announced by a local bank, based upon the payrolls to the end of last week which are made up by this bank, give the number of men working in Youngstown's steel mills at 15,540, out of more than 30,000. It is estimated that 5,000 returned to work this week.

No new developments occurred in the Mahoning Valley steel region today, manufacturers carrying out the usual policy of not attempting to start new departments toward the week end. About the usual number of men were said to have entered the mills this morning, without molestation from pickets.

PERSHING WANTS CITIZEN TRAINING

one year. I think that the permanent appointments to any of these corps should not be made in lower grades.

"I am not in favor of giving rank to chaplains. It seems to me that their duty is such that a bestowal of rank would interfere with it. This view was held in France by some very distinguished chaplains from civil life, who believed that the cross, which is the insignia of chaplains, is sufficient to distinguish them.

"I should regret to see any step that would impair the efficiency of West Point. This institution has furnished the army, for more than 100 years, with officers, upon whom has fallen the training of our armies and the maintenance of our military traditions. The wisdom of the reduction to three years in the course at West Point is, to my mind, rather doubtful. In order that all officers entering the army, whether or not through West Point, should be on the same footing, it seems to me that all should be required to take the preliminary course in our training camps or serve one year in the army.

"The sections relating to combatant arms of the service—the infantry, cavalry, field artillery, and coast artillery—confer upon the President power which I think wise. We found during the war that many changes had to be made in organizations to meet changing situations, and I can see no objection in bestowing this authority upon the President during peace.

"The appointment of a Chief of Coast Artillery has proved very beneficial to that arm. I think this same provision should be extended to the field artillery, infantry, and cavalry, under the designation of Inspector of Field Artillery, Inspector of Infantry, and Inspector of Cavalry."

Sees Too Many Line Officers.

Discussing the reserve army, General Pershing said:

"There should be a large reserve force of officers provided, not only for the reserve troops, but for various staff corps and departments, including the General Staff. They should be divided into three classes according to their availability for service, as follows:

"First, availability for service in time of peace in connection with the training of troops;

"Second, availability for service during grave national disturbances.

"Third, availability for service in war."

As to general officers of the line and the General Staff, General Pershing said:

"There are too many line officers provided in this bill, undoubtedly so if the number of enlisted men provided in the bill is reduced. I also believe that in time of peace we should not provide for conferring high rank on officers. The bill should provide for temporary appointments of General and Lieutenant General during war times and also be so framed that officers might be assigned to duty without regard to seniority of rank in the several grades.

"We have come out of the war with general staff experience and with trained officers, so that now there should be no difficulty in establishing a smooth working general staff machine.

"Promotions in the army should be included in a single list," continued the General. "Jealousies have arisen and now exist because the promotions have been unequal. I am very strongly in favor of a single list, and think it should be adopted now in order to remove all differences of opinion and enable all officers of the army to take a large view of our requirements as a whole.

Defend Universal Training.

"It seems to me that America should not lag behind in encouraging aviation, and should keep pace with the progress of other nations. I think that appropriations for military, naval, and commercial aviation might very well be included under one head; first, for the various services of the army and navy, and, second, to procure planes for all other purposes, commercially and otherwise, as may seem desirable.

"People are not going to take kindly to the thought of having 1,000,000 each year taken from industrial and social life and enter compulsory military training," said Senator Kirby of Arkansas, "and I want that point fully developed by you. We made soldiers and officers in three months during the war. We whipped the trained army of Germany with them, and I want to ask why it should be considered necessary now, merely because of a possible emergency to have universal military training.

"In the first place, it is not fair to state that we made officers in three months," replied General Pershing. "It seems to me that if the war taught us anything about preparedness, it taught us that we should make some preparation in peace, in order to be prepared for war.

"In addition, I think that the military training of our young men should have an excellent effect upon them as citizens. It would be, in a sense, a training school for their citizenship, and one does not have to argue that very long. It is evident today throughout the country that there are a large number of men, especially among the alien population, who do not understand our institutions, and who do not appreciate our form of Government, or what it means, and who are here, to reap advantages without fulfilling the obligations which fall upon them.

"Personally I would prefer six months' training to three months'. If men were trained for only three months, we would have to do a lot more training after war was declared."

"If our selective draft army had had universal military training before the war, would not we have gotten into the fighting line much more quickly," asked Senator Spencer.

"I am quite sure of it, and our casualties would have been less."

"Would you couple vocational with military training," asked Representative Kahn.

"So far as possible."

"Why was it that we whipped the trained army of Germany with our citizen soldiery?" asked Senator McKellar.

"Our Allies held the lines while we trained. If we had had a trained army to go into the battle line in 1917 we might have ended the war that year," retorted the General.

"You wouldn't draft the youths so trained into military service," asked Representative Hull.

"No, I believe that the standing army should be filled by volunteers. And in case of war, of course, Congress would fix the age limits for drafting."

Organization of Reserves.

"From a military standpoint all the reserves should be placed in some sort of organization and given a definite status, officers as well as enlisted men. In such an arrangement we have a very great asset in our trained units which had experience in the war. National Guard units as well as the National Army units should be maintained to foster their traditions, their pride of service and their ideals of citizenship. I would be in favor of maintaining the units with the officers which trained them, so far as efficiency permits."

General Pershing said the General Staff had failed to co-ordinate and had fallen down in providing supplies. He, however, advocated its continuance and insisted that no man should serve on it who had not passed the staff service school or had actual experience as a staff officer during the war.

He also advocated a flat increase in compensation for officers and men of the army.

General Pershing testified that the army in France received no American combat planes up to January last, but had 1,443 American observation planes and 5,181 of various European types. The only American artillery in action was some 8-inch pieces. About 170 American-made 75s reached the A. E. F., but were not used.

LONGSHORE STRIKE NEARING THE END

Chelsea Local, with 3,100 Members, Votes to Return to Work This Morning.

INSURGENTS ARE STILL FIRM

Their Leader, Butler, Arrested, but Set Free—Hoboken Deports 70 Strikebreakers.

The longshoremen's strike will be entirely over within the next few days if the members of Local No. 791, International Longshoremen's Association, otherwise known as the Chelsea Local, return to work at 7 o'clock this morning, as they voted unanimously yesterday afternoon to do. This is the opinion of some private ship owners and officials of the Shipping Board. Others, including well-informed Government officials handling labor matters, said that the situation was still uncertain, as the "insurgent" faction, headed by Richard Butler, was still holding out against returning to work at the wage awarded by the National Adjustment Commission.

The Chelsea Local is the largest local in the port, having 3,100 members, and is generally considered to be the one whose leadership is followed by a majority of the longshoremen. The local previously voted by an overwhelming majority to remain out until their demands were granted.

The principal speakers yesterday were Cornelius Healy and James Walsh, members of a special committee which met the steamship owners Thursday afternoon to make a final demand for an increase over the award of the National Adjustment Commission, offering to compromise on eighty-five cents an hour and $1.25 for overtime. The speakers reported that the steamship owners refused to budge from the award of the National Adjustment Commission of seventy cents an hour and $1.10 an hour for overtime.

It was reported at the office of T. V. O'Connor, President of the International Longshoremen's Association, last night that Local No. 824, the second largest organization of longshoremen in the Port of New York, had also voted to return to work this morning.

Toppin Rejects New Offer.

A meeting at the City Hall last night was attended by all three members of the Special Federal Conciliation Commission, Mayor Hylan, Chairman; James L. Hughes of Philadelphia, and Paul A. Vaccarelli of this city. Mayor Hylan introduced Mr. Hughes, who made a short talk, after which Mayor Hylan called for suggestions from the longshoremen as to the next step to take. Thomas Weldon proposed that if the steamship interests would agree in writing to pay the men 85 cents an hour and $1.25 for overtime, beginning on Dec. 1, he was certain they would vote to return to work. Mayor Hylan then got Mr. Toppin on the telephone and stated the proposal to him, but Mr. Toppin said he could do nothing.

The threatened strike of 8,000 freight handlers, members of Local 976, "because of Director General Hines's failure to answer the freight handlers' grievances," was postponed last night at the request of Mr. O'Connor. Action will be taken Monday night.

More Men at Work Yesterday.

The United States Shipping Board reported that between 8,000 and 9,000 longshoremen were at work in the port yesterday, a few hundred more than on Thursday. The figures of the U. S. Army Transport Service indicated that about 5,000 were at work.

Richard J. Butler of 401 West Thirty-fourth Street, leader of the insurgent longshoremen, was arrested yesterday at Twenty-fourth Street and Thirteenth Avenue on a charge of disorderly conduct, arraigned in the Jefferson Market Court and paroled by Magistrate Francis X. McQuade in custody of his counsel, James D. C. Murray, for examination on Nov. 6. Some 300 longshoremen followed their leader to court and all cheered when Butler was paroled, and shouted, "Hurray for the Judge." Butler was carried on the shoulders of three men down Sixth Avenue and into Eighth Street, while the crowd followed and cheered alternatively for Butler and the Judge.

The arrest was made by Detectives Hook and Quinn, who had become involved in an argument with the insurgent leader. Butler, talking in a loud voice, the detectives say, brought to the scene some 200 longshoremen who crowded around them. Butler, the detectives said, shouted, "Lock me up, I want to be arrested."

Mayor Hylan yesterday made public copies of a letter he sent to Frederick Toppin of the National Adjustment Commission, transmitting a telegram which he had received from Butler, informing him that insurgent longshoremen wanted a meeting with the Conciliation Commission and representatives of the steamship officials to adjust their differences. Mayor Hylan said in his letter that he thought a meeting of the National Adjustment Commission and the Conciliation Commission should be held to further consider the matter. The shipping interests, meeting at 50 Pearl Street, decided that they would not agree to any more conferences.

The Mayor also made public copies of letters he had written to Secretary of Commerce Redfield and to Alfred E. Marling, President of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, in which he said that the police force had been instructed to preserve order at all points on the waterfront, using all the police force for that purpose, if necessary. In his letter to Secretary Redfield he asked that that official use his efforts to bring about a meeting between the shipping interests and strikers, as suggested by Mr. Butler.

The application of F. Paul A. Vaccarelli, a member of the Special Federal Conciliation Commission, to the American Federation of Labor at Washington, D. C., for a charter in the name of the Riverfront and Interior Workers and Watchmen was denied by the Executive Council of the A. F. of L., according to information received yesterday at the office of T. V. O'Connor from Frank Morrison, Secretary of the A. F. of L. It was said at Mr. O'Connor's office that the application was denied because the organization proposed to embrace the work in the jurisdiction of the Longshoremen's Association.

Hoboken Bars Strikebreakers.

Director of Public Safety Bernard McFeeley of Hoboken yesterday followed the example of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City and sent back to Manhattan seventy men who had gone to Hoboken to act as strikebreakers. Fearing that more strikebreakers would go over to Hoboken, Director McFeeley ordered police guards to be placed at each tube and ferry entrance. Any man whom the police suspect of being a strikebreaker will be questioned, and if necessary searched, and if the suspicion is true the man will be sent back.

Police Drive Men from Pier.

Governor Runyon of New Jersey wired Mayor Hague of Jersey City yesterday for an explanation of the action of the Jersey City police in connection with forty-three West Indian negroes employed to unload a cargo on the Giuseppe Verdi, an Italian steamship at Pier B, early yesterday morning. According to MacDonell & Truda, agents for the steamship company, the police not only forced the men to quit work, but actually assaulted several of them.

Last night the agents got forty other negroes from Manhattan, brought them to work at the pier, and, locking the gates, defied the police to stop the unloading of the cargo. The case has been taken up with Secretary Lansing by the Italian Ambassador.

The trouble started before daylight yesterday. The steamship, laden with grapes and lemons, was swinging beside the pier, its cargo rotting on account of the longshoremen's strike. The agents decided to hire the negroes in an effort to save the cargo, although by order of Mayor Hague strikebreakers are not allowed in Jersey City.

The men were at work when Inspector John S. Cody and Captain Charles Graf of the Jersey City police, arrived with about 100 patrolmen. This was at 3 o'clock in the morning. Witnesses say that the police assaulted the negroes brutally, and this allegation was wired to Governor Runyon, as well as to Secretary of State Lansing. Then the negroes were formed in a long line, marched to the tube and forbidden to come back.

A report of the action of the police, which MacDonell and Truda asserted consisted in plain trespass on private property, was sent to Trenton and Washington.

Governor Demands Facts.

Governor Runyon's telegram to Mayor Hague follows:

For my complete information and guidance please wire me at once full particulars attending the unloading of the Italian steamship Giuseppe Verdi at Pier B and the reasons leading to police action in removing from the pier longshoremen engaged in discharging the cargo of the said vessel. Also send me particulars concerning alleged assault on the longshoremen and reason advanced in support of the demand that none but T. V. O'Connor's and Paul Vacarelli's men should be allowed to work on the pier.

In reply Mayor Hague wired:

Reply your telegram, action taken by local police required by serious industrial conditions in this city and throughout the entire country. Thousands of men on strike in Jersey City in various industries. Conditions quiet, but filled with danger. My object only to prevent violence and bloodshed, and there was no discrimination shown. Presence of strikebreakers and undesirable characters only needed to precipitate violence. Charge of assault unfounded. Have made a thorough investigation.

Captain Graf and two of his patrolmen went to the gates last night when the negroes started to work a second time, but they were warned by guards on the docks that they would not be allowed to enter. Mr. MacDonell declared yesterday his firm was going to bring a civil action for damages against Mayor Hague on account of the spoiled cargo.

EXPRESS UNION BARS STRIKE

Issues Warning to Members Against Propaganda by Outsiders.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—A warning against strike propaganda, was issued today by the headquarters of the Order of Railway Expressmen.

"Reports are reaching headquarters hourly," said this warning, "that the men in this order are being approached by outsiders asking them to attend meetings and register their votes to strike."

These reports, P. A. Jacobson, Grand Secretary and Treasurer, explained, come mostly from Rochester, New York, and its vicinity. He attributed them to an attempt by another union to get the expressmen's membership into its organization. The grand officers' statement said:

"We are not contemplating resorting to the strike clause for we assured the Wage Board at Washington at the hearing granted us in September that we would give them ample time to digest the data furnished by our order, and would also wait a reasonable length of time for them to hear other representatives and then to act. We mean to keep our word.

"If their answer to our men and women is not satisfactory, we are prepared to return to Washington and take the matter up in a gentlemanly manner with a new set of demands and stay there until some results are granted."

LEVENSON WINS DAMAGES.

Broker Gets $5,000 in Alienation Suit Against R. M. Terry.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Oct. 31.—Morris Levenson, a ship broker at 66 Broadway, New York City, tonight won a verdict for $5,000 damages against Raymond M. Terry, stock broker at 25 Broad Street, New York, in his suit asking $75,000 damages for the alienation of the affections of his wife, Helen Hauser Levenson. The jury deliberated six hours.

Levenson had caused Terry's arrest in Great Barrington, Mass., July 12, where Terry, who had a country place, was entertaining Mrs. Levenson.

The case had been on trial four days. Levenson presented testimony that Terry had given his wife a fur coat, a $2,400 ring, jewelry and money. Levenson had brought suit against her for divorce, naming Terry as co-respondent.

DRIVE NEGROES FROM TOWN.

Kentucky Mob Banishes Virtually All Blacks—One Is Reported Killed.

CORBIN, Ky., Oct. 31.—Angered by a series of robberies and attacks on white men, a mob here last night rounded up virtually all the negroes in Corbin, except the older residents, placed more than 200 on departing trains, and forced the remainder to leave on foot.

During the demonstration a large number of shots were fired. One negro was killed, according to reports, and two others wounded. The town is quiet today.

FREEL TELLS PLANS OF REBEL PRESSMEN

Head of International Stereotypers' Union Says Employers Fight Bolshevism.

WOULD FORM ONE UNION

Asserts Secessionists Seek to Control Printing Industry, and Will Do So if Successful.

Addressing the Printers' League Section of the Association of Employing Printers at their meeting in the Hotel Astor yesterday morning, James Freel, President of the International Stereotypers' and Electrotypers' Union, told the employers that at the bottom of the secession of the pressmen and feeders from the international union was the intention to form one big union in the printing trades. He asserted that "Bagley's men are fighting to control the printing industry." "If they win," he continued, "they will dictate the policies of the printing shops any time they want to. They believe in and advocate destruction of industry. The employers of New York are fighting Bolshevism for all of North America."

In connection with this alleged movement, William Green, Chairman of the Labor Committee of the Printers' League, made public a circular letter which purported to come from the Printers' League for industrial independence, and in which the "strike on the job" and a refusal to set up objectionable matter was advocated. The workers were advised to be as fashionable as they can, to study up new methods of striking, and to apply them to their industry.

Although the electrotypers and binders walked out of the publishing house of Street & Smith when that firm made a settlement with the Big Six vacationists and seceding pressmen, it was announced there yesterday that all members of these unions had been replaced by men who are members of Printing Pressmen's Union 51, and that the plant is working at full capacity. Bernard Nolan, President of 51, said yesterday that Franklin Union 23, Paper Handlers' Union 1, and his own union had agreed to invest $60,000 in a union electrotyping plant that will employ about twenty men, all members of the unions, and that they will thus be able to supply with plates such firms as Street & Smith, who were deserted when they entered into agreements with the outlawed unions.

Mr. Freel stated that Mr. Bagley's insistence before Oct. 1 that certain international union pressmen employed for work on The Literary Digest be discharged was the last straw. After that the stereotypers and electrotypers were told that in order to be allowed to work at their own jobs without fear of Bagley they would have to fight him now. The men voted unanimously to refuse to do work for any firm that employed seceding pressmen. They voted a 15 per cent. assessment to protect the men thrown out of work. There are 125 out now, and there will be between 400 and 500 out if this situation lasts much longer, he said.

The Labor Committee of the Printers' League held a long session yesterday afternoon with the officers of Big Six, at the end of which the employers delivered an ultimatum to President Rouse in which they asserted that they must be informed finally next Monday as to whether Big Six will arbitrate the issues of hours and wages. The employers take the stand that conciliation is no longer possible, while Big Six has heretofore contended that they would not arbitrate the question of hours, as they felt that the forty-four-hour week had been already established. A vote on this proposition will be taken at the regular meeting of Big Six tomorrow afternoon at the New Star Casino, Park Avenue and 107th Street.

NASHVILLE PRINTERS QUIT.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 31.—Photo-engravings of the editorial columns and some advertisements will be used in the Saturday morning issue of The Tennessean to get out the paper, despite the printers' walkout. Three newspapers of Nashville are affected by "vacations" in the composing rooms.

Through the assistance of local job printing offices employing union printers the two afternoon papers, The Banner and The American, were enabled to get out twelve and fourteen page editions.

M. G. Scott, President of the International Typographical Union, Indianapolis, has advised the printers, who walked out regardless of a contract, to go back to work.

The walkout followed a demand for a fourth bonus of $1 a day. Three bonuses totaling $1.25 were already being paid by the publishers.

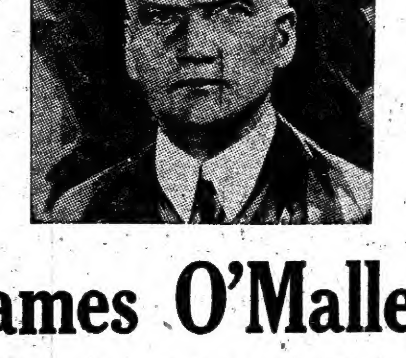
Why We Should Elect An Unbossed Surrogate



James O'Malley

Republican Candidate for Surrogate

READ THIS LETTER!

We call on public spirited citizens of all parties to support the candidacy of James O'Malley for Surrogate of New York County. The Bar Association, the New York County Lawyers' Association and the Citizens' Union have recognized his qualifications and have approved and indorsed his candidacy.

The issue in this campaign is whether Mr. Murphy shall make and unmake judges.

The Surrogates' Court has jurisdiction of the estates of decedents and is administered by two Surrogates. The public interest requires that this important judicial office be filled by a man not only highly trained in the law, but also free from close political connections.

Mr. O'Malley is forty-five years old. For three years he was Secretary to Justice Laughlin of the Appellate Division, and for seven years he was Assistant District Attorney of New York County, engaged in the active trial of many important cases.

The Bar Association report said:

"The work done by Mr. O'Malley in public office has been certified to your Committee to have been exceptionally competent and to have shown an unusually sound grasp of and familiarity with legal principles. His brief work is scholarly. In the District Attorney's Office he had charge of and tried important and complicated cases. Mr. Charles A. Perkins certified in the highest terms to Mr. O'Malley's professional ability, character and industry, and judges and lawyers familiar with Mr. O'Malley's professional services recommend him as a competent and industrious lawyer."

We have the highest confidence in the character and independence, as well as in the legal ability of Mr. O'Malley, and we recommend his election as the surest way for the voters to obtain an independent and able administration of the duties of this important office.

MOVE TO FIX DATE FOR TREATY VOTE

Lodge Proposes Nov. 12—Hitchcock Suggests Longer Sessions and Shorter Speeches.

BOTH PROPOSALS TABLED

Borah Offers Two Reservations, One Withholding Recognition of Protectorate Over Egypt.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—A proposal to fix Nov. 12 as a definite date for a final vote on the Peace Treaty was made in the Senate today by Senator Lodge, Republican leader, and was met by a counter suggestion from Senator Hitchcock, Nebraska, Administration leader, that the Senate meet one hour earlier each day, and that debate be limited to fifteen minutes for each Senator on any pending question.

None of the suggestions was agreed to, those of Senators Lodge and Hitchcock being allowed to lie on the table until Monday at the suggestion of Senator Borah.

Senator Lodge's proposal was that unanimous consent be given by the Senate to vote finally on the resolution of ratification on the calendar day of Wednesday, Nov. 12, and that, beginning next Monday, no Senator should be allowed to speak more than one hour on a pending question, and that after Nov. 10 this time would be limited to 10 minutes for each Senator, voting to begin not later than 5 P. M. on the day set.

Both proposals were made in writing.

Senator Lodge said later that he viewed Senator Hitchcock's suggestion as an objection to fixing a definite time for voting.

Previously Senator Fall, Republican, of New Mexico, asked for an agreement to vote on Nov. 10. Senator Hitchcock, in the course of a sharp exchange, refused to agree to this until it could be put in writing for further study. Later Senator Hitchcock explained that to have acceded to such an unwritten suggestion would have been like "welcoming a Trojan horse into camp."

Senator Fall's suggestion took the Democrats by surprise, apparently, and hasty conferences were held by their leading members. Later both Messrs. Lodge and Hitchcock offered their written propositions at the same time.

The Hitchcock proposal follows:

"That, beginning with the adoption of this unanimous consent agreement, the Senate shall proceed with the consideration of the pending German treaty, including proposed amendments, reservations, interpretations, and resolutions of ratification at sessions which shall begin at 11 o'clock A. M. each day. No Senator shall speak more than once or longer than fifteen minutes on any pending question during the further consideration of this treaty and relating to action upon it."

Senator Lodge's suggested agreement said:

"It is agreed by unanimous consent that on the calendar day of Wednesday, Nov. 12, 1919, the Senate will vote finally upon the resolution of ratification of the Peace Treaty with Germany; that on and after the calendar day of Monday, Nov. 3, 1919, up to the calendar day of Monday, Nov. 10, 1919, no Senator shall speak more than once nor for a longer period than one hour on any amendment to the text of the treaty, or upon any amendment proposed or that may be proposed to the resolution of ratification, or any reservation pending or offered thereto; that on and after the calendar day of Monday, Nov. 10, 1919, no Senator shall speak more than once nor for a longer period than ten minutes upon any amendment pending or offered to the text of the treaty or upon any amendment pending or proposed to the resolution of ratification, or to any reservation proposed to be incorporated therein; that after the hour of 5 o'clock P. M. on the calendar day of Wednesday, Nov. 12, 1919, debate shall end and voting shall begin and shall be proceeded with until all amendments and reservations and the perfected resolution of ratification have been finally disposed of; provided, that nothing in this agreement shall prevent the Senate from voting upon any amendment or reservation as the same is reached."

These manoeuvres, apparently carefully planned by each side, were the result of the desire for speedy action which is growing more manifest in the Senate. Senator Fall gave notice two days ago that he would soon test the temper of the Senate on this question. His sudden move today left Senator Hitchcock without time for conference. It is generally believed that Mr. Hitchcock would be reluctant to pledge his side in the Senate to bringing agreement without the consent of the White House. It is possible that before the question is taken up Monday some understanding will be reached between the President and Senator Hitchcock, although that was regarded as a doubtful possibility, depending entirely on the President's strength.

In the course of the debate Senator Curtis, Republican, of Kansas, suggested that the agreement be made to vote on the legislative day of Nov. 10, instead of the calendar day, but both Democratic Thomas and Republican Senators opposed this on the ground that the Senate could take a recess instead of adjourning from day to day and thus prolong the debate indefinitely.

The Senate, after listening to speeches on labor sections of the treaty by Senators Thomas of Colorado, Fall of New Mexico, and Sherman of Illinois, adjourned until Monday. Senate leaders made numerous attempts to prevent any vote or other important business coming up before next Wednesday, as several wished to return to their States for the elections Tuesday.

Senator Borah offered two reservations during the day, one regarding Article X., which he said went further than the committee amendment, and another withholding approval of Great Britain's protectorate over Egypt, recognized by the Peace Treaty.

These reservations follow:

"The United States assumes no obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country or to interfere in controversies between nations—whether members of the League or not—under the provisions of Article X., or to employ the military or naval forces of the United States under any article of the treaty for any purpose.

"The United States withholds its assent to Article CXLVII., and reserves full liberty of action with respect to any matter or controversy which may arise under said article relative to the protectorate proclaimed over Egypt by Great Britain on Dec. 18, 1914."

PRINCETON FOR THE TREATY

University Vote Favors Ratification with Reservations.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 31.—By a vote of 543 to 297 Princeton University today went on record favoring the ratification of the proposed League of Nations with reservations. One hundred and twenty wanted to reject the covenant altogether.

The figures were compiled from the result of a straw vote held by The Daily Princetonian, following a series of statements which have been issued over the past ten days by prominent members of the Faculty and by alumni of the university.

Dr. Henry van Dyke, ex-Ambassador to the Netherlands, who has returned to Princeton as Professor of English Literature, after serving throughout the war as a chaplain in the navy, opened the symposium with a statement advocating the adoption of the covenant without reservations or amendments.

Philip Marshall Brown, Professor of International Law, and Edward S. Corwin, who holds the Chair of Jurisprudence, followed Professor van Dyke with signed statements favoring the league, but with certain specified reservations. Professor Brown was in Budapest as United States Emissary to Hungary at the time of the Bela Kun revolt, and Professor Corwin assisted in editing the War Encyclopedia in Washington.

The senior class regarded the vote with the greatest seriousness and polled a total vote of 315, the largest number to vote from any one class.

DEPORT THE AGITATORS, DEMANDS POINDEXTER

Senator Calls Strikes Part of Program to Create Proletariat Dictatorship.

LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 31.—Senator Miles Poindexter of Washington, addressing a Republican State rally here tonight, charged that "innumerable instances of Governmental aid and sympathy for revolutionary anarchists have given tremendous encouragement to this lawless movement until it has become the chief political issue of our time." He cited the action of Administration officials in behalf of Robert Minor, accused of attempting to incite sedition in the American army, and the case of Thomas Mooney in California. It was Senator Poindexter's first public utterance since he became a Presidential candidate.

"Mr. Gompers, the President and spokesman of the American Federation of Labor," he said, "championed the right of the police to strike. This principle, if accepted, would at once put the enforcement of the law and the preservation of the peace in the hands of the American Federation of Labor and its subsidiary unions. This would be but an exemplification and phase of direct action. It is a revolutionary movement.

"The great mass of American labor is sensible and patriotic. A species of government within government, the tyranny of radical walking delegates in the labor organizations, has coerced and intimidated many laborers to quit work when they really wanted to work.

"The suffering that will be caused by the miners' strike will fall not upon the rich, who have prepared themselves against its consequences, but upon the millions of poor. This and other strikes which are plunging the nation into industrial chaos are not really controversies about wages and hours of labor, but are fomented by anarchistic agitators as a part of the program to 'abolish the wage system,' and to establish the 'dictatorship of the proletariat.'

"The right of the laboring men to quit work when they choose to in this free country is undoubted. The present leaders of labor, however, are not satisfied with this. Many of them claim the right to prevent a laboring man from working, however dire the necessities of his family may, be except by their permission and in accordance with the decisions of labor unions.

"It is the duty of the Government under these circumstances to enforce the law. If an alien who has come to our shores and who seeks to subvert our government is not satisfied with this country, to which he has come without invitation, the Government should, without hesitation, deport him back to the country from which he came. Those who are advising laboring men to resist the authority and law of the United States should be arrested under the statutes enacted for such purpose.

"A man has a right to join a labor union and organize, if he sees fit. He also has a right not to join a union if he does not choose to do so; and the entire power of the State and Federal Governments should be used to guarantee this liberty to every laboring man in the land."

of the prosecutor by Mayor Hylan. Justice Weeks refused the request of the jury for special counsel, and declined to permit a general transit inquiry that was not confined to a search for crime—prohibiting "a roving commission," as the court characterized it.

In a letter sent on behalf of the jury by Forman Almirall to Governor Smith he wrote that with the exception of the Mayor and the city editor of The New York American and the President of the Public Service Commission all other witnesses had appeared at the instance of the District Attorney. Another sentence of the foreman's letter read:

"The questioning of the Mayor and editor, who were called by the Grand Jury itself, and not by the District Attorney, was, I regret to state, seriously impeded, if not stopped, by the interference of the District Attorney, who not only evaded their proper examination, but also acted as their advocate, rather than an attorney to the people and legal adviser to the Grand Jury."

Concerning the question of special counsel, the foreman wrote: "Failing this [to get special counsel] its [the jury] efforts must abort, and a crime which completely overshadows that charged by the Mayor may escape detection."

It was intimated that the Grand Jury was preparing a report to be submitted next week. The Grand Jury adjourned until Monday.

BROKER HELD HERE ON LARCENY CHARGE

Fiscal Agent of Delaware Corporation Alleged to Have Embezzled $30,000.

TRACED FROM PHILADELPHIA

Chester F. Hill, 40 years old, of 419 Perry Building, Philadelphia, a broker, was arrested last night at the Pennsylvania Station by Detectives Trojan and Phelan of the West Thirtieth Street Station on a warrant charging him with larceny from the Bankers' Guarantee Finance Company of Wilmington, Del.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—Chester F. Hill, President of Hill & Co., brokers, arrested this evening in New York, is charged with defalcations amounting to $30,000.

After being absent from Philadelphia for more than a week, Hill was traced to the Pennsylvania Station, New York, where he had gone to keep an appointment made earlier in the day by telephone with one of his employes in this city. He was held in New York without bail, pending extradition.

The warrant for Hill's arrest was sworn out by Charles C. Woods of Wilmington, Del., Treasurer of the Bankers' Guarantee Finance Company of Delaware, for which Hill & Co. were fiscal agents. Woods asserts that Hill came to him well recommended as a stock salesman.

On the strength of those recommendations he was made fiscal agent for the Finance Company and charged with floating a large stock issue at $100 a share. Offices which Hill & Co. occupied in the Perry Building were made the company's headquarters in this city. The company expected to sell automobile insurance as soon as Hill's sales had reached a sufficient amount.

When the stock issues, made through Woods as Treasurer, amounted to more than $30,000, a meeting of the Finance Company directors was called for Oct. 23 for the purpose of receiving the money from Hill. Hill induced the directors to postpone the meeting until Oct. 30.

On the appointed date, the meeting was held in Hill's offices, and only then was it discovered that Hill had not been there since Oct. 22.

DENY BROTHERHOODS' PLEA

Senate Committee Refuses to Reopen Railroad Bill Hearings.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—By unanimous vote the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today refused to grant the request of representatives of the Railroad Brotherhoods that hearings be reopened on the anti-strike provision of the railroad bill.

The committee recently reported the bill to the Senate.

In a statement issued tonight by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, the attitude of organized labor toward the pending railroad legislation was explained. The statement, in which the heads of the Railroad Brotherhoods concurred, was directed mainly against the provisions of Senator Cummins's bill, reported favorably by the Committee on Interstate Commerce, for the return of the railroads to private ownership.

The statement says in part:

"Yesterday's conference in the rooms of the Committee on Immigration of the House of Representatives was held for the purpose of acquainting the members of Congress in an authentic way with the view of American labor concerning pending railroad legislation as it affects the rights of the wage earners.

"In addition to the members of the labor group in the House, which is made up of Congressmen of all parties who are members of recognized labor organizations, there were present leading officials of the American Federation of Labor, its affiliated bodies, and the four great brotherhoods.

"During the discussion the spokesmen of labor outlined the position of the four million and one-half workers they represented as follows:

"1. That American labor will exert its influence to the utmost within the limits of the Constitution to defeat the vicious anti-strike provisions in the Cummins bill, and other measures of similar character.

"2. That, in the opinion of American labor, the return of the railroads to private ownership at this time would be a grave mistake. Under plans proposed for the return of the railroads to private operation it would be followed by increase in freight and passenger rates of over 25 per cent. Either result would shake the industrial fabric of the nation at the time when a war-sick world is looking for moral, financial and political leadership.

"3. In order to avoid these calamitous consequences the members of Congress present were urged to introduce legislation continuing Government control of the roads for two years from the conclusion of peace. This will afford the American people an opportunity to consider the many solutions of the railroad problem which had been put forward."

TELLS OF ELECTION LAWS.

Honest Ballot Association Points Out New Provisions for Voters.

The Honest Ballot Association sent out a statement last night calling attention of voters and prospective watchers at the polls to the fact that the election law had been amended so as to make it a felony, punishable by imprisonment for not more than three years, a fine of not more than $3,000, or both, for an election officer not to accord to voters and watchers their full right.

Attention was also called to the provisions of the Miller act which became a law this year, under which persons suffering from physical disability or illiterates who when registering declared their inability to vote without assistance, may have the aid of a close relative, instead of having to select two election officials as under the old law.

President John R. Voorhis of the Board of Elections replied yesterday to a demand made by S. John Block, counsel for the Socialist Party and Socialist candidate for Municipal Court Justice, that election officials be directed not to wear rings at the polls. Mr. Block in a letter to the board declared that rings of a certain kind were purposely worn by election officials to enable them to mutilate ballots, cast by voters for Socialist candidates. President Voorhis in a letter to Mr. Block pointed out that there was no authority in the Election law under which the board could issue such an order and informed him that the matter would be placed before a committee of the board which later on will consider amendments to the law.

President Voorhis announced yesterday that the Board of Elections had received and held a hearing on a complaint lodged by a woman election inspector against Aaron Ehrlich, Chairman of the Election Board of the Twenty-seventh Election District of the Fifty Assembly District, which charged impertinence against women who came to register at the polling place where he presided. Mr. Voorhis said that the charges had been corroborated by other witnesses and that Mr. Ehrlich, who denied them, had been given until Monday to file his answer.

Controller to sustain the action of Thursday night.

The procedure continued until Mr. Connally objected to one of the motions made by the Controller on the ground that it had been considered Thursday night.

Craig Threatens Litigation.

"You are walking into litigation as sure as you are sitting around this table," the Controller said.

"The board doesn't feel that it is taking any risk at all," replied Mr. Connally. "The Controller went out of the meeting like a child. The City of New York should never have included a number of items in the budget, such as some of the education items. It simply made the public think that there would be a high tax rate. The only reason he did so was to make the public think he was a great financier by cutting out a lot of items."

"The proof of the falsity of that statement is apparent," cried the Controller. "I challenge the veracity of any man who says the items were put in by the Controller, and not by the action of the whole board. That statement only makes a baby out of you."

Mr. Boyle, Borough President of Manhattan, said that the board was losing time and that the items passed at Mr. Moran's house might as well be taken up again. The Controller lost on every vote. He objected to a cut of $725,000 for extra patrolmen for the Police Department, to a $300,000 cut for removing garbage and refuse, to an item of $155,000 for the municipal garage, to a $100,000 decrease in funds for dredging, and several other items, which were eliminated in spite of his objections.

The education appropriations were left for the last. Some of the cuts made were: Supplies and equipment, $400,000; vocational supplies and equipment, $80,000; motor vehicles, $4,618; motor supplies, $2,717. There was a twenty-five minute discussion over an item of $400 for training of speech defectives, which was finally left in the budget.

An appropriation of $85,000 to provide for future salary schedules in the Education Department was discussed. The Controller asserted that the department had been so tardy in filing its estimates that there had been no chance to look into the merits of several items. The appropriation was allowed to stand on the condition that no expenditure was to be made except on schedules approved by the Board of Estimate. The Board of Education was to submit its statement on the need for the expenditures within ten days.

The Mayor, after the meeting, expressed satisfaction with the budget.

"I don't believe the people of New York will have any fault to find with it," he said.

BROKEN PLEDGES ALLEGED.

Budget Critics Deplore Prospect of More School Congestion.

Both F. H. La Guardia and Henry H. Curran, Republican candidates for President of the Board of Aldermen and President of Manhattan Borough, respectively, attacked the new budget last night.

"Not only has the Tammany Board of Estimate and the Mayor's Board of Education permitted the existence of fire-trap schools, and failed to start and complete a single new school building, other than an annex, in two years, but it tolerates a condition whereby 50,000 school children study by artificial light," Mr. La Guardia said.

"The campaign promises of 1917 are forgotten or ignored. A seat for every child is now proven to have been a vote-catching phrase, repudiated from the moment the Tammany régime took office."

Mr. Curran referred to Controller Craig's tilts with the Mayor.

"See the trickery in the items eliminated," he added. "I give one only, referring to the Department of Education. They put in $20,000,000, knowing they did so only to take it out again. It is one of the worst camouflaged pieces of work in years. Other items were inserted only to be taken out.

"Were any soft jobs eliminated? Not one. Every solemn pledge to the voters two years ago by Hylan and the others to cut expenses has been broken.

"The budget and the tax rate will break all records. And the public pays the bills."

The Public Education Association, in a statement, attacked the board for its insertion and elimination of the $28,000,000 Education Building fund.

"This item never legally belonged in the $316,000,000 tax levy," the statement said, "but, as now effected, its inclusion has served its purpose admirably as a 'strawman' for effecting apparent reduction."

The schools are staggering under an alarming amount of congestion and part time. Not only are some 250,000 children receiving less than a full day's schooling, of whom some 40,000 are admittedly on part time and the rest on various forms of camouflaged part time, but upwards of 500,000 are in badly overcrowded classrooms. Of this latter number over 200,000 are in classes having more than forty-five children. Of these 50,000 are in classes of fifty or more, and 5,000 are actually in classes larger than fifty.

"If it were not for the $11,250,000 balance that remained over from the Mitchel Administration, there would be no school building going on at the present time.

"How much longer is the present useless debate and procedure to go on? The present city administration was elected on a school program to eliminate part time and provide a seat for every child in a decent-sized class. Two years have now elapsed and the situation is worse than ever before. Unless practical action is immediately decided upon, the Mayor will go out of office with the distinction, if one may call it that, of having produced a worse problem of congestion and part time than ever before in the history of the schools, despite his fine promises to the contrary."

NO BIG ELECTION BETS MADE

Odds Generally Favor Tammany Men, with Foley in Lead.

There has been practically no betting in this campaign up to the present time, but yesterday, with Election Day only four days off, a number of bets were made, both in Wall Street and at uptown hotels, the odds favoring the Tammany candidates. No big wagers were recorded, however.

Six to five was offered that the entire Tammany ticket would win. The odds on James A. Foley, Democratic candidate for Surrogate, offered at uptown hotels last night, were 3 to 1; on Robert L. Moran, Democratic candidate for Aldermanic President, 2 to 1. In Brooklyn odds of 2½ to 1 were offered on Representative Reuben L. Haskell, Independent Republican candidate for County Judge, running on a "wet" platform.

In Wall Street odds of 6 to 5 were offered in favor of Untermyer against Newburger, one of the anti-Tammany opponents for Justice of the Supreme Court. The offer was made by a Wall Street man identified with Tammany. From the same man $5,000 was offered at odds of 2 to 1 on James A. Foley, on Aldermanic President Moran, and on Borough President Edward F. Boyle, who is a candidate for the office he now holds.

At the campaign headquarters of Aldermanic President Moran in the Bronx, it was announced last night that Billy Gibson, a fight promoter, had $5,000 to offer against $3,000 that Moran would win.

WHELAN TAKES OVER BIG MAIL ORDER CO.

$100,000,000 IN THE DEAL

Will Be Reorganized Under Illinois Law, with 1,000,000 Shares of No Par Value.

Montgomery Ward & Co. of Chicago, one of the largest mail order houses in the country, has been taken over by the United Retail Stores Corporation which was recently formed by the Whelan-Duke interests in furtherance of their plan to establish a chain store system throughout the world. The nucleus of United Retail Stores was the United Cigar Stores Company. Following the merger of the latter with Retail Stores, plans were undertaken for the acquisition of the American Tobacco Company and now Montgomery Ward & Co. has been added to the list. The latter concern was established in Chicago in 1872. The present deal, it is said, involves about $100,000,000.

"Arrangements have been made looking to the reorganization of Montgomery Ward and Co., Inc., under the new corporation law of Illinois. In connection with this reorganization plan, 1,000,000 shares of no par value stock of the new corporation are to be issued and sold for cash, thus providing abundant new working capital.

"A contract has been entered into whereby 850,000 of these shares of common stock will be acquired by George J. Whelan on behalf of the United Retail Stores Corporation and by other strong financial interests associated with him. In due course rights to acquire a substantial interest in the stock of a holding company, formed to acquire these shares, will be accorded the stockholders of the United Retail Stores Corporation, which, in accordance with its announced policy, will itself retain a substantial interest in this holding company.

"One hundred and fifty thousand shares of the new Montgomery Ward & Co., Inc., of Illinois, have been reserved for sale to officers, directors and employes active in its management and direction. Robert J. Thorne and his associates will continue as directors and managers."

Montgomery Ward & Co. established in 1872, was incorporated in 1888 in Illinois and there was a new incorporation in January, 1913, under the laws of New York. It was the first concern to engage extensively in catalogue and mail order business and the company now has about 5,000,000 customers. Its business extends into every State in the Union and into Canada and many other parts of the world.

The company owns, in fee, real estate and a large warehouse located thereon in Chicago. The building, together with the land, has been appraised at nearly $4,000,000. There are about sixty-five acres of floor space. The Kansas City branch, which was established in 1905, is the largest mercantile building west of the Mississippi River. Other branch houses are located at Portland, Ore., and Fort Worth, Tex. The company owns and operates numerous factories and is now manufacturing farm implements, vehicles, harness, gas engines, cream separators, paints, food products and other lines. The investment in factories exclusively owned by the company is more than $3,000,000.

The company has an authorized capital of 300,000 shares of common stock of no par value, and $10,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value. The entire issue of common is outstanding and $8,000,000 of the preferred.

HARVARD FUND GROWS.

Campaign Headquarters Reports $8,773,289 Subscribed.

An increase of $30,000 in the total for the outside cities in Harvard's campaign for $15,250,000 brought the endowment fund total last night up to $8,773,289 and put the figure for the graduates outside of Boston and New York over the two-million mark.

The figures gave New York $3,204,308, Boston $3,562,587, and the rest of the country $2,006,394. The Crimson Squadron, with the Thomas W. Slocum and Harvard Club teams tied for first place with ninety-six subscriptions each, reached $2,547,858 from 1,845 subscribers.

E. A. Bailey, '91, Chairman of the Fund Committee in Porto Rico, called at local headquarters yesterday with the news that the twenty graduates on the island, half of whom are natives teaching in the schools, will show a 100 per cent. response, and that in spite of the slump in the sugar and fruit business Porto Rican alumni could be depended on for $5,000 to $10,000.

A $100 Liberty Bond of the fourth issue, turned in yesterday to the fund by a New York man, bore the signatures of Theodore Roosevelt, Captain Archibald Roosevelt, Lieutenant Douglas Campbell, the ace of the 94th Aero Squadron, and Georges Bertrand, Major of the French Alpine Chasseurs.

APPOINTED TO BERLIN POST.

Ellis Dresel Made Commissioner to Report on Conditions There.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Ellis Dresel of Massachusetts has been appointed Commissioner for the United States in Berlin. In making this announcement late this afternoon, Acting Secretary of State Phillips explained that Mr. Dresel will observe conditions and report upon them for the information of the American Government, but that his appointment "does not in any way affect the diplomatic status of the relations between the United States and Germany."

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—Ellis Loring Dresel is a prominent lawyer and makes his home at 328 Beacon Street. He is an A. B. Harvard, 1887, and LL.D. Harvard Law School, 1892. He is also a director of the Boston and Corbin Copper and Silver Mining Company.

PROSPERITY IN DRY GOODS.

Large Increase in Distribution as Compared with Last Year.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 31.—Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the dry goods trade say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was considerably in excess of the same week a year ago. Many more merchants were in the market than during the corresponding week of 1918. The volume of orders from road salesmen for both immediate and future delivery was much greater than for the same week last year. Collections continue excellent."

Last Section of Dry Dock Launched.

The sixth and last section of the 30,000-ton floating dry dock of the Morse Dry Dock and Repair Company was launched at 1 P. M. yesterday in the Morse annex yard at the foot of Sixty-seventh Street, Brooklyn, where all of the construction work has been done. The sixth section was completed in seventy actual working days. It is a huge pontoon, and in a few days will be added to the other five sections already in service, thus completing the largest sectional floating dry dock in the world. The new dock is 725 feet long, and each section contains more than a million feet of timber. The dock weighs 2,000 tons, and is fastened together with tons of galvanized bolts.

EXTEND GIRL SCOUT DRIVE.

Campaign for Leaders, Members, and Funds to Close Nov. 11.

Because the printing of circulation appeal letters has been delayed, the city and nation-wide drive of the Girl Scouts for women leaders, members and funds, will be continued until Armistice Day, Nov. 11. This announcement was made last night by Mrs. Everit Macy, Chairman of the City and National Campaign Committees, following a meeting of the Executive Board. The campaign was to have closed tonight, the last day of "Girl Scout Week," but the printers' strike occasioned a week's delay in the preparation of appeal letters. The letters were not sent out until two days ago and the returns will consequently be late.

Mrs. Macy said last night that the delay in the sending out of the letters was one of the main causes for the lagging of the campaign in New York, which is behind the rest of the country. Only $32,000 has been raised in this city and the goal set for New York is $100,000 and 100,000 associate members.

Out of courtesy to the Red Cross, which will open its Roll Call drive tomorrow, the booths which have been maintained by the Girl Scouts will be withdrawn after tonight from the hotels, department stores, restaurants, cabarets, railroad terminals and office buildings in the city. The intensive drive for associate members will be continued, however, the contribution of $1 making the donor an associate member, and the campaign for volunteer women leaders to head new troops of Girl Scouts will be pushed.

EXPRESS PACKING RULES.

Parcels Over 25 Pounds Must Be Prepared More Firmly.

Officials in charge of express offices are preparing to enforce the new packing requirements, effective on Dec. 10. Practically all express shipments weighing over twenty-five pounds must be packed in wooden containers or cartons of fibreboard, pulpboard, or corrugated strawboard of specified "test strength." Packages over twenty-five pounds may not be shipped if only paper wrapped.

Regular shippers, J. R. Christie, General Manager in New York for the American Railway Express, said, follow very closely the packing requirements long in vogue in the freight service. The adoption of the new standards was postponed several months to allow shippers to change their methods where necessary and get proper containers. The new order does not affect the movement of food by express. Mr. Christie said yesterday that increased business without correspondingly increased facilities has necessitated the stacking of shipments, which made necessary better packing. He added there would be an educational campaign to teach the shipping public how to pack.

GRANTS PERMITS TO 5 NEW BUS LINES

TO CHARGE FIVE-CENT FARE

Judge Mayer Orders Payment of Gross Income Taxes for Traction Lines.

Five additional motor bus routes, established by Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, were approved by the Board of Estimate yesterday, and a permit was granted allowing the buses to operate on the routes until Dec. 1. One of the routes is in Manhattan and four in Brooklyn. The former is from the East River through Eighty-sixth Street to Fifth Avenue to Eighty-fifth Street, and thence through Central Park to Eighty-sixth Street to Riverside Drive.

The Brooklyn lines are to be operated in competition with the lines of the Brooklyn City Railroad Company where a double fare is collected. The buses are to charge only a 5-cent fare. The Brooklyn routes are:

Bay Ridge route—Fort Hamilton, Shore Road, to Bay Ridge Avenue to Fifth Avenue.

Bedford Avenue route—Roebling and Taylor Streets, Bedford and Lafayette Avenues, St. Felix Street, and Hanson Place to the Long Island Railroad depot.

Bushwick-Lafayette Avenue route—Lafayette Avenue, St. Felix Street and Hanson Place to the Long Island depot.

East New York-Atlantic Avenue route—From Atkins Avenue through Atlantic Avenue to Flatbush Avenue.

It was said yesterday that the Brooklyn City Company would accept the order of the Public Service Commission directing it to operate a through service on Flatbush Avenue. The company announced that it reserved all of its rights. The assumption is that, if the company discovers that its franchises gives it the right to exercise its own discretion in the method of running its lines, the order will be contested in the courts.

Federal Judge Mayer yesterday directed the payment of the gross earning taxes of the Broadway and Seventh Avenue Railroad Company and of other lines amounting to $107,000. The order was made at the suggestion of Bronson Winthrop of counsel for Receiver Job E. Hedges of the New York Railways Company, lessee of the lines, that any default in the payment would carry a penalty of 5 per cent. a month.

The receiver was also authorized to pay the semi-annual interest of $7,500 to the Central Trust Company due today on the notes of the Central Crosstown lines.

PEACE CONFERENCE NOW NEARING END

MAY USE FORCE ON BALTIC

But the Interallied Mission Will First Try Persuasion on Col. Bermondt.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—The Peace Conference will be over by the 1st of December if the Americans and British have their way. The French would be willing to govern the world from Paris indefinitely, but the Americans and British have had enough of it—especially the Americans.

Some time ago Frank L. Polk, head of the American delegation, informed the State Department that certain questions which threatened to prolong the conference indefinitely might well be dealt with by the State Department through its Ambassadors. Therefore, as soon as the Bulgarian treaty is out of the way—which will probably be in about ten days—and the Hungarian treaty is handed to the Budapest delegation, which is expected here in two weeks, the Americans will prepare to go home. The British have been ready to quit since a month ago, when their delegates withdrew from the peace delegation and substituted one plenipotentiary.

It is probable that the Supreme Council will keep going until the American Senate acts on the German Treaty. That is expected here to happen in three weeks. If America ratifies the Treaty the United States will be thenceforth represented on the Treaty Enforcement Commission and on the Council of the League of Nations, which between themselves will take over most of the work now being done or attempted by the Supreme Council.

It is not exactly clear who will deal with such problems as those of Fiume, the Baltic provinces and the recalcitrant little powers. These problems are still to be solved, but it seems certain that whoever takes them up cannot make less headway with them than the Peace Conference has done.

Everybody in diplomatic circles here except the French, seems to think that the Peace Conference has about reached the end of its usefulness.

It has done its work on the Hungarian Treaty, and it is not going to undertake the Turkish Treaty. Everything else that now remains or has remained for some weeks is detail—important, it is true, but nevertheless detail—which many diplomats regard as no part of the work of the Peace Conference, but rather matter for the Governments to deal with through the ordinary diplomatic channels. This is peculiarly the American view.

The Supreme Council expects tomorrow to fix the date for the deposit of ratification of the Treaty by England, France and Italy. That ceremony is expected to take place about the middle of November, after which the conference will be able to pass along to others much of the work it has been doing.

Incidentally, there is no information forthcoming from the American delegates as to hope of an early settlement of the Fiume problem.

The American delegation stands firm on the proposition that Italy cannot have Fiume and says it is waiting for the Italians to agree to its organization as a free State, as advocated all along by President Wilson. The Italians appear to hope that the matter will drag along until the Peace Conference adjourns. Italian newspapers give much prominence to the advice to wait and be patient.

No one here is clear about who will settle the Fiume question if the Peace Conference does not.

After all, the announcement of a decision by the Peace Conference might not solve the problem, for d'Annunzio would probably still be in the Adriatic city, and certainly neither France, England, nor America is seeking the task of putting him out by force; neither is the Italian Government.

Ready to Use Force in Baltic.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—The measures being taken by the Peace Conference in connection with the Baltic situation are closely observed here, interest now centering in the departure of the Interallied mission, headed by General Niessel, which is expected to leave Paris Saturday for the Baltic Provinces. General Niessel speaks Russian fluently and has been much in Russia. He was in Petrograd when the Bolshevist revolution took place. Latterly he has been a member of the Interallied Commission to Posen.

The avowed purpose of the mission is to force the German troops now in the Baltic Provinces to evacuate them. Its first business will be in Berlin, where it will investigate the suspicions that the German Government was not free from complicity in the failure of General von der Goltz's troops to withdraw. Once the commission is assured of the German Government's good faith, the question will be brought up, it is understood, of the control of the railroad lines running from East Prussia to Courland. Several French and British officers have already been designated to assume responsibility for these lines when the question is settled.

The mission itself will travel to Riga by the water route. It is expected that it will first make an effort to give the Lettish forces material help against the Germano-Russian troops under Colonel Bermondt, which have been fighting the Letts in the Riga district. Its measures for the dispersion of the Bermondt forces, which is the desired aim, are expected at first to be persuasive, and to be followed later by sterner measures, if these prove necessary.

Colonel Bermondt is said in Russian circles here not to be actuated personally by any particular political proclivities in his Baltic venture. They characterize him as a man who considers war his profession and occupies himself in this calling in a way that suits his individual purposes. His cleverness and ability to influence the type of fighting men by whom he is surrounded is conceded. He is said to have been born in Russia, but of foreign, possibly German, parentage.

BASLE, Oct. 31.—The German Government's note to the Entente declining to participate in the blockade of Soviet Russia asks that the blockade be completely raised, and that all German ships held in Baltic harbors be restored to their owners.

Underwriting Companies Refuse to Take North Dakota Issue.

BISMARCK, N. D., Oct. 30.—The sale of $3,000,000 of State bonds, $2,000,000 of which was to be used as capital for the Bank of North Dakota, has fallen through, according to word received here tonight by the State Industrial Commission, the bonding houses of New York and Chicago having refused to underwrite the issue.

Attorneys for the bonding companies declined to approve the bonds pending the outcome of a suit brought by forty-two taxpayers of the State attacking the constitutionality of the bonds. The Federal District Court here has held the issue constitutional.

ALL PARIS SHIVERS FOR LACK OF COAL

French Factories Closing for the Same Reason—France No Place for Tourists.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—If enough Americans to shape public opinion in the United States could spend a few days in Paris at this time they might get an idea of what a coal strike would mean to American cities, which is one way of saying that Paris is shivering and has fair prospects of shivering all Winter. Paris in these days is what any city would be in Winter with a 33 1-3 per cent. coal supply. You shiver when you go to bed. You shiver when you get up. You shiver when you eat breakfast, and then you go out about your affairs in a cold rain. There is no heat in your hotel for the simple reason that the hotel cannot buy any coal. There is no heat in many restaurants because they can get only enough coal to cook with. The lighting corporations will have to cut off the current unless fuel comes into the city. The underground railways can manage to keep a supply for only two days ahead, and therefore almost any sort of transportation tieup would shut off their supply.

A Paris newspaper announces as the result of a canvass that the hotels have no more than an absolutely necessary supply and no hopes of getting any more. The department stores are beginning to shut off heat, turning it on for only a few hours in the morning. If the light supply is cut off they must close. The theatres are beseeching the Government for fuel, saying that they must close unless something is done for them.

Of course the French fuel shortage is not confined to Paris; it affects all France. Factories in many industrial centres have been forced to curtail activities or shut down. Notable in this category are the cloth mills of Lille and the metal manufactories of Turcoing.

The shortage of fuel becomes most vexatious for the Government, coming as it does at a time when the shortage of silver money is crippling industry in France, and offers excellent campaign material to the French radicals, who blame the Government for all the ills of the people.

From the American tourist's point of view, the lack of fuel is not the only drawback to visiting France for the next few months. The Government has forbidden the serving of milk in hotels or restaurants. It is expected that a similar ban will be put upon public consumption of it in England in a few days. These steps are taken to conserve supplies for infants and the sick.

It should also be known to would-be tourists that Paris is greatly overpopulated, which means a shortage of living accommodations, which, in turn, means that all hotels are crowded and have waiting lists. Naturally the proprietors have hoisted prices, which are one-third higher than a year ago. Fifty francs a day is considered a reasonable charge. As for the whole scale of living costs, it is higher today than ever before, and, despite the cry of the French for tourist business, France is not today in a position to care for many thousands of tourists from America or anywhere else.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 31.—After two days' visit to the Island of Wieringen, August Wilhelm, the ex-Kaiser's fourth son, returned to Amerongen today and is expected to start for Germany Saturday. The ex-Kaiser now has two sons visiting him.

A Dutch monthly publication, The Lawyer, contains the text of a speech made by the President of the Lawyers' Association at a recent meeting in Rotterdam which was attended by lawyers from various parts of the country. The President appealed to Dutch lawyers to protest against the extradition of the ex-Kaiser, remarking that the Netherlands had always been an asylum for refugees and declaring that the demand for extradition was only a manifestation of war hatred and lust for revenge and retaliation which was vented upon the ex-Kaiser, and that this was an additional reason for upholding the principles and tradition.

"Dutch lawyers," he said, "should not support the right of asylum any the less because, as has been suggested, the League of Nations will be the mask under which the refugee will be sacrificed. It would be a dismal comedy if the League from which every one hopes to obtain peace, freedom, and justice, should begin by giving its name to an act of revenge."

A letter appears in the Telegraaf from a well known Amsterdam lawyer, Mr. Vaillant, announcing his resignation from the association as a protest against the President's speech and what he terms a superficial view of the case.

COMMITTEE GRILLS BETHMANN HOLLWEG

Asks Him Why He Neglected Wilson's Peace Overtures in 1916.

HE SAYS HE FEARED DELAY

Doubted If the President's Intervention Would Become Effective Soon Enough.

BERLIN, Oct. 31. (Associated Press.)—Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, German Chancellor during the greater part of the war, spent nearly two hours in the witness chair today before the National Assembly Sub-Committee which is trying to find out what were the possibilities of bringing about peace during the war.

The former Chancellor said he condemned submarine warfare, but admitted that the influence of Admiral von Tirpitz, General Ludendorff, and Field Marshal von Hindenburg was so strong that the German people were absolutely convinced of its justification and followed their military blindly.

His voice almost broke with emotion as he dwelt upon his responsibility to the people at home and the soldiers in the trenches. When he tried to oppose the submarine war, he said, Ludendorff telegraphed the Foreign Office after an inspection of the west front, and Hindenburg wired that Germany would be defeated there, and that she must have the submarine war.

It was considered finally, according to the ex-Chancellor, that even America, should she enter the war, could be handled, and the army authorities threw down the gauntlet to political personages who opposed the submarine campaign.

Warnings not to underestimate America, which Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg said he issued, failed of their purpose because, he declared, intense hatred of America ruled solidly in all political circles, owing to the delivery of ammunition to the Entente by the United States.

The committee requested answers from Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, who held office from the beginning of the war until July 14, 1917, to the following three questions:

First.—Why did the Central Powers make their peace offer on Dec. 12, 1916, in view of the fact that action by President Wilson for peace had been suggested to Germany and a certain prospect of such action was held out, at the latest, for the end of December?

Second.—Why were concrete peace conditions not communicated to President Wilson?

Third.—Why, instead of pursuing the idea of action toward peace by President Wilson, did Germany assent to ruthless submarine warfare if she knew it would lead to war with the United States?

Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg acknowledged that the facts established in the course of the proceedings were correct and admitted that Germany's wish had been to enter a conference which President Wilson was willing to join.

Replying to the first of the three questions he had been asked to answer, the former Chancellor said:

"If President Wilson was upset because the Central Powers did not wait for his peace step, he did not allow this to influence his action."

Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg would not assert that President Wilson was not in earnest in holding out a prospect of peace action, but said there was a long series of facts throwing doubt on whether and when he (President Wilson) could carry out his resolve, which led the German Government to doubt whether his intervention could come soon enough.

According to Count von Bernstorff's reports, the former Chancellor declared, the President was accustomed to slow hesitancy and dilatoriness and appeared handicapped by his own and his country's relationship to the Entente.

"We could not see into the President's soul," said Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg. "However, he had no friendly feeling for Germany, as was recently declared by Premier Clemenceau in the French Senate. Moreover, the commercial relations of England and the United States for the supply of armaments were bond severely to restrict the President's peace action, and it would have been venturesome to take his peace action as a certain factor and otherwise remain inactive. For military reasons Germany could not wait indefinitely.

"In order not to give the impression of weakness the German peace offer had to come at a time when our military successes were at the highest. Moreover, it was necessary to show the German people that the Government desired peace and was only waging a defensive war. It was calculated further that the peace offer would increase the Entente peoples' will for peace, and that they would influence their Governments in favor of negotiations. Unfortunately the Entente replied to the German offer with a flat refusal, and the war had to be continued."

ITALIAN PREMIER REPROACHES ALLIES

TITTONI LINGERS IN PARIS

D'Annunzio Announces Election for Deputy to the Parliament in Rome.

ROME, Oct. 31.—Signor Nitti, the Italian Premier, in his letter to his constituents coming out boldly for an Italian Fiume, said he placed great faith in the League of Nations, but that in order that it might be successful Italy should not have her honor irreparably wounded by being asked to cede the disputed territory on the Adriatic.

"It is deplorable that our Allies do not realize the question of Fiume has no economic value for Italy, but a moral value, being a question of national dignity and sentiment.

"Opposition from friendly nations will mean the creation of an intolerable internal situation for Italy, and also an uneasy international situation, the effects of which might be most injurious."

On the occasion of the celebration yesterday of the first anniversary of the Italian victory of the Piave, at which Cabinet Ministers, Generals, and other prominent personages were present, Professor Luigi Luzzatti, former Premier and Minister of the Interior, delivered an address in which he dwelt upon the importance of the success of Italian arms.

Complaint was made by Professor Luzzatti, however, that Italy's sacrifices to the allied cause had not been deservingly requited. "Spontaneously," he declared at one stage of the address, "without being attacked we offered the mother country as a sacrifice for the success of the Allies. Why should they later deny us the fruits of triumph by offering an utterly inadequate return?"

PARIS, Oct. 31.—It is announced that the departure for Rome of Signor Tittoni, the Italian Foreign Minister, has been postponed until after the conclusion of important discussions by the Supreme Council.

FIUME, Oct. 29. (Associated Press.)—Gabriele d'Annunzio has issued a proclamation to the citizens of Fiume fixing Nov. 16 next as the date for the election of a Deputy representing Fiume in the Italian Chamber of Deputies.

Gets $2,000 for Film Rights.

A jury in the Supreme Court before Justice Ford decided yesterday that Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady is entitled to $2,000 from Frank A. Munsey because a story, "A Child of God," which he sold to Munsey's Magazine for $340, was disposed of by the magazine for film purposes. Dr. Brady contended that he had sole right to any sum received for dramatic use, and the court ruled that the picturization of the novel was embraced in the dramatic rights.

CREEL DENIES WORK WAS LEFT IN CHAOS

PUTS COST AT $4,464,602

Gives the Lie to One Charge and Urges That He Be Permitted to Appear in His Own Defense.

George Creel, former Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, characterized one charge as a "lie" and hotly denied others in a statement he issued last night in reply to the report of E. K. Ellsworth, liquidation officer of the Council of National Defense. In his report to the Senate Finance Committee Ellsworth charged that the finances of the Creel bureau were left in chaos when it suddenly went out of business last March, that expenses were allowed in excess of Congressional limit, that uncashed checks for $300,000 were discovered, and that the committee had expended $6,600,000.

In his statement Creel says that Ellsworth overlooks $2,825,670 earned by the committee and turned in to the United States Treasury, explains the expense allowances in excess of legal limit as necessitated by the sending of representatives to far foreign lands, and blames the practical "dumping on the streets of valuable records and hundreds of thousands of dollars" as due to the failure of Congress to continue the auditing machinery of the committee, thus making it impossible to continue salaries, rents, and the like.

Creel last night sent to Secretary of War Baker, as Chairman of the Council, a letter in which he says that the press has accepted the Ellsworth report as charges of gross negligence against every Executive head of the committee. He calls the implications "false and unjust" and begs an early opportunity to appear before the council to answer them. Mr. Creel's statement follows:

"The charges of chaos and gross negligence in connection with the handling of funds by the Committee on Public Information are false in many particulars and viciously misleading as a whole. The domestic accounts of the committee, with the exception of one or two items in dispute, are complete and clean. The only unfinished business was the settlement of the accounts of certain representatives in foreign countries. This is merely a simple matter of balancing and collection, and would have been cleaned up months ago but for the amazing action of Congress in wiring the Committee of Public Information out of existence, leaving no one with authority to sign a paper, transfer a bank balance or collect a dollar.

"The Council of National Defense did not find 'a balance of $1,500' out of the $5,650,000 from President Wilson's special war fund and $1,250,000 provided by Congress. The committee did not 'cost the Government about $6,600,000.' Common care, if not common honesty, would have omitted these misstatements. The committee's appropriation totaled $6,850,000 and we returned, in earnings, the sum of $2,385,397.61.

"The Committee on Public Information therefore cost the taxpayers just $4,464,602.39 for two years of work in the United States and every foreign nation, less than the amount spent in a single country in one year by some belligerents. This sum of $2,385,397.61 was paid into the treasury of the United States before our final accounting because the Government was in desperate need of money by reason of the failure of Congress to pass the sundry civil bill.

"Nothing is more unjust than the lie that the officials of the committee deserted after the armistice. I dismissed myself and every other division head on March 15 as an economy measure, but very one of us, at his own expense, has kept in constant touch with the work of settlement. The small auditing force that remained on the pay roll would have been amply sufficient for every need had Congress seen fit to act in accordance with the fundamental rules of private business.

"All June was taken up with efforts to get Congress to continue this auditing force. Congress refused, and on June 30 the committee ceased absolutely. No one had authority to pay employes, to continue rentals of the buildings where the records were stored, or to take the cash and bank balances offered by returning foreign representatives. Employes left as a matter of course.

"This shameful condition, which virtually dumped important records and hundreds of thousands of dollars into the street, was regarded as a joke on Creel. I stated publicly that some $200,000 remained to be collected and wore out the Washington pavements trying to find some depository. It was not until weeks had passed that I managed to have the President designate the Council of National Defense as an agency of settlement.

"All the files, books, and records of the committee were then transferred to the old Fuel Administration Building and dumped in disorder and confusion in two or three small offices. If important records were found on the floor it was because that was the only place where room could be found for them.

"It was at my insistence that Mr. Ellsworth was made disbursing officer with full authority, and there is not a day since that time that I, myself, as well as every other official of the committee, have not been at his disposal.

"The expense allowance paid in excess of the $1,000 maximum limit fixed by Congress came from the President's fund. When a man went to Russia or to China, even an official skull should be able to grasp the fact that he had to be allotted a lump sum instead of the $4 a day allowed by Congressional rule. And when a man in Vladivostok sent subordinates on a 1,000-mile journey of course he gave them lump sums. Every dollar, however, can be accounted for and would have been accounted for before this but for the action of Congress in wiping the committee out of existence over night.

"An auctioneer in New York held the sum of $10,000 derived from the sale of furniture, because there was no authority to receive it from him.

The charge that a film company had two claims of $8,000 and $27,000 is false. The claim, long in dispute, was for $27,000 and the committee's offer was $8,000 in settlement.

"The complete report of the Committee on Public Information is in type in the Government Printing Office. The committee was killed before this detailed record of activities and expenditures could be printed. This summary of receipts and disbursements is taken from it:

1. Funds received by the Committee on Public Information from appropriations:
From the President, '17-'19	$5,600,000.00
From Congress, 1918-1919	1,250,000.00
Total	$6,850,000.00
2. Receipts by committee from earnings 1917-1919	$2,825,670.23
3. Total moneys received by committee:

WARNS OF I. W. W. PLOTS.

American Defense Society Says Citizens Must Be on Guard.

The American Defense Society has sent out a statement of warning to its branches, members, and national committeemen, in which it emphasized the necessity for citizens to investigate local conditions and to organize so as to be prepared to meet a general strike by employes of public utilities. It was announced that many Mayors have already given the subject serious thought and have already organized emergency forces of business men and returned service men to be ready to meet any crisis that may develop.

The statement charges that the Industrial Workers of the World are organizing a revolution to "take America away from Americans, to scrap our laws, loot our homes, and trample our free institutions in the dust." To do this it is planning to organize workers into one big union.

"The one big union means the sympathetic strike," said the warning. "The sympathetic strike means the universal strike, and this means the capture of all the necessities of life, and the establishment of Soviet government under control of the American Bolsheviki."

USHERS STRIKE FOR TIPS.

Resent Capital Theatre's Advice to Patrons to Give No Gratuities.

All but twelve of the thirty-two ushers employed in the Capitol Theatre, Broadway at Fifty-first Street, struck last evening because the management refused to withdraw its advice to patrons not to tip them. Shortly after the performance began they took off their uniforms and began to picket the interior of the playhouse, asking others to join them.

Their actions attracted the attention of the audience, many of whom found the strike of more interest than the screen. The boys were ordered to leave, but they refused. Charles Ross, the manager, notified the West Forty-seventh Police Station and several policemen were sent to the theatre. They arrested Herman Inberg, one of strikers, upon his refusal to leave and charged him with disorderly conduct.

Managing Director Edward Bowes said last night that when the ushers protested he had called their attention to the fact that before accepting their jobs they had signed agreements that they would abide by the no-tip policy. They said they had changed their minds.

Farewell Services in Old Church.

The congregation of the old First Reformed Episcopal Church, at Madison Avenue and Fifty-first Street, will begin tomorrow three days of farewell services. The church building, the only one of that denomination in Manhattan, will soon make way for an apartment hotel. The church has engaged the auditorium of the Y. W. C. A. at Lexington Avenue and Fifty-third Street for its morning service. Bishop Robert L. Roudolph will celebrate communion at 11 o'clock, and the afternoon service will be preached by the Rev. William A. Freemantle of Philadelphia.

FRENCH FINE GERMAN TOWN.

Kaiserlautern Must Pay $15,000 for Disorders Fomented by Teutons.

MAYENCE, Oct. 30. (French Wireless Service.)—General Degoutte, the French commander, has imposed a fine of 60,000 marks on the town of Kaiserlautern, in the Sarre region, for recent disorders there fomented by German political agents. One of the agents is said to have been identified as having created disturbances in various non-occupied German towns.

The manifesto of General Degoutte, imposing the fine, says the French authorities will tolerate no movement of a revolutionary character.

A dispatch from Paris on Oct. 16 said that during a demonstration at Kaiserlautern a French officer, commanding a detachment, was seriously wounded. The dispatch added that French soldiers fired on the mob, killing one person and wounding several.

Facts in 'Longshore Strike

Many conflicting statements have been made regarding the cause and continuance of the present Strike of 'Longshoremen in the Port of New York.

These Are the Real Facts

It has been the practice for a number of years past for the Steamship Lines and the International 'Longshoremen's Association, to conclude a contract effective October 1st of each year, fixing wages and working conditions for the following twelve months. In 1918 the International 'Longshoremen's Association and the Employers, including the U. S. Shipping Board, the Steamship Lines and the Employing Stevedores, agreed to submit the demands of the Union to the National Adjustment Commission for decision, both sides binding themselves to abide by the Commission's Award. The 1918 Award materially increased the wages to be paid the men, but all the Employers accepted it without question.

In 1919 the demands of the men were by mutual agreement again submitted to the National Adjustment Commission, which Commission functions under the authority of the U. S. Government and whose Chairman is a Government Representative. At the time of the presentation of their case, the representatives of the men reaffirmed the Agreement and severally bound themselves to abide by the Award when rendered without reservation.

Upon the announcement of the Award, in spite of their positive agreement to abide by it, and in direct opposition to the instructions and advice of their leaders, a large number of the 'longshoremen stopped work. No Strike has been called by the International 'Longshoremen's Association and a large proportion of the men are ready and willing to return to work at the wages fixed. These men are prevented from doing so by organized terrorism and intimidation by a radical and unscrupulous element.

The Award of the National Adjustment Commission has been approved by the Secretary of War, the U. S. Shipping Board and the Railroad Administration and it must and will be strictly adhered to by all the Steamship Lines, the U. S. Shipping Board and the Employing Stevedores. If the 'longshoremen refuse to abide by an Award of the National Adjustment Commission, arrived at in accordance with a definite and authorized agreement on their part, the future of the Maritime Trade of this and other Ports will be disastrous.

The Employers are informed that some of the men are being encouraged to remain out by promises to secure a reconsideration of their demands at this time. It is obvious that any such promises are absolutely without foundation.

This statement is authorized by the Steamship Lines of the Port of New York and approved by the U. S. Shipping Board.

SECRETARY WILSON HEADS CONFERENCE

MAY CLASH ON 8-HOUR DAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Completing its permanent organization with election of Secretary of Labor Wilson, of the United States, as President, the International Labor Conference today proceeded to the formulation of a definite program of work with the appointment of a Commission on Selection, to act as a "steering committee."

Although the conference adjourned tonight until Monday, the commission will devote itself in the meantime to mapping out the future method of work, and to the choosing of the various committees to which the five items of the agenda will be referred for study and report. At a short meeting today, after the conference session, Arthur Fontaine of France, Chairman of the Organizing Committee, was elected presiding officer of the commission, and a preliminary discussion took place on its work.

When the conference reconvenes Monday, a fight is expected over the relative advantages of a straight eight-hour day as compared with a forty-eight-hour week. The latter was recommended by the Organizing Committee as a result of its analysis of expressions of opinion from all Governments represented in the conference. This committee in its report declared that the forty-eight-hour week allowed more elasticity in the arrangement of hours of work, and facilitates the adoption of half holidays on Saturday, and of a weekly rest day. A number of the labor delegates, however, plan to make a fight for the straight eight-hour day.

Sees Tribute to America.

Secretary Wilson in accepting the permanent Presidency, said he only could consider the office as a "tribute to the American people."

Nominations of the three groups for Vice President were confirmed as follows: George N. Barnes of England, for the Government delegates; Jules Carlier of Belgium, employers, and Leon Jouhaux of France, labor.

H. B. Butler of England was chosen permanent Secretary General.

Announcement was made that Samuel Gompers had been chosen by the American Federation of Labor as unofficial labor delegate of the United States.

Having decided to admit the representatives of Germany and Austria on an equality with those of other nations, the conference was called on to decide the question of granting seats in the gathering to delegates from Mexico and Finland.

Motions to give representation to both of these nations, which are not named in the annex to the Versailles treaty as members of the League of Nations, were introduced late yesterday, but went over under the rules until today.

Decision to admit the representatives of the late enemy powers was reached with only a single dissenting vote, that of Louis Guerin, French capital delegate, who declared that the conference should make a distinction between a people who "violated the neutrality of Belgium and introduced barbarous methods in warfare," and the peoples who respect international law.

To Urge Equal Representation.

Equal representation for men and women in international councils, as well as national legislatures, promises to be one of the first requests to be made by the International Congress of Working-women to the International Labor Conference.

A special committee of the congress today had under consideration a resolution offered by Mlle. Jeanne Bouvier, a French delegate, requesting that the International Labor Conference permit women to be equally represented with men in all future meetings of the conference.

Adoption throughout the world of the eight-hour day, delegates believe, will be another of the recommendations of the congress.

Mrs. Raymond Robins of the American delegation was elected President of the congress. Other officers chosen were:

Secretary, Maud Swartz, United States; First Vice President, Jeanne Bouvier, France; Second Vice President, Katherine Derry, Canada, and Third Vice President, Yadwiga Lukaszuk, Poland.

BROOKLYN TROOPS RETURN.

Pocahontas Brings Back 100 Members of Old Fourteenth Regiment.

The United States Army transport Pocahontas arrived yesterday from Antwarp, being the first vessel to bring troops from that port since the war, and landed them at Hoboken. Among them were 100 members of the 2d Pioneer Infantry, formerly the old 14th Regiment of Brooklyn, who were greeted at the pier by a cheering crowd of their relatives and friends.

One of the passengers on board was Captain Anthony Roeslein of Kirkwood, now 82 years old, who had been in Germany for the last four years, to be near his three sons after the German Government tried to force them into service, and then refused to allow them to leave the country.

Captain Roeslein had served six years in the Prussian Army before coming to the United States, at the age of 23. When the civil war started he enlisted in the 3d Missouri Infantry as a private and rose to the rank of Captain.

Colonel Timothy Donovan of 937 East Fourteenth Street, Brooklyn, the oldest officer in the 2d Pioneers, returned on the Pocahontas after serving as Provost Marshal at Is-sur-Tille and later in Lorraine.

Another passenger was Lieut. Commander O. M. Foster, U. S. N., who was accompanied by his bride, formerly the Princess Lyson Bulgheroni, whose father has large estates at Villefranche, near Monte Carlo. They were married in Paris nine weeks ago. She is content to be called Mrs. Foster, the bride said, and has dropped the title of Princess forever.

"I can think better when plowing," he said.

SAYS ENGLAND IS REVIVING.

Sir Guy Granet Points to Reduced Expenditures Since War.

Sir Guy Granet, who during the war was Controller of Import Restrictions and Director General of Transportation in England, said yesterday in the course of an address delivered at a luncheon of the Bond Club, that the position in England was not nearly so black as it is generally conceived to be, and, in fact, was quite good. He said in part:

"The fact is that everybody in England is alive to the seriousness of the situation, and the feeling so far as I came across it in England, is absolutely universal, that the first thing that we have to do is to take our coats off, work harder, submit to hard taxation in order that we should be able to liquidate our debts, and get to the same position as we were in before the war, and therefore you see a curious spectacle of practically a united nation taxed as it has never been taxed before, simply crying out for extra taxation."

Sir Guy Granet quoted Sir James Simpson, who said that England still held three billion pounds of the four billion held in England before the war, and the nation's war losses, therefore, were calculated at £1,000,000,000, or approximately $5,000,000,000. The speaker said that English expenditures had been reduced 40 per cent., and "so," he concluded, "it shows that we have got going."

Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. Report.

The report of the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Company for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1919, shows a net income after the deduction of charges and taxes, amounting to $455,424. This was equivalent to $7.06 a share earned on the $6,448,800 capital stock outstanding. Manufacturing profits for the period are shown to have been $3,133,581 and surplus after the payment of $280,196 in dividends was $185,238.

MUSIC TO CLEAR FIFTH AVE.

Bands to Draw Workers Into Parks at Lunch Hour.

Plans for keeping Fifth Avenue clean and for upholding its reputation as the greatest retail thoroughfare in the world, were made yesterday at a luncheon and special meeting of the Fifth Avenue Association, held in the Holland House at which Robert Grier Cooke presided. It was decided that a committee would take steps to provide music in the parks below Thirty-fourth Street during the lunch hours, as a means of attracting the factory workers from the avenue where they are accustomed to congregate and block the sidewalks.

The committee will seek the co-operation of the Mayor, Aldermen and Police Commissioner in its efforts to rid Fifth Avenue of these assemblages. Mr. Cooke, who is President of the Association, announced that the fight would be renewed for the amendment of the zoning ordinance limiting the height of buildings on the avenue. The association decided to conduct a drive for new members beginning Nov. 4, with the slogan: "Whatever helps Fifth Avenue helps New York." The annual dinner will be held on that night in the Waldorf.

Calls for Better Fire Prevention.

As President of the International Association of Fire Engineers, John Kenlon, chief of the New York Department, yesterday sent a letter to the chiefs of fire departments in cities throughout the United States and Canada asking them to co-operate in establishing permanent fire prevention bureaus. The idea is no longer an experiment, he wrote, but has produced valuable results in the cities in which such bureaus have become a fixture.

Horn Gets 10 Years in Prison.

FREDERICTON, N. B., Oct. 31.—Werner Horn, the German reservist who attempted to destroy the St. Croix Bridge by dynamiting it, Feb. 2, 1915, was sentenced, today, to ten years in the penitentiary. Horn said that he would protest to his fatherland. "I cannot be punished after the Peace Treaty is signed," he said.

A Letter of Interest to the Women of New York

Dear Sir:

I want to take this occasion to express my most sincere appreciation of the effective and vigorous support which you gave in the 1919 session of the New York Legislature to the program of bills sponsored by the Women's Joint Legislative Conference.

You were as untiring in working for the forty-eight hour week bill as you were in forcing through the Senate the living wage bill, which you yourself introduced at our request.

I should like every one, especially every woman, who is interested in these measures to know how hard you fought for all of them; even to the point of keeping the Senate in an all night session in order to overcome an act on the part of our opponents in the Assembly.

You have always been a friend of liberal measures advocated by women from the time when it was not an easy thing to be.

We should not forget that you introduced and helped to pass the equal pay bill for women teachers in 1911, and the women watchers bill in 1914; nor should any suffragist forget the support you gave us in the long fight in the 1916 Senate when the resolution providing for the suffrage referendum was passed.

Again assuring you of my own appreciation, I am

Yours sincerely,

VERA B. (MRS. NORMAN DE R.) WHITEHOUSE.

"THAT IN THE OPINION OF THE COMMITTEE THE CANDIDATE IS FITTED BY LEARNING, CHARACTER AND PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE FOR THE OFFICE FOR WHICH HE HAS BEEN NOMINATED, AND WILL, IF ELECTED, DISCHARGE THE DUTIES OF HIS OFFICE WITH ABILITY AND FIDELITY."—Extract from a resolution adopted by the Committee on the Judiciary of the New York County Lawyers' Association, at a meeting held on Wednesday, October 22, 1919.

FOUR GREAT NEW YORKERS ALSO ENDORSE HIM

LOUIS MARSHALL says:

"Mr. Untermyer is a man of fine ideals, studious habits, excellent judgment, equable temper, and a profound sense of justice. He is free from all prejudices and reaches his conclusions only after giving a fair and patient hearing and on due deliberation. He is vigorous both in mind and body and capable of rendering continuous and efficient service to the public for many years. He will be guided solely by the desire to do justice without fear or favor. He enjoys the respect and confidence of all who have ever had occasion to come in contact with him."

FRANK P. WALSH says:

"Irwin Untermyer is a lawyer of erudition; a man of great strength of character and will; as well as possessing the judicial temperament to the highest degree; and, withal, a man of such inflexible integrity and intellectual clarity and honesty as to make him an ideal arbiter of disputes affecting the lives, liberty and property of his fellows."

NATHAN STRAUS says:

"I have not often advocated a candidate for election. But I make this exception, knowing that Mr. Untermyer is progressive and capable, and that he has a sympathetic understanding of other men's rights—qualities which eminently fit him for this high office."

GEORGE GORDON BATTLE says:

"Mr. Untermyer is a young lawyer, vigorous in mind and body, with the fresh mental outlook of youth. He has had very extensive and successful experience in his profession. No one has questioned his ability or his integrity."

THE BAR ASSOCIATION
OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK
SAYS CONCERNING THE CANDIDACY OF

JOSEPH M. CALLAHAN

For Justice of the City Court
OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK

"Mr. Callahan was a member of the Assembly for the years 1915, 1916, and 1917, and minority leader of that body for two years. He served as a member of the Codes and Judiciary Committees of the Assembly, and for a year as member of the Special Committee on the Simplification of Practice. He is at present and for two years has been County Clerk for Bronx County.

While much of Mr. Callahan's activities during the past five years have been in public service, he has had since his admission to the Bar in 1907 considerable experience in the trial of cases, and while in public service continued active in professional work. His practice showed him to be a capable and industrious lawyer; his personal character and professional standing are excellent and his record in public service highly creditable. In the judgment of your committee Mr. Callahan has shown qualifications for judicial office and would make a satisfactory Justice of the City Court. It therefore recommends that his candidacy be approved and indorsed by the association."

And the Citizens' Union of the City of New York Says:

"Joseph M. Callahan has been a useful legislator and a conscientious and efficient public officil. He is well qualified professionally for the office which he seeks and for which the Citizens' Union endorses him."

The New York County Lawyers' Association, Bronx County Bar Association and numerous other civic, industrial and labor organizations have also strongly endorsed Mr. Callahan's candidacy.

THE COAL STRIKE INJUNCTION.

It was to be expected, such is the dislike for the processes of the law among militant labor leaders, that Acting President LEWIS of the United Mine Workers would declare that the coal strike was not to be averted, in fact would be persisted in, although the United States Government had obtained a temporary injunction restraining the leaders of the organization from calling the men out. "Too late!" is their cry, but if the operators had surrendered to them the order not to strike would have gone out and it would have been obeyed. By telegraph and telephone word would have been got to every group of men in the bituminous districts. The true attitude of the head of the mine workers was reflected in the following statement:

> I regard the issuance of this injunction as the most sweeping abrogation of the rights of citizens guaranteed under the Constitution and defined by statutory law that has ever been issued by the Federal court.

And the strike leader, in a characteristic tone of finality, said that the "injunction only complicates to a "further degree the problems in-"volved in an adjustment of the con-"troversy." In short, he was in a temper to defy the Government and the courts, losing sight of the fact that what the Government proposed to do by asking for an injunction was, as Assistant Attorney General AMES stated, to obtain a ruling upon the point whether the United Mine Workers have a right "during the war to "restrict or destroy the supply of "food and fuel," and to have it determined whether the coal miners in resorting to a strike were not about to break their contract with a war agency of the Government and could not be held to their agreement. It is a singular idea, except for a labor leader determined to challenge the Government to a trial of strength, that the writ of injunction invoked for such a purpose is a "most sweeping "abrogation of the rights of citizens "guaranteed under the Constitution." What the Government has really done is to proceed as any business man would do against the breaker of a contract who was about to injure him by an unlawful act.

It does not seem to have occurred to Acting President LEWIS that the Federal District Court will be called upon to decide upon the merits of the case as presented to it, and that the lawyers retained for his organization will have an opportunity to show that the injunction cannot be made permanent. For defying or ignoring an injunction of the court a penalty is provided, and Mr. LEWIS and his fellow labor leaders, to escape it in the matter of this injunction, will have to show that it was physically impossible for them to recall their strike order.

THE SNAKE IN PARADISE.

No item of yesterday's news will depress the thoughtful more than the report of fears of Bolshevist outbreaks in Indiana. Bolshevism! In Indiana! Of course, there is Gary, where deadly documents are discovered every day or so; but Gary belongs to Indiana only by the merest technicality; by all good Hoosiers it is regarded as a mere exclave of Chicago, with which the rest of the State has no fellowship. The new red peril comes from the coal district in the southwestern part of the State—promoted, one hears, by external agitators working among recent immigrants; but working, nevertheless, on true Hoosier soil, in a recognized Hoosier industry.

All other implications of this news fade into the background at the reflection of the sorrow by which pious Hoosiers must be overcast. More than the Bostonian or the Prussian the Hoosier had a truly national religion; his Creator he imagined in his own image, regarding himself as the unchallenged capstone of the universe. Hoosier detractors of the sacred scene fled into exile; even Hoosiers like DREISER, who from mere unintelligibility to their neighbors were suspected of possible heresy, found life more convenient elsewhere. The rest of the world might suffer from war and revolution, earthquake and pestilence; Indiana stood apart, a land where the sun forever shone, preserved from contamination of the ills that flourished elsewhere—we have it on the word of its own sacerdotal novelists—by the efficient charm of its own virtue. And now in this Happy Valley the serpent of Bolshevism has lifted his scaly head and hissed. Only a little serpent, as yet; doubtless the Hoosiers will bruise his head at no very great cost to their own heels. But his mere appearance puts an end to one more dream of human perfection.

RECRUITING FOR THE ARMY.

Recruiting for the Regular Army of 278,000 men authorized for the fiscal year, which began in February, is not brisk enough to suit the hard-working officers in charge of it. The country should understand just what the results to Oct. 21 are, and what is the prospect of filling the ranks when peace is proclaimed and emergency men leave the service. Today the strength of the army at home and overseas in Europe and Asia, including the Philippines, is about 274,000 men, but the moment the President's proclamation is out all those soldiers, and the number is great, who enlisted in 1917 for the war period will be mustered out. The present complement of 274,000 men (approximately) would be reduced to perhaps 150,000, including men who enlisted before the war for a four-year term and those who have joined the colors in the last eight months. Exact figures are not available, but there is no doubt the strength of the army would quickly decline to an embarrassing minimum and the task of the recruiting officers would become exceedingly hard. Would they be able to attain the authorized strength before the end of the fiscal year in the Summer of 1920?

Recently the people of New York saw the famous First Division march through their streets 25,000 strong. Today there are less than 4,000 men in the First Division, because the "replacements," chiefly National Army soldiers, have been demobilized. The peace complement of a division is 16,675, so that the First has only about 23.5 per cent. of what its total should be. But other well-known divisions are worse off, their percentages being: Third, 14.8; second, 12.2; fifth, 10.5; sixth, 9; seventh, 8.4, and fourth, 8. The last word has not been said about these divisions: they include a good many "emergency" enlistments, and with the peace proclamation there would be a still further shrinkage. Only skeletons of these fighting divisions would remain.

Since February the new enlistments up to Oct. 21 were 129,290, but it is obvious that there must be a steady increase to provide for the contingency of official peace and to keep the land forces up to authorized strength. The infantry total should be 98,600; but the number of new infantry enlistments, 49,558, must be associated with the falling off that the end of the emergency period will show. There should be 28,200 cavalry in the authorized temporary army of 278,000; the new enlistments have been 14,630, and the cavalry is supposed to be a popular branch of the service. The respective figures for the field artillery are 20,300 and 6,474; for the coast artillery, 33,200 and 8,850. But when we come to the Motor Transport Corps it may be described as overenlisted. The number of men wanted was 11,400, and 14,332 have come forward. The Medical Department's authorized strength is 11,200 men, and already 9,505 have been enlisted; while the Air Service figures are 11,300 and 9,372. The explanation is that these branches attract on their vocational side. They afford coveted instruction in a sure means of livelihood after the end of the enlistment term.

The solution of the problem of filling the ranks apparently lies in offering additional vocational training in the other branches. To call attention to opportunities of travel, to liberal pay, considering that everything is found for the enlisted man, and to the making of a career in the army, is not enough. It is true that there is vocational training in every branch of the service, but it varies in degree, of course. Something should be done in that line to make the infantry, cavalry, and artillery attractive. It may be added that more money should be spent by the Government in advertising features of army life that appeal to young men.

CONSERVATIVE FARMERS.

The radical misleaders of organized labor have long had hopes of, and of late have been making vain bids for, the support of the farmers. Farmers are naturally and traditionally conservative. They are used to the slow and orderly processes of nature. They are used to earning their bread in the sweat of their faces. They know that hard work, and plenty of it, is indispensable to success in their business or any other. They are suspicious of millenniums to be attained by giving high pay for little work. They know there is but one honest road to increase production and prosperity in industrial and agricultural labor. Hard-headed and thinking men, they are not carried off their feet by the seductive programs of agitators. Laborers and capitalists too, independent producers, they are little subject as a class to the rash theories which impose themselves upon the communicative ardor of thoughtless crowds. In spite of many successive "movements" and agitations, they see their own interest and they never lose their perception of the general public interest and their devotion to American institutions. Even temporarily formidable socialistic projects such as those of the Non-Partisan League lose their strength as their real purpose becomes clearer.

The Farmers' National Congress, which has been in session at Hagerstown, Md., passed some resolutions instructive for reproof and admonition to the radical labor leaders at present so perniciously active. The assembled farmers pledged themselves to a "steadfast support of the free insti-"tutions of the American Government" and declared the "conservatism of the "American farmer a bulwark of na-"tional defense against the dangerous "foreign influences at work today." They offered their help to "honest or-"ganized labor," but denounced the "treason of false leaders who for pay "and price would scuttle the Ship of "State and rear the red flag of Bol-"shevism over the ranks of an out-"raged and fallen Republic." The revolutionists, imported and domestic, may ponder these pronouncements.

Striking straight and hard at a prevalent delusion or illusion, the Farmers' National Congress says:

> We know that the forty-four-hour week cannot feed the world, and we proclaim that it cannot clothe it. Those who advocate the short day in industry should not expect the farmer to work "six hours before dinner and six hours after," with before-breakfast and after-supper hours thrown in.

The farmers evidently regard "honest organized labor" as labor that is willing to do an honest day's work, that seeks to increase and not to diminish production. The congress recorded its opposition to "all strikes" and favored the establishment of a Federal Board of Arbitration that would give both labor and capital a "square deal." A small minority of radicals fought hard against the adoption of these sensible and patriotic resolutions, and left the hall after the vote. Opinions like theirs will be in a hopeless minority in any assembly of American farmers. Amid so much clamor of foreign propaganda it is refreshing and consoling to hear this clear and strong voice of American producers and conservative patriots.

On the same day we heard that the Bavarian farmers had resolved to send no food to towns where radicals are in revolt and to join the Citizens' Guards and march, if necessary, against such Soviet-infested towns. In Germany, too, the good sense and the innate conservatism of farmers are a strong guarantee against the excesses of industrial revolutionists.

FREEDOM OR THE PAY CHECK?

Mongolia is far away, and yet a recent disturbance in the inner circles of Outer Mongolia will find sympathetic understanding in Greenwich Village, or whatever quarter the literary may inhabit now that high rents have made Greenwich Village too expensive for impecunious servants of art. Some years ago the "chieftains of the Mongolian Banners" felt the urge of freedom. They proclaimed their autonomy, and though the Chinese Government had long had suzerainty over them, China was too weak or too philosophical to raise objection. Or perhaps the Chinese, having observed human life for some thousands of years, had met similar situations many times before and knew how the matter would turn out.

And now it has turned out. For a while all Outer Mongolia enjoyed the pleasures of autonomy and was convinced that there was nothing like the life of freedom. Then certain disadvantages became apparent. Freed from Chinese suzerainty and Chinese protection, the Outer Mongolians found themselves exposed to Russian pressure. Soon they complained that the Russians were bullying them. Russian encroachments on Chinese territory would have been watched and countered by jealous Powers, but Mongolia was a long way off and roused but few jealousies. Russia made a loan on terms which the Mongolians, after thinking it over, did not like; but they had signed on the dotted line. The civil wars in Russia perhaps gave them some relief, but autonomy had lost all its attractiveness. And the Outer Mongolian chieftains found their sorrows sharpened by the contrast with their more cautious neighbors of Inner Mongolia, who had stayed on the reservation. The chieftains and princes of Inner Mongolia were receiving marked favors from the Chinese Government, and, above all, they were continuing to draw their salaries and allowances. Autonomy is well enough, said the chieftains of Outer Mongolia, but what is life without salaries and allowances?

So the chieftains of Outer Mongolia have sent a petition to the Chinese Government. The yearning for autonomy had been implanted in them by deceiving intriguers. They want to "cancel their autonomy" and come back into the fold. They want the Chinese Government to take up that troublesome Russian loan and attend to it. Above all, they hope that the Chinese Government will see its way clear to starting up those salaries and allowances right away. And the wise Chinese, students for some thousands of years of human history, have held out their arms to the prodigals and appropriated $800,000 by way of an installment on the salaries and allowances.

The pathos of this experience is not the less because it is so common. Freedom of soul and body, freedom to do what you like when you like, and, above all, the freedom to do nothing at all if you feel so inclined—we all want it, and most of us have at one time or another enjoyed it. It is an elemental human craving. But equally elemental and equally human is the craving to eat three times a day. The chieftains of the Mongolian Banners undoubtedly feel considerably better now that they know the $800,000 is on the way; one of Life's little victories has been won, another group of aspirants to irresponsibility has been forced to surrender; but doubtless Mongolia will enjoy the fleshpots.

TRYING TO BE WICKED.

Alarm that will be felt by the pious upon hearing that the head of the Episcopalian Church Temperance Society intends to make that body's saloon-substitutes "as wicked as we can have them" must be tempered by the reflection that the reverend gentleman will probably be unable to make them so very wicked. Indeed, a study of the principal features of the new meeting places which the Church hopes to substitute for the old palaces of crime—on the same premises and with the same fixtures wherever possible—does not reveal anything that would seem especially wicked to the sensibilities of the layman. Women, clergymen in uniform, and sightseers are to be excluded; but this is no guarantee of wickedness. Swearing, smoking, and card playing will be permitted if the visitors to these pathetic successors to the poor man's club feel so inclined; but even these are not of necessity fatal to the soul, however detrimental some may consider them.

There will be the abhorred paraphernalia of sin, the brass rail and the fat bartender. There will be, where possible, an auditorium and moving pictures. This will hardly draw crowds of enthusiasts in most places, but it is not intended to create a new habit. "It is to provide a rendezvous," says Dr. EMPRINGHAM, "where those who are being robbed "of their meeting place will feel "quite at home." And it has been discovered that they do not feel at home in a "camouflaged mission," where somebody tries "to get them to heaven by the short cut." For the younger generation no particular effort is made; they will grow up in a saloonless world to choose their own meeting places; but the Church Temperance Society is trying to soften the blow for the old-timers who would not know where to go in the evening if all the saloons were closed. They can meet at the same place, plant their feet on the same rail, smoke, talk, pour out their sorrows to the bartender, and in general do everything except drink the same old drinks. It is a substitute, undeniably, but for a good many men it may be much better than nothing. The Salvation Army has a plan of the same sort, and there seems to be no reason why the denatured saloons should not perform a real social service—unless somebody takes alarm at the effort at innocuous wickedness.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Water Is Man's Real Foe.

People who drink water, either habitually because of a belief in its superiority to other beverages, or occasionally in weak concession to the difficulty or expense connected with getting something else, need only to read an article contributed to a recent issue of The Practitioner by CHARLES MERCIER, an authority obviously eminent, and ever thereafter they will recoil from the stuff with all the horror that knowledge of its deadliness inevitably must excite.

"Water," writes Dr. MERCIER, "is a perilous beverage for any one," and he is especially earnest in warning against its use those whose "resistance to the attacks of micro-organisms is beginning to fail with their other powers"—by which, as even a layman can see, he means people who are getting old. He admits that alcohol is not wholly and always innocuous to all, but he hurries to assert that its dangers "are nothing in comparison with the dangers of drinking water."

To support these statements he reminds us that wine, beer, whisky, liqueurs, or even absinthe never "swept away myriads of human beings in a few weeks, as water contaminated with the cholera vibrio has often done and may do again." And who knows, the doctor impressively asks, "how many other diseases may not be water borne"? The question answers itself. Nobody does.

A critic whose only object was to disparage and confuse a wise man might suggest that Dr. MERCIER's accusations were not against the drinking of water, but against the drinking of water inadequately guarded from assorted bugs. That, however, as anybody connected with the Anti-Saloon League instantly would see and say, would be mere quibbling, it being the custom of most water drinkers to assume that when water looks right and tastes right it is safely potable.

Johnstown Knows the Danger.

While comparing the harmfulness of water with the harmlessness of alcohol, the friend of the latter well might have gone much further than he did. He forgot to remind his readers that if ever they are shipwrecked it will be on the sea or some other body of water, and though one English Prince is said to have been drowned in a butt of malmsey, even if the story is true the victim is a lonely exception amid the innumerable shades who met a like fate in water. And who has not heard of whole towns swept away because of broken embankments behind which had been stored the most often destructive of all liquids? Beer and whisky never gathered in lakes to work such ravages.

It is water, too, that leaks through roofs and spoils ceilings, water that makes postage stamps stick together, water that dampens stockings and gives colds, water that brings a thousand losses and ills not one of which can be charged to alcoholic beverages. And yet the country has gone, or is going, what is called "dry," though why it is called so, as the wettest of all liquids must hereafter be more used than ever, it would be hard to tell.

Explaining a Cruel Inappreciation.

Dr. KARL MUCK, since his arrival in Berlin, has been telling his friends the story of his later experiences in the United States, and, as quoted in a communication sent thence to The Evening Sun, his story is an interesting one. According to the eminent conductor, he was arrested and imprisoned because he had jotted down in pencil parts of the score of BACH's oratorio, "The Passion of St. John," and the musical experts at the service of our military authorities could not be convinced that these pencilings did not constitute a cipher code to be used in sending information to Germany.

The long sequestration that followed completely wore out the patience of Dr. MUCK. His associates in confinement were a "scaly" lot, and never could he forget that it was by invitation he had come to America. After such treatment it was with almost inexpressible joy that at last he departed from a country where a guest was thus maltreated.

But Dr. MUCK admits that he will not be missed here. We still have SOUSA, and "SOUSA is about good enough for Americans."

This talk seems to have been well received in Berlin. It would have been wise to prevent its emergence thence, for there are several people in the United States who know why Dr. MUCK was arrested, interned, and finally deported, and should he continue much longer thus to exploit his grievances the information as yet kept within a narrow circle may reach a wider one, with results disastrous, even in Berlin, to the doctor's reputation for—well, call it veracity and let it go at that.

As for his characteristically courteous reference to another musician, that needs no commentary except what is self-supplied. Mr. SOUSA can afford to smile at it.

The King's Crime Misstated.

Milwaukee's Mayor, DANIEL W. HOAN, has come to this large town in talkative mood, and the reporters, who are not always as kind as they might be, not only have listened to him, but they have caused his remarks on men and things to be put in print. The remarks are not very important, but they do have interest, and perhaps the most interesting of them concerns the Mayor's refusal to invite to Milwaukee the royal Belgians.

He admits that he did refuse to do this and declares that to have done it would have violated the principles of the Socialist Party. "It concerns," he explains, "the divine right of kings and that sort of thing."

But, so far as known, King ALBERT is as free from illusion on that subject as is Mayor HOAN himself, and there is more than excuse for suspecting that the King was disliked by the Mayor and the other American Socialists not in revolt against their party bosses, not because of claiming a divine right to rule, but because he took a vigorous and effective part in the great work of bringing to an end the rule of a King who not even yet has doubted that he possesses an authorization from on high.

King ALBERT was not pro-German, but he probably will survive the pain caused by the knowledge that our Socialists do not care to associate with him.

Federation of Charities.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities is about to celebrate the tenth anniversary of its organization. With co-operation, co-ordination, and getting-together the watchwords of the day, permit me, in proof of this, to point out to the contributing public the advantages of federation:

Federation is the mutual co-operation of an entire community in a concentrated effort for all charitable and philanthropic endeavor. It works for the general good and benefit of all by doing away with duplication and waste and brings to the beneficiary the full measure of the community's support.

Prior to federation in Brooklyn, the total collections from all sources for Jewish charitable organizations was $64,000. The first year of federation (1910) we allotted to our Relief Society $12,250, as compared to $100,000 in 1919, an increase of 716 per cent. You see, we spend more on one organization now than we collected for all the organizations the first year. Our collections are now about $400,000 a year, with the cost of collecting this sum only 4.5 per cent.

When the federation was organized it included only seven charitable organizations. Now it includes nineteen of the most important charitable organizations in the borough.

This is the message which I wish to send out to the public, to the end that federation in all community matters should be encouraged and fostered. MAX ABELMAN.
Executive Director, Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities.

THE DEAD SOLDIER TO AMERICA

I was young, and, O God! how I wanted to live!
The whole of my life lay ahead,
But my country was calling me—needed
my strength.
I went. Seek me now with the dead!
I was young. All the world was a wine to be quaffed.
Fair love led me on with a smile;
But I died, and you, living, who stand in my place,
Battle on!—make my dying worth
while!

My dreams I laid down on the Altar of Right.
The blood of my youth stains the clay.
Joyousness, music, hope, memory, love,
In an instant I cast them away—
Ay, cast them away with a song on my lips,
Away with a jest and a smile,
But the Goddess I fought for is lost in the gloom,
Struggle on!—make my dying worth
while!

I followed no Laws, save the Laws of my Land.
My Country I took as my bride,
My leader, my lover, the all of my all.
I wedded her, kissed her, and died.
To you who go forward from where I left off,
Though dark be the pathway each mile,
The Torch I have lit will yet flame to the sky,
Carry on!—make my dying worth while!

GERMANY'S DISTINCTION.

Not in Discovery of Mustard Gas, but in Using It First in War.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The justice of your comment on the address of Sir Charles A. Parsons, President of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, that the repute of German science was largely based on the application of borrowed inventions rather than on originality is well illustrated by the paper of Sir William J. Pope on "Mustard Gas," published in the Sept. 30 number of The Journal of the Society of Chemical Industry. As he points out, this material was first obtained by Frederick Guthrie, (Quart. Journ. Chem. Soc., 1860, Vol. 12, P. 116,) who recognized its powerful physiological effects, although it was subsequently studied by the German chemist Victor Meyer in 1886.

Within about two months after they had begun to work upon the problem Sir William J. Pope and C. S. Gibson worked out an entirely novel process for making dichlorethyl sulphid, (mustard gas,) which was so cheap and efficient that as soon as the Germans learned of the new British method by the examination of dud shell they abandoned their elaborate and expensive process and adopted the British method.

In conclusion, Sir William points out "that 'mustard gas' was discovered by a British chemist, that the best method for its preparation was discovered by British chemists, and very rapidly put into large-scale production by a British firm. Further, that the best technical method for the preparation of the necessary ethylene has proved to be that described by a British chemist. The only distinction which our country allows to pass to Germany in this matter is that of treacherously having introduced one of the most appallingly toxic substances known as a weapon of civilized warfare." Example of Washington.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With the exit of the League of Haters at an early date, as now seems probable, comes up the question, What do most people think of the efforts of its leaders in the Senate in their opposition to the President? As to the President himself he probably views them as coming within the class he years ago described as unable to speak the thought of the great body of citizens. Furthermore, he knows that the head and front of his opponents in the Senate is a biographer of George Washington—one, as himself portrayed by others, who was the incarnation of everything despicable; like himself threatened with impeachment, and then lauded by this same biographer as the typical American! This eulogist of the first President, of course, knows that the successor of Washington now in the White House, and so much the object of his concern, is also a biographer of Washington, of whom he wrote, quoting Washington's words, that the cry against his approval of the Jay treaty was "like that against a mad dog, such exaggerated and indecent terms could scarcely be applied to a Nero, a notorious defaulter, or even to a common pickpocket."

With these facts in mind, following the exit of the League of Haters, it would be quite the thing for its conservative members, at least, to express themselves after the manner of the General Assembly of Maryland in December, 1795, in these words on Washington:

"Resolved, unanimously, that the General Assembly of Maryland, impressed with the liveliest sense of the importance and disinterested services rendered to his country by the President of the United States; convinced that the prosperity of every free Government is promoted by the existence of national confidence between the people and their trustees, and is injured by misplaced suspicion and ill-founded jealousy; considering that public virtue receives its best reward in the approving voice of a grateful people, and that when the award is denied to it, the noble incentive to great and honorable actions, to generous zeal and magnanimous perseverance, is destroyed; observing with deep concern a series of efforts, by indirect insinuation or open invective, to detach from our Chief Magistrate of the Union the well-earned confidence of his fellow-citizens, think it their duty to declare, and they do hereby declare, their unabated reliance on the integrity, judgment, and patriotism of the President of the United States."

History and Propaganda.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Diligently to search out the facts of our history is commendable. To attempt to create a false impression from a partial or distorted statement of such facts should cast suspicion on the motives of the would-be historian. Thus to know, as Mr. O'Brien has counted up, that there were 12,250 men of a hundred Irish patronymics in the Revolutionary War is highly interesting, but its bearing on the systematic Irish propaganda now being carried on in this country requires that we remember that the total of enrolled men in the American service in that war was 309,781, (p. 709, World Almanac.) Thus we see that Mr. O'Brien merely makes the modest claim that he has found that 4 per cent. of the American Army were Irish or had Irish blood.

It would be still more interesting to know just how many of the actual descendants of that 4 per cent. are among those who would have our foreign policy dictated, not by the interests of America, but by the aspirations of the people of the Sinn Fein Party in Ireland, a foreign country.

As a matter of fairness I do not agree with Senator Williams in his comparison of Ireland with the South, as the Irish are compelled to remain in a partnership which they entered unwillingly and have never desired. Nevertheless, as to Irish boastfulness, the Senator from Mississippi spoke the truth like a man. A. L. SPENCER.

Nathan Straus Supports Untermyer.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am so greatly interested in seeing Irwin Untermyer elected to the Supreme Court in the forthcoming election that I hope you will permit me to say a word in his behalf in your columns.

Irwin Untermyer is a lawyer of experience and ability, and has been an active practitioner in our courts. His integrity and character are unquestioned, and he stands high in the esteem of all those who know him. Above all, however, he has that human and sympathetic feeling for his fellow-man which can only result from recent and intimate contact with the body of our people. This is too often lacking in those who have been so long on the bench that they have almost forgotten whence they came.

Under the circumstances, it is not only my privilege, but my duty, to advise my many friends that they should help toward Mr. Untermyer's election.

Senator Borah.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Senator Borah, in answer to the question as to what would happen to the United States if the League of Nations were rejected, answers in your Sunday Magazine Section: "People would become at once contented in mind and happy in their old accustomed beliefs and traditions. * * * The panacea for all ills! Reject the League and we will all "become at once contented in mind." No more strikes, no more worries, no trouble! But more remarkable yet—"happy in their old accustomed beliefs and traditions."

The world has been upheaved, and the Senator would have us throw all the sacrifice and agony to the winds and go back to our "old accustomed beliefs and traditions."

The answer is so incredible as to make remark or comment impossible.

LAYMEN TO FILL PULPITS.

Will Speak at 275 Services Tomorrow in Every Name Campaign.

Tomorrow the Episcopal Diocese of New York will observe Laymen's Day, and men prominent in affairs in this and other cities will occupy the pulpits in churches of that denomination. Laymen's Day is one of the features of the Every Name Campaign conducted as part of the nation-wide movement of the church. This nation-wide campaign is a movement within the church to awaken the communion to their duties and responsibilities in assisting in the solution of vital problems that have grown out of the war; and to contribute to the $42,000,000 fund which is to enable the church to carry out a progressive national Episcopal program.

At the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, George Gordon Battle will preach the sermon. At the Church of the Incarnation, Madison Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, Dr. William J. Schieffelin will speak. At St. Mary's, Manhattanville, Everett P. Wheeler will speak at the morning service, and in the evening he will speak again at Grace Church, Tenth Street and Broadway. Judge Frederick Kernochan will speak in Christ Church, Suffern, at the 11 A. M. service, and at St. Mary's, Tuxedo, at 4 o'clock P. M., while his father, J. Frederick Kernochan, Senior Warden of Grace Church, will speak at the morning service at the Church of the Holy Apostle, at Ninth Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street.

In many of the churches the lay speakers will be drawn from their own congregations. In quite a number the lay address will take the place of the regular sermon. But in all of approximately 275 churches, mission houses, and preaching stations a layman will be allotted such time as he deems necessary to present the plan and purpose of the Every Name Campaign.

DAY OF PRAYER FOR NATION.

Presbyterians Asked to Plead for Guidance in Social Unrest.

A proclamation calling upon Presbyterians and all other Christians in the United States to unite in prayer for guidance in helping to "solve the nation-wide problem of social unrest," will be read from every pulpit of the Presbyterian denomination throughout the country tomorrow. It was issued by the General Assembly's Committee on the New Era Movement.

The summons to prayer, "to release the spiritual forces which the Church believes alone can save the nation and the world," was inspired, it was said, by a discussion as to what the Church could do in view of the failure of the recent National Industrial Conference in Washington.

Tomorrow will be devoted, according to the plan, "to special intercession for the United States Government and the American people." The proclamation, which advocates "a new leadership of power and good-will," invites "the Presbyterian Church's 5,000,000 adherents and all those who share the common faith, to release by united confession and intercession with Almighty God, the only energies which can avail in this crucial hour."

The prayers will also invoke divine aid for all conferences and gatherings of men and women "that they may be guided by a wisdom higher than human which will overrule the selfish and unchristian desires and purposes of those who would destroy the ideals and institutions of our beloved land and bring to fruition the earnest hopes of those who sincerely seek the public good; that hatred and violence may be thwarted; that partisanship may be transformed into patriotism; that labor may become dignified by new responsibilities, and that capital may acknowledge its power as a sacred trust, and that the whole nation may be guided upon the paths of more fruitful and satisfying toil to the end that national and world peace may be established."

FAVORS A FOREIGN PRESS.

One of the Best Americanizing Influences, Says Rabbi Wise.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 31.—"Every lynching sets back the work of Americanization ten years," declared Rabbi Stephen S. Wise today at the New Jersey State School Conference on Americanization held at Rutgers College and attended by educators from all parts of the State.

"Some of the big dailies are the worst foes we have, because they encourage this lawless attitude" said Rabbi Wise. He argued that foreign-language papers should not be suppressed, and said there was more disloyalty among the English-speaking papers. Some of the foreign papers, he said, are the best Americanizing influences that we have.

The speaker declared that private and religious schools must be done away with, and that there must be one-system schools, in which true Americanism will be taught. "If you would make better Americans," he said, "make the Jew a better Jew and the Christian a better Christian. If you change a man's religion he is a poorer citizen." He also declared that the theatres spread vice among the foreign born.

Dr. F. C. Butler, Federal Director of Americanization, supported Rabbi Wise's stand in favor of foreign-language newspapers.

MAYFLOWER TERCENTENARY

Free Church Council of Great Britain Arranging Celebration.

The Free Church Council of Great Britain is planning for an international celebration of the Mayflower tercentenary in 1920. The announcement was made here yesterday by the Rev. M. E. Aubrey, special delegate of the council to the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

Although he had found American churches in favor of an international tercentenary, Mr. Aubrey declared they were far behind English churchmen in the extent of their preparations for it.

"There is in Great Britain," he said, "a deep and earnest longing for such a celebration of this great occasion as shall bring the churches of the two nations closer together. We trust that the celebration will strike the note of Christian outlook and motive in international affairs."

CAPT. SADOUL TO RETURN.

French Officer Now with Bolsheviki Would Run for Chamber.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—A letter written by Captain Jacques Sadoul of the French Army, who is reported high in the councils of the Bolsheviki in Russia and is about to be tried in France for having deserted his country to support the enemy, is published by the Populaire today.

The letter is addressed to Colonel J. C. Wedgwood, Coalition Liberal member of the British House of Commons from Newcastle-under-Lyme, and asks Colonel Wedgwood to write to Jean Longuet, leader of the French Minority Socialists, and inform him that Captain Sadoul will accept a nomination for the French Chamber of Deputies. Captain Sadoul adds that he will return to France as soon as possible.

PARIS DINNER TO HARBORD.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—Marshal Joffre, General Berdoulat, Military Governor of Paris; Frank L. Polk, General Tasker H. Bliss, and Henry White of the American Peace Mission, and Judge Alton B. Parker were among the guests at a farewell dinner given last night in honor of Major General James G. Harbord, head of the American mission which recently visited Armenia, and the other members of the mission.

General Harbord is expected to sail in a few days for the United States.

KING ALBERT SAILS PRAISING AMERICA

TALKS OF HIS IMPRESSIONS

Thinks America Is Destined to Lead World in Intellectual Achievement—Whitlock Returns with King.

ON BOARD THE STEAMSHIP GEORGE WASHINGTON, Oct. 31, (by Wireless to The Associated Press.)—King Albert of Belgium sent the following radio message of adieu to President Wilson, immediately after the George Washington sailed:

President Wilson, White House, Washington, D. C.:

The moment of departure has come, and it is with great regret that I leave the hospitable shores of America. I am glad, however, to have had the great pleasure of seeing you, and it is comforting to me to feel that you will soon be in full health and vigor and able to continue your great work.

The Queen and I will never forget the cordiality of the welcome extended to us by the people as well as by the Government of the United States.

I assure you once more of my highest regards and friendship.

ALBERT.

OLD POINT COMFORT, Va., Oct. 31.—The transport George Washington steamed away from Hampton Roads at 1:30 o'clock today bearing King Albert of the Belgians, Queen Elizabeth, Prince Leopold and their suite, homeward bound after twenty-nine days in the United States.

The guns at the Norfolk Navy Yard boomed a national salute as the barges which carried the royal party to the ship cast off from the pier, after the King and Queen had inspected the navy yard. Aboard the George Washington boatswains' whistles piped them over the side and the ship's band played the "Brabanconne," while Captain McCauley stood at salute at the gangway and the ship's crew manned the rails.

King Albert stood on the bridge of the transport with his wife and son beside him, gazing shoreward as the big vessel steamed slowly down the bay escorted by battleships and destroyers and with the royal standard of Belgium fluttering from the masthead.

The King and his party, accompanied by Secretary Lansing of the State Department and Assistant Secretary Breckinridge Long, and by Secretary Daniels of the Navy Department, arrived at Fortress Monroe on a special train from Washington. There, and later at Portsmouth, the King was warmly greeted by State and local officials and the crowds which gathered to receive him.

Boarding the destroyer Stockton and escorted by navy dirigibles and seaplanes, the party crossed the Norfolk Navy Yard, where Queen Elizabeth gave the signal that sent the waters of Elizabeth River flooding into two great new drydocks for the first time. An inspection of the yard followed, the King displaying great interest in all he saw and receiving a continuous ovation from the navy personnel and the citizens, including thousands of school children gathered to receive him.

Ambassador Brand Whitlock sailed with the Belgian party.

King Talks of His Visit.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 31, (Associated Press.)—Deep regret at leaving the United States and profound admiration not only for Americans, but for all things American, were voiced today by King Albert of the Belgians in the second interview he has given in this country. Standing on the bridge of the destroyer Stockton, which brought him here from Old Point Comfort, he talked for half an hour on varied topics.

"The Queen and I are very grateful," he said, "for the kindness and courtesy extended us everywhere we have been. It has been delightful, and we have enjoyed every minute of our trip."

His Majesty was asked if he had gained in his travels here any ideas which would be of practical value in his own country. He replied that he had learned much from the division of labor in American industries, and that he hoped to see many of the systems developed here adopted in Belgium.

King Albert announced on his way across the Atlantic that one purpose of his visit to this country was to foster interest in his realm among bankers and big business men. While he has made no attempt personally to float loans he admitted today he believed his mission had been successful. He met in New York many of the leading bankers of the country and chatted with as many as he could meet on his tour.

"Your resources are marvelous," he declared. "The gold balance of the world is here, and all European countries are saddled with huge debts. American financiers have told me they have the friendliest feeling for Belgium. They realize that Belgium is a country of the future.

"The first thing Belgium must do is to resume its commercial activities, especially the manufacture of railroad supplies, of which there is a great shortage in Europe. Our rolling mills and blast furnaces already are beginning their activities, and we hope to have some of our textile mills in operation soon.

"Your country has developed wonderfully since I was here many years ago. That is true especially along intellectual lines. Your system of universal education is just beginning to bear its full fruit. The countless men and women who have obtained higher educations have now reached their full development. I believe America will lead the world in scientific researches and in all lines of mental activity. How could it be otherwise when you have so many fine schools."

His Majesty smiled when it was suggested to him that the trunkful of honorary degrees he is taking home with him would give him a personal interest in many American institutions.

Reverting to the reconstruction of Belgium, the King remarked:

"The world is growing steadily smaller because of the remarkable transportation facilities which are being developed. Naturally, it is easier for people to move back and forth, and when normal steamship schedules are restored I expect many Americans will come to Belgium, where they always will be welcome."

In this connection, Albert indicated that he was hopeful some day of realizing his youthful ambition of making his country a maritime nation. His plans were well under way when they were shattered by the war.

When the interview ended he expressed the hope that it would not be long before he could visit America again. It was learned that he and the Queen hope to come here unofficially and travel incognito, as they have done in other countries.

Queen Elizabeth, who was waiting for her husband, declared she had enjoyed more than any other thing in her life her long tour of the United States and she denied with a smile that she was weary.

Prince Leopold is hopeful of coming here to school, but his father remarked that he still had three years in the Belgian Military Academy before him.

TRANSPORT GRANT AT BREST

5,000 American Troops to Entrain at Once for Coblenz.

BREST, France, Oct. 31.—The transport President Grant arrived here today from New York with 5,000 American troops for the Army of Occupation on board, and is being unloaded of baggage under difficulties because of a rough sea. Unless delayed, the first trainload of troops from the transport will leave here at 8 o'clock tonight for Coblenz, and other trains will be dispatched daily for the next four or five days.

The voyage of the transport was uneventful. It is understood here that the troops are needed at Coblenz to guard American property which has been sold but not yet delivered.

MRS. SAGE'S ESTATE WORTH $49,051,045

Appraisers Report $10,732,350, Chiefly in Mortgages, and $2,638,749 Realty.

$35,121,826 IN SECURITIES

Decedent's Lifetime Gifts Offset Bequests Made to Several Public Institutions.

The estate of Mrs. Russell Sage, who died Nov. 4, 1918, was appraised at $49,051,045 gross and $45,261,724 net in a report filed yesterday. She gave about $40,000,000 of this sum to philanthropy and education, some of the gifts being in the form of direct bequests and others as shares of the residue of $36,646,655, all of which went to charity. The largest gift, $5,436,104, or seven parts of the residue, went to the Russell Sage Foundation.

Mrs. Sage's will provided that if she had made gifts in her lifetime to any of the legatees these sums were to be deducted. For that reason many institutions named receive little or nothing under her will, among them being the Association for the Relief of Aged and Indigent Females, which got $125,000 under the will, and had received $130,000 in her lifetime; the First Presbyterian Church of Syracuse, which got $10,000 in the will, and had received $35,000; Syracuse University, which had advances of $637,000 and got only $100,000 under the will; Yale, which received $650,000 in her lifetime and got $776,586 in the will, and Princeton, with only $63,586, due on a gift of $776,586.

The estate comprised $2,638,749 in real estate, $352,752 cash on hand and in deposits, $10,732,350 in personal chattels, chiefly mortgages, and $35,121,826 in stocks and bonds. The holdings of securities were widely diversified, and only one stock issue and one bond issue were valueless. They were fifty shares of the Froebel League and $146,000 State of Georgia bonds, due in 1894, on which the interest was in default after 1870.

Bequests to Relatives.

Mrs. Sage's brother, Joseph Jermain Slocum, got $7,000,000 outright, a life interest in $1,000,000, a life interest in the Jermain homestead at Sag Harbor, L. I., worth $5,000; all furniture, valued at $32,062, and a quarter interest in Lawrence (L. I.) property, $107,000. Herbert J. and Stephen L'H. Slocum, nephews, got $128,231 and $126,750, respectively. Margaret Olivia Flint, grandniece, received a life interest in $100,000 and a quarter interest in the Lawrence property. Helen Chapin got $50,000 and Dr. D. Bryson Delavan received $25,000. E. Lillian Todd, secretary, received $2,500, while $5,000 each went to Mrs. Sage's laundress, maid, chauffeur, footman, houseman, coachman, watchman, caretaker, and gardener. Two caretakers and an assistant gardener got $2,500 each.

The appraisal shows that the personal effects in the decedent's home at 604 Fifth Avenue were worth only $19,460, and the total in other houses, including autos and carriages, was $32,068. Many of the paintings were copies and were of small value, nine of them being worth $530. The most valuable was "The Battery," by William Bliss Baker, painted in 1883, worth $350. A Biblical subject was appraised at $150. The most valuable tapestry was an antique Flemish design, worth $800; a Kirmanshah rug was worth $850, and a Khorassan rug $425.

Among the items of the estate were a Stock Exchange membership, $55,000, and interest in a trust fund arising from St. Louis & Southwestern Railway mortgages, $118,016. Among the claims due were $82,578 from Newman Erb, listed as "doubtful"; Mrs. Frederick Parsons, $10,000 loan, "nominal" value; Margaret Townsend Tagliapietra, $4,758, and Louise Olivia Sebring, $1,400, "doubtful." Herbert J. Slocum owed Mrs. Sage $400,000 on notes, and Stephen L'H. Slocum $127,500 on loans.

The appraisal shows that the burial charges were $4,000. The largest debt of the estate was $1,039,075 for the income tax from Jan. 1, 1918, to Nov. 4 of that year. A balance of $973,000 was due on a subscription to the Fourth Liberty Loan.

Mrs. Sage received $64,153,800 under the will of her husband. It was estimated that her lifetime benefactions after his death aggregated $40,000,000, so that she had disposed of about $80,000,000 in public gifts. Only John D. Rockefeller and Andrew Carnegie have exceeded that sum. She founded the Russell Sage Foundation ten months after her husband's death with a gift of $10,000,000. The Foundation in addition received $5,436,104 under the will, and that bequest was not affected by the previous gift.

Divided Into 52 Parts.

The residuary estate of $36,646,655 was divided into fifty-two parts, the majority of the residuary legatees receiving two shares. The following table shows the amounts bequeathed and sums to be deducted, as having been received in Mrs. Sage's lifetime:

APPEALS TO FINNS TO HELP ANTI-REDS

NEEDED TO TAKE PETROGRAD

Margulis Tells of Arrangements Made to Rush Food Relief When the Capital Falls.

HELSINGFORS, Oct. 31.—Stefan Lianosoff, Prime Minister of the new Government of Northwest Russia, has arrived here to endeavor to persuade the Finnish Government to help Russia, provided the Allies will give them the support which is essential.

The new Government was formed at Reval under Lianosoff, who was formerly a Moscow financier. I had an interview with him today, in the course of which he said:

"With the help of the Finns we could take Petrograd in three days. It is constantly stated in the Scandinavian papers that it would cost 60,000 men to take Petrograd. This is utterly untrue. We could take Petrograd with 50,000 men. But it will cost 500,000 lives if Petrograd is not taken quickly. If there is more delay, Petrograd will be simply one enormous graveyard when our troops eventually get there. Denikin must have two months in which to capture Moscow, so we cannot expect help from that quarter."

M. Lianosoff assured me that the Finns would be willing to fight if their independence were guaranteed by the Allies.

"Finland wants a guarantee of independence from Kolchak," he said, "but we cannot afford to wait for that. If the Allies would guarantee Finland's independence she would willingly come to our aid. Only she has no money. We do not ask England to send us men; we understand her difficulties; but we do beg of you to give Finland right counsel in this grave hour and to help her with money so that she can give decisive aid. Finland has only sufficient ammunition to last two months. She would need 500,000,000 Finnish marks for a successful campaign. But she has no money, and if she is to help us she must be financed by the Allies.

Position on Front Critical.

"The position on the front is extremely critical. When we took Gatchina we found that the people had been living on grass for the last few days. The Bolsheviki are strong, and stubborn fighters. Before they were able to take Tsarskoe-Selo they made eighteen attacks. It is estimated that there are from 50,000 to 60,000 Reds on the Petrograd front. I may not tell you the number of Whites, but they are considerably less.

"In Petrograd itself there are 700,000 Whites, but they are powerless. The workmen would fight the Reds, but they have no equipment or ammunition. There has been no bread in Petrograd for eight days and conditions there are tragic beyond description. Surely the world cannot be indifferent to the fate of those unhappy people in Petrograd now slowly starving to death.

"The discipline and morale in the army of General Yudenitch are admirable, but it is a little army which must have help if it is to succeed. Petrograd, I am confident, can be taken without inflicting further suffering on the inhabitants, for if it were known that the Whites were advancing with the help of the Finns the city would be evacuated and we should be able to enter with very little resistance.

"The fall of Petrograd is a matter which concerns the whole world. It is first essential to the beginning of a new and peaceful Russia. But it is absolutely essential that we should take Petrograd quickly if we are to save its people from utter extermination."

The Minister of Commerce of the Northwest Government, M. Margulis, told me tonight that Lianosoff and himself had been received most sympathetically by a conference consisting of President Stallberg, Prime Minister Dr. Holsti, and the Chief of Staff. It was not generally believed here that the President was in favor of Finnish intervention in Russia, but M. Margulis assures me that the President was extremely well disposed to the suggestion that Finland should send troops to assist in the taking of Petrograd.

"The President, however, naturally added that it was a matter for the Parliament to decide," said M. Margulis. "I am very hopeful of the result if the Allies will regard this as an international question which concerns not only Finland and Russia but the whole world. The effect on the Finnish Parliament will be considerable. If, on the other hand, the Allies refuse to have anything to do with the Russian position it will be extremely difficult—I do not say impossible—for Finland to help. The Finnish Army could render effective help within a week of the decision to co-operate."

Plans to Feed Petrograd.

M. Margulis is responsible for the arrangements made to feed Petrograd immediately it is captured by the Whites.

"I am basing my calculations on the assumption that there will be one million people in Petrograd to be fed," he said, "but actually I do not think there will be more than 700,000, including the army. We have large quantities of food at Reval, Viborg, and Narva, consisting chiefly of flour, bacon, beans, and condensed milk. These foodstuffs will last five or six weeks.

"We are deeply indebted to Mr. Hoover for his great generosity in helping us. Some time ago we appealed to him for assistance. From the Russian Embassy in New York came the reply that Mr. Hoover was no longer connected with the Commission for Relief, but that he would be glad to help us by private means. Colonel Logan, who was chief of Mr. Hoover's staff, is now director of the J. Pierpont Morgan Bank in Paris, and he also promised to help. America, through the Children's Relief Organization, has also agreed to feed and clothe every child in Petrograd up to the age of 14 years.

"The Northwest Government is giving 10,000,000 rubles for relief work. Nine hundred tons of food are already in Gatchina and Tsarskoe Selo for relief of the children. Esthonia has given 25,000 tons of potatoes, enough to feed Petrograd for six weeks. I have just made a contract with Finland to supply wood for heating purposes for two months from the first day of the release of Petrograd, and have been promised long credit. I have also arranged for lamps for lighting the streets and private houses, as the electrical system is destroyed, and for a liberal supply of disinfectants, and coal to the amount of several thousand tons also has been promised by private individuals.

"We are absolutely ready for the fall of Petrograd and are eagerly awaiting some message of encouragement from the Allies."

M. Margulis told me that as General Yudenitch already had representatives in London it would not be necessary for the Government to send special envoys to England. Such a decision was urgently needed, however, if Petrograd was to be saved from extinction.

"It is not a local question," M. Margulis concluded with tragic emphasis. "It is a question for the whole world, but far more important it is a question for humanity. I refuse to believe the Allies will leave Petrograd to her fate."

HELSINGFORS, Oct. 31. (Associated Press.)—Replying to an interpellation in the Diet last night relative to Finland's future foreign policy, the Premier said Finland intended to co-operate with the Allies and the Baltic States in opposing Bolshevism.

After an all-night debate forty-four members of the Diet voted the statement unsatisfactory and moved to refer the matter to the Foreign Affairs Committee for further investigation. Seventy members considered the answer satisfactory, and seventy-five Socialists refrained from voting.

REPORT 3 RED SHIPS SUNK BY BRITISH

LONDON, Oct. 31.—An unconfirmed report has reached The Globe that three Bolshevist vessels were sunk when the Bolsheviki attempted to land on the coast in the neighborhood of Petrograd, the vessels being bombarded by a British fleet.

A Bolshevist communication issued Friday and received here this afternoon says:

"An artillery duel between our batteries and enemy ships in the Gulf of Finland resulted in the enemy being driven off."

The capture of Petropavlovsk from the forces of Admiral Kolchak by the Bolsheviki is also claimed in a wireless dispatch received from Moscow today. The dispatch says the town fell Thursday.

Yet another Bolshevist wireless from Moscow received here contains the text of the latest message of Leon Trotzky, the Minister of War, to the Red forces. It concludes as follows:

"Army men, Commanders and Commissaries: The Soviet Government expects from you the greatest concentration of your forces.

"Onward. Do not give the enemy time to rest. Drive him, strangle him, beat him mercilessly. The hour of rest will come when the offal has been destroyed."

The message says the first part of the task of the Reds has been completed with the flinging back of the foe from Petrograd.

"Every one has done his duty," the message continues, "and deserves the gratitude of the Socialist fatherland. Now comes the second half of the task. The annihilation of the enemy must be carried out with the same success. The position of Yudenitch's army is hopeless. Do not give him a breathing spell. Harry him, defeat him until he is completely destroyed."

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 31.—The Russian legation here today received a report from the Northwest Army dated Wednesday, which says:

"The Bolshevist attempt to surround our left wing west of Tsarskoe Selo miscarried. We resumed the offensive and occupied the important crossroads near the village of Viostaskaya, close to Krasnoye Selo, taking 2,500 prisoners and many machine guns. We are continuing to advance."

KING VICTOR VISITS TWO GRAND DUKES

Mystery of Nicholas Nicholaievitch Definitely Cleared Up—He Is in Italy.

GENOA, Oct. 31 (Associated Press.)—King Victor Emmanuel, Queen Helena and the Royal children arrived today on their yacht Yela and proceeded by train to Sant Margherita to visit Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch, former commander in chief of the Russian army, and his brother, Grand Duke Peter, and their wives. The royal party remained with the Grand Dukes for several hours, returning later to Genoa, where they boarded their yacht.

"We have received you only so that we may not appear discourteous and as a mark of appreciation to the United States. But heretofore we have received no journalists and granted no interviews," said Grand Duke Nicholas in receiving the correspondent.

By his side was his wife, the Grand Duchess Anastasia, whose face still bears traces of the sufferings she endured during the war.

"Indeed," the Grand Duchess interrupted to say, "deny all interviews attributed to us, as we have refused so far to make any statements, as any expression of our attitude, one way or another, might do more harm than good to our poor distracted country, and any cause we might wish to support.

"We desire on our past life, on our experiences, on all we have felt, that silence should reign. This is our dearest wish, our most fervent request."

Here Grand Duke Nicholas resumed the conversation.

"We have come to Italy," he said, "in this fairylike corner of the world, on the beautiful, smiling Gulf of Sant Margherita, seeking only peace and repose for our spirits and our nerves. We have determined not to talk with anybody on past sad events. All the tortures we endured must, for the outside world, be hidden in our own breasts. The only request we make is that our silence and our sadness be respected.

"For this reason, we lead most retired lives in this Villa of Spinola, half hidden in the woods, spending part of the day on the delightful shore of the Gulf, and the remainder with my brother Peter and his wife, Militza, who live nearby at a place known as 'Due Pini,' (Two Pines.) Our whole life is circumscribed within these narrow limits."

Replying to an inquiry whether they would remain long in Italy, the Grand Duchess said:

"We have rented this villa until July, 1920, but between now and then many things may happen to decide us either to prolong or to shorten our stay here."

The Grand Duke and Grand Duchess Nicholas take their meals in their own villa and in the evening generally receive a visit from Grand Duke Peter and his wife. Grand Duchess Anastasia daily either drives with her husband or walks to the nearby village of San Michele, which is celebrated for handmade lace.

The correspondence of Grand Duke Nicholas is attended to by Baron Steel, who acts both as private secretary and master of ceremonies.

The visits of King Victor Emmanuel and of The Associated Press correspondent clears up the mystery of the whereabouts of Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch. He has been at one time or another reported dead, in captivity of the Bolsheviki, and living incognito in various places. The last report had him residing on Prinkipo Island, in the Sea of Marmora, between Asiatic and European Turkey.

JULES DEVELLE DEAD.

Ex-French Minister of Foreign Affairs Had Long Political Career.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—Jules Develle, member of the French Senate, and Minister of Foreign Affairs in 1893, died today.

Jules Paul Develle, born at Bar-le-Duc in 1845, had a long career as lawyer, and politician. In 1879 he was appointed Under-Secretary of State in the cabinet of Marcère, was continued in the same post under Freycinet, rising to the office of Secretary of Agriculture under that Premier in 1890. He was a member of Loubet's ministry in the same capacity, and in 1893, when Ribot first formed a cabinet, he became Minister of Foreign Affairs. The legislation on horse racing is largely attributed to him.

LADY ASTOR WON'T BE A SILENT M. P.

Says if She Is Elected She Will Make Her Protest Earnestly.

STARTS CAMPAIGN MONDAY

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Lady Astor has arrived in Plymouth to prepare for the election campaign which will open Monday. She will be joined tomorrow by Lord Astor, who will assist her throughout the contest.

"What a strange world this is!" she remarked to THE NEW YORK TIMES representative. "To think that the wheel of fortune has placed me in the position of candidate for Plymouth in succession to my husband! I am proud of the honor, but when I think of the responsibility I almost quake. I enter the fight full of confidence and with a determination to win. I fear nothing; I can take care of myself. I am eager to win a seat in Parliament and equally eager to be the first woman member to sit there.

"My hope is that I may pave the way for other women who aspire to enter Parliament. There are many splendid women who would make most useful members and do as well for the country as men; but the country seems to want to be quite sure that women in the House of Commons can discharge their heavy responsibilities and win laurels.

"There is a wide gulf between assisting my husband in electioneering and being a candidate myself. I have got to make good. There is not going to be any screaming in the House. If I am not satisfied with what is being achieved by Parliament I am not going to weep over my disappointment. I shall plod along at Westminster. I shall make my protest earnestly, and I am quite sure I shall not be easily put off by excuses. I shall not ask foolish questions simply to oblige some one. I am going to stand up for British men and women and hope to make demands on the Government which will be really practical. I shall not be a silent member.

"I know that if I should fail in Parliament the consequences would be lamentable, not to me, but to the women of England. The first woman must do useful, conscientious, earnest work to prove that women can serve the country in Parliament and to convince the electors in general that there is a great sphere in Parliament for women. It is up to me to establish the right of enfranchised women not only to vote but to sit in Parliament with lasting advantage to the nation."

Asked as to her views on prohibition, Lady Astor said:

"I believe in prohibition, but not in forced prohibition, just as I believe in Christianity, but not in forced Christianity. Forced Christianity and forced prohibition both make hypocrites."

Lady Astor said she believed that in time people would be educated up to demanding the prohibition of intoxicants, but that at present England was not ripe for it.

A recent development in the political situation in Plymouth may have the effect of splitting the Conservative vote and thus considerably reducing Lady Astor's chances of winning the bye-election.

A number of electors who are not disposed to support Lady Astor have asked Alderman Lionel Jacobs, a well-known local public man, to stand as an independent Conservative, and he will make his decision Monday. This invitation is said to be the outcome of a fierce struggle which has been raging behind the scenes among the Conservatives for several days.

DARTMOUTH-COLGATE AND PENN-PENN STATE GRIDIRON BATTLES ARE IN LIMELIGHT TODAY

HANOVER IS TODAY'S FOOTBALL CAPITAL

Game Between Dartmouth and Colgate Will Bear Directly Upon Championship.

U. OF P. MEETS PENN STATE

Close Match Seems Assured in Philadelphia—Princeton to Clash with West Virginia.

The eyes of the football fans turn today toward the distant town of Hanover, N. H., where the first real championship battle is to be staged, with Dartmouth and Colgate as the contenders. These two elevens have advanced to mid-season without a defeat, and by their records both may claim at least equality with the best that the East can offer. Unless they play each other to a standstill this afternoon, their encounter will produce the most logical aspirant for the mythical Eastern title to be found at present.

Up to this point the football season has been a rather haphazard affair, full of surprises, and with little chance for definite comparisons of strength. What seemed to be proved one week was astonishingly disproved the next. But today, for the first time, a significant elimination process begins to be possible.

With either Colgate or Dartmouth soon to be counted out of the reckoning, only five other Eastern teams of prominence, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Washington and Jefferson, Lehigh, and Annapolis, remain with unblemished schedules. But none of them has encountered consistent opposition of the high class overcome by today's headliners. Colgate has defeated in succession Brown University, Cornell, and Princeton, all three without the semblance of a score against her. Dartmouth, with a somewhat lighter assignment, has disposed of Penn State and Cornell, both worthy contenders, and gives the impression of having not yet realized her full strength.

Victories Over Cornell.

The only opportunity for a direct comparison of scores lies in the common victories over Cornell. Colgate won from the Ithacans by three touchdowns, while Dartmouth was lucky to make one, coming within striking distance of the goal line only with the help of a blocked kick. On the other hand, the Cornell team of last Saturday was a far better developed and more determined aggregation than the eleven which was earlier slaughtered by Larry Bankhart's pupils. There was a general impression at the Polo Grounds, also, that Coach Spears was not allowing the Dartmouth team to show its hand against Cornell, being content to win by a small margin and save his surprises for today. Certainly the Green played nothing but straight football, unless the use of the "Minnesota shift" and an occasional forward pass be considered exceptional.

Colgate's superiority to Princeton last week was very slight, but unmistakable, nevertheless. Yet the speedy veterans from Hamilton gave the impression of being just a little stale, perhaps even on the downward path instead of nearing upon the period of highest development. The Tigers gave them a far more battle than most of the wise ones had expected, and only a penalty for off-side prevented a Princeton touchdown with a probable tie score resulting.

If Colgate is really moving backward and Dartmouth forward, the latter may turn in a surprisingly one-sided victory, although every indication points to an absolutely even struggle, with the records, if anything, slightly favoring Colgate. Supporters of the big Green team reflect with pleasure on the fact that no Dartmouth eleven has been defeated on its home ground since 1907, and the Hamiltonians answer with equal enthusiasm that it was a Colgate team that turned the trick on that occasion, and is therefore likely to do it again. An additional feature of interest today is that the rival coaches, Spears and Bankhart, are both Dartmouth alumni and the latter is thus placed in the difficult position of trying to defeat his own Alma Mater.

It is a pity that Hanover is so inaccessible to metropolitan football enthusiasts, for it means that one of the most significant and perhaps one of the best played games of the season will be staged before a purely local crowd, with little representation beyond the undergraduate bodies of the two institutions.

Colgate Slightly Heavier.

Bonnenberg, 185	L.T.	R.T.	Wooster, 183
Cunningham, 175	C.	C.	Woodman, 180
Youngstrom, 180	R.G.	L.G.	Martin, 191
Murphy, 210	R.T.	L.T.	West, 180
Threshie, 169	R.E.	L.E.	Harris, 168
Cannell, 146	Q.B.	Q.B.	Anderson, 163
Robertson, 159	L.H.B.	R.H.B.	Laird, 181

While these two giants are grappling in a retired corner of New England, several others of the undefeated seven will be having no easy time keeping their records clean. Down at Philadelphia the University of Pennsylvania eleven, holder of the Eastern season's high scoring record, and believed by many to be the coming champion of all the colleges, tackles the strongest opponent it has yet faced in Penn State, a team which has the reputation of always acting most unpleasantly on Franklin Field. The State aggregation is entirely composed of veterans, no less than twenty-five of the men on the squad having already won their 'Varsity letter. Its only defeat, at the hands of Dartmouth, was practically a toss-up, the Hanoverians coming from behind to win after two touchdowns had been scored against them. If Pennsylvania can overcome the resistance of her sturdy fellow-statesmen as she did that of Lafayette last week, her football representatives cannot very well be kept from topping the list in the East.

The Princeton-West Virginia game in Jungletown today also promises much, although Pittsburgh rather dampened the aspirations of the highly regarded Southerners by a one-sided early-season defeat, while Roper's Tigers have gained considerable prestige by their great fight against Colgate last week. If Princeton can stem the West Virginia invasion with a real show of power its followers may look forward to next week's Harvard game in a truly optimistic spirit.

Lehigh Meets Pittsburgh.

Lehigh, whose astonishingly strong team has not yet been scored upon, much less beaten, can scarcely hope to continue on its chosen way against Glenn Warner's Pittsburgh Panthers, who, since their upset at Syracuse, have been on the rampage for new victims to soften the blow of defeat. Lehigh did the unexpected in defeating Rutgers by a one-sided score. It is hardly likely that a far more spectacular upset can be staged at South Bethlehem this afternoon. Pittsburgh should win in decisive style.

Lehigh's greatest rival, Lafayette, after making a splendid showing against Princeton and Pennsylvania, journeys to Ithaca today to try conclusions with Speedy Rush's Cornell team, and it is by no means certain that the Big Red team has the strength to defeat the fighting Eastonians. If Cornell puts this game to her credit in convincing fashion, her football reformation may be considered well under way.

Yale and Harvard continue to take things easy, the former trusting to Maryland State to give her some much-needed practice, while Harvard takes her annual crack at the Springfield Training School, a team which has already been easily defeated by Yale and Dartmouth. Neither of these games can be granted much importance in the season's records.

Columbia University, having apparently struck a winning stride, should move another step forward on South Field this afternoon against Union. Stevens, meanwhile, travels up to Troy to engage the Rensselaer Polytechnic eleven, and the Hobokenites are confident that their unbeaten eleven has a chance to win.

Rutgers is saving up for her Election Day argument in New York with Syracuse, which meets Brown today, while neither Annapolis nor Washington and Jefferson, both members of the undefeated clan, is endangering its record today.

FOR SCHOLASTIC TITLE.

Important Games in Manhattan—Bronx Football Series Today.

The opening game in the gridiron play which will determine the scholastic football champions of Manhattan and the Bronx will be fired today when De Witt Clinton's Red and Black eleven clashes with Stuyvesant, and High School of Commerce engages the Morris H. S. eleven. The Clinton-Stuyvesant game, originally scheduled for the Catholic Protectory Grounds in the afternoon, has been transferred to Dyckman Oval, where it will be played in the morning, beginning at 10:30 o'clock. Morris and Commerce will line up against each other in their annual clash at the Polo Grounds, starting at 2:30 o'clock.

Despite its disappointing showing in its previous games the Commerce clan is confident of victory over Morris. The Commerce lads, beaten in three of their four starts this season, have improved their play under a system of hard drilling during the past week, in anticipation of their annual battle with the Bronx school boys. Morris, starting the season with a lack of formidable talent, has surprised followers of scholastic gridiron activities with its development in recent games, its most notable achievement coming two weeks ago when the Morris team held Stuyvesant to a scoreless tie. Morris players received increased confidence with this result against a team which was a one-sided favorite to beat them, and, as a consequence, they have prepared diligently for the tilt with Commerce. Victory means much to both teams, for on the result hinges the elimination of one or another team from championship consideration.

The De Witt Clinton eleven, on past performances, far excels its other rivals for the Manhattan-Bronx title. In only one game has the Red and Black outfit tasted of defeat. On the whole the Clintonians have shown an ability which foretells a stiff session if Morris, Commerce or Stuyvesant is to deprive the Red and Black of the title. The team will take the field in a crippled condition this morning, for many of its stars are on the sick list. Bernstein, one of the leaders in the team's attack, is out of the game for the remainder of the season with a dislocated knee. Nelson Galbraith, full back, and McAnany, tackle, both are suffering from injuries received in previous games, but because of lack of reliable second string talent, Coach Cooke declared last night he will be compelled to start both players against Stuyvesant.

OLD RIVALS TO BATTLE.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Oct. 31.—The Williams eleven left today for Hartford, where it will spend the night and proceed tomorrow to Middletown for the annual gridiron battle with Wesleyan. The opinion prevails here that the Purple has considerable strength which has not been shown heretofore this year and that a surprise is in store for Wesleyan. Aside from Krieger, who is ineligible, Williams will present its full strength for the first time since the Union game. The line-up will be as follows:

Columbia '23 Vs. Garden City.

The Columbia Freshmen, in their third football game of the season, will meet the St. Paul's School eleven this afternoon on the latter's gridiron at Garden City, L. I. The contest is scheduled to begin at 2:30.

COLGATE READY FOR DARTMOUTH CONTEST

Most of the Regulars Will Start Game—Team Given Great Sendoff by Students.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Larry Bankart and his Colgate team left for Hanover this morning, where Colgate meets Dartmouth tomorrow afternoon in the battle for which Bankart has been preparing all season. The week saw intensive practice on Whitnall Field in direct preparation for this great game. The coaches realize that in Dartmouth they will find stronger foemen than they have encountered this season, and if they come away victorious it will be only after a fight in which they will have to put forth their utmost effort.

The student body also realizes the importance of the game and the town is doing nothing else but waiting for the result of the game. This morning the entire personnel of the college cheered the team in a rousing sendoff, while the rain fell unnoticed, although it wet everybody to the skin. Until the train must have been a good many miles on its way toward Hanover the loyal Maroon supporters, depleted by half their number, who accompanied the team to Dartmouth, stood in the rain and made the hills resound with their ringing cheers.

As they left, the coaches expressed the belief that they had done all that was in their power to get the team ready, and, aside from the still troublesome injuries of some of the star men, they felt sure that they were ready to meet the Green team. Whether or not Anderson or Gillo will play is still problematical, but the other players who will start the game will be Watkins at left and Laird at right half back, Woodman at centre, Barton and Martin at the guard positions, Captain West at left, and Wooster at right tackle, Cottrell and Harris at the wing positions.

Some of the substitutes in the party, which numbered thirty-odd and who will undoubtedly be used in the game, are Bek for Watkins, Webster for Laird, Woolsey for Gillo, Cornelius for Wooster, Davern for Barton, Leonard for Woodman, Randall for Martin, Crafts and Hogan for Harris, Childs and Herman for Cottrell, Jaggard for West. These substitutes will be shifted in the game according to the wisdom of the coaches as to just what part of the line or back field they can be used to best advantage.

This afternoon the players who remained here participated in practice. The men worked hard in spite of the fact that there was no one to drive them.

EVEN MONEY AT HANOVER.

Dartmouth Men Back Their Team Eagerly—Town in Football Frenzy.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 31.—The slightest kind of practice for tomorrow's game was all that Coach Spears permitted his Dartmouth team this afternoon. After a heavy rain all morning, which let up at noon, the men were taken out and allowed to handle the wet ball for about a half hour. This was followed by a short signal drill in the baseball cage of the gymnasium. The Colgate team arrived this morning and is quartered in Lebanon, about five miles away. The team came alone, as none of its supporters was in evidence late this evening.

The lineup of the Green eleven will be the same as that which faced Cornell last week, with the one exception of left end. Strong or Myers will fill that position. Coach Spears would not say anything definite as to the condition of Myers, who was originally slated for one of the wing positions but who has been out of the game for three weeks because of a bad hand. Coggswell, the other first string end, will be unable to start the game, but may possibly get into the contest before the final whistle blows. Threshie will start in his place at right end.

The town of Hanover and the student body are in a state of such football frenzy as has not been known at Dartmouth ever before. More money has been covered on this game than was thought existed among the undergraduates, and if the betting goes on at this rate the odds will shift from even money, which is now available, to odds on the Green, not from any advantage that Dartmouth men figure their team has, but merely from the lack of Colgate money.

BROWN TEAM IS CONFIDENT.

Sees Victory Over Syracuse in Big Game at Providence Today.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 31.—Following light work on Andrews Field this afternoon, tonight finds the Brown 'Varsity in the pink of condition for its game with Syracuse tomorrow. A long signal drill on new formations which will be sprung on Syracuse and a polishing off of the rough spots in play constituted the practice given the Brunonians. Coach Robinson expressed himself as satisfied with the conditions and performance of the team. Tomorrow's game is regarded as one of the biggest and hardest of the season, but the Brown coaches feel that they have the combination to beat the New York State aggregation.

The Syracuse men, with Coach Buck O'Neill, are quartered at the Narragansett Hotel. This morning they held a snappy practice on Gaskill Field at Worcester Academy, and the team is reported to be in tip top condition. Among the visitors who are here to see the game is Schlacter, the All-American guard of the Syracuse team of 1916. Schlacter, an Ensign on the battleship North Dakota, arrived in Norfolk yesterday morning and hustled to Providence on his shore leave to see his old team play.

The two teams will take the field tomorrow lined up as follows:

SYRACUSE.		BROWN.
Brown	L.E.	Williams
Hoople	L.T.	Gulian
Alexander	L.G.	Lathrop
Robertson	C.	Brace
Gulick	R.G.	Nichols
Segal	R.T.	Shurtleff
Schwarzer	R.E.	McSweeney
Ackley	Q.B.	Fox
Fallon	L.H.B.	Shupert
Abbott	R.H.B.	Oden
Parker	F.B.	Emery

SHAKEUP AT N. Y. U.

Coaches Make Important Changes in Both Line and Backfield.

New York University's football team suffered its first shakeup of the season yesterday afternoon. Coaches Longwell and Gargan made a great many radical changes, but it is still to be seen whether they will be practical.

The most startling alteration was the shifting of Captain Cann from his regular berth at half back to the tackle position left open by the injury of Baker. In prep school Cann was a lineman and shone in that capacity. He will be called back for kicks, however. His inability to participate in forward pass formations is the greatest drawback to the change, and because of this the shift may not be practical.

The line received a further shakeup when Guiney was displaced by MacCumber. This change will take some weight from that place, but the presence of Cann in the line will make up for this in a measure. Adams, who up to this week has been laid up with an abscess on his leg, due to an injury received in the Hamilton game, supplanted Parkhurst at end. The little fellow is a wonder on the defense, and this change is expected to be permanent.

Several changes were effected in the back field also. Due to the shifting of Cann from half back Alderman was tried at that place. He showed up very well in yesterday's practice session and will probably hold that berth. Jackson was shifted from the pilot place and took Cohen's position at full. Gilloon took his place at quarter.

TIGERS EXPECT A HARD GAME TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 31.—West Virginia's big team has come out of the mountains to do battle with Princeton's Orange and Black eleven. The latest advices reported the mountaineers almost here, a stop having been made for the night at Philadelphia. The invaders, twenty-one strong, will complete their journey tomorrow morning and will arrive here, accompanied by 400 supporters, at 11 o'clock.

This week has not been satisfactory as far as the progress of the Princeton team is concerned. On Monday the first string players followed precedent and took things easy following their hard fight against Colgate. Tuesday and Wednesday Coach Roper staged hard scrimmages, but many of the men who went through the contest against the New Yorkers were absent from these struggles. Yesterday was the day set for the culmination of the week's drive, but Jupiter Pluvius stepped in and halted proceedings, with the result that the head coach was forced to be content with a long signal practice.

The players were the victims of the caprices of the weather man again today. The sulty atmosphere made only the lightest work advisable, and Roper called a halt and sent the men to the showers long before the customary hour.

The 'Varsity, as it will play tomorrow, was sent through a brief signal drill. Strubing will run the team, but his choice of plays against the West Virginians, as indicated from today's workout, will not reveal what the men have been learning behind closed gates this week for use against Harvard a week hence.

Maury Trimble is being saved for the big games. Tomorrow's contest is not being viewed as a small one as far as the amount of effort the Tigers will have to expend to secure victory is concerned, but it does not rank with the Harvard and Yale games in regard to the importance attached to the final outcome. Trimble is a light man and has not been used at all this week.

Murrey, a fast running back and a dangerous drop-kicker, will play in his stead in the back field, and, if he performs up to his capabilities, the team will not lose greatly by Trimble's absence.

Hack McGraw, who, in his capacity as leader of the Tiger eleven, has been playing first one place and then another in the line, will be at left tackle when the team lines up for the opening whistle.

The teams will line up as follows:

PRINCETON.		WEST VIRGINIA.
Bigler	L.E.	Mills
McGraw	L.T.	Archier
Dickinson	L.G.	Ice
Callahan	C.	Bailey
Morgan	R.G.	Kay
Parisette	R.T.	Harrick
Williams	R.E.	Hager
Strubing	Q.B.	Hite
Murrey	L.H.B.	Hill
Destefano	R.H.B.	King
Wittmer	F.B.	Rodgers

COLUMBIA TO MEET UNION.

Blue and White Confident of Victory, Despite Absence of Stars.

Sol Metzger's Union College team, with the dubious record of three defeats in four games, will be Columbia's opponent on South Field this afternoon. Both elevens, somewhat battered in their last encounters a week ago, will have new faces in their lineups.

Columbia will be without the services of both Captain Frank Canapary and Quarter Back Eddie Quigley. The latter's place will be filled by Eccles, who will make his debut in the Blue and White lineup, after having been on the sidelines for weeks with a bruised knee. Thornton, the hero of last Saturday's tussle with Amherst, in which he carried a forward pass across the line for Columbia's only touchdown, will take Canapary's position at right half back. Applebaum and Charlie Shaw round out the backfield, and Thornton will do all the necessary punting for the New Yorkers. Jack Kienninger, centre, was made line captain yesterday.

Union's lineup is still very much in the air. Rinaldi, left end, was so badly hurt in the Wesleyan battle a week ago that he will be out for the remainder of the season. Two guards and a tackle were also subjected to such rough treatment that it is doubtful if they will start this afternoon's game. To complicate matters still further, reports from Schenectady earlier in the week said that Captain Joseph Hanley, formerly a tackle and centre and now right end, had been relegated from the 'Varsity eleven because of his poor exhibition against Wesleyan, which rolled up a 47-0 score against Metzger's aggregation.

The Columbia coaches last night were, however, inclined to make light of these discouraging statements, although they are not anticipating any such opposition as was furnished by Williams and Amherst. The student body took a more optimistic view and even omitted the usual Friday noon cheering practice.

The final workout yesterday afternoon on South Field was both brief and light. Eccles took charge of the first eleven and held a thorough drill in signals, with a few variations in the way of forward passes. The playing field was still treacherous under foot and is likely to continue so up to game time. The contest will start at 2 o'clock.

The lineups will probably be as follows:

COLUMBIA.		UNION.
Kennedy	L.E.	Foster
Tower	L.T.	Beekman
Forsythe	L.G.	Gregory
Kienninger	C.	Foo
Hinch	R.G.	Elsberg
Scovil	R.T.	Dubois
Weinstein	R.E.	Hanley
Eccles	Q.B.	Comstock
Thornton	L.H.B.	Nottman
Shaw	R.H.B.	Goff
Applebaum	F.B.	Wittner

CONFERENCE GAMES TODAY.

Chicago and Wisconsin, the two Western elevens which are still in the hunt for the conference title along with Ohio State, will meet Illinois and Minnesota today and will be obliged to win in order to keep in the running. Ohio State, which defeated Michigan last week, has no game scheduled for today, the other conference events of importance being the meeting of Northwestern and Michigan, Iowa and South Dakota, Purdue and the Michigan Aggies, and Indiana and Notre Dame.

Coach Zuppke and his Illinois eleven expect to give Chicago a hard battle, in spite of the fact that Wisconsin defeated Illinois last Saturday. Since the Zuppke régime was inaugurated Illinois has beaten Stagg's eleven three times and lost twice, but the indications are this Fall that Chicago will even the count. Zuppke has had a good deal of trouble in developing an efficient back field. Wisconsin is expected to win from Minnesota, and Coach John Richards is planning his campaign with the major object in view of conquering Ohio State at Madison on Nov. 15. The Northwestern-Michigan game is sure to be hard fought, while Notre Dame is the favorite over Indiana, and Iowa is expected to win from South Dakota. Purdue is the favorite over the Michigan Aggies.

Elimination of seven of the ten football teams from the Western conference championship at the present stage of the proceedings is unusual, for in former years the titles hung in the balance until the very last games of the season. Chicago and Ohio State are not scheduled to play each other this Fall, and if both elevens complete their seasons without defeat, both will enter a claim for the title. The Buckeyes have the strongest football team in their history this Fall. If Chicago wins its remaining games it will lay claim to the title principally on the ground that it will have played six conference games to four for Ohio. Ohio has still to meet Wisconsin, Purdue, and Illinois, while Chicago must play Illinois, Michigan, Iowa and Wisconsin.

HARVARD LINEUP SHIFTED.

Injuries Force Changes—Team Will Play Open Football Today.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 31.—Friday is usually a light day for the Harvard football players, but this afternoon, besides the drill on handling kickoffs, runbacks from which did so much toward piling up the score against Virginia last week, the men had an hour's scrimmaging against the scrubs. The play was kept in midfield, both on attack and defense.

Harvard is prepared to meet a passing game tomorrow, and is also likely to show a little more open football than in its earlier contests. Care will be taken, in the Springfield game, to hold out the plays in which the team has been drilling for Princeton.

Coach Fisher has been obliged to make two more shifts in his team. Desmond and Sedgwick are banged up a little, but will be available next week if they are careful. Macomber will be put in at left end tomorrow and Hubbard at left tackle. Hubbard's choice is natural, as he has recently been playing strongly.

Eddie Casey will play tomorrow. His leg will stand some work, but it is not likely that he will stay in the game long. Burnham's play this week has boomed his stock, and he will start at the head of the tandem in front of Hamilton. There is not much difference in the ability of these two backs in carrying the ball, but Burnham does a lot more in interference.

Horween will play centre between Woods and Clark. The other centres, Havemeyer and Philbin, were used at tackle with the substitutes, as well as at centre, this afternoon, and Thorndike was at guard with the first substitute string. In the scrimmage, the play was held up near the goal lines and there was a lot of drop-kicking for Felton and Murray, the former continuing to make a high average.

Shiverick May Be Only Regular to Start Game with Lafayette.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Were it not for the fact that the Cornell backfield is pretty well shot to pieces by injuries the Ithacans would look forward with confidence to tomorrow's game with Lafayette, because at no time this year has the 'Varsity's practice proved so encouraging as in the past week. As it is, substitute backs have done good work developing the first real offensive play the eleven has exhibited this year, and hopes are entertained by men who have seen the 'Varsity work in secret, including second team players who have been bowled over in the scrimmages, that Cornell will play the best game of the year against the Eastonians. Two days of intermittent rain has soaked the gridiron, and fast work by either team may prove difficult.

Three of Cornell's four regular backs are in bad shape, and two of them are unlikely to start the game. These are Mayer and Davies. Coach Rush could take a chance and send them in, but to do so would be to run the risk of further aggravation of their injuries with the prospect of both being out of the game for the rest of the year. Rush is hardly likely to run that risk and the prospects tonight are that substitute half backs will play for the Ithacans. Mackensie, the fastest of these, has joined the injured squad, so that Rush may have to use Olney, Snibbe, or Hasbrook, with Tuttle possibly playing full back in place of Shuler, and Shiverick the only veteran in the backfield. Ensworth, one of the best ends, has abandoned football, so Colvin will play left wing and Wilson right. The balance of the team is unchanged. Cornell ran through a signal drill in the baseball cage today, but attempted no outdoor work.

NEW BACKFIELD FOR NAVY.

Regular Ends Also Will Be Out of West Virginia Wesleyan Game.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 31.—The Navy team will oppose West Virginia Wesleyan here tomorrow with a newly arranged backfield and without its regular ends. The line from tackle to tackle has all the veterans, and is in splendid shape. The lineup, as given out by Coach Dobie tonight, will be:

Koehler takes the place of Alford, whose injuries have put him out for the season. The others are the best Dobie can pick from a big lot of candidates, but he does not regard them as particularly strong. Other backs will be tried during the game. Woodruff is a little out of condition, and Graves, the regular left end of 1917, who was kept out of the game by injuries last season, will start there. Parr, a plebe, will take the place of Captain Ewen at right end, the Navy leader being still out of the game on account of his injured ankle. There was only signal and formation work this evening, and most of it was by electric light, as practice started late.

ARMY WILL USE SUBS.

'Varsity Headliners Not Likely to Start Game Against Tufts.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Final preparations for the Tufts game tomorrow consisted of light work only. The punters worked hardest, Lystad, Quarrie, Bowman and White all participating in a kicking drill. The Army's new plays were run off in a signal drill, but the field was still wet from the rains of the last few days and the men either did not display any too perfect knowledge of the new wrinkles or the going was too heavy for sharp work.

The lineup tomorrow of the Army eleven is likely to include several substitutes, both in the line and in the back field. Although all the 'Varsity men are in shape, except Schabacker, who still suffers from a sore shoulder, it is hardly probable that the headliners will be in at the kickoff against Tufts. Swarts may be in at centre for Greene; Storck, in Breidsters guard position, and either White or Byers at end for Blaik. George will probably play at quarter, with Warren at right half. Dodd at left half and either McQuarrie or Lystad at full back. These men worked in the signal drill today.

The soldiers expect a hard game with Tufts, but there are few Army supporters here who fear anything more than a close score with the Cadets on the winning end.

MANY ENTRIES FOR SHOW.

143 Boston Terriers Will Be Benched at Exhibition Today.

The specialty show of the Boston Terrier Club of New York, at the Waldorf-Astoria today, will break all records for this annual exhibition, both in the quantity and in the quality of the entries. One hundred and forty-three dogs will be benched.

In addition to the twenty-two regular classes there will be twenty-one specials, a total of forty-three opportunities for the exhibition of Boston terriers. Four ribbons, including reserve, as well as three money prizes, will be offered in each class.

The judge of the show will be Benjamin Rosenheim of Chicago, who today makes his first appearance in the East in this capacity. He is rated as one of America's leading authorities in the field of Boston terriers.

The show will take place on the roof garden of the Waldorf-Astoria, opening at 9 A. M. and continuing until 8 P. M. It is to be conducted under the management of Wilbur H. Purcell.

TO USE 2 ELEVENS IN MARYLAND GAME

Yale Will Try Out All Leading Candidates Today—Captain Callahan Will Not Start.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 31.—Yale's final practice in preparation for the Maryland State game consisted of an unusually painstaking signal drill, in which the plays were at times halted to allow the coaches to give special instruction for individual effort, with emphasis laid on the perfection of the protective formations for the punters. As Yale will use Joe Neville in this rôle tomorrow, replaced in the second half by Jack French, particular stress has been laid upon this department of play.

Three of the most valuable members of the squad who were injured early in the season have been selected to begin the game, Neville and Bob Lay as half backs, and Wilbur Kirkpatrick as tackle. All three had been out of the lineup until three or four days ago. When the season opened the three were considered the most likely candidates for final selection in their positions.

Yale plans to use two complete elevens during the game, fearing nothing worse than possibly one score by the Southerners, and desiring to try out all the leading candidates for the team. Coach Sharpe has made special effort this year to develop the second and third elevens with the same attention which has been paid to the 'Varsity.

It has been decided not to start Callahan tomorrow, but Coach Sharpe said tonight that he was in physical condition to play if needed. A change in his leading understudy has been made. Kenneth Hamill has been selected to start the game at the pivot position.

The veteran Wilbur Kirkpatrick, who has a fine record as Exeter, Yale freshman, and Yale 'Varsity reserve player, will be given a long-awaited opportunity tomorrow at right tackle. Tom Dickens slightly shades Kirkpatrick in all-round tackle playing, and the coaches have decided to use the former in the opening period. Dickens received a slight muscle bruise last Saturday.

Another decision of the coaches will hold the veteran Jim Braden on the side lines. They wish a first-class drop-kicker in reserve for an emergency, and the recent crippling of Thorne Murphy has left Braden as the leading specialist in that rôle. Braden is not in first-class general condition, while Fred Webb, who has worked his way from the third eleven, is coming fast as line smasher.

MACKAY DENIES REPORT.

Declares That Dempsey Will Not Meet Meehan on Dec. 8.

Reports which reached this city yesterday from San Francisco that Willie Meehan, the sailor heavyweight, had been matched for a bout against Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, which was to be conducted in Newark, N. J., Dec. 8, were denied last night by Dave Mackay, Newark promoter, who was angling for the match. Meehan was regarded as a prospective opponent for the champion in the event that Dempsey accepted Mackay's offer and decided to re-enter the ring. The champion, however, has declined the proposition and will not engage in another bout until possibly February or March of next year.

Meehan was wired by Promoter Mackay, who sought the San Francisco heavyweight's terms for a bout against Dempsey. Meehan replied with a request of $12,500. Immediately an answer was sent to San Francisco offering $1,000 a round to Meehan for as long as he lasted against Dempsey. So far as is known Promoter Mackay has not received an answer to the latter wire. When Manager Jack Kearns, who was considering the offer for Dempsey, left this city last Wednesday the negotiations ended abruptly.

AIRPLANE RIDE AS PRIZE.

New Jersey Golfers Will Engage in Unique Competitions.

Of all the schemes for raising funds for the Roosevelt Memorial Association the latest plan of the golf clubs out in Union County, New Jersey, outdoes all previous tourneys on the links in uniqueness. Beginning today, and continuing on Sunday and Tuesday, four of the country clubs will hold handicap competitions in which the entry fee will be donated to the country-wide fund being raised as a memorial to the "great American."

Two of the clubs, the Suburban of Elizabeth, and the Baltusrol Golf Club, have planned one of the most interesting tourneys ever held in the metropolitan district. First prize in each case will be an airplane ride from Elizabeth to Baltusrol, and, as an alternative to the timid victor on the links who values his own life, liberty and happiness too greatly to trust it up a few thousand feet, the conditions of the event provide that he can auction off his privilege, the proceeds going to the memorial fund.

The Suburban Country Club has, in addition, a tournament wherein Mr. Dub from Van Cortlandt stands even chances of beating Davie Herron. It will be a blind handicap, each player to select his own handicap allowance and the Golf Committee to assign him secretly a score between two limits, as, for instance, between 80 and 100. The contestant who comes nearest to his assigned score with the score he actually makes will be adjudged the winner. The Baltusrol part of the event will be a straight medal play handicap tourney, and, to insure sizeable amounts for the fund, an entry fee of $5 is to be charged.

The Union County Country Club of Cranford and the Roselle Park Country Club will combine with the other two societies in the tournament. Players may enter any or all of the four tourneys at any or all of the four clubs, and may play today, tomorrow, or on Election Day, as they choose.

GREENLEAF WINS TOURNEY.

Captures First Place in Professional Pocket Billiard Event.

By defeating Joe Concannon at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night Ralph Greenleaf won the professional pocket billiard tournament. He finished with a clean slate, winning all three of his games. Louis Krueter was second with two victories and one defeat, Larry Stoutenburgh was third with one victory and two defeats, and Concannon was last, losing all three of his games.

The final match between Greenleaf and Concannon furnished the most interesting pocket billiards of the round robin tourney. The score of 125 to 101 gives some idea of the closeness of the playing, but it fails to show the nip and tuck struggle it was. In the sixteenth inning, with the score tied at 39 each, Greenleaf made his high run of 85. In the twenty-third inning, when Greenleaf was leading by a score of 96 to 44, Concannon registered his high run of 34 and pulled up to within striking distance of his youthful opponent. Greenleaf marred his game somewhat in the ninth frame when he attempted to play safe three times and scratched three times, forfeiting the frame of fourteen balls.

In the afternoon Krueter defeated Stoutenburgh by a score of 125 to 97 in twenty-six innings. The winner had a high run of 22 and the loser 32. Both played tight pocket billiards, refusing to take any chances.

URGE BOXING CODE FOR THREE NATIONS

British Critics Contend International Standard Would Kill Many Abuses.

Suggestion comes from England that the three chief principal countries in which the sport of boxing is practiced—America, Great Britain, and France—should adopt an international code of rules and a standard scale of weights. It is contended that such a code and standard would obviate many abuses that occasionally creep into the sport and give its enemies something to talk about. British critics contend that there is altogether too much fouling in the ring, and they also deplore the attitude of fight crowds that persistently clamor for rough work and care nothing for the scientific aspects of boxing.

"The root of many dangers and dissensions will have been extirpated," says a leading English critic, "when the three chief pugilistic countries—Great Britain, America, and France—have accepted an international code of rules and a standard scale of weights. The Federation Française de Boxe is calling a meeting of international representatives for next year to discuss the anomalies that exist all over the boxing world. If Great Britain and America could agree upon a common code (it would have to be arranged, of course, on the do ut des principle,) the standard of boxing in both countries would be appreciably raised, and the 'regrettable incidents' which have caused so much trouble and provided captious critics with ammunition could no longer occur.

"In America referees allow many things which are forbidden under National Sporting Club rules—with the result that the American boxer, who comes over here, is necessarily handicapped, (for the boxer has to learn how to do what he does instinctively,) and is apt to feel aggrieved when he loses the decision by a narrow margin. The kidney punch, hitting with the open glove, and the 'occipital' or 'rabbit' punch are all allowed in America, and American boxing would be all the better if these dangerous and unsportsmanlike tricks were forbidden.

"As regards in-fighting, on the other hand, the practice of American referees has struck me as more in accordance with common sense than that of some of ours, who are always pulling up the men engaged at close quarters for quite imaginary offenses against the spirit of the game. The result is that our young champions in the making are apt to pay too little attention to inside work, and, being single-plane fighters for the most part, are at a disadvantage when they meet the American, who fights in both planes—distributing his attack between the body and the head, the former for choice, which is the basis of a scientific all-round style.

"It ought not to be impossible to agree on a common code provided, of course, we do not pose as having a monopoly of the quality of sportsmanship. There is really no reason in the nature of things why men should not box, as they play cricket, under the same rules all the world over."

DUNDEE DEFEATS JACKSON.

Wins Bout on Points—Injury to Opponent Causes Marino to be Held.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 31.—Johnny Dundee, the New York lightweight boxer, was given the newspaper decision over Willie Jackson at the end of a fast and spectacular ten-round no-decision contest tonight. Jackson had the advantage of the early sessions, but Dundee shook his opponent up severely several times in the last four rounds. Dundee was unmarked, while Jackson's nose suffered from several stiff jabs.

Mickey Donley of New York bested Johnny Schauer of St. Paul, and Sammie Marino of New York knocked out Tommy Perry of Chicago in the tenth round.

Perry's condition following the knockout by Marino, which resulted from a left blow to the chest and a right cross to the chin, is said to be serious. He was taken to the Emergency Hospital. In the meantime Marino is being held at the police station awaiting the physician's report.

Columbia Golfers vs. Scarsdale.

The Columbia golf team, headed by A. Lucien Walker, Jr., intercollegiate champion, will open its Fall season this afternoon with the Scarsdale Country Club on the latter's links. Eight players will represent each organization, the Columbia entries to be: Captain Walker, E. L. Rohdenburg, M. Schreiber, M. E. Van Raalte, J. Wildberg, J. T. Tunis, G. T. Tower, and V. Milbank.

LEWIS WINS AT BILLIARDS.

Defeats Baum, 150 to 76, in Straight Rail Match for Amateurs.

Nat Lewis defeated Louis Baum by a score of 150 to 76 in a Class D straight rail metropolitan championship game at Cranfield's Academy last night. Baum could not get started, and when he found he was having difficulty in executing shots he resorted to a great deal of safety play. This had a tendency to slow up the game, but failed to keep Lewis from winning by a comfortable margin. Lewis took the lead soon after the start of the game. The winner averaged 2 28-61, and made high runs of 13 and 10. Baum's average was 1 16-60, with high runs of 7 and 6. No game will be played tonight, but two games are scheduled for Monday night. The tournament will end next week, when the American Amateur Billiard Association's metropolitan champion will be crowned.

Nassau Champion Has Hard Tussle in Cherry Valley Golf —Beats Dean and Calder.

MEDALIST IN SEMI-FINAL

Graham Wins Two Matches by 2 and 1—Pell and Beall Also in Penultimate Round.

Metropolitan golfers, who are flocking this week to Cherry Valley, out in Garden City, to pay their respects to the passing season and who don't care whether they are in the championship flight or in the third beaten eight, so long as they play golf, had a beautiful day yesterday. They were amply repaid by weather and turf conditions for the rain and wind which marred the qualifying day, and the results were golf matches above the ordinary.

All the favorites trotted around the first and second rounds, clearing the obstacles handily, and today the arrangements are set for the semi-final round in the morning and the final tussle after lunch. Sam J. Graham of Greenwich, the medalist, won both of his matches by 2 and 1, first from Don M. Parker of the Garden City Golf Club and later from W. R. Nicholson of Wykagyl. Today he finds himself matched against W. W. Pell of the home club in the upper half of the semi-final bracket. Pell yesterday had easy enough sailing in the first round and won from C. R. Leake of the Garden City Golf Club by 3 and 1, but later was extended to the nineteen-hole distance to win from G. E. Morse of Pine Valley.

In the lower half, Gardiner W. White continues as the big favorite. The young Nassau champion is invariably a favorite with the gallery, and during this present three-day tournament he has the good wishes of many who want to see him round out his most successful and busiest golfing season with a victory in the event which closes the metropolitan year. White yesterday morning was worried by the strength of his young Princeton rival, J. Simpson Dean, but, after trailing, he finally squared the match on the home hole and carried it to the seventeenth green before he eliminated the Tiger giant. In the second round White won more easily from A. Calder of the home links, the 1917 champion of the Crescent A. C., by 4 and 3.

White to Meet Beall.

The fourth semi-finalist and the opponent this morning for White is that mysterious dark horse from Uniontown, E. C. Beall. This player can usually be located on the chart well up in the first flight and in this Cherry Valley affair he is playing true to expectations. In the first round yesterday, Beall defeated Dr. A. T. Haight, the Massepequa storyteller and humorist, by 3 and 2, and then followed this with a 1 up finish over the aged old veteran of Nassau, William L. Hicks, by 4 and 2.

The rain of Thursday left the Cherry Valley course yesterday in the very height of excellent condition. Fairways, with the slightly long grass which the mowing machines have fortunately not touched recently, were springy and just right for perfect brassie shots, and the greens were fast enough to provide opportunities for putting extraordinary. The sun appeared above Garden City for the greater part of the day, and, obeying the decisions of Starter Tom McMahon, who was worried by the charge from daylight saving into afternoons which get dark before five o'clock, the matches were started early and finished in season.

Evidence of the closeness of many of the matches is contained in the scores. No less than five went to extra holes, and two were not won until twenty holes had been played. Another three matches were always in doubt until the home green.

Gardiner White's morning match with Dean furnishes a good example. White trailed for the rear for the first nine holes, taking a 42 and finding himself three down at the turn. Then he picked up, squared the match on the thirteenth, went one up, even, then one down again, and finally squared proceedings for the second time at the eighteenth. Playing big, Dean had been dormie one, but took three putts and lost the hole. Both took hitches in their belts and started for the first extra hole which was promptly halved. On the twentieth, however, White drove long and straight and holed out in four, whereas Dean needed one over par.

Defeats Calder, 4 and 3.

After lunch, White battled with Calder fifteen holes before he won, 4 and 3. It was a case of the Nassaulan growing stronger and Calder weakening. White was only one up at the turn and the match had been in doubt always. Calder won the third when his opponent took six strokes against the par 4 for the hole. White won the next two going to one up, but again he took two strokes more than regulation in losing the sixth, squaring the match. On the seventh, the former Crescent champion took a birdie two after he had put his tee shot within six feet of the pin, 184 yards away, and had holed out. White, however, won the eighth and ninth and was one up.

Calder lost all sense of direction on the inward trip. He managed to halve the tenth, when he should have won it, and on the eleventh he drove into the rough but covered this error with a other half. Whit won t twift —taol brilliant approach which netted him another half. White won the twelfth when Calder again sliced into the rough on his tee shot and went to two up.

Calder should have won the thirteenth with his eyes shut, but he got only a half. Here he was scarcely ten feet from the pin on his third, but missed the putt for a 4 which would have won. At the fourteenth it was Calder's driver which again played him false. He topped his ball and could not recover the mulsplay. White won again at the short fifteenth when, on the sixth hole in succession, Calder failed to get his tee shot off properly. Calder sliced this time, and approached twenty feet past the pin and then conceded White a three, which won the match.

Their cards:

Out—
White	4	5	6	4	4	6	3	4	4—40
Calder	4	5	4	5	6	5	2	6	5—42

White	6	4	4	5	6	4	3
Calder	6	4	5	5	5	5	4

Wins at Seventeenth Hole.

Sam Graham seemed to let down slightly in his second round battle with Nicholson and won by 2 and 1, where he could have had a greater margin of victory. Graham was 3 up and 4 to go when his putting fell off and he took three putts on each of the last holes. Nicholson was not able to make much out of Graham's poor work on the greens, however, and the match ended on the seventeenth.

J. D. Standish, Jr., the Detroit star, is standing out in a class by himself in the second flight. On Thursday the gallery was surprised to learn that Standish had failed to qualify until it discovered that he was playing with borrowed sticks. Now that he is in the second flight, however, the Detroit victor covered 18 in 1915 in showing remarkable ability even with another set of golf implements. In the morning yesterday he put out J. K. Van Vranken of the home club by the wide margin of 6 to 4, and after lunch defeated F. W. Gwinn, Jr., another Cherry Valley leader, by 3 to 2. Unfortunately, Standish was obliged to withdraw from today's matches on account of a football game, and the New Yorkers will be denied the pleasure of seeing him perform in the semi-final round.

Eddie H. Driggs, Jr., is more than holding his own in the third sixteen and showing much of the ability that he brought out in France, where he led a company of 9th Machine Gunners in the second battle of the Marne. Driggs showed little friendship for F. C. Jennings of Nassau when he defeated him 5 and 4. In the first round, but after lunch the former Princeton half back led too hot a pace for W. H. Harris of the home club and finally set him down by 8 and 7 in the second round. Today Driggs will meet M. Squire of Apawamis in the upper half of the semi-final.

RAPID DAY LEADS WAR MASK BY HEAD

Special to The New York Times.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 31.—With the aid of a very good ride by Jockey Clarence Kummer, Rapid Day, from the stable of John F. Schorr, captured the one-mile handicap, which was the feature for the closing day of the Laurel Autumn meeting here today. This was not only the feature, but also one of the best contests of the afternoon and the finish was so close that the winner was not determined until the last jump. Rapid Day just lasted to win a decision by a head from Johnny Dundee's War Mask, which came from behind with a rush in the stretch and would have been the winner in a few more strides.

A capacity crowd turned out for the wind-up of the most successful meeting Laurel has had in many years. The weather was clear and the track was fast for the first time this week, with the result that form more generally asserted itself and those who played the favorites had a good day. Five of the public choices came down in front. This was something unusual for a get-away day, and there was much cheering by the crowd after the last race when the last of the favorites justified the confidence that had been placed in him.

The handicap drew five starters and there was not a horse in the race that did not have some support at post time. J. Fitzsimmons's Ballet Dancer 2d opened favorite but so much play came for the Schorr racer that he was the choice at post time. War Mask was played for place and show.

Kummer got a good start with Rapid Day and, breaking from the rail position, took the lead. He went around the first turn clear of all interference and was able to save ground. For half a mile it appeared that Rapid Day was going to make a runaway race of it as he stole a lead of four lengths and was running easily. War Drive and Ballet Dancer 2d were next in the procession while War Mask, which had started slowly and had been forced to go wide at the first turn, was last.

War Mask Closes Strongly.

Nearing the end of the back stretch War Mask began to move up, and though going on the outside all the way passed firset one contender and another until he was up in a contending position when he straightened out for the stretch drive. When Rapid Day began to falter Kummer put the whip to him at the head of the stretch, and the jockey had to use every means to get his horse home. Meantime War Mask came with a rush, and Fator was driving hard, but Kummer managed to keep the winner going long enough to get the close decision. Ballet Dancer did not show any real burst of speed at any time in the race, and though in a good position at all times could not improve. When War Mask challenged, Ballet Dancer gave up the fight and trailed in third about two lengths back of the second horse.

A big surprise, as well as a bitter disappointment, came with the ending of the third race, which was a six-furlong dash for maiden three-year olds and upward, necessarily a cheap bunch. Al. Porter's Pride of India, which has been promising much for a long time but has never yet justified hopes, seemed to stand out in his company with the result that he was the best supported favorite of the day. It was said that he had bene heavily backed away from the track also.

Pride of India was in good shape for the race, and after getting off to a good start was running close up when at the half-mile post he suddenly sulked and stopped to a walk. Fator then pulled him up to a complete stop and then galloped around to the judges' stand after the others had crossed the line and were on their way back. Pride of India did not suffer a breakdown. This is the second time that he has acted this way and has confirmed the belief among those who have backed him that he is either a hard luck horse or a failure as a racer.

The race went to M. F. Foley's Joseph P. Murphy, which had been knocking at the door all season. He got out in front and set the pace all the way, but was tiring at the finish. Freemantle took second, while Farmingdale was third.

Wedding Cake Wins Easily.

J. H. Rosseter's Wedding Cake, which ran some good races around New York this season, scored a victory in the first long sprint for two-year-olds, the feature of Kallipolis among others. Wedding Cake was the best and raced into a long lead to win by four lengths without being fully extended. Ralco was the way, but tired at the end and last it was third place by nearly a length. Stable's Jay Bird was an in the steeplechase after scratched. MUD RUNNERS HAVE FUN AT LOUISVILLE

Sway Wins Featured Race at Churchill Downs in Soft and Sloppy Going.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 31.—This was a field day for the horses bred to run in heavy going, for the continuous rains of the last two days have made the Churchill Downs track almost like a quagmire. Nevertheless, the attendance at this afternoon's races was quite good, considering the conditions, and the fans who braved the storm saw some excellent sport.

The Jefferson Town Purse, at a mile and a furlong, the featured race of the day, went to the second choice, Sway. C. W. Clark's three-year-old son of Vulcain, which took kindly to the soggy going, and had no trouble in standing off the odds-on favorite, King Gorin, at the finish. These two had the race to themselves, with the rest of the field trailing far behind and many lengths apart.

Sway was hustled into an early lead with a rush, and had the speed of the field throughout. His nearest attendant in the early stages was Sans Peur II., which tired badly after going six furlongs or so, and fell back. King Gorin was away poorly and was outrun for a time, but finished gamely, although his efforts failed to bring him nearer the winner than two lengths at the wire. Sans Peur II. saved show money without difficulty.

The sixth race, at a mile and three-sixteenths, was taken by Adelante, which took to the going with a decided liking, and wore down Medusa in the final hundred yards, winning well in hand. Medusa showed good speed throughout and was easily second best. Sosius finished with a determined burst of speed and annexed third honors handily. The winner paid about 12 to 1 in the mutuel machines.

The opening race of the card, a six-furlong dash for three-year-olds and upward, was won by the Tony Bonero filly, Lady Luxury, which reveled in the soft footing and showed her best form. She moved into a long lead early in the proceedings, and held on well when challenged in the stretch by Korby, the favorite. The latter was kept in restraint for the first half, and when let down came with a determined rush under the urging of Boyle. He could not quite get up, although his head was at the winner's shoulders as they passed the finish line.

A large cluster of two-year-olds had a tussle over the full mile distance in the fourth race. F. C. Bcins's St. Germain a bay son of Sea King, proved true to his sire's name and breeding, and frolicked home an easy winner in the wet going. He drew out in the stretch to a long lead, but was slowed up at the end, to beat Our Birthday by two lengths. The winner was favorite in the betting, and Our Birthday was second choice.

The other winners on the card were Wickford, Mlle. Dazie, and Mistress Polly.

ROSS TO SWIM IN AUSTRALIAN MEETS

Norman Ross, the famous swimmer from the Pacific Northwest, is planning a tour of Australia in the course of which he will enter numerous water carnivals. Ross now wears the colors of the Illinois A. C. of Chicago. Recently in Los Angeles, when he was on his way to compete in the annual mid-Pacific water carnival in Hawaii, Ross stated that he intended to proceed from Honolulu direct to Sydney, N. S. W., after the Hawaiian meet.

Australians have made it a practice to discount the best performances chronicled in this country, claiming that times set in our short pools, with the advantage of many push-off turns, cannot be compared with records established in their own longer baths. They still maintain that the feats of the late Mark Kieran of Sydney, who hung up a long string of international marks some fifteen years ago, stand unequalled, although more recent records made under different conditions seem to indicate they have been beaten.

This view is not shared by American experts. Allowances are always made for the number of turns when estimating the relative speed of performances, and our most competent judges feel convinced that the leading home swimmers have developed the necessary ability to improve on Kieran's fastest times for all distances in the very baths in which they were made. So they now look upon Ross to prove their confidence warranted.

The giant champion from the Coast has displayed wonderful speed at the middle distances, Kieran's strongest point, and he is in splendid form this season.

In Los Angeles, just before sailing for Honolulu, Ross swam a 300-yard race in 5:38 4-5 in the 100-foot pool of the Los Angeles A. C., and passed the 440-yard line on the way in 5:14 3-5, beating by 4 and 1 2-5 seconds, respectively, the eworld's indoor records for these distances.

Now Kieran's best marks are listed at 6:10 3-5 for 500 yards, with 14 turns, and 5:19 for 440 yards, with 8 turns. Calculating the advantage gained in turning at one second per turn, the accepted base of computation, one finds Ross's three feet longer distance the better by fully 11 1-5 seconds, and iKeran's for the shorter course the faster by 2-5 of a second.

If Ross is able to carry out his plans, he will land in Sydney when activities are in full swing. It will be recalled that at the interalled water sports in Joinville-le-Pont last Summer Ross easily took the measure of Australia's foremost swimmers in every event competed for.

ALLEGE SUGAR SALE WAS PROFITEERING

Food Administrator Williams Begins Inquiry Into Deal by Export Firm.

FIND SUGAR STILL IN CUBA

Witness Declares Purchaser Said 1,000 Tons Were Needed for Local Factory.

The first case of alleged sugar profiteering to come to public notice since the war was investigated yesterday at a hearing before Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams, in the latter's offices. After the hearing was over, Mr. Williams said that Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger would study the testimony with a view of presenting certain features of the case to the Federal District Attorney.

A number of witnesses were examined, most of them directly concerned in a deal to dispose of 1,000 tons of sugar in New York, it was alleged. The Food Administrator's attention was called to the matter because of allegations that the sugar sold under guise of export sugar was really intended for consumption on the local market, and that the price was in excess of the $9.50 a hundred pounds fixed as legal by the United States Sugar Equalization Board.

From the story witnesses told, it seems that an export firm, Dilsizian Brothers, had been ordered by their Milan office to purchase 2,000 tons of sugar for transportation to Constantinople. They bought the sugar, 1,000 tons of which cost them, according to George H. Doyle, who represented the firm at the hearing, $11.55 a hundred, and the other $9.50. Then they were ordered to cancel the contract, as the sugar for Constantinople had been purchased more cheaply in Java. The $11.55 sugar order was cancelled, but the $9.50 the firm found it had to take. Hence it started to look for a buyer here.

E. C. Lourie, purchasing agent for the Bush Terminal Company, met agents for Dilsizian Brothers, and discussed a transaction whereby the Bush people were to take the sugar. Mr. Lourie testified yesterday that when he presented the matter before proper officials of the Bush Company, that concern declined to have anything to do with the business. Then, Mr. Lourie got in touch with E. D. Harrington of 10 Wall Street, who had been asked by another brokerage firm to sell them some sugar.

Contracts for 1,000 Tons.

Mr. Harrington admitted that he had wanted to obtain the sugar and he also admitted that he had no sugar license as required by dealers under the Lever Food Control act. He said that he had contracted with the Binhauer Candy Company to deliver them 1,000 tons of sugar by January, for which he was to receive $12.40 a hundred. He testified that the Binhauer people told him they could purchase the sugar for export and then arrange with the Sugar Equalization Board to use it in the local factory. He received a certified check for $10,000 of the $277,760 he was to receive for his sugar, and a contract was drawn up stating specifically the sugar was to be used for export. This was on Oct. 11.

By Oct. 24 the witness said that the Binhauer firm had not paid him the balance of the $277,760, and he was unable to meet the terms of his contract with Dilsizian Brothers, who then sold the sugar, as Mr. Doyle testified, "to a firm that could put up the cash," a Boston (Mass.) company.

W. R. Hauptman, for the Binhauer firm, on the stand testified that his firm had entered into a contract with Harrington, but asserted that the latter had promised if they paid for the 1,000 tons of sugar to be given them in January he would give them twenty-five tons a day for their use in the factory, delivery to begin at once.

In reply to questions by the Food Administrator and Mr. Berger, the witness admitted that his firm had contracted for the sugar in January, stipulating it was for export, intending all the time to use it in the local factory. He maintained that he could see no difference between shipping sugar abroad as sugar and shipping it in candy.

Sugar Still in Cuba.

After taking most of the testimony it developed that the sugar in question had never been in this country, that it was still, as Mr. Doyle expressed it, "growing in the cane in Cuba," and that the brokers concerned were simply dealing in something they expected to be able to get hold of in concrete form some time after the first of January.

Mr. Williams asked Mr. Doyle how much his firm had made on the transaction which took the sugar, or rather the expectation of sugar, to Boston, and he replied, "Something over $44,000 on 1,000 tons."

"The Government allowance on a deal of that size," answered the Food Administrator, "would give you about $6,600. I think you needn't worry about making such excessive profits. You won't."

Thomas T. Anglin yesterday asserted to the Food Administrator that his brother, Francis X. Anglin, a sugar broker, had received permission from United States Attorney General Palmer to sell sugar at 14⅝ cents a pound, although the Sugar Board's price was 11 cents. Mr. Williams indignantly warned Mr. Anglin he was making a serious charge against a high United States official, and the broker offered to prove his assertions. However, when he brought his brother to the Food Administrator later, it developed that the permission had been given under the belief that the firm was to export the sugar. Mr. Anglin apologized for the imputation cast upon Mr. Palmer.

WOMEN TO PARADE.

Plan Protest Against Russian Blockade.

Following a meeting of the League of Free Nations Association this afternoon at the Hotel Commodore about 300 women are to parade with banners up Fifth Avenue as a protest against the food "blockade" against Russia.

The paraders, many of whom were prominent in the votes-for-women campaign, will also begin picketing. After the procession gets under way, at 3:30 o'clock, pickets will be assigned to posts along the avenue. Each picket will carry placards demanding the lifting of the "blockade" and asking for milk, food and medicine for Russian children.

The projected demonstration was described in a statement issued yesterday at the home of Mrs. John Rogers, 102 East Thirtieth Street.

"Women of America are declaring that they will no longer stand by and watch the starvation of women and children," the statement says, "particularly in countries on which we have never declared war. They protest against any participation in the Russian blockade, either official or covert."

CUT IN ANNUITY STARTS ROW

Mrs. Eugenie Norwood Cox, a widow, was summoned to the Tombs Court yesterday to show cause why a charge of disorderly conduct should not be made against her, based on an alleged incident following her visit on Thursday to the office of her brother-in-law, John Rathbone, Vice President of the National Surety Company. Mr. Rathbone said Mrs. Cox had sought assistance, declaring that she was destitute, and that she had concluded the visit by hitting him with a glass of water. Magistrate Simpson announced that he would consider the evidence and determine if a warrant should be issued against Mrs. Cox.

Mrs. Cox, wife of the late Theodore Cox, a broker, testified that she had been disinherited from a $400,000 estate left by her mother because she had become a Catholic convert. She admitted that her father, and her sisters, Mrs. Rathbone and Howard Slade, had provided her with an annual allowance of $1,800 for the support of herself and two sons, Theodore and Norwood. She asserted, however, that she had recently been notified that her allowance would be reduced to $80 a month.

Board for herself and children, she declared, cost $40 weekly, and the allowance was not sufficient. Mrs. Cox said she was unable to purchase overcoats for her sons or to give them more than two meals a day. Theodore Cox, testifying on behalf of his mother, insisted that the family could not be supported on the allowance.

Carlisle Norwood, Sr., father of Mrs. Cox, member of a law firm, denied that his daughter had lost her share in the estate of her mother because of her religion. Mr. Norwood said his parents were Catholics. Mr. Rathbone said the summons had been obtained after a consultation with the members of the family, who were ready to aid Mrs. Cox in a reasonable amount.

MAGISTRATE HOUSE ILL.

Collapses in Traffic Court and Is Taken Home.

City Magistrate Frederick B. House became ill while hearing cases in the Traffic Court at 300 Mulberry Street yesterday, and collapsed in the arms of a clerk who was assisting him to a couch in his private office. Motioning to a witness to stop, the Magistrate called to Chief Clerk Rowland Sheridan and said:

"I am very sick, Mr. Sheridan. Please assist me to my room." The Magistrate reached the room and fell unconscious upon a sofa. He revived in a few minutes. Probation Officer McKay took the Magistrate to his home at 413 West 140th Street in a taxicab. There he received immediate attention from Dr. J. H. Storer.

CLUBWOMEN DROP WAR ON GAUZY GOWN

City Federation Votes to Table Resoluton Seeking to Control Indecency of Dress.

WARM DISCUSSION HELD

Twelve Hundred Members Hear Talks on Short Skirts, Low Bodices, and Other Foibles.

Women who have been trembling in their little high-heeled slippers for the last year wondering what the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs was going to do with them because their skirts were cut too high and their bodices too low and the rest of the garments they were wearing were too gauzy may draw a long breath of relief. The first resolution which the City Federation acted on yesterday at its first Fall meeting was the "indecent dress" one, and it was laid on the table.

It was not because the league does not feel strongly on the subject, which it began considering last year. It does. Its members, some of them, raised their hands in horror metaphorically yesterday while the resolution was being discussed in the presence of 1,200 women, and there was nothing at all metaphorical about the language they used about some of the frocks they had seen on some women. It was only after a hot discussion that they tabled the resolution because, frankly, they didn't see what they could do about it. The resolution was worded:

> Resolved, That we women of New York do all in our power to dress modestly and that we of the City Federation seek to control indecency of dress by appealing to designers of women's fashions and the leading shops and by public appeal to women.

Mme. Katherine von Klenner was the first to drive a nail in the coffin of the modesty resolution:

"Education begins at home," said Mme. von Klenner. "That's the place where it should begin. If you don't start with the child you can't do anything, and there is no need of our going out and making ourselves ridiculous trying to stop something that is as difficult as trying to make water run up hill. What is the good of appealing to the shopkeepers and designers? They are only trying to give people whose tastes are already formed what they want."

"They are trying to do something in the schools," said Mrs. Eugene Grant, Chairman of Resolutions. "I know one school where the girls have to go and wash their faces if they have on powder or rouge, and they have to go home and change their clothes if their waists are too thin or their skirts are too short."

While these remarks were being made Mrs. Nellie Van Slingerland, who sat in one of the front seats, was trying to catch the eye of the Chairman in a manner showing much feeling.

"Mme. Chairman," she burst out, as soon as she was recognized, "if we have got to wait for another generation to begin the work of getting the women into decent clothes I don't know where we shall end. The way things are going now the women won't be merely barebacked—they won't be wearing any clothes at all, they will be naked."

It took the Professional Woman's League to settle the thing finally.

"I consider that things are getting better and better all the time," said Mrs. Frances Abrahall of that organization, "and more modest, and I move that we lay the resolution on the table."

That was what they did, Mrs. Van Slingerland protesting vigorously in pantomime and some of the other women shaking their heads sadly.

One of the resolutions pertaining to the home that was passed with enthusiasm asked that the admission of all females of allied countries "with passports indicating their intention to enter domestic service be encouraged."

Several resolutions having to do with the passage of different bills were thrown out yesterday as bringing politics into the federation, but Democratic and Republican literature distributed outside the doors of the federation was a new feature, showing that women are in politics.

Steal Judge's Portrait of Roosevelt.

Judge Rosalsky of the Court of General Sessions requested the police yesterday to send out a general alarm for the recovery of an autographed portrait of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt which was presented to Judge Rosalsky a short time before Colonel Roosevelt's death. The portrait was taken by Judge Rosalsky to a frame maker at 423 Grand Street last week. The work was finished on Thursday and the dealer put the portrait in his window. When he was ready to remove it Thursday night, the portrait was missing. Judge Rosalsky has offered a reward for its return.

Smith Proclaims Armistice Day.

ALBANY, Oct. 31.—Governor Smith, in a proclamation issued today, designated Nov. 11 as Armistice Day, and called upon the residents of the State "to celebrate the day with suitable exercises."

MUSIC

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

Two Pianists in Aeolian Hall.

Rudolph Reuter is a pianist who has played several times in New York before he gave a recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall; but perhaps he is not so well known that he will be remembered as a Chicagoan who studied in Berlin, and there had the interesting experience of being chosen to teach his instrument in the Imperial Conservatory of Japan. Mr. Reuter no doubt taught the Orientals many fundamentals of piano playing; he showed the possession of many in his concert yesterday.

He has a brilliant and facile technique, a touch that is crisp, whereby he produces a tone that is sometimes a bit hard, or at least dry, yet by no means always so, and a style in general that is apt to be rather curt, not much given to lingering on beauties by the wayside, but having the end definitely in view.

Some of his performances embodying these qualities had much interest, as that of Beethoven's sonata, Op. 2, No. 3, a bit of bravura in little. Mr. Reuter played it in a spirit not alien to the music, very fast, to be sure, in the scherzo; and if he had given his tone a little more warmth and richness he would have charmed even more than he did. It should be said, however, that Mr. Reuter's intentions as to tone could not be fully carried out in this piece, as the damper pedal was out of order and had to be repaired before he could go on.

He needed considerably more warmth of tone in Chopin's Barcarole, a more pressing realization of its poetic content. His disposition toward speed did some damage to the third intermezzo from Brahms's set, Op. 119, but he played the fourth with greater appreciation, yet with again a little too much haste at the end. The best that he did was in the Romanze, Op. 118, No. 5, finely felt and sincerely delivered, and in the one that he added as an encore.

The rest of his program was made up of pieces by Americans, MacDowell, Marion Bauer, Charles T. Griffes—his scherzo from Op. 6 being music of a strikingly personal touch, Debussy notwithstanding—Busoni, Grieg, and Dohnanyi.

Alexander Gunn.

In the evening, in the same hall, a younger pianist came from Boston to give his first recital in New York, Alexander Gunn. He is decidedly musical, and his is a real, an individual, talent for the piano. His playing is of an intimate sort, almost in miniature, and it would have had more effect in a smaller room; its delicacy is appealing and sympathetic. He plays as an artist, with an artist's individuality, and yet not without some traces of the master in the making of this and that point. He has a sensitive feeling for tone. His technique is adequate, though hardly brilliant, and at times it disclosed the need of some equalization and further development, as of the trill.

Mr. Gunn presented a program of unusual composition, beginning with a prelude and fugue in E minor from Bach's "Well Tempered Clavichord," which he played with exceeding clarity and clarity olfftg N shrdlu cmfwyp and delicacy, with a fine sense of its musical value and of its intense expression of mood. Daquin's "Le Coucou," a quaint piece of eighteenth century program music, he played with a feeling for the charm behind the quaintness. He was in nothing more successful than in a group of pieces by Debussy, the "Prelude," "Feuilles Mortes," "Pagodes," and "L'Isle Joyeuse," into which he put abundant fantasy, a fine spun sensibility and, in the last, especially, the élan and waywardness that gives it is character. In Chopin's F minor Fantasie Mr. Gunn did not quite rise to the occasion, although it was in many ways a praiseworthy performance.

In addition to being somewhat restricted in the scope of his emotional expression, he seemed to move less freely in it, and to be haunted by memories of a master's advice. Waltzes by Brahms, arranged, three of MacDowell's nature sketches and Chabrier's brilliant "Bourrée Fantasque" were his other numbers.

LEASES COHAN THEATRE.

The lease of the George M. Cohan Theatre, as well as that of the Fitzgerald Building, of which it is a part, was acquired yesterday by Max Spiegel, Vice President of the Mark Strand Theatre Company. Mr. Spiegel, who has recently entered the field of musical comedy production, expects to devote the house entirely to this kind of entertainment. It is probable that the first attraction will be "Look Who's Here," in which Cecil Lean and Cleo Mayfield have the principal roles.

Mr. Spiegel and his associates will take over the property on Dec. 1. The lease, which expires in 1922, was originally the property of George M. Cohan, and more recently that of Klaw & Erlanger.

NEW YORK NEARLY 100 PER CENT. DRY

complainants have any property or property right of which they have been deprived or which has been threatened by the defendant, or for the deprivation of which they are entitled to compensation.

Sixth—It does not appear that the complainants ever lawfully acquired title to or right to the possession of the property mentioned in the bill.

Seventh—It appears from the bill that complainants have a plain, adequate, and complete remedy at law.

Eighth—The bill seeks to compel the defendant to do an unlawful act.

Ninth—The court is without power to require the defendant to collect or to receive payment of taxes.

Tenth—The court is without power to grant all or any of the relief prayed for in the bill.

Eleventh—All the allegations of the fifth paragraph of the bill, except those therein that the United States declared war on Germany April 6, 1917, and that said war continued with actual combat until Nov. 11, 1918, when an armistice was declared and established, are insufficient, irrelevant, and impertinent and should be stricken from the bill.

Twelfth—The allegations in the seventh paragraph of the bill as to the reason of the President of the United States for not proclaiming the termination of demobilization and the advice given to him by the Attorney General of the United States are insufficient, irrelevant, and impertinent, and should be stricken from the bill.

H. W. Mager, chief revenue agent of the country, whose authority is subordinate alone to that of Internal Revenue Commissioner Daniel C. Roper, took charge of the local situation for a few days, while Lieut. Col. D. L. Porter, supervising agent for this district, went to Washington to confer with officials of the department. Mr. Mager denied rumors that Colonel Porter had been called to the capital to explain the shootings and alleged shootings which have accompanied raids in this city. He said, however, that it was the Government's intention to tolerate no "Wild West" features of liquor raids, and that while agents would be expected to protect themselves, only the need for such protection or the actual exigencies of performing their duties could justify them in displaying or discharging weapons. He said New York had had better enforcement of the law than any other large city.

The appearance of saloons which remained open last night to sell "soft" drinks, indicated that Mager was correct in the matter of prospective poor patronage. Many which tried selling for a while, soon closed their doors, and in a number of resorts, where Hallowe'en celebrations have been had in former years, it was found that there was not enough patronage without drinks to justify them, so they were abandoned. Altogether the police found it the quietest Hallowe'en they could remember.

United States Commissioner Richard M. Cahoone in Brooklyn, refused to hold a prisoner charged with selling wine to a customer on the ground that he was unwilling to make himself liable to a suit for holding the man without sufficient reason. On the application for the warrant he wrote:

"Warrant refused. The complaint charges the sale of a beverage containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. alcohol. It may have had only three-eighths of 1 per cent. in which case it is a matter of common knowledge that it would not be intoxicating. While a committing magistrate should not pass upon the constitutionality of an act, I believe I would be personally liable for issuing this warrant. The defendant is discharged."

The prisoner later was held by Commissioner Louis R. Bick in $500 bail for examination.

TO INVESTIGATE "GUN RAID."

Commissioner Roper to Get Facts About Shooting in This City.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Allegation that internal revenue officers used "gun methods" in the raids conducted in New York in connection with the enforcement of wartime prohibition will be investigated by Daniel C. Roper, the United States Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

"Public attention," said Commissioner Roper today, "has been drawn by the press to sensational incidents alleged to have taken place within the last day or two in New York City in connection with the enforcement of wartime prohibition. The statements are to the effect that guns were used by revenue officers, and that persons were actually shot.

"I have only had time to make superficial inquiry regarding the occurrence to which the press refers, but shall immediately and thoroughly investigate the same.

"The public has been led to believe also that Colonel Porter, the Supervising Agent in charge of the district, was sent to New York for the purpose of enforcing prohibition. Such is not the case. Colonel Porter is the agent in charge of our revenue organization, and he has been in New York for several months."

Tapper & Selikowitz, Inc., Are Alleged to Owe $106,319.

Federal Judge Knox yesterday appointed Anthony C. Brew to be receiver of Tapper & Selikowitz, Incorporated, exporters and importers, in a suit against the concern by the Hunter Manufacturing and Commission Company. The petition asking for the receiver states that while the balance sheet of Tapper & Selikowitz on Oct. 21 showed a surplus of $58,785.48, there are more than 100 creditors, and the company is without sufficient funds to meet pressing liabilities.

The petition also states that Tapper & Selikowitz has a profitable business and a good standing, with many orders waiting to be filled; that practically all of the accounts receivable have been hypothecated for advances, and that the unsecured indebtedness of the defendant amounts to $106,319.77.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 9,486 packages. Demand for fine fresh butter is somewhat restricted at the moment, but supplies are moderate and feeling steady. Secondary grades improving a little. The chain stores are buying these goods to a considerable extent. The warm weather is retarding the sale of storage butter, but holders have a good deal of confidence in the situation. Renovated jobbing a little better. Ladies and packing stock steady to firm. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 70@70½c; extras, 92 score, 69½c; firsts, 90 to 91 score, 64½@69c; firsts, 88 to 89 score, 61½@63c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 55@58½c; lower grades, 52@54c; held, higher than extras, 66@66½c; extras, 65@65½c; firsts, 60@64c; seconds, 55@58c; unsalted, higher than extras, 72½@73½c; extras, 71½@72c; firsts, 64@70c; seconds, 55@62c; State dairy tubs, finest, 68@69c; good to prime, 63@67c; common to fair, 52@62c; renovated extras, 57c; ladles, current make, firsts, 49½@50½c; seconds, 48@48½c; lower grades, 46@47c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 48c; No. 2, 47c; lower grades, 44@46½c.

EGGS.—13,562 cases. Arrivals continue fairly liberal, but advices indicate smaller collections in nearly all sections. The offerings of high-grade eggs, while comparatively light are more than ample for present requirements and values while held steady on the high grades are somewhat unsettled and the medium and lower grades are pressed for sale at a wide range of prices, often below owners' views of values. Storage eggs are quiet, weather is mild and unfavorable for the examination of samples and buyers are generally holding off. Fine to fancy goods are generally held about steady, ordinary stock is urgently offered. Nearby white eggs of very fancy quality are in fair demand, but the under grades drag at a wide range of prices. Further receipts of California whites are selling at sustained prices. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 68@70c; extra firsts, 65@68c; firsts, 59@64c; seconds, 54@58c; under grades, 45@52c; dirties, No. 1, 50@52c; No. 2 and poorer, 43@49c; checks, good to choice, dry, 42@44c; under grades, 36@41c; refrigerator special marks, fancy, charges paid, 53@54c; firsts, 51½@52½c; seconds, 47@51c; under grades, 42@46c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 93@95c; fair to prime, 70@92c; gathered whites, common to prime, 65@93c; pullets, 65@70c; Pacific Coast whites, express, fancy, 95c; other Western and Southern, gathered whites, 65@85c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, fancy, 74@76c; gathered brown and mixed colors, graded, fancy, 70@72c; fair to prime, 62@68c.

Morgan Bank Denies Japanese Deal.

It was denied at the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday that they were at the head of a group of American bankers, united with Japanese interests, to finance the development of China, Siberia, Mongolia, and Manchuria. A report to that effect had been received earlier in the day from San Francisco quoting Tatsuya Kato, a Director of the Manchuria Railway and the South Manchuria Mining Company. In denying the report one of the firm members said: "The Morgan Company is in no way connected with any private enterprise in the development of Chinese or Siberian resources."

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ......5@5¼ p. c. for the best names
Thursday ......5@5¼ p. c. for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Fighting the High Cost of Living.

A sign which a retail hatter has put up in one of his stores on Forty-second Street is attracting more attention than any window display in that shopping centre. It explains why the hatter has to move out, a jump of 50 per cent. in rent being the cause. "I have been fighting the high cost of living too long," the sign reads, "to profiteer in order to pay my landlord." There is a circle of people around the window constantly throughout the day.

Platinum Still Going Up.

There seems to be no top to the prices that are being quoted on platinum these days. Yesterday the so-called soft metal was held at $145 an ounce by the refiners and dealers, while 5 per cent. and 10 per cent. platinum were quoted at $155 and $165 an ounce, respectively. The first of the last two grades contains 5 per cent. of iridium for hardening purposes, and the second contains 10 per cent. The price of iridium, which is extremely scarce, was $300 an ounce yesterday.

New York Styles Different.

Commenting on the style situation for the coming year, a local clothier brought out the point that the designs offered to the New York trade are now almost as different from those offered the rest of the country as New York styles differ from those of London. "The majority of New Yorkers," he said, "desire plain and conservative models, whereas the demand outside the big city is for something on a fancier order. Even Chicago goes in for fashion extremes, so that New York alone seems to be the centre of conservative dressers. Indications are, however, that the whole country will soon come back to plainer styles."

No Change in Corsets.

Faced with a lowered production, the corset manufacturers are not going to alter styles for next Spring, although there are several new silhouettes that have been declared promising. The manufacturers find that, with the high wages being paid to their help, it seems impossible to get the usual amount of work done in their factories. Consequently about the only change to be made for the coming Spring, it is said, is to reduce the number of styles still further in the effort to bring production up to a satisfactory point. There is also some substitution of materials going on in order to keep prices reasonable.

Ideas on Spring Colors.

To those in touch with the color situation in the ready-to-wear trades two distinct trends are noted at the present time. The usual dark shades, such as navy blue, browns, and greens, appear to have a large following, and at the same time there is also quite a call for lighter hues almost on the pastel order. From abroad come light greens, canary, and flame colors with the stamp of fashion set on them. Naturally with the backing of leading French houses the trend toward the brighter effects is pronounced. The darker shades continue to be bought in large quantities, it is said, because women cannot afford the amount of clothes they formerly purchased, and therefore desire to get colors that do not tire through continued use.

Good for a Year.

Discussing the outlook for the coming year, one of the foremost credit men in the dry goods trade stated yesterday that there appears no possibility of a slump for another year. "Of course, no one can predict for so long a time with real safety," he said, "but fundamental conditions look good. If the women's garment trade, for instance, were not soundly conditioned the dull spell they are passing through would have brought some houses up against difficulties before this. There is no possibility of foreign merchandise being dumped in this market because merchandise is as scarce abroad as it is here. Speculation in materials of one kind and another is gradually being eliminated, and, all told, the outlook is encouraging."

Are Paying the High Prices.

Queried yesterday as to whether the retail trade is paying the high prices that are being asked for Spring lines of fine footwear for men, an executive of one of the best-known manufacturing concerns in the business replied in the affirmative, and cited two things to prove his assertion. The first was that not a single order of the many booked for Spring some time ago, without the date of delivery or the price specified in the contract, failed to be confirmed when the price was finally quoted. The second was that in a Middle Atlantic States territory, where the concern's salesman ordinarily would be doing well to write $40,000 worth of business in ten weeks, for the coming season he wrote $70,000 worth in less than three weeks. Furthermore, all of this business was obtained in the smaller cities and towns of the district in question.

Foreign Buyers Are Busy.

Although the local port has never been more badly congested than it is at the present time, and there is almost no telling when goods can be shipped, foreign buyers of dry goods in this market are by no means diminishing their efforts to get them. The manager of one of the best-known houses in the dry goods export business said yesterday that he was being literally swamped with requests for goods from practically all over the world. Not only were the inquiries general as to the places they came from, he said, but they were just as general as to the kinds of goods that were wanted. These ranged all the way from narrow gray cottons to woolen underwear. Unless some improvement in the shipping situation comes soon, he added, it will be necessary to stop taking orders calling for anything like a nearby delivery. Already several thousand packages and cases of goods have piled up in the firm's warehouse awaiting shipment.

Gray Goods Prices High.

A new high record price for print-cloths was established here yesterday when 39-inch 80 squares sold at 30 cents a yard for delivery during this month and next. Sales of this construction at that price had very recently been made, but in such a small way that the figure in question could not honestly be called the market. Yesterday the story was different, and the new record was really established. November-January deliveries of 39-inch 72-76s moved at 24½ cents, and for similar delivery there were also sales of 38½-inch 60-48s at 16¼ cents. For delivery through the first quarter of 1920, 38½-inch 64-60s brought 18¾ cents. Sheetings sales included, for January-March delivery, 5-yard goods at 16½ cents and 5.50s at 15 cents. An active business was done in the clothing styles, among the sales being 64-104, 4.20-yard sateens at 35 cents for January-March shipment. In the fine-yarn goods, for December-April delivery, sales of 30-inch 88-80, 11.35-yard lawns were made at 24 cents.

Airplane Linens Sell Well.

Although actual selling of the British airplane linens that are now being disposed of in this country by the Hunter Manufacturing and Commission Company, the selling agent, began only on Wednesday last, it was said at the offices of the company yesterday that about 1,000,000 yards of the goods had been disposed of to converters, importers of Irish linens, and jobbers. It has been decided, it was also said, not to offer the goods direct to the manufacturing trade. All of the business done to date has resulted from calls of prospective buyers at the Hunter offices, as there are only three complete sets of samples in this country at the present time and none has been given to the salesmen or sent to the out-of-town offices. With plenty of west-bound freight space available, delivery of the goods appears to depend only on the length of the local dock workers' strike. Two hundred thousand yards of the linens are now on the docks here, having come over on the Mauretania. The first consignment, aboard the Adriatic, went back unloaded. While the low-end goods have had the preference over the more expensive lines, the difference in the yardage disposed of is comparatively so limited that the sales totals of the two in money are about equal.

COMMODITIES PRICES.

Advances in Them This Week Nearly Double the Declines.

So marked was the upward trend of commodities prices this week, as shown by Dun's list, that the advances outnumbered the declines by nearly two to one. More changes were shown in the general list than for some time, 84 of the 313 items listed having been revised. Fifty-five of the revisions were upward. One of the chief features was the added strength of the foodstuffs, and prices in the metals list also began to show the effects of the strike in the advances that took place.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for this week and the corresponding week a year ago:

Twenty-five of the week's changes were shown in the foodstuffs alone. In the local market Spring patent flour went up 15 cents a barrel to a level of $12, but there was no change in Winter "straights." Bacon continued to decline here, but hams were unchanged. In the major provisions at Chicago the only drop was in live beef. Mess pork was unchanged, but higher prices were got for live hogs and sheep, as well as for Middle Western lard and short ribs.

In the dairy products there were slight advances in all grades of butter and cheese, but the eggs told a different story. Nearby fancy showed a loss of a cent a dozen for the week, and closed at the same prices that were quoted last year at this time. The best Western eggs declined 2 cents a dozen, but are still 4 cents higher than the corresponding 1918 price. The variations in vegetables for the week were not very marked. Cabbage and potatoes went up somewhat, but there was a drop in choice red kidney beans. The fresh fruits showed no changes, while in the dried ones the only revisions were declines in currants and peaches. In the coffees No. 7 Rio was down, while No. 4 Santos went up. The changes in spices were divided between advances in cloves and nutmegs, and declines in black and white Singapore peppers. There was also a drop in open kettle molasses at New Orleans.

The metals list showed declines only in spelter and electrolytic copper. The advances were more numerous than for some time, and ranged all the way from No. 2X pig iron at Philadelphia to refined iron bars. In the minor metals tin and lead were higher, and both furnace and foundry coke advanced. A number of changes took place in the lumber list during the week, with the advances and declines about evenly divided. In the combined list for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs, and oils fifteen advances were shown against nine declines, several of the former being due to the longshoremen's strike and the dwindling supplies of crude drugs resulting from it. Among the features were advances in quinine and menthol, and also in linseed oil.

The only decline in grains was contributed by oats. Corn, rye, and malting barley all went up. Hemp was higher. The features of the naval stores were the sharp breaks in resin and turpentine. English vermilion paint went up, as did tallow, but a lower price was quoted on the best Brazilian crude rubber. Japanese raw silks were easier in tone, but the Chinese varieties showed further price strength.

Considerable activity in the cotton goods end of the textile markets featured the week's happenings in that part of the list. Not only did many of the unfinished goods sell freely for deliveries in some cases up to June 1 next, but a new high record price for a print-cloth construction was established. The burlap trade was badly handicapped in its efforts to do business by the dock-workers' strike, and with little to sustain them prices sagged somewhat on both light and heavy goods.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Steel Stocks Lead in Strong Advance, Furthered by Coal Strike News.

The Government action in securing an injunction against the soft coal mine workers was considered in the financial district yesterday as an earnest of vigorous Federal participation in the bituminous labor troubles. Largely because of the feeling that the strike would weaken once the Governmental machinery got into motion, the stock market threw aside previous hesitancy and throughout the session the industrial issues were buoyant. A number of steel and sugar shares, oil stocks, and specialties rose from 5 to 10 points, while net gains of 2 to 4 points were well scattered through the list. Evidence presented in news dispatches from the mid-Western coal fields indicated that many miners would quit and the leaders continued to voice determination to go on with their program. Nevertheless, the Street was prone to hold the soft coal strike as already discounted. If this attitude had not governed speculation in stocks it is difficult to see how the steel issues could have made an appeal to traders near the end of the week, as a prolonged tieup of fuel production would have an early reflection in reduced operations at steel plants.

The impetus which trading received in the morning was sufficient to maintain prices and the volume of business fairly near the day's maxima during the final hour, despite another sharp bulge in call money rates. Demand loans could not be negotiated below 9 per cent. at any time, and near the close of business brokers paid at the rate of 19 per cent., which was the highest of the year to be reported while the stock market was open. After the close of trading a rate of 20 per cent. was mentioned as arranged for a moderate amount of overnight credit. Today the large United Kingdom and French "cities" note maturities necessitate the payment of more than $160,000,000 for account of the foreign Government and municipal borrowers, and there fall due as well substantial dividend disbursements. After the funds involved in the various transactions find their way back to the banks an easement of call loan quotations might be looked for if the status of credit was normal. As the local Federal Reserve Agent points out, however, the "mounting credit demands of the season and of speculation" worked to increase the borrowings of member banks at the central institution in the first half of October, and since then weekly reports on loans have not disclosed material reductions. While war obligations held by the banks here and in the interior have been liquidated in large volume of late, the credit thus released appears to be absorbed quickly in production and speculation, and as long as borrowers are not deterred by stiff rates it is difficult to see how any long-lived easement of call money interest charges could appear.

Sterling, franc, and lire exchange closed with a show of firmness after moving uncertainly during the day. The Liberty bond market continued to disclose extensive liquidation, with the price front rather more firm than the day before. An item of investment news during the day was the Steel Corporation's announcement of its purchase of $10,000,000 new United Kingdom 5½ per cent. bonds and the underwriting of $10,000,000 more, a transaction which aroused memories of the participation by corporations in the war financing.

Call Money Again.

What has become almost the daily flurry in call money rates occurred yesterday afternoon when the rate ran up to 19 per cent. by closing time and to 20 per cent. after 3 o'clock. The renewal rate for the three days to Monday was made at 9 per cent., and this later turned out to be the low for the session. Brokers and bankers are still at a loss to explain satisfactorily just what influences are at work to account for these flurries. However, theories are plentiful enough, and one of them, advanced yesterday with no great confidence by the sponsor, is that money, regarded as a commodity, is at last responding to the economic influences which have put prices of all other commodities up and is now going through the transitory stage preparatory to a realization of the higher levels.

Belgian Exchange.

The rather substantial improvement in Belgian exchange in the last few days, coming at a time when sterling exchange has been more or less heavy and uncertain, is said to be due to the fact that Belgium has recently secured some large credits in London and that the improvement here simply reflects improvement in Belgian francs in the London market. The Belgian rate, which a month or so ago was below the rate for French francs here, is now approximately 50 centimes higher than the current French rate, and some dealers seem to think the "spread" will become greater in the near future.

Today's Bank Statement.

Today's bank statement is likely to show some extremely interesting changes. For one thing, the end of the month borrowings are bound to show not only in the average display, but will show graphically in the actual as well. This is the first time since March 1 that the first day of a new month has fallen on a Saturday, and for this reason many bankers expect to see some unusual changes in the condition figures.

Reserve Bank Borrowings.

In the Reserve Bank's statement it is expected that member banks' rediscounts will increase substantially, because not only will the usual borrowings be reflected, but yesterday, it is understood, a large number of acceptances, purchased by J. P. Morgan & Co. some weeks ago, were put back into the market. This operation, as understood in the market, resulted from the investment by Morgan & Co. in bills of a considerable amount of money accumulated in anticipation of Nov. 1 maturities, including the United Kingdom 5½ per cent. notes. It was said yesterday that the banking firm purchased bills, wherever possible, which would mature yesterday, but where bills of that maturity were not available there was an understanding that the bills taken should be resold yesterday. Many of the latter, it is believed, were subsequently rediscounted at the Reserve Bank.

Plumb League Progress.

Inquiries which have recently been made in quarters considered to be conversant with the affairs of the Plumb League indicate that enthusiasm among railroad workers over this particular agency is not so spontaneous as had been predicted by its promoters. In fact, the early statements of its backers that the Plumb League buttons would be in the lapel buttonholes of all trainmen within a short time has failed to bear fruit as they expected, and it is now asserted that the 1,000,000 members of the league predicted earlier in the year is in reality somewhere between 150,000 and 200,000 men.

Shipping Shares Gain Ground.

On the strength of reports that the local shipping labor outlook had greatly improved confidence in the shipping shares seemed to be restored yesterday and as a group they moved into substantially higher ground. Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies and Marine common were the leaders, the turnover in each issue being approximately the same, although the net gain shown by the former at the close of the day was greater. Marine preferred on a much smaller turnover also advanced, while United Fruit on a fair exchange of stock gained more than a point. Pacific Mail on a nominal turnover closed at its previous closing quotation.

American Snuff Sensitive.

An order to buy 100 shares of American Snuff sufficed to advance the price 4¼ points when it was executed yesterday, and the sale of 100 shares of Jewel Tea preferred proved enough to bring about a net loss in that issue of 6 points. These were only two instances of the sensitive character of many of the issues in the general list to pressure from either side of the market.

Possibly an Object Lesson.

In some quarters in the financial district yesterday it was suggested that the firm stand of the Government with regard to the coal strike might possibly be in the nature of an object lesson to railroad labor which is beginning again to demand further wage increases. Shrewd observers of the railroad situation are now beginning to assert that the heads of the railroad brotherhoods apparently are going to try to reach some kind of an agreement with the corporate managers of the roads that present wage scales will be continued following the turning back of the carriers. This, according to the belief in some quarters, may enable the brotherhoods to hold their men, but at the same time it is not generally expected that any such agreement will be made by the managers. A compromise may possibly be effected, but it is believed that this will be only after both sides have thrashed the matter out in a 'round the table conference.

Market Moves Forward.

In so far as Wall Street was concerned the imminence of a coal strike received only passing attention yesterday, prices throughout the general list responding readily to heavy buying. The general opinion prevailed that the strike would not be of serious proportions, even though it might actually be called. With this idea in mind at the outset of trading the market went steadily forward in response to the degree of optimism which prevailed. The industrials were the features, the rails remaining out of the limelight as they have for months. Here and there in the industrial list some astonishing gains were recorded, this being especially true in the steel and sugar shares.

Industrial Company Reports.

Reports of industrial companies for the third quarter of this year, which are now making their appearance, with an occasional annual report interlarded, indicate beyond question that the policy of the vast majority of such concerns still leans to the putting back into the companies of large surpluses over normal dividends. It has been in this wise that the asset value behind stocks has been increased in some instances as much as 100 per cent. during the last few years. Market prices for stocks may seem high, but in measuring this, there is often a disposition to ignore increased asset value and only to consider that as compared with the price of 1913, for instance, the quotations are high. Naturally there must be a point eventually when market advance will have offset any increase that could have taken place in assets by the reinvestment of earnings. The approximate point of this should not be difficult of determination. At any rate the financial position of the industrials has been enormously strengthened.

Lackawanna and Republic.

Two of the steel stocks which were in the van yesterday were Republic Iron and Steel and Lackawanna. With an advance of the former issue to better than 140 it has stepped into the class of high-priced issues. Lackawanna was not quite so sensational, but its gain for the day was more than 6 points. There are rumors that a short interest in Republic has been trapped, but whether or not this be true it is a fact that the company's financial position is very strong, which might in itself give the basis for a whirl. Lackawanna is closely held, the floating supply of stock being much less than is generally supposed so that it lends itself to market manipulation.

Sugar Stocks Strong.

Both Cuban-American Sugar and South Porto Rico Sugar made big gains, the former advancing some 20 points and the latter 12. Every indication points to big earnings for the sugar companies in view of the world shortage in the commodity, which is known to exist. The two issues mentioned have been among the strongest on the big board for some time and in the case of Cuban-American the cutting of a melon has been rumored.

SAYS WE MUST GET FOREIGN MARKETS

SEES IMPORTS INCREASE

Preliminary Plans Approved for National Trade Convention at San Francisco.

The problems involved in the establishment and maintenance of foreign markets and in the conditions presented by the United States becoming a creditor nation were discussed yesterday at the annual meeting of the National Foreign Trade Council, held at the Hotel Biltmore. At the afternoon session preliminary plans were approved for the seventh National Foreign Trade Convention, which is to be held at San Francisco from May 12 to 15, 1920. It is proposed to make this convention a world conference of American foreign traders, at which all foreign Governments will be represented. James A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation, presided at yesterday's meeting.

The San Francisco convention will be the first world conference of American foreign traders, and already more than 500 invitations to Americans doing business in foreign countries have been sent out. Invitations are also being sent to foreign Governments and to local Chambers of Commerce in foreign countries to send representatives.

It was announced at the meeting that the Chinese Government had already arranged to be represented and delegates have been appointed by the Chinese Chamber of Commerce. Arrangements have been completed for two special steamers from the Far East and one from Valparaiso up the west coast of South America to bring the delegates to the convention. A special steamer will be provided to take delegates from the East through the Panama Canal to San Francisco.

"We have more to do now than ever," he said, "in solving the foreign trade problem. We need to awaken the country to the real meaning of becoming a creditor nation. We must remember that the present domestic demand is abnormal. Many firms are giving up foreign business, while the liquidation of the balance of trade can be accomplished only by the increase of imports. The drive of imports is on. The power of consumption has increased, but there is a surplus of production at home. The answer to all this is, 'Foreign markets with foreign investments.'"

Legislative problems of vital interest to American foreign traders were discussed, special attention being paid to matters in which American foreign trade was at a disadvantage in comparison with other countries. Our income tax laws, whereby American merchants resident abroad were foced to pay double taxes, whereas British merchants paid no income tax, were strongly opposed by H. C. Lewis, General Manager of the National Paper and Type Company. He urged that American merchants resident and doing business abroad be exempted from American income taxes so as to enable them to compete with foreign firms which are not burdened by double taxation.

For More Consular Appropriations.

Charles Lyon Chandler, Manager of the foreign trade department of the Corn Exchange National Bank of Philadelphia, favored the immediate enactment of legislation providing adequate appropriations for the consular and diplomatic service. The same speaker showed the striking need for a bargaining tariff. India was cited as an example, which country now has laid an export duty of 15 per cent. on raw hides and skins with a perferential rebate of 10 per cent. to the British Empire.

Willis N. Booth, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Co., expressed the hope that the manufacturing interests of the country would take seriously the opportunities about to be afforded by the Edge bill now before Congress. This bill permits the formation of foreign finance corporations with a minimum capital of $2,000,000 under the Federal Reserve act to advance credits up to ten times their capital. Mr. Booth said that in his opinion, the resources of the banks themselves were already fully occupied, and manufacturers must now help themselves by participating in the extension of the necessary credits.

William H. Knox, an exporter of this city, stated that the added costs of our products to foreign buyers caused by high rates of exchange, were in reality absorbed in the selling price abroad whenever there was a genuine demand abroad for our products. In his opinion the foreign exchange rates were no bar to the sale of our goods abroad wherever those goods were really wanted.

Want Independent Labor Protected.

The following resolutions were passed:

Whereas, the present strike of longshoremen at the port of New York is working serious detriment to American foreign trade, the full maintenance of which is vital to the prosperity of both State and nation; and,

Whereas, the progress of the strike has been marked by acts of intimidation which prevent men who are willing and ready to work from doing so, and this intimidation is directed against both men who desire to work and their families and their homes; and,

Whereas, liberty to pursue a chosen vocation in complete security, free from interference or intimidation, is a fundamental human right, and this right is now denied to large numbers of residents of this city and State; therefore, be it

"Resolved, By the National Foreign Trade Council that the first duty of the City and State Government in the present emergency is to preserve inviolate the right to work; that the supremacy of law and order should be maintained at all costs; and that the Government of the city and State should forthwith take all measures necessary to insure all workers in the free exercise of their right to work, and to provide complete and continuous protection to them at all times, both at home and on the job, and be it further

"Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be sent to the Mayor of New York City and the Governor of New York State with the request for prompt and effective action."

Steel Corporation Announces Subscription to British Loan.

The United States Steel Corporation yesterday announced that it had purchased $10,000,000 of the new 5½ per cent. United Kingdom loan of $250,000,000. It was also stated that the Steel Corporation would become a participant in the underwriting with the banking interests to the extent of another $10,000,000. This is in line with the action which was taken by a number of large corporations at the time of the Anglo-French loan in 1915. The United States Steel Corporation was a heavy subscriber, and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation subscribed to $25,000,000 of the securities.

The present subscription by the United States Steel Corporation will bring the value of Liberty bonds and other securities held by the company up to nearly $300,000,000. In the last annual report these holdings were placed at more than $275,000,000. It is understood that few if any of the securities which have from time to time been purchased have been disposed of.

In making the announcement of the present subscription, Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the Steel Corporation, said:

"We believe these securities will be first class in every respect and a desirable investment. Also, we think it is decidedly to the interest of the United States as well as Great Britain that purchases of this character be made by Americans at this particular time. This should have a marked influence toward the restoration of normal rates of exchange and the bettering of the financial and commercial relations between the two countries, and therefore of advantage to the entire business situation."

R. H. TREMAN RESIGNS RESERVE BANK POST

Has Been Senior Deputy Governor of New York Branch Since July, 1916.

REMAINS IN DIRECTORATE

Ithaca Financier Was Virtual Head of Institution During Much of the War Period.

Robert H. Treman, senior Deputy Governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank since July, 1916, and in the absence of Governor Strong, Acting Governor, yesterday resigned as an officer of the institution. It was stated that he would continue as a Director until the expiration of his term, which will occur with the ending of 1920.

Mr. Treman, who is a resident of Ithaca, N. Y., and has been President of the Tompkins County National Bank of that place for some years, will resume the duties of that post immediately, but he will return to New York on Wednesday of each week to attend the regular meetings of the Directors of the Reserve Bank.

At the Reserve Bank it was said that for the time being there probably would be no new Deputy Governor elected. J. Herbert Case, the Deputy Governor who ranked next to Mr. Treman, will automatically become senior Deputy, and Louis F. Sailer, the third Deputy, will continue his relations with the bank.

In local financial circles Mr. Treman has won a high reputation for his ability as a banker, as well as the warm personal esteem of all who have come in contact with him. During much of the war period, when the New York Federal Reserve Bank played such an important part in the Government's financial scheme, he virtually was at the head of the bank, and by the manner in which he handled the affairs of the institution gained for himself an enviable place among leading financiers.

A statement issued at the direction of Pierre Jay, Federal Reserve Agent and Chairman of the Board of the local Reserve Bank, announced Mr. Treman's retirement in the following words:

"The Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York announced that, to the great regret of all its Directors and officers, Mr. Robert H. Treman would retire from active service as senior Deputy Governor of the bank at the close of business today.

"The Chairman stated that in July, 1916, when Governor Strong's health necessitated his taking a long rest, the Directors requested Mr. Treman, who is President of the Tompkins County National Bank of Ithaca, N. Y., and a resident of that city, and has been a Director of the Federal Reserve Bank since its organization, to undertake active service in the bank as its Deputy Governor. Mr. Treman, at much personal inconvenience and sacrifice, consented, and after Governor Strong's return at the time America entered the war again yielded to the urging of the Directors to continue, in order to assist in the work of financing the war, but only with the understanding that he might retire when this work grew less pressing. For over three years he has served as senior Deputy Governor of the bank, and, in Governor Strong's absence, as acting Governor.

"In addition to the general duties of his office he has, from the outset, assumed the responsibility for the distribution of United States certificates of indebtedness, in which the Second Federal Reserve District led all others in the volume purchased, as well as for the effective direction of the organization through which this was acomplished. His presence in the bank as one of its active managers has been largely responsible for the better understanding of its policies and operations which prevails, especially among the member banks situated out of New York City. His written and other contributions to the development of the more general use of trade acceptances have been notable. His work in the bank has constituted a distinguished patriotic service.

"Although Mr. Treman now resumes his residence in Ithaca, he will continue to act as a Director of the Federal Reserve Bank."

From the accompanying letter of Mr. Frank Melville, Jr., President of the Company, we summarize as follows:

BUSINESS

The Melville Shoe Corporation operates two chains of retail shoe stores under the trade names of "John Ward Men's Shoes" and "Rival Shoe Co." These chains were established in 1897. Stores are located in New York, Brooklyn, Newark, N. J., Philadelphia, and Bridgeport, Conn.

The Melville Shoe Corporation conducts large, well-equipped and inviting stores, and handles a larger volume of business, per store, than any other chain of shoe stores in the world. Two of the establishments do a larger volume of business than any other men's shoe stores.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE

The purpose of the issue is to furnish additional working capital to expand and develop the business. New units will be added as rapidly as leases can be advantageously procured. The business has demonstrated the fact, during the past five or six years, that profits in the chain store business increase at a much greater rate than sales.

ASSETS

The Company shows net quick assets of $108 per share, and net tangible assets of $182 per share of the total Preferred Stock outstanding.

SALES AND EARNINGS

Sales have shown steady and constant increase and will total this year, based on first six months, over $4,000,000. Net profits, after taxes and depreciation, have averaged per year for 3½ years, over 7½ times the amount required to pay dividends on the Preferred Stock then outstanding, and over 3½ times the amount required to pay dividends on total Preferred Stock to be presently outstanding. Annual cash dividends paid on the Common Stock for the last 3½ years have averaged over 2½ times the amount paid in Preferred dividends.

Market value of Common Stock, junior to this issue, over $1,000,000. Leaseholds are worth at least $450,000.

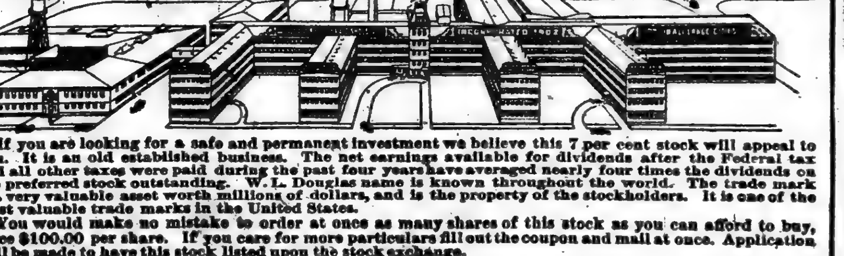
Dividends have been paid regularly for the past seventeen years. Payable January 1st and July 1st. There is no better 7 per cent investment in the United States.



If you are looking for a safe and permanent investment we believe this 7 per cent stock will appeal to you. It is an old established business. The net earnings available for dividends after the Federal tax and all other taxes were paid during the past four years have averaged nearly four times the dividends on the preferred stock outstanding. W. L. Douglas name is known throughout the world. The trade mark is a very valuable asset worth millions of dollars, and is the property of the stockholders. It is one of the most valuable trade marks in the United States.

You would make no mistake to order at once as many shares of this stock as you can afford to buy, price $100.00 per share. If you care for more particulars fill out the coupon and mail at once. Application will be made to have this stock listed upon the stock exchange.

This company owns and operates 105 W. L. Douglas shoe stores located in the large cities. W. L. Douglas shoes are also sold by over 9,000 shoe dealers in the United States.

The past few years our shoes have been more extensively advertised than ever before. Stamping W. L. Douglas name and the retail price on the bottom of the shoes before they leave the factory has saved the wearers millions of dollars, and guarantees them the best shoes in style, comfort and service that can be produced for the price.

A great demand for W. L. Douglas shoes has sprung up in leading countries in Europe and Asia. Our domestic business has increased so that our sales have actually doubled in four years. In 1915 the sales were $8,069,628.41 and in 1918 $16,660,343.46. The past six months' business was at the rate of over $20,000,000 per year.

In common with other great businesses we need additional capital to meet the urgent requirements of increasing domestic and foreign trade. The new conditions of business also demand more capital. The cost of labor and material has nearly doubled so that twice the amount of capital necessary under the old business conditions is now required.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

The trade reviews of the week agree that labor unrest continues to overshadow general business, but that distribution to consumers continues heavy in almost all lines.

Dun's Review says:

The disorganization which results from the many existing controversies and the decreased efficiency of labor not alone seriously restricts production and tends to advance prices by further depleting the already meager stocks of various commodities, but also diminishes the purchasing power of thousands of workers, and evidences of a contraction of retail trade are more plainly discernible in some sections. While distribution to consumers remains remarkably heavy, with demands for the costliest goods a conspicuous feature in many instances, yet buying has somewhat abated in localities where strikes have been of protracted duration, and dispatches from parts of the Pacific Coast where operations at the shipyards have been interrupted indicate a smaller movement of high-priced merchandise.

Bradstreet's says:

Three big features stand out especially prominent as the business world enters the shadow of the threatened bituminous coal strike. Buying has alike broadened and livened up and prices have stiffened or advanced but finance, trade and industry display really remarkable steadiness and equanimity considering the nature of the blow aimed at the nation's industrial life. Except at a few strike-ridden communities notably New York City, some coal-mining sections and a few of the smaller steel centers where reduced wage payments are affecting some lines, retail buying does not seem to have been affected materially and at the great majority of cities purchasing continues active with some notable cool weather as stimulating trade while others report that excessive rains and bad roads, notably West and South, slow things a little.

China Offers Treasury Notes.

The Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago is offering for public subscription $5,500,000 6 per cent. Republic of China two-year Treasury Notes at 98⅛ to yield more than 7 per cent. The loan has been approved by Secretary of State Lansing and is secured by a prior lien on the goods taxes from four Chinese provinces, and also the notes are secured by a direct charge against revenues to be derived from the tobacco and wine public sales tax. They are a direct liability and obligation of the Chinese Government which pledges its credit for the prompt payment of principal and interest.

COTTON ESTIMATE SENDS PRICES DOWN

Selling of Speculative Holdings Follows Government's Condition Report.

TRADE BUYING BRINGS RALLY

Southern Spots Continue Advance—See Crop, Exclusive of Linters, as 10,200,000 Bales.

The Department of Agriculture's special report on the condition of the cotton crop, issued yesterday morning as of Oct. 25, made the condition 51.1 per cent. of normal, which, while it may be regarded generally as bullish, did not prove so in yesterday's trading in cotton futures because of the fact that the trade had expected a considerably lower condition figure. Around the ring at the Cotton Exchange and in most parts of the trade it had been expected that the condition would be no better than 50 per cent., and a good many long lines had been accumulated in anticipation of a report of this kind. Thus, on publication there was a lot of selling of speculative holdings, and from the early prices, which had ruled as much as 25 to 30 points over the previous night's closing, the market broke until it stood some 10 to 35 points below the preceding day's closing level.

In the afternoon, partly because of the aggressive buying of a leading professional trader and partly in response to adverse private reports from the South and on further advances in Southern spots, the market rallied rather briskly and went as high as 50 to 60 points up on the day. These figures were reached early in the afternoon, after which the market became more or less unsettled, receding to about the previous day's last prices and then rallying slightly at the close, with the active options 15 to 17 points higher on the day's transactions.

A condition figure of 51.1 per cent. is expected to indicate a crop, exclusive of linters, of about 10,200,000 bales, and as a good part of this is expected to be of the poorer grades, the activity in the spot markets is likely to continue, with an especially aggressive demand for good, white cotton.

As evidence of this, yesterday's Southern markets were generally higher, with the St. Louis quotation being advanced to 40 cents, making the sixth Southern market to reach this figure.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

Republic of China

Six Per Cent. Two-Year Secured Gold Loan Treasury Notes of 1919.

Dated November 1, 1919 Due November 1, 1921

Principal and semi-annual interest (May 1st and November 1st), payable in United States Gold at Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago, Illinois, or in New York. Coupon notes of $1,000 denomination, registrable as to principal. Redeemable in whole or in part at the option of the Republic on 30 days' published notice, as follows: during the first year at a premium of ½%, and at any time thereafter at a premium of ¼%.

This loan is a direct liability and obligation of the Chinese Government, which pledges its good faith and credit for the full and punctual payment of the total principal and interest, and is secured, in respect to both principal and interest, by a direct charge which the Chinese Government guarantees to be a first, prior and continuing lien on the Goods Taxes derived from four of the provinces of China, the receipts from which, for the fiscal year 1919-1920, as shown in the budget promulgated by the Chinese Government, are estimated to produce a total of 4,911,692 Chinese dollars. At this time, Chinese dollars are worth about ninety-five cents in American gold. The loan is additionally secured by a direct charge upon the revenues derived and to be derived by the Chinese Government from the Tobacco and Wine Public Sales Tax of China, subject to certain other charges claimed to be prior upon certain portions of said revenue, with the declaration by the Chinese Government that the tax is estimated to net during the year 1919-1920 the sum of 14,514,992 Chinese dollars, and that during each of the years that all or any part of this loan remains unpaid, a net sum equivalent to at least $5,500,000 in gold shall be received upon such revenues by the Chinese Government and shall be available for the service of this loan.

These notes are being issued to refund an issue of Three-Year Secured Gold Loan Treasury Notes, which mature November 1, 1919.

The subject matter of this loan has been submitted to the Secretary of State of the United States of America, and referred to by him in letter addressed to this Bank, dated October 21, 1919, as follows:

"The Department recalls that on November 16, 1916, it addressed to you a letter in which it stated that it was always gratified to see the Republic of China receive financial assistance from the citizens of the United States, and that it was its policy to give all proper diplomatic support and protection to legitimate enterprises abroad of American citizens.

The Department has read with much interest the new loan contract which you have concluded with the Chinese Government and referred to the Department, and note with pleasure this evidence of your continued interest in Chinese financial matters.

The international consciousness resulting from the close association of our country with other nations, in consequence of the war, has further accentuated the interest of this Government in encouraging and aiding, in every proper way, the undertakings of its nationals in foreign countries, in furtherance of that free intercourse which it is appreciated is mutually advantageous and which should be encouraged and supported. To the accomplishment of this end, this Government is willing to take all proper steps to insure the execution of equitable contracts which are made in good faith."

The Government of the Republic of China states that the population of China is approximately 400,000,000; that the entire debt of the Republic of China, internal and external, is approximately three hundred million pounds sterling, or, at current rates of exchange, a debt equal to about $3.13 per capita. The Government states that, including the period under the Empire, there has never been a default in the payment of principal or interest of any obligation.

All legal matters in connection with this loan, including the contract with the Republic of China, and the notes, have been approved by Messrs. Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt of Chicago.

The buyers will improve the site at once with a modern office building, the height of which has not yet been determined as several plans are being considered by the architect, J. E. R. Carpenter. Albert B. Ashforth represented the buyers, and Isaac H. Janney of Peter Gilsey & Co. the seller.

UNTERMYER MAKES REPLY TO COLBY

Candidate Charges Chairman of Nonpartisan Committee Misstated Facts.

WANTS NAME OF ACCUSER

Says His Detailed Record for Draft Board Gave His Occupation as Lawyer.

Bainbridge Colby, Chairman of the Non-Partisan Judiciary Committee, is accused of willful misstatements with regard to the circumstances surrounding the registration of Irwin Untermyer, Tammany nominee for Supreme Court Justice, under the selective draft law, in a letter written him by the candidate which was made public at the Untermyer campaign headquarters in the Hotel Manhattan last night.

The statements to which Mr. Untermyer has reference were made by Mr. Colby in a speech delivered on Thursday night at Public School 115, on Washington Heights. In his speech Mr. Colby declared that a denial issued by the Tammany candidate in reply to a report that he had sought to evade military duty was "lame" and unconvincing, and challenged him to permit the War Department to produce the records of the draft boards dealing with his case. To this challenge Mr. Untermyer makes no reference in his letter:

The letter follows:

I have read with indignation the dastardly misstatements contained in your speech made last night at Public School 115. In that speech you have intentionally concealed the fact that no person has ever dared to utter the assertion that I made any claim that during the period of the war I was engaged in farming as an occupation.

If any person makes such an assertion, I demand that you furnish his name and the facts upon which that assertion is made.

You have also intentionally ignored my positive denial of the truth of such a rumor, which, if it ever existed, was deliberately circulated by you. That denial I now repeat and reaffirm and I challenge you to produce a suggestion of proof to support the fabrication to which you have attempted to give currency.

In order, however, that you may be fully enlightened on this subject and may desist from your malicious and reckless misstatements of facts, I beg to inform you that at the suggestion of my local board, I made a full statement of the property owned by me in Warren County. At the time I did so, however, I stated distinctly, and in writing, that my occupation was exclusively the practice of law in the City of New York.

I never took any appeal from the classification made by my local board in my case. I was placed in classification 2-A by my local board, because I had a wife and two children at that time, which was the final classification in my case and in which class I always remained.

In conclusion, let me repeat what I said when you first circulated this lie, I stood in a class which would have been shortly called to the colors had the war not ended when it did. Your contemptible attempt to gain political advantage by false statements, which you know to be false, requires no characterization from me. No more certain prediction of success on Tuesday next could be imagined than the desperate and unworthy methods which you and your associates in this campaign have been driven to pursue.

Yours truly, IRWIN UNTERMYER.

A new demand on Irwin Untermyer, Tammany nominee for Justice of the Supreme Court, that he authorize the War Department to produce his questionnaire and the records, dealing with the examination of his case by the District Board of Appeals became public yesterday.

The new demand was coupled with questions in relation to the swearing off of taxes by the Tammany candidate. In 1916 Irwin Untermyer was assessed on $30,000 personal property and swore off on the ground that he was a resident of Warren County, where he owns a 600-acre farm. In 1917 no assessment for personal property was levied against the Tammany nominee. In 1918 he was assessed on $50,000 personal property and swore off on account of debts, as the records of the Tax Department show. His 1919 assessment is for but $5,000. There were questions also as to where Mr. Untermyer voted in 1916, 1917, and 1918, and some with reference to his experience as a trial lawyer.

The questions were embodied in a letter from Archibald L. Levy, a woolen dealer at 225 Fourth Avenue, to Charles S. Guggenheimer of the law firm of Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall, of which the Tammany nominee is a member. The letter was written in response to one asking Mr. Levy to support Mr. Untermyer.

"Did Mr. Untermyer vote in the City of New York at the general elections during the years 1916, 1917, and 1918?

"Did Mr. Untermyer in those years claim he was a resident of Warren County?"

It was learned yesterday that members of the uniformed force in the Police Department had received at their home addresses a letter bearing the signature of F. H. Bugher, who for part of the first month Mayor Hylan was in office served as head of the Police Department, urging them to support Irwin Untermyer for the Supreme Court. When Mr. Bugher was appointed Police Commissioner he was indorsed by Samuel Untermyer, father of the Tammany nominee.

City Magistrate Henry H. Curran, Republican candidate for Borough President, was indorsed yesterday by the Women's Municipal League in a letter sent to his headquarters.

Milwaukee Railway Officials Tell Investigators of Better Route to Spruce Forests.

DENY INTEREST IN LINE

Montana State Senator Says Expenditures of $23,285,000 Would Salvage $3,900,000.

Officials of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad testified yesterday before the House sub-committee investigating war expenditures at the Federal Building that they had mapped out a route tapping the spruce timber on the Olympic Peninsula, in the State of Washington, which would have cost $1,400,000 instead of $4,000,000 which the Government eventually paid for constructing the line finally chosen. R. M. Calkins and H. B. Earling, Vice President and General Manager, respectively, of the Milwaukee Road, both declared that they had urged the building of the cheaper route.

Mr. Earling denied the charge that the line constructed benefited his road, and also that he had urged the building of fourteen miles, still uncompleted, after the signing of the armistice. This denial followed the reading into the record by Meier Steinbrink, counsel to the committee, of a telegram sent to Brig. Gen. Brice P. Disque, in charge of spruce operations in the Northwest, from a Major Stearns, stating that he had made this recommendation.

Mr. Calkins told the committee that the Milwaukee Land Company, a subsidiary of the Milwaukee Railroad, owning 76,000 acres of timber on the Olympic Peninsula, had not purchased any land since 1910. He said he had made a study of the railroad possibilities in the section and that he had never considered the Deep Creek line, which he figured would cost $1,400,000, as the only possible route into the spruce forests. Calkins declared that the extension of the Deep Creek line would have reached 11,000,000,000 feet more timber than the road built.

State Senator Edward Donlan of Missoula, Mon., called again as a witness, testified that shortly after the signing of the armistice he had perfected a deal to offer the Government $3,500,000 for the spruce railroad, sawmills, and other logging developments made by the Government. The witness said that W. F. Carey of the Siems-Carey-Kerbaugh Corporation, who obtained the $4,000,000 contract, was associated with him in this offer and that he expected to make $500,000 profit. Carey withdrew from the deal because of the changes made by Western lumbermen to the committee, and there have been no further developments in the project, he added.

Donlan said that $2,000,000 of the amount he offered the Government was for the spruce railroad. The cost to the Government of the spruce developments on the Olympic Peninsula was $23,285,000 and the salvage value had been put at $3,900,000, Donlan testified. Donlan admitted that he and John D. Ryan, former Assistant Secretary of War and Director of the Bureau of Aircraft Production, who has been under fire in connection with the spruce contracts, had not been on friendly terms since before the war.

He said he was satisfied that Ryan was against him and that the Anaconda Copper Company, controlled by Mr. Ryan, had opposed his election to office when he ran for the State Senate, in 1914.

At the close of the hearing Representative James A. Frear, Chairman of the committee, announced that Brig. Gen. Disque had requested to be heard again as a witness and that opportunity would be given to him to testify in Washington, where the hearings will be resumed soon.

Court-Martial Considering Verdict.

After hearing testimony for twenty-four days at the Navy Yard, a court-martial started deliberation today on the verdict in the case of Lieut. Commander Christopher Marsden, charged with accepting graft in connection with enrollments in the Naval Reserve. The finding will be sealed and sent to Washington.

COTTON CROP YIELD DROPS.

Special Report Requested by Congress Shows a Falling Off.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The condition of the cotton crop on Oct. 25 was 51.1, according to a supplemental report issued today by the Department of Agriculture at the direction of Congress. No comparative figures for last year are available, the announcement said, and there is no basis for a forecast of production. The regular report, as of Sept. 25, gave the condition as 54.4 per cent. of normal, which forecast a production of 10,006,000 bales.

Congress directed that a new estimate as of Oct. 25 be prepared because members from Southern States insisted that the Sept. 25 crop forecast was erroneous, the Department of Agriculture not having taken abandoned acreage into consideration in its preparation. Today's report showed a decline of 3.3 points during the month, as compared with a decline of 7 points shown by the September estimate and an average decline of less than 5 points on the September date during the ten preceding years.

Virginia, 63; North Carolina, 64; South Carolina, 60; Georgia, 48; Florida, 35; Alabama, 44; Mississippi, 49; Louisiana, 32; Texas, 46; Arkansas, 55; Tennessee, 58; Missouri, 70; Oklahoma, 68; California, 92, and Arizona, 80.

SAY EDITOR TRIED BRIBERY.

Queens Candidate Charges Publisher Offered Support for Appointment.

James F. Sullivan, editor of the Long Island Daily Farmer and the Richmond Hill Courier was arrested last night on a charge of attempted bribery brought against him by Assistant District Attorney Edgar F. Hazleton, of Jamaica. The attempt at bribery consisted in an alleged offer of Sullivan to support Hazleton, who is Republican candidate for Justice of the Fourth District Municipal Court of Queens, provided a relative was appointed to office.

In an affidavit supporting the charge, Hazleton stated that on Oct. 24 Sullivan invited him to dinner at a hotel and told him that it was in his power either to elect or defeat him. "I want something for my support," Hazleton alleged Sullivan said. "I am not in this newspaper game for love. I will support you provided you promise me to appoint my father-in-law to the chief clerkship of your court if you are elected. The other side will give me anything I want."

Sullivan's father-in-law is Richard A. Hornmeyer of Hollis, former Tax Collector of Queens.

Sullivan was arrested in Hollis and taken to Jamaica, where he was released on bail furnished by his father-in-law. He refused to discuss the case saying that he would make reply in his newspaper.

PEKING, Oct. 30.—The keenest interest has been aroused by the action of Parliament in making in the budget a reduction of military expenditure from $250,000,000 to $160,000,000.

As it is uncertain whether the Tuchuns will comply, General Ni Ssu Chung Tuchun of Anhui, who advocates the reduction, is exchanging telegrams on this subject with other Tuchuns recommending an immediate 30 per cent. reduction.

National civil service examinations in modern subjects, which was established at the end of the Manchu dynasty, has been revived after a lapse of years. There are over 5,000 candidates. This action on the part of the President tends to check increasing nepotism.

MEXICAN PESO CUT DOWN.

Carranza Reduces Weight to Prevent Hoarding of Silver.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.—A new silver coinage for Mexico of a peso containing twelve grams of silver is provided for in a decree signed on Oct. 20 at Queretaro by President Carranza and which will be published today.

The amount of silver in the 50 and 20 centavo pieces is reduced in equal proportions.

Like the decree issued on Nov. 13, 1918, the present steps are taken to prevent the disappearance of Mexican silver coins as a result of the high price of silver.

Victor Emmanuel Visits Excavations at Basilica Near Pisa.

PISA, Italy, Oct. 31, (Associated Press.)—King Victor Emmanuel, at the invitation of Cardinal Maffi, Archbishop of Pisa, today visited the ancient Basilica of St. Peter, near here, where excavations are being made which seem to prove that the site was actually visited by St. Peter, in whose memory the original church was erected. The present Basilica was erected on the ruins of the early church, built in the fourth century. Tradition says the church marks the landing place of St. Peter on his way to Rome, the church being near the seashore.

THE REASON

I'M MOVING

From 1913 to 1918 I paid $7500.00 for this little store 12 by 20 ft.

Last month I was told to get out or pay $13500.00!
THAT'S WHY I'M GOING TO MOVE!

Can you beat this for rent profiteering?

$50 a sq. ft. Or Move

I HADN'T any idea that the above removal notice I put in my 42d Street window would almost cause a riot, and block traffic on the street.

It was a surprise to me that a simple statement of a few plain facts would cause so much favorable public comment and also interest Merchants uptown, and Bankers downtown.

I have been on 42d Street between Fifth and Madison for 10 years, and I think it is safe to say that I have sold more hats in a space about 12 by 20 feet than anyone in the hat business.

But no one can pay $50 a square foot for space, to sell men's hats at retail, and give the public a square deal.

I know, because I have been in this business all my life, and I own large and small stores in the best locations in the principal cities in this country.

I could change my policy, raise my price, charge you more—and remain at 42d Street. But I'd rather maintain my policy, hold my price—and MOVE. I'd rather put the money into the hats than give it to this landlord—and don't forget YOU pay the rent, no matter who runs the store.

Now, I don't feel sorry about severing my business relations with my landlord. But I regret causing any temporary inconvenience to customers who have bought Truly Warner hats in this store for so many years.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—Cabinet President Bauer was not too optimistic when in Parliament he said "there are unmistakable signs of a reawakening of the characteristic strenuousness of German workmen justifying our hopes that economic conditions will soon become quite tolerable."

The number of the unemployed has been reduced considerably from month to month. On Aug. 30 301,000 unemployed were counted in 113 cities. On Oct. 19 only 232,000 unemployed were counted in 117 cities, including Berlin and most of the large places. The Federal Labor Ministry calculates from these figures that there are about half a million unemployed in all Germany, while not six months ago it was nearly a million and a half.

From talks with officials and labor leaders THE TIMES correspondent gathers the reasons for this comparatively favorable situation. First, employes have already gained a considerable increase in wages and other privileges all around. Second, they are tired of strikes, seeing their gains in wages swallowed by enforced idleness. Third, the reawakening of trade with foreign countries, which has already assumed a much larger proportion than is realized outside of Germany.

Increases In Wages.

The ordinary clerk who earned 150 to 200 marks monthly before the war today earns 500 to 600. The mechanic earning 300 before the war now gets 1,000 and more. The unskilled laborer paid 900 marks and more now was formerly satisfied with 100. Farmhands whom the Junkers used to pay a mere pittance now get about 7 marks daily and decent food and lodgings. This may seem an exorbitant increase in wages, but, compared with the rise in prices all around, some of the laboring classes still have good ground for complaints.

There are on Joachimstalerstrasse a number of large grocery and delicatessen stores which act on the laborers' fancy like a red cloth on a steer. Here are displayed juicy hams, smoked salmon, choice cheeses, cakes, fruit and what not and the laborers and their wives and children stare at these luxuries that even with their increased wages they cannot ever hope to buy while before the war their much slenderer purses permitted a sample once in a while. They're tired of strikes because they find even increased wages cannot make up for the missed pay days. One great incentive for strikes formerly was the chance of an extra holiday, but since the eight-hour day was introduced the workmen have so much leisure they actually begin to hate it. THE TIMES correspondent only repeats here what tramway employes have told him. In some branches of industry overtime work, though officially prohibited, is tacitly permitted again and everywhere efforts are made for reintroduction of piece work to satisfy the more ambitious workmen.

The reawakening of commerce and industry, of course, plays no small part in the recovery of German labor. Certain branches, like the metal and chemical industry, are simply overwhelmed with orders from foreign countries and districts where these dominate like the Ruhr valley, and a number of Saxon districts have had no strikes whatever in the last four weeks. The manufacturers of Solingen have agents en route to recruit skilled workmen wherever found in Germany because they simply cannot supply all the goods ordered. They and other metal centres will only accept new orders if the buyers agree to pay the prices fixed by the Manufacturers Association when the goods are ready two or six months hence. If you don't agree you must give your orders outside of Germany.

In many branches of the metal industry the trade unions have consented to a reintroduction of piece-work, which acts as a great incentive, especially to married men because the present wages don't go far if you have five mouths to

President Keeps Improving; Condition Entirely Satisfactory

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Improvement in President Wilson's condition heretofore noted has been well maintained, said a bulletin issued today by Rear Admiral Grayson, the President's personal physician, following the weekly visit of Dr. F. X. Dercum of Philadelphia.

The bulletin, which was signed by Dr. Grayson, read:

The President's improvement as noted previously has been well maintained. His general condition continues to be entirely satisfactory.

Dr. Grayson explained that rumors that the executive work done by the President recently had had an ill effect on the Executive led him to depart from his announced plan of not issuing additional bulletins on the President's condition unless there was a decided change.

After the visit of Dr. Dercum, Dr. Hugh Young, the Baltimore specialist, called to determine as to the prostatic condition.

DEPICTS HEARST HIDDEN IN INK FOG

DEFENDS WELFARE BILLS

Governor, Renewing Attack, Declares Hearst Is Democracy's Greatest Enemy.

With references to the editor and owner of The New York American and The New York Journal as a "cuttlefish who emits this black vapor of ink in every edition of his paper for the purpose of hiding the proprietor and the men responsible for this assault upon me," and to The New York American as the "Mud-gutter Gazette," Governor Alfred E. Smith yesterday continued his attacks upon William R. Hearst at a meeting of 2,000 Democratic women of the Bronx, held under the auspices of the Bronx County Democratic Committee at Pythian Hall, Walton Avenue and 149th Street. The Governor laid a copy of last night's Journal before him, and after answering the various references to him in it, concluded that "you cannot look for the truth in this paper."

When the Governor entered the women rose in mass and cheered him for many minutes. At the first mention of Hearst there broke forth a storm of hisses. Among those who led in the applause and who prior to the Governor's arrival spoke upon the issues of the campaign were a number of prominent Democratic candidates in the Bronx. Supreme Court Justice Robert L. Luce spoke upon the necessity of withstanding radicalism, and Bronx President Henry Bruckner appealed for votes for Robert L. Moran for President of the Board of Aldermen. Surrogate George M. S. Schulz and Miss Mary E. Shea, who presided, were the other speakers.

After Governor Smith had recounted the fate of social welfare bills in the last Legislature as having been determined by the "forces of reaction that defeated this legislation in a cold-blooded and brutal way," he remarked that before he came to a close he wished "to pay my respects in a few words not only to what I consider the greatest enemy of democracy, but the greatest living enemy today of the people themselves, whose cause he pretends to espouse, and that is the owner and editor of The New York American and Journal."

"I said the other night," he continued, "and I cannot help but repeat, because I feel that it sums up this situation shorter and quicker than anything else can do it, that the man who preys upon any of our people, and particularly upon the poor, who misrepresents conditions to them to win their support, is the greatest enemy that they can have, while pretending to be their friend.

Calls Attack Wilful.

"Of course I appreciate the difficulty of a man beset upon all sides, with all the problems that I have to deal with, trying to keep track of newspapers of this type; it comes as near being a physical impossibility as anything that I can think of. But here we have a period in the history of the State unlike anything that we have passed through before. Unrest on all sides naturally. After the awful strain of war that convulsed not only this country, but the civilization of the world, you cannot expect everything to settle down in a minute.

"There have got to be disagreements; there have got to be quarrels; there has got to be dissatisfaction here and there. What is the great duty—but the intelligence, the common sense, and the good judgment of the average American citizen, that is the thing that will bring this country safely out of any trouble that it ever gets into. To say the least,

5,000 IN MAD RUSH FOR MINERAL RICHES IN THE SOUTHWEST

Government Opens 180,000 Acres of Land in Indian Reservations to Prospectors.

THREE STATES INCLUDED

Navajo and Apache Countries Chiefly Sought by Those in Search of Copper.

NO OIL OR COAL LEASES

Ranchers, Sheepmen, and Professional Men of Arizona, New Mexico and Texas in First Rush.

Special to The New York Times.

HOLBROOK, Ariz., Nov. 1.—Hoping thereby vastly to increase the mineral wealth of the country, the United States at noon today threw open Indian reservations to the prospector, and in Arizona at least five thousand persons took advantage of the twentieth-century opportunity to seek gold and copper, in a rush rivaling in thrills the famous dash of prospectors into Tonopah or Rawhide.

The Government has opened approximately 180,000 acres of hitherto publicly unprospected territory, a country which the Indian reluctantly admits is rich in mineral lands, and which the white prospector who made bold to trespass knows to be abundantly rich in surface indications. The lands opened in Arizona are the Navajo, Apache, Salt River, San Carlos, Winslow, Hopi, Moqui, and Colorado River reservations.

With a coal shortage threatening and the demand for oil greater, coal and oil experts are bemoaning the fact that they are not permitted to take coal and oil from the reservations. The Navajo Reservation is said to be especially rich in coal, and the geological formations are said to be right for oil. The Government, however, is admitting only those in search of metalliferous mines. The coal and oil men will have to wait, as did many who at noon today rushed wildly to stake claims on properties which they will later lease from the Government.

It is into the Navajo and Apache countries that the majority of the prospectors have gone. The young braves of the latter tribes are friendly to the white man, but the older chieftains are reported to be "sad."

During the last three weeks groups of prospectors have set out from Holbrook or Gallup or Globe, these cities serving as bases, and, with pack mules, have traveled the long miles to the reservation line. From Globe groups entered the Apache reservation chiefly in search of copper, already extensively mined in Arizona. From Holbrook parties journeyed to both the larger reservations and to the others. The Gallup exodus was chiefly in the direction of the Navajo country, part of which extends into New Mexico.

The rush has come from various parts of the country, many Western mining engineers taking part, but naturally enough Arizona, West Texas, and New Mexico have furnished the majority of the prospectors. Many hundreds of cattlemen and sheepmen have quit their ranches and flocks and professional men their practices for a sojourn into the Indian country lasting from ten days to a month, or until plans laid long in advance have matured or been abandoned. Important legal matters in Holbrook must await the return of one of her three practicing attorneys.

Tense, rugged men, of a character for which the American prospector is famous, have gone out to try their luck, many groups inevitably bent upon standing a monument upon the name rich property. It is highly probable, in the opinion of native residents of Holbrook, that several new "boothills" will be established upon the reservations. In the old days of the frontier, the cemetery in every town and mining camp was called "boothill," because many of its inmates died, literally, "with their boots on."

War by the Indians is not much feared as war between the rival white men. Not one white man leaving Holbrook for a reservation in the last few days has gone unarmed. Most of them have gone out armed "for bear." They have carried, as a rule, a high-powered rifle and a six-shooter or two, the old-timers two.

It is thought almost certain here that tomorrow or Monday will see the less rugged in the venturesome army of gold seekers straggling into white settlements near the reservation, telling a story of abandoned hopes. Within a few days rumors of a worthwhile strike may reach the lines of the railroad which is also the line of telegraphic communications.

Upon and around the Carrizo, the prospectors expect to find mineral deposits. Others have considered the vicinity of the Navajo better suited to their purposes. Still others will cast about with no set aim, hoping that the luck which did not permit a trespass in advance of the Government's sanction will break and admit of a lucky strike. Few properties found now could be worked until the spring. A place, said property, of which there are said to be many, might turn a tidy sum for the individual.

To the south, on the Apache territory, about thirty miles from Globe, it is related that there is a copper property which would give an immense yield. A dash for this is being made by representatives of mining interests of Globe and Bisbee. Several Holbrook interests are also represented in this scramble.

SCAPA SHIPS TO BE REPAID

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—The Allied Governments will not deposit ratifications of the Treaty of Versailles before Nov. 20. This became known tonight after a session of the Supreme Council which lasted nearly all day. England, France and Italy hope that America will have ratified the treaty by that time. Private and public reports from Washington strengthen that belief.

PARIS, Nov. 1, (Associated Press.)—The demand that will be made upon Germany that all violations of the armistice shall be made good. This has been decided upon by the Supreme Council, which has completed the protocol to the German treaty.

The protocol provides that Germany shall surrender cruisers and destroyers to replace those sunk at Scapa Flow, and also surrender floating dry docks, lighters, cranes, tugs, and other naval equipment equal in value to that of the first-class battleships destroyed, which Germany cannot replace.

There is no provision in the protocol as to how the warships and naval supplies shall be divided among the allied and associated powers. Germany has been asked to send a commission to Paris to sign the protocol and attend the formal ratification of the treaty.

The Supreme Council discussed for a long time today the date of the formal ratification of the German Peace Treaty. No positive decision was reached, but it is said to be unlikely that the date will be earlier than Nov. 20.

The Supreme Council today drafted a note to the Berlin Government inviting it to send a delegation to Paris to arrange for putting the Versailles treaty into effect.

The note also informed Germany that she must sign a protocol providing for the carrying out of unfulfilled armistice conditions before the treaty would become effective.

Bulgaria has obtained an extension of the period within which she must make her decision on the Peace Treaty. The Supreme Council today gave its consent to the request for additional time made by the Bulgarian delegation.

The council has also completed its reply to the Bulgarian request for changes in the Peace Treaty, and will probably submit it to the Bulgarian representatives tomorrow, granting ten days for the signing.

According to The Temps, the Council likewise considered the terms of a note which will shortly be sent to the Jugo-slav and Rumanian Governments setting forth the status of those Governments with regard to the Bulgarian treaty and informing them that it does not seem possible to allow them to sign that treaty so long as they have not given their assent to the treaty with Austria.

The council also considered the reply to be made to Germany regarding her refusal to take part in the blockade of Soviet Russia.

The "battalion of death," which wants the treaty rejected regardless of whether the majority's reservation program wins, is willing to have a definite time set for voting on the reservations, it was explained today, but wants a vote is taken after that before the lapse of time, so the resolution of ratification.

UNORGANIZED MEN AT WORK

Assert 60% of Mines in Pennsylvania Are Open and That West Virginia Is Unaffected.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—That the 425,000 union bituminous coal miners of the United States have obeyed the mandates of their national leaders and quit work to a man was the statement made today by Edgar Wallace and Walter J. James, the official representatives in Washington of the United Mine Workers of America. Mr. Wallace made the further claim that within the next few days a large proportion of non-union miners will stop work out of sympathy for the union workers. Asked what basis he had for this claim, Wallace replied that he did not care to disclose the source of his information.

"The Government," he said, "by its action at Indianapolis yesterday precipitated itself into a purely industrial dispute and by its act has tied the whole matter of the strike into a hard knot."

"Actually, basing your answer upon reports from the various strike zones, how many have struck?" Wallace was asked.

"With the exception of those we have ordered to continue at work in fulfillment of legitimate contracts," Wallace replied, "all the union miners of the bituminous fields of this country are now on strike. We have no reports as yet from the non-union fields, but from past experience I am in a position to say that vast numbers of the non-union men will strike of their own accord."

"When do you expect the non-union men to begin leaving the mines?" he was asked.

"Right away," Wallace answered.

He denied that the United Mine Workers are seeking to bring about a general strike of all organized labor in order to force the wage and work time concessions asked by the bituminous miners.

"We have planned no general strike," he said, "and furthermore we are not asking for one. This is a miners' strike. If other labor organizations think their interests as well as ours are involved, the matter of a sympathetic strike is up to them, not to us. Our strike is purely an economic affair."

Contend Contract Ended Feb. 1, 1919.

The following joint statement was issued by Wallace and Lewis in behalf of the United Mine Workers:

"The re-establishment by the Government at this time of a maximum selling price for bituminous coal in various districts is, in effect, a recognition of the validity of the claim of the miners that when on Feb. 1, 1919, the Fuel Administration abrogated all restrictions on selling prices they thereby ended the contract known as the Washington agreement which was entered into on Oct. 8, 1918, by the Government, the operators, and the miners, providing for wages, rates, and selling prices at mines. Therefore, we hold it is established that the miners have no contract with the operators. We stand willing now, as ever, to negotiate a contract with the owners of the mines without reservations, even as we have from the beginning of the controversy.

"We have reason to believe that but for the intervention of the Government and the partisan stand taken by the Government we could have formulated an agreement, if not by this time, in the immediate future, that would have obviated any inconvenience to the public.

"All the union miners are out. They will return to work whenever they are notified that an agreement acceptable to them has been reached with the operators. Until that time they do not need any further instructions. The restraining order granted the Government by Judge A. B. Anderson of Indianapolis prohibits the distribution of funds. The net effect of this action will be to increase resentment of the miners and make negotiations for settlement more difficult."

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation, who last night authorized a statement in which he said that by seeking to end the strike by injunction the Government "has created new issues," which "may not be confined to the mines," was not at his office in the American Federation of Labor Building this afternoon. It was said that he had nothing to add at this

Trainmen's Chief Avows Sympathy With Miners; Thinks Injunction Move Will Be Disturbing

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 1.—Members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, the largest of the railroad brotherhoods, are in full sympathy with the miners in the coal strike, W. G. Lee, President of the brotherhood, declared here on his return from Washington today.

The injunction against the miners' strike "will probably disturb industrial conditions to a far greater extent than recognized," Mr. Lee said.

Mr. Lee will return to Washington on Monday, where he expects to receive an answer on Tuesday from Director General Hines on the demands of the brotherhood for increased wages.

Mr. Lee's statement follows:

Our organization is fully in sympathy with the miners in attempting to secure a living wage and better working conditions and believes that the position taken by the Government in connection with the injunction issued will probably disturb industrial conditions to a far greater extent than recognized by those in charge of governmental affairs.

The railroad brotherhoods will assist the miners in every honorable and consistent way, and the officers of the miners' organization fully understand the brotherhoods' position.

I have not assumed to impose my opinion or presence either at the White House or upon the Attorney General in connection with the miners' strike, because no intimation from the officers of the miners' organization has come to the Trainmen's Brotherhood to my knowledge requesting such assistance or the use of our influence.

COAL COMMITTEES TO ALLOT SUPPLIES

EMERGENCY NEEDS FIRST

Railroad Administration Making a Survey of Districts Where Stocks Are Scant.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The Railroad Administration completed its plans today for the distribution of the available coal supply during the strike period and announced that from this time on bituminous coal would be furnished only to those who had no reserve supply and who must have fuel to meet emergency needs.

A central coal committee will have headquarters at Washington and regional coal committees will be set up at Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Roanoke, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, and Atlanta. Applications for coal are to be made by consumers to the railroads from which they have heretofore been obtaining their supplies. The committees will then pass upon the merits of each application.

A careful survey of the situation in districts where a shortage would probably cause the most difficulty within a short time is being made, and the requirements and the estimated supplies available are being checked up. It is the purpose of the Railroad Administration, through its committees, to supply as far as possible transit systems such as the Interborough and B. R. T. in New York and Brooklyn, which may not have large supplies on hand, but the utmost economy of usage will be insisted upon in all cases.

Large supplies have been rushed to vantage points during the last week, and in this effort to prepare for the strike the railroads have been aided by the miners themselves, who produced a supply last week which set a new record for the year. The miners are paid according to the quantity of coal produced, and in this case, foreseeing the strike, they sought to obtain as much money as possible to put aside for the coming period of idleness.

Explain Plan to Consumers.

Details of the procedure to be followed in the distribution of coal were prepared today by the Railroad Administration for the information of consumers. The announcement is summed up as follows:

"Bituminous coal, including lignite, taken and held in accordance with the instructions of the Director General of Oct. 29 and 31, 1919, or thereafter, will be handled by the Director General and the Regional Directors through the agency of a Central Coal Committee at Washington and Regional Coal Committees which will be established jointly by the Regional Directors and the Fuel Administration. Such Regional Coal Committees will comprise the following representatives: One appointed by the United States Fuel Administrator, and such others as the Regional Director may select to handle matters of purchase, distribution, and accounting.

"2. The bituminous coal held must be distributed only to those consumers who have no reserve supply, and must have coal to meet their emergency needs. The following order of preference shall govern the Regional Coal Committees in such distribution as they may make within their jurisdiction for emergency consumption in the United States and Canada: (A) Railroads. (B) Army and navy, together with other departments of the Federal Government. (C) State and county departments and institu-

MINERS' LEADERS OBEY COURT ORDER

PREPARE FOR LEGAL FIGHT

Counsel for Union Completes Plans to Resist Permanent Injunction.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 1.—United Mine Workers headquarters was quiet today. Most of the members of the executive board had returned to their homes, but John L. Lewis, acting President, and William Green, Secretary-Treasurer, were at headquarters. Mr. Lewis when asked about developments said with a smile that he did not think he could "say anything that would add to the gaiety of nations."

No disposition has been shown on the part of the union officials in the Indiana district to disobey the restraining order. It will be complied with in every respect, they say, but they add that the strike can be effective despite it.

Apparently the immediate effect of the restraining order has been to make the men less willing to talk arbitration than before. That the order will prevent the distribution of strike benefits does not seem to alarm them. Older members recall the fact that the most effective strike in which the miners ever participated, the one in which recognition of the union was enforced, was in 1897. M. D. Ratchford was President, and did not have enough money in the treasury to mail the strike order and had to go out and borrow money on his own responsibility to buy stamps. The men stayed out three months and won the strike without receiving strike benefits.

Mr. Stewart, the District President, and Mr. Mitch, the Secretary-Treasurer, arrived in Indianapolis today to consult with the national officers regarding the restraining order.

Prepare for Battle in the Courts.

A legal battle of national interest is expected before Judge A. B. Anderson of the Federal Court next Saturday, when the issue will be argued as to whether the temporary restraining order preventing the leaders of the mine workers from directing the strike shall become a temporary injunction or perhaps a permanent injunction.

Federal officers directing the suit assert that the complaint of the Federal Government on which the restraining order was issued presents the question of whether the Government has the power to protect the public as against a group. The complaint is brought under the Lever Food and Fuel Control act, and while the Federal officials say that the right of the individual to strike is not attacked, union leaders contend that it is, at least indirectly, because leadership and agreements on a line of conduct are restrained in a way designed to defeat a strike, and because the Government will ask later on for an order directing the International Executive Board to withdraw the strike call.

Dan W. Simms of Lafayette has been appointed special assistant United States attorney to act during the emergency in the enforcement of the temporary restraining order of Judge A. B. Anderson and of whatever other orders may be issued on the petition for an injunction. Mr. Simms enters on his duties immediately.

Owing to the pressure of business incident on the trial of cases beginning next Tuesday in the Federal Court, the appointment of a special Assistant District Attorney was deemed advisable by the Department of Justice, according to

PREDICT SHORT STRUGGLE

Washington Officials Expect End in 30 Days — Ample Force of Troops Ready.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Attorney General Palmer tonight telegraphed to all United States District Attorneys to be on the alert for possible violations of the coal strike restraining order issued by Judge Anderson at Indianapolis yesterday, and in the event that such violations are discovered to communicate immediately with the Department of Justice.

The Attorney General specifically calls the attention of the Federal attorneys to the possibility of concerted action on the part of two or more persons to limit the facilities for producing or transporting fuel. His orders are that in the event of such concerted action the District Attorney of the district in which the offense is committed must communicate to Washington the full particulars of the offense as well as the names of all persons concerned.

These instructions show that the Government will not confine itself to watching the national leaders, but that through its bureau of investigation, which is in charge of William J. Flynn, it intends to see that the orders of the court are obeyed by all, be they national or local leaders of the United Mine Workers of America, ordinary miners, operators, employers, or any other persons.

The Attorney General also calls for vigilance in enforcing the coal price regulations of the Fuel Administration and any person who profiteers in coal is to be proceeded against promptly.

One object that is understood to be sought through the instructions is to prevent agitation by radicals among the miners.

Text of Attorney General's Message.

The telegram to the Federal attorneys as made public by the Attorney General reads:

Nov. 1, 1919.

Yesterday at Indianapolis, Judge Anderson, on the application of the United States, issued a temporary restraining order restraining a large number of officials of the United Mine Workers from taking any action or proceeding of any kind whatsoever in furtherance of the bituminous coal strike which had been previously called. It is of the utmost importance that I should be promptly advised of any concerted action by any two or more persons in your district to carry forward this strike.

Please communicate with the Marshall and the local representatives of the Bureau of Investigation and keep yourself fully informed of the situation in your district. If you discover any concerted action by any two or more persons, either employers, employes, or others, which amounts to an agreement or arrangement to limit the facilities for transporting, producing, supplying, storing, or dealing in coal or to restrict the supply or distribution of same or to exact excessive prices for coal or to aid or abet in the doing of any such act you should advise me at once by wire, giving me names of persons and full particulars.

Federal Fuel Administrator has issued order restoring former prices fixed by Fuel Administration and any profiteering in coal should be promptly proceeded against

A. MITCHELL PALMER.

Mr. Palmer would not comment on the action taken tonight. The telegram, he added, speaks for itself.

The Attorney General said that he had received reports today from many of the strike zones and that some of these reports—he mentioned those from Alabama, Kentucky, and Wyoming—were that many of the union members would like to keep at work and that they would do so if adequate protection were given.

"Will these men, if they really want to work, receive protection?" Mr. Palmer was asked.

"They will," was his reply.

The Attorney General said that he did not expect to get an accurate estimate of the extent of the strike before Monday or Tuesday. He pointed out that today was a general holiday in many of the coal fields and that it was also All Saints' Day. A large proportion of the miners observe religious holidays.

Judge Ames, who represented the Government in the proceedings before Judge Anderson at Indianapolis yesterday, arrived in Washington this afternoon and immediately went into conference with the Attorney General. It was following that conference that the telegram to the Federal attorneys was sent. Neither the Attorney General nor Judge Ames disclosed anything that had been said at their conference.

Large Force of Troops Available.

The plans for guarding nonunion mines and workers as well as union properties in which the miners show a desire to resume work are ready to be put into execution on a moment's notice. There are now available for this duty fifty-two regiments of infantry, twenty-eight of field artillery, four regiments of cavalry, and twenty machine gun battalions, these troops being independent of the divisions mobilized on the Mexican border. It will not be necessary, it is said, to draw a single man from the Rio Grande district.

In the Eastern department, which includes the coal States of Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Virginia, are ten regiments of infantry, one battery of field artillery, and one regiment of cavalry. These troops are from Governors Island, New York, and are all within less than a day's trip by rail of any mine in the department.

The infantry organizations in the department are the 12th, at Camp Stuart, Va.; the 13th, at Camp Merritt, N. J., the 17th, at Camp Meade, Md., the 22d, at Governors Island, Buffalo, and Aberdeen, Md.; the 36th, at Camp Devens, Mass.; the 42d, at Camp Upton; the 43d, at Camp Lee, Va.; the 45th, at Camp Dix; the 62d, at Camp Lee, and the 63d, at Plattsburg, N. Y.

Two battalions of the third cavalry are at Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., and the third battalion is at Fort Myer, Va. The artillery of this department is also at Fort Myer.

In the Central Department, which includes more bituminous mines than all the other departments put together, are twenty-four regiments of infantry, fourteen of field artillery, one of cavalry, and twelve machine gun battalions. In this department are the coal States of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, West Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, and the Dakotas.

At Camp Dodge, Iowa, are the 2d, 30th, 47th, 58th, and 59th Infantry; at Camp Grant, Ill., are the 14th, 51st, 53d, and 54th Regiments; at Camp Taylor, Ky., the 16th, 18th, 20th, and 28th. These are the infantry units of the 1st Division. At Camp Funston, Kan., are the 34th, 41st, 55th, 56th, and 64th Regiments, all Infantry.

The 10th Infantry is at Camp Custer, Mich.; the 1st Battalion of the 20th is at Fort Brady, Mich., and the 2d Battalion at Fort Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis, while the 40th Infantry is at Chillicothe, Ohio.

In addition, there are in this department the 2d, 3d, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 11th, 13th, 16th, 77th, 78th, 79th, 80th, 81st, and 83d Regiments of Field Artillery. Also in the department are the 1st, 2d, 3d, 10th, 11th, 12th, 16th, 17th 18th, 19th, 20th, and 21st Machine Gun Battalions, which are mobilized at Camp Dodge, Camp Funston, Camp Grant and Camp Taylor, there being three battalions at each of these places. The 2d Cavalry is at Fort Riley, Kan.

In the Southern States are the 4th, 6th, 7th, 9th, 11th, 23d, 29th, 30th, 35th, 38th, 46th, 55th, 57th, 60th and 61st Regiments of Infantry, the 1st, 4th, 9th, 10th, 12th, 14th, 15th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 21st, and 76th Regiments of Field Artillery. At Fort Oglethorpe is the 6th Cavalry, while the 4th and 5th Machine Gun Battalions are at Camp Travis, the 8th and 9th Battalions at Little Rock, Ark., and the 13th, 14th, and 18th Battalions at Atlanta.

In the Far West are the 21st, 32d, and 44th Regiments of Infantry, and the 11th Cavalry.

In addition to all these troops, which include some of the crack veteran commands, the War Department has ready for service all the necessary technical and auxiliary troops. It is known the Signal Corps is planning to connect by wireless all commands that may be ordered to guard duty in the coal districts.

Today's War Department reports show that at the present time, including the border force, there are in the United States 200,884 troops of the regular army.

Expect End Within a Month.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1, (Associated Press.)—How long the strike might run, the possibility of mediation, and a checkup on the nation's available supply of coal were the principal questions engaging the attention of Cabinet members today. Some of the reports on the supply were more encouraging, and, with the continued operation of the nonunion mines, it was said that the supply would meet current needs.

The Geological Survey, supplementing a statement issued last night by Secretary Lane, said that soft coal production for the last week of October was 13,118,000 tons, probably a record.

Nobody professed to know how long the strike might run, but officials in closest touch with plans for meeting it estimated its duration at thirty days at the outside. They believed that the country had coal enough to last that long.

Telegrams were received at the Department of Justice from many States commending the stand of the Government. Governor A. H. Roberts of Tennessee telegraphed:

"Tennessee will stand solidly with you in all your efforts to maintain order and protection of life and liberty."

Governor Oliver H. Shoup of Colorado telegraphed:

"People of Colorado heartily approve of action taken by President Wilson and Attorney General Palmer. National Guard of Colorado already mobilized for protection of lifea nd liberty."

The Legal Department of Texas, through Attorney General C. M. Cureton, offered to assist the Federal agencies "in any action permitted by law."

Commendation of Attorney General Palmer's stand against "anarchy and Bolshevism" was expressed in a resolution adopted by the Chamber of Commerce of Memphis, Tenn. Other telegrams were said to be of a similar trend, but were not given out because they contained some confidential information.

CHICAGO PLACES TOTAL ON STRIKE AT 435,820

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Although tonight found nearly all the nation's vast bituminous coal fields idle as a result of the miners' strike, effective Friday midnight, thousands of nonunion miners were at work, and in scattered districts where contracts still were in force union miners reported today as usual. Figures compiled tonight and based chiefly upon union leaders' claims, although in many cases conceded by the operators, showed that 435,820 men were on strike.

In its physical aspect the strike apparently had largely stopped production of soft coal, but with large nonunion fields in Pennsylvania, Kentucky and West Virginia still operating at somewhere near normal, and with a number of smaller fields also working with union contract miners, the actual effect on production could not be definitely stated.

The first day of the strike was All Saints' Day and also Saturday, a virtual holiday in many mining regions, and the full power of the United Mine Workers of America, which ordered the strike, cannot be fully gauged until Monday, operators said.

Coal operators said thousands of nonunion miners were producing coal in usual quantities, although conceding that in union fields the strike was effective.

Union leaders reported in most instances that the strike was virtually 100 per cent. effective throughout the country.

Alabama	23,000	New Mexico	800
Arkansas	4,000	North Dakota	120
Colorado	5,000	Ohio	40,000
Illinois	80,000	Oklahoma	10,000
Indiana	32,000	Pennsylvania	87,000
Iowa	14,000	Tennessee	10,000
Kansas	13,000	Texas	4,000
Kentucky	20,000	Utah	1,000
Maryland	4,000	Washington	6,000
Michigan	2,400	West Virginia	42,000
Missouri	9,000	Wyoming	5,000
Montana	4,000

WEST VIRGINIA MINES OPEN.

But Union Officials Assert the 40,000 Organized Workers Have Quit.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 1.—"On the first day of the coal strike the total production of the mines in West Virginia was at the rate of 50,000,000 tons a year. The normal yearly production is 85,000,000 tons." This assertion was made tonight by T. L. Lewis, secretary of the New River Coal Operators' Association and former President of the United Mine Workers of America.

The mines of the Pocahontas district, Tug River district, Winding Gulf district, Guyan Valley district, Williamson-Thacker district, six mines in the Panhandle district, and a few small mines in the northern part of the State are operating at normal capacity," Lewis declared.

The Coral mine and Lookout mines, in the New River district, are operating, as are also mines at Kingston, Westerly, Paint Creek, and Dundon.

Of a total of 91,000 miners in West Virginia 40,000 union miners are out on strike, according to a statement issued by Fred Mooney, Secretary of District 17, here tonight.

TO GET COAL TO PLANTS.

Lieb and Elliott Will Aid Administration During the Strike.

John W. Lieb and George Elliott, Chairman and Secretary, respectively, of a special committee representing the 15,000 electric light and power companies affiliated with the National Electric Light Association, left here yesterday for Washington. They will cooperate with Director General Hines and Fuel Administrator Garfield regarding the maintenance of the fuel supply to public utility and related companies during the strike.

M. H. Aylesworth, operating manager of the association, said the committee's functions would be similar to that which it exercised during the war in helping to conserve coal and to allocate the supply. A number of light and power companies, Mr. Aylesworth said, had advised him that they already were facing a fuel shortage, and in some instances, he said, higher prices were being demanded for coal.

GAS COMPANY HAS COAL.

Consolidated Possesses Supply for 90 Days, Says Livingston.

Replying to statements that the various gas companies were in danger of failing short on the coal supply, Robert E. Livingston of the Consolidated Gas Company issued a statement yesterday to the effect that all of the gas and electric companies of Manhattan and the Bronx had enough coal to last for ninety days.

"Therefore, he said, patrons of the company need have no anxiety because of the threatened coal strike.

BAER WANTS MINES SEIZED.

Offers Proposal in House That Wilson Take Possession of Them.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—President Wilson was urged in a resolution introduced today by Representative Baer, Republican, of North Dakota, to take possession of the bituminous coal mines and negotiate voluntary agreements with the workers, so as to insure the uninterrupted mining of coal and guarantee the interests of the operators and miners during the period of emergency.

SAY CANTON STRIKE IS OVER

Steel Mills Predict Normal Capacity Next Week—Troops Withdrawn.

CANTON, O., Nov. 1.—Mill managers here today summarized the steel strike in one sentence: "The strike here practically is ended." Officers of the Stark Rolling mills announced that men in large numbers have returned to work and that normal capacity was assured beginning Monday.

At the United Alloy company's plant more men were taken on and the officials expressed confidence that the mill would be running at full capacity next week.

Only 800 Quit Work in New Mexico.

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 1.—Of the 4,860 men employed in coal mines in New Mexico, approximately 800 did not go to work today as a result of the soft coal mine strike order.

HANSON URGES WAR TO FINISH ON STRIKE

MUST OUST THE "LENINS"

Nation Ready to Fight Miners for Control, He Says—People Want Treaty Settled.

Terming the President's letter on the coal strike "a new Declaration of Independence," Ole Hanson, former Mayor of Seattle, who suppressed the first outbreak of Sovietism in America, declared last night that there must be a "showdown" in the strike.

"Americanism is the issue," he said, "and there can be no compromise."

Returning from a five weeks' tour through the Western and Southern States Mr. Hanson went to the Waldorf-Astoria, where he was asked to tell what the people thought of the strike and also how he, considering his experience with mass disorder in Seattle, regarded it.

"The demand for a six-hour day and a five-day week, with great increase in pay, is considered everywhere as an outrageous, burglarious holdup. I have not been able to find one man, during all my travels, who is in sympathy with the strikers.

"The people believe that, even if every demand was granted, next week still more outrageous and unjust demands would be made. The people want a showdown. They want no more compromises and un-American surrenders. The farmers from the Middle West would sooner cut down their fruit trees and burn them for fuel than to have our Government surrender. The people in the cities feel the same way—they are 'fed up' with strikes and industrial trouble. They want domestic peace and are willing to fight to get it.

Coal Mines Must Run.

"The Governor of Oklahoma expresses the sentiment of his State when he says: 'The coal mines must run.' And they must, and that's all there is to it. The leaders refuse to arbitrate. All right, so be it. The public is in no mood for trifling, and as long as the fight between Americanism and syndicalism—or Bolshevism—must come, let it come right now!

"Shortage of coal means death to industry. It means starvation; it means death. The leaders of the miners may work underground, but the people know what they are up to.

"It is time we had a showdown. If 110,000,000 people must submit to the American Lenins and Trotzkys, we ought to know it."

Mr. Hanson declared that the people want no "cowardly compromise or un-American surrender," and also they want to have a say in the settlement.

Letter a New Declaration.

"President Wilson wrote a new Declaration of Independence from his sick bed when he issued his letter on the coal strike," he said, "and the people are back of him to the last comma in his letter. They will back him up. There is no fear in their hearts. They all want a showdown. They are ready to fight this thing out, if it takes all Winter. If the authorities want volunteers to mine the coal, thousands will come at their request.

"Toleration of anarchy has brought its usual reward. Hundreds of alien Reds under sentence of deportation walk the streets. Thousands more should be placed on trial and convicted. If the Reds were where they ought to be, they would need no coal to heat.

The ex-Mayor was asked what the people were saying about the League of Nations. He replied:

"While our statesmen at Washington and some of our great newspapers are discussing Fiume and Shantung and foreign matters the people where I have traveled talked only of domestic problems. They want the Peace Treaty voted up or voted down, but when you brought up the subject of the League of Nations, and you had to bring it up—they never did—they expressed a desire that our statesmen and public men should get through with it, have done with the seemingly endless discussions and recrimination, and attend to their business as their hired men were supposed to do."

FEW RAILROAD TRAINS TO BE DROPPED HERE

Will Inconvenience Public Little, Says Hardin—New England Service to be Cut.

A. T. Hardin, Regional Director of the Eastern District, said yesterday that a few trains would be dropped from the schedule in this district on Monday, but that the reduction in service would be very slight and would cause no material inconvenience to the public.

He said that he could not yet state specifically what trains in New York many would be eliminated, but that only trains not urgently necessary for the accommodation of the public would be dropped at this time.

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Passenger and freight train service on New England railroads will be materially reduced because of the coal miners' strike. Percy R. Todd, Director for New England of the Railroad Administration, announced today that a meeting of the managers of all the roads of this section had been called to determine the number of trains to be taken off each line. The reduction will be made immediately.

Mr. Todd's statement said:

"On account of the absolute necessity of conserving bituminous coal in every possible way and in order to keep a reasonable amount of passenger and freight service in effect, it will be necessary for the railroads throughout the entire country to modify their train service, and this will be done immediately in New England proportionately as it is done in other sections of the country."

FAR WEST COAL MINES COMPLETELY TIED UP

Only Collieries Unaffected Are in Utah and North Dakota, Where Strike Order Was Rescinded.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 1.—Colorado mines today were producing 15 per cent. of their normal output of coal, according to a statement issued by James Dalrymple, State Coal Mins Inspector. 50,000 MINERS STRIKE IN PITTSBURGH DISTRICT

But Nonunion Men in Western Pennsylvania Remain at Work and a Few Mines Are Open.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Nov. 1.—Between 40,000 and 50,000 coal miners laid down their tools in Western Pennsylvania this morning in response to the nation-wide union mine strike call, but most nonunion mines remained on the job. In nearly all sections where nonunion mines are operated the men reported for work, notably throughout the Allegheny Valley, operators reported.

Two big open-shop mines at Brackenridge and Natroma operated today as usual. More than 3,500 miners were reported to be out in the district, including Harmarville, Harwick, Indianola, Russellton, Curtisville, Creighton, Valley and Tarentum. Mines of the Ford Collieries Company, Superior Fuel Company, Republic Coal Company, McFetridge Bituminous Coal Company, Crucible Fuel Company, Aluminum Company of America, Valley Camp Coal Company, and Harwick Coal Company are closed down. It was said 90 per cent. of the miners in the lower Allegheny valley district have obeyed the strike order.

State troopers are on duty in the strike zone although the mines are so scattered that it is difficult to maintain patrols. Deputy Sheriffs were sworn in yesterday in some of the mines. No disorder was reported at any place.

At Brackenridge and Natroma this morning miners entered the collieries of the Allegheny Coal and Coke Company and Penn Salt Manufacturing Company as usual. "Open shop" rules are in force at both mines and employes there say they will continue to work without interruption. Five hundred miners employed in the country mines in the vicinity of Tarentum and Russelton were at work today.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 1. (Associated Press.)—Sheriff William S. Haddock tonight by proclamation notified the striking miners of Allegheny County that the full power of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, through all of its agencies, will be used to protect those who desire to work and to continue to work and to suppress disorder whenever and wherever it arises."

STRIKE THREATENS INDUSTRIES IN ITALY

Scandinavia Also Likely to be Hard Hit by Lack of American Coal.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The American coal strike is expected in well informed circles here to have a greater direct effect in Italy and Scandinavia than in England.

British steamships may be forced to fill their bunkers before sailing for the round trip across the Atlantic, instead of relying on the supply in America. This will be inconvenient, but its effect will be much less far-reaching than the failure which coal supplies from America will cause in Italy.

Coal importation is vital to the industry of that country, it was emphasized at the Coal Controller's office to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today, and the Italians in Bolsheviki are likely to seize any opportunity afforded by economic difficulties to cause trouble.

When Signor Crespi, the Italian Food Controller, visited London recently he said that Italian industries could be saved only by an exceptional period of peace, and now it seems that in the next week or two they will be faced by a critical situation. Possibly the newly discovered supplies in Greece will ease this somewhat, but to what extent they are being worked is uncertain.

BARCELONA TERRORIZED.

Syndicalists Control City — Crisis Feared When Lockout Starts.

MADRID, Nov. 1, (Associated Press.)—Travelers from Barcelona report a very serious situation as existing in that city, which is practically under control of the Syndicalists, and fear is expressed that trouble will occur when the Employers' Federation enforces the lockout on Monday.

A large military force moved into the city today, and a clash with the Syndicalists, who are described as "pure revolutionists," is considered unavoidable.

The Syndicalists proved their power during the strike of the hotel and restaurant staffs which has been in progress for some weeks, making it impossible for visitors to obtain food at any public place. Those visitors who were without resident friends found themselves in straits a few days ago when the employes of various clubs joined the strikers. Recently success had been the salvation of those without homes.

The situation is said to be aggravated by the weakness of the municipal authorities and the way in which some employers ally the leaders of the Syndicalists to dictate to them. One of the clubs recently succeeded in finding a woman cook, but feared to employ her until it had applied to Syndicalist headquarters for permission to do so. Approval was denied, and members of the club had to find meals as best they could.

L. Ert. Slack, United States attorney for the district, who was authorized to make the appointment. The cases up for trial in the court, it is expected, will require the constant attention of the District Attorney and his regular assistants for at least three weeks.

Federal Agents Consolidate Plans.

John B. Creighton, assistant to the Attorney General of the United States in charge of the Bureau of Investigation, is personally directing the work of the bureau in this city. An augmented force of operatives is on hand, and arrangements are said to be completed in detail for the work of enforcing the order of the court. Mr. Creighton and Charles P. Tighe, in charge of the work in the district, declined to specify what is being done to meet the emergency.

Harry Warrum, general counsel for the United Mine Workers, will have charge of the defense. He has not yet chosen his assistants. The district organizations have attorneys and the assistance of many of these attorneys has been offered. Alton B. Parker of New York has been engaged in some of the litigation of the United Mine Workers, and he may be called in on the case.

C. B. Ames, Assistant Attorney General of the United States, who came to Indianapolis and filed the complaint, is expected to return to Indianapolis for the hearing Saturday. Ferdinand Winter and Will H. Latta have been engaged to assist the Federal Government.

A menace to a property right usually is involved in a request for a temporary restraining order. The property right is presented in this complaint by the allegation that the strike would stop operation of the railroads and that the Federal Government has contracts to pay the railroads a certain income and that this would have to be paid whether the railroads were operated or not.

The hardest legal battle will be fought over the Government's request, which may come up Saturday, for an order directing the International Executive Board to withdraw the strike call. The request is said to be something new. If the order to the board to recall the strike was issued and the board refused to obey it the members could be held in contempt of court and would face the possibility of being sent to jail.

KENTUCKY MINES ARE CLOSED

But Collieries in Four Counties Are Exempted Under the Strike Call.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 1.—Reports from the Kentucky mines show that practically all the men have obeyed the strike order except in the four counties of Hopkins, Christian, Webster, and Union, in the western end of the State, where the miners were ordered to remain at work owing to the anti-strike clause in their contracts, and in the Hazard section in Perry County.

The eastern end of the State is included in what is known as District No. 19, which employs about 12,000 men. With the exception of those around Hazard, where it is said the men are still at work, practically all have quit.

Mines of the Wisconsin Steel Company and the United States Coal and Coke Company at Lynch and Benham in Harlan County, the largest in the South, are idle.

Altogether there are approximately 17,000 miners out in Eastern Kentucky, Western Kentucky, and Eastern Tennessee. No reports of violence have been received, and it is said that the sentiment is generally opposed to a closing down of work.

40,000 MINERS OUT IN OHIO.

Union Leaders Obey Injunction—No Disorder Reported.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 1.—Quiet reigned today in the big Ohio coal fields, where approximately 40,000 union miners went out on strike. Union leaders at State headquarters here assert that as the Ohio fields are 100 per cent. organized, practically every miner of soft coal in Ohio obeyed the strike order.

Ohio officials of the United Mine Workers obeyed the terms of the injunction to the letter, and did not send out eleventh hour strike orders. Their offices in Columbus were quiet, only a few reports filtering in from the Hocking and Eastern Ohio fields.

Not a report of rioting or disorder was received from any source in connection with the Ohio coal strike, either by the union leaders or by State officials. There were no troop movements in connection with the strike. Approximately 500 Ohio National Guard troops, which were mobilized at Akron last week in connection with the steel strike riots at Canton, were ordered demobilized today.

SOME ALABAMA MINES WORK.

But the Bulk of the Men Quit as Ordered.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 1.—Union officials of Alabama asserted tonight that 90 per cent. of the men in the Alabama soft coal fields were not at work today. This would be about 23,000 of the more than 26,000 regularly employed. Operators did not deny that this number were out today, but said it would be Monday or Tuesday before the effect of the strike could be known.

William L. Harrison, a member of the Miners' National Executive Board, admitted that some of the largest mines of the district were operating today, mentioning especially Margaret, Sipsey, Acmar, Edgewater and Bayview.

Three companies of National Guard will be mobilized in Birmingham tomorrow for use in case of need. Practically every mine in the district is under guard of deputy sheriffs.

90,000 OUT IN ILLINOIS.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 1.—Bituminous coal miners of Illinois, 90,000 of them, are "100 per cent idle" today in response to the strike call, according to Frank Farrington, President of the Illinois district.

Farrington, who up to this morning had not yet been served with a copy of the restraining order issued at Indianapolis yesterday to prevent leaders from directing the strike, said:

"Judge Anderson seems to have overlooked the fact that the men instead of the officials dig the coal. Evidently the Federal Government underestimated the intelligence, courage, and determination of the mine workers. Any hope the Government had that it was a strike of the officials instead of the membership has been disillusioned."

MARYLAND MINES CLOSED UP.

Coal Workers Quit to a Man—Government Seizes Fuel.

Special to The New York Times.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Nov. 1.—Every mine in the Maryland field and the upper Potomac is closed down, not one man being at work. In this district 121 mines are affected.

Meetings of the strikers were held at Frostburg, Lonaconing and Midland today to arrange for supplies for the miners if the merchants carry out their threat not to extend credit, and to arrange for mineral co-operative stores.

The commandeering of coal by the Fuel Administration is proceeding apace. Sixty cars consigned to the local tin plate mill of the N. and G. Taylor Company of Philadelphia were seized, as well as five to the Potomac Glass Works. These plants cannot operate long if fuel is withheld. The tin plate mill has been considerably affected by the steel strike.

Up until today an average of 5,000 carloads of coal have been passing through Cumberland daily over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad from this and nearby fields.

INDIANA STRIKE EXTENSIVE.

About 28,000 Union Men Obey the Strike Order.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 1.—The nation-wide strike of bituminous coal miners was responded to by about 28,000 Indiana workmen, it is believed, though the exact number cannot be told before Monday. Whistles for the men to go to work sounded, but there was no response, except by engineers and pumpmen.

Reports arriving from cities throughout the fuel region indicated that the tieup was complete and that none of the big mines was working. A few of the small wagon mines, which do a local business and employ one to ten men as a rule, were reported operating.

CALLS PUBLIC INTEREST PARAMOUNT IN STRIKE

Senator Elkins Says It Transcends That of Either Miners or Operators.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 1.—The coal strike involves questions greater than the demands of the miners for increased wages, a six-hour day, and a five-day week, in the opinion of Senator Davis Elkins, who came here today to look over the strike situation.

"When any organization, whether of capital or labor," said Senator Elkins, "becomes so powerful as to be able to withhold from the public the necessities of life, such organization must come under the control of the Government. Otherwise the part becomes greater than the whole.

"The people have been quick to recognize this fact, and the Government has been instantaneous in its response to their sentiment.

"The people are the Government in the United States, and they are standing as a stone wall against the attempt to override them by freezing them into submission, paralyzing the industrial life of the country, spreading suffering and distress everywhere, to the end that our Government may itself be overturned.

"There is no parallel in American history to this undertaking, to this crisis. We have come to a showdown as to whether any who interfere with the production of the nation's necessities are to be placed in such a position that they cannot prevent those who want to work, produce, and save—which includes a vast majority of the American people—from doing so.

"It is not the coal operators nor the striking miners whose interests are paramount in this struggle, but the people who are the Government of the United States. In this industrial crisis God reigns and the Government at Washington still lives."

President Wilson's letter expressed the conscience of the nation. We in official position at Washington are standing by and backing him up to a man. Let law-abiding, patriotic Americans everywhere do likewise."

200 Mines Idle in Tennessee Field.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 1.—Two hundred coal mines in the East Tennessee-Southeastern Kentucky district are idle today as a result of the coal strike. Union officials estimated that not more than 500 of the 18,000 men were at work. These are keeping the pumps in operation and protecting the property.

"Resolved, That the International Congress of Working Women demands an immediate and practical measure to be secured by law and treaty between nations for an eight-hour working day, or forty-four-hour week.

"That the weekly rest period shall have an uninterrupted duration of at least one day and a half."

Operators Get Reports.

The representatives here of the coal operators received reports today from the bituminous fields in all parts of the country. Some of these reports were reassuring, while others were the reverse.

The report from the Central Pennsylvania field, of which Altoona is the centre, was that 40,000 of the 65,000 miners in that district quit work yesterday. The 25,000 nonunion men in the district are hard at work doing their part to meet the fuel crisis. The normal output of this district is from 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 tons annually.

From the nonunion Greensburg district of Pennsylvania, which includes the Westmoreland field, it was reported that all miners were at work. While reports from the Pittsburgh fields showed that practically all mines in that district had closed. The Somerset, Penn., fields, it was reported that more men were at work today than on the corresponding day last year. In this entire district it was said that not more than 700 men struck. All mines in the great Connellsville district were reported to be in full operation.

It is estimated tonight that 60 per cent. of the Pennsylvania mines are either in full or partial operation.

The report from the George's Creek, Md., district was that only 170 men reported for work this morning and that of the fifty-three mines in that section fifty-two were idle.

From the Northern West Virginia fields it was reported that 20,000 miners obeyed the strike order and that only five small mines remained in operation. The Panhandle fields of West Virginia reported that the non-union mines were in full operation. From the great Pocohontas fields, in the same State, which are nonunion, word came every mine was working at full capacity.

"Absolutely no sympathy in this district with the strike," the telegram from the Pocohontas fields read. "Not the slightest difficulty anticipated in Pocohontas and adjoining fields."

From the Williamson, W. Va., field, it was reported that the mines were operating at normal capacity as were the Winding Gulf, Tug River, and Logan, W. Va., fields.

Reports 10,000 Miners at Work.

"There is some falling off in tonnage today," the report from these fields read, "due to the fact that this is pay day and also All Saints' Day. The situation is quiet. Federal troops are housed at Beckley, Clothier, and Charleston."

In Southern West Virginia, with an output of more than 10,000,000 tons, it was reported that only 500 men went on strike.

"The other 10,000 are at work," the message read.

The Kanawha, West Va., district, which is union, reported the strike in full swing with 12,000 obeying the orders of the union leaders.

In Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois there was reported an almost 100 per cent. effective strike.

The Harlan field in Kentucky reported that with the exception of one or two small mines, all mines in that district had ceased operation, while it was said that of the 200 mines in South Kentucky and Tennessee only about 10 per cent. remained in operation.

The fields in Virginia which are nonunion are working full time, as are also the mines in the nonunion sections of Kentucky. The New Mexico mines and those of South Dakota are believed to be running at full capacity, as they are nonunion.

"4. Originating coal road should hold a considerable portion of the commercial coal near coal waybilling points, available for prompt distribution.

"5. Intermediate and terminal carriers should, as far as practicable, move commercial coal to, and hold it in the vicinity of points most convenient for prompt rehandling and distribution.

"6. Coal must not be delivered to commercial consumers either in accordance with the priority list (established in Rule II.) or otherwise, except with specific authority from the Coal Committee having jurisdiction.

"7. Regional Directors will immediately notify each railroad under Federal control of the Regional Coal Committee with which it shall deal.

"8. Each railroad shall report at once to the Central Coal Committee and to the Regional Coal Committee the name, title, location, and telephone address of the representative in whom this whole matter will be centred for that railroad.

"9. In order that the Central Coal Committee may be informed of the requirements for coal in each region and of the necessity for transferring coal from one region to another, each Regional Coal Committee will make such daily reports to the Central Coal Committee as are provided for herein and may be called for from time to time.

"10. Each railroad (or each grand division of a railroad) shall report daily by wire to the Regional Coal Committee, to be received not later than 9 A. M., information as to its coal situation for the twenty-four hours ending at 1 A. M. that day.

"11. Each Regional Coal Committee will report daily by wire to the Central Coal Committee, as promptly as information is available, a summary of the coal situation for the twenty-four hours ending at 1 A. M. that day.

"12. Applications to Regional Coal Committees for delivery of coal to commercial consumers must be made through the railroad which will make delivery of the coal; such applications must show complete and accurate information with respect to the preferred nature of the requirements, the amount of coal which the applicant has on hand, and the amount which the applicant requires for the preferred use, together with the rate of consumption and the kind and size of coal desired, all as set forth in form C attached hereto.

"13. Each Regional Coal Committee will apply a consecutive number to all orders authorizing the delivery of coal and compliance with such orders must be reported promptly by the railroad to the Regional Coal Committee.

"14. Coal diverted for commercial uses shall be paid for in accordance with the Fuel Administrator's order dated Jan. 14, 1918. In order to insure payments, coal shall be diverted for commercial use to such applicants only who shall satisfy the Federal or General Manager of their financial responsibility, or who shall deposit a certified check or other satisfactory security in such sum as will insure full payment for any coal furnished. The applicant shall make definite written obligation to pay the shipper for the coal promptly upon presentation of the bill. The legal transportation charges, including war taxes, from mines to point of delivery to the applicant, will be collected on delivery in the usual way."

PIER STRIKE FAILING, 10,000 MEN AT WORK

All Longshoremen Will Be Back in Few Days, Association Officials Assert.

INSURGENTS OFFER TERMS

For the first time since the strike of the longshoremen started, nearly four weeks ago, several hundred members of the International Longshoremen's Association were reported at work yesterday on the Chelsea piers, with the promise of still more showing up for work this morning. The action of the men of the Chelsea piers is usually taken as indication of what may be expected of the other longshoremen of the port. On this theory officials of the association, who have all along opposed the strike, asserted last night that the strike was rapidly breaking up and predicted that within a few days virtually all the men would be back at work.

A total of 10,000 or 11,000 longshoremen were reported back at work yesterday, a gain of several hundred over the day before. The United States Army Transport Service, 45 Broadway, in the morning gave out the following figures showing the number of men at work in the port at that time, the total being increased later in the day: Seven gangs worked all night, thirty men to a gang, at Fifty-seventh Street, North River; eighteen gangs on piers from Forty-fourth Street to Fifty-seventh Street; Cunard Line, 100; White Star Line, 50; French Line, 100; Pier 97, 175 all night and 180 yesterday; Army Base, Brooklyn, 500; Bush Terminal, 1,200; miscellaneous Brooklyn piers, 1,000; miscellaneous Manhattan piers, East River, 2,000; Staten Island, 400.

John F. Riley, President of the New York District Council, said that a total of 1,000 men were working on the Hudson River, and he considered the strike was nearing an end. When the 7 o'clock whistle blew in the morning virtually none of the strikers returned to work on the Chelsea piers, and the 8 o'clock whistle found them in the same frame of mind. After some of the union leaders, including Mr. Riley, talked with them a number of gangs went to work, followed in the afternoon, according to Mr. Riley, by a great many others.

In addition to these, the United States Shipping Board reported that 280 men reported for duty to work on the steamers Triumph and Defiance, moored at the Chelsea docks. These men are being housed in Shipping Board vessels set aside for that purpose.

Strikers Draft Proposal.

The proposed new agreement, as ratified by the Strike Committee of the insurgents, will today be voted upon by the various locals represented in that faction, and at 3 o'clock this afternoon another general meeting will be held at the headquarters at Twenty-fourth Street and Thirteenth Avenue. The text follows:

The striking longshoremen's proposed basis on which to adjust and end the longshoremen's strike.

1. The longshoremen will loyally and patriotically abide by the decision of any tribunal that may be appointed by President Wilson and will regard his commands as those of the Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy and of the people of these United States. Our confidence in President Wilson is unbounded and we stand ready now and in the future to obey any request he may make, and leave our fortunes blindly in his keeping.

2. The strikers, having no longer any confidence in the National Adjustment Commission of which the I. L. A. representatives, Messrs. T. V. O'Connor and Joseph Ryan are members, propose to submit their grievances for adjustment to any mutually agreeable tribunal of which none of the men above named will represent the longshoremen.

3. The longshoremen will welcome propositions from the employers that do not compel them to submit their cause to the National Adjustment Board at present constituted, in whom they have not the slightest confidence and to whom they will never consent to confide their fortunes.

4. The striking longshoremen will name a committee of their members to meet and negotiate with a committee of the employers provided that none of the above named members of the National Adjustment Commission shall be given a vote in deciding the questions at issue.

5. The striking longshoremen will accept the mediation of any fair-minded body of citizens who are not identified with the employing shipping interests or with union labor and will agree to abide by the decision of such mediators.

6. The longshoremen will submit their cause to and abide by the decision of the commission that Secretary of Labor Wilson has appointed provided the steamship companies and stevedores and other employers will do likewise.

7. Immediately upon the acceptance of any form of negotiating for an agreement, as outlined above, the longshoremen will agree to immediately resume work on the basis of the status quo prior to the award handed down by the National Adjustment Commission on Oct. 6, 1919.

Commissioners Vaccarelli and Hughes went to the City Hall, where they showed Mayor Hylan a copy of the proposed agreement. He expressed satisfaction with the proposal and declared there was nothing for the steamship men to do but to meet the longshoremen half way. The Mayor immediately started to get in touch with the steamship interests to acquaint them with the proposal.

600 Vessels in Harbor.

More than 600 vessels were reported as being in New York yesterday, of which 400 at fewest were directly delayed by the strike. Thousands of tons of cargo are on the piers and in railroad cars waiting to be loaded, and other thousands of tons are still on board the ships waiting to be discharged. Included in the passenger vessels held in port are some of the world's largest liners.

Double time, or $1.10 an hour, is thought to have influenced a large number of the men who returned to work yesterday afternoon. They expected to receive from 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon until 8 o'clock tomorrow morning $7.30. They plan, it is said, to sleep tomorrow and tomorrow night and work on Election Day, for which they will again receive double time.

At fewest 200 more men would have been at work on the Chelsea piers yesterday afternoon but for the fact that the Superintendent of the French Line, Pier 57, turned them away because he did not have seven full gangs.

It was learned yesterday that Governor Yeager of Porto Rico had sent a telegram to Washington, stating that there was imminent danger of a shortage of flour, rice, and potatoes on the island, and suggesting that an American transport should be sent at once with foodstuffs.

Fifty negro longshoremen were at work yesterday unloading the Italian-American liner Giuseppe Verdi, at Pier B, Jersey City. They were taken there Friday night on a lighter from Manhattan. On Thursday Mayor Frank Hague turned strikebreakers back, but no attempt was made to interfere with the work yesterday.

MAILS GO DESPITE STRIKE.

Department Reports 26,000 Sacks Sent Abroad Last Week.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—It was said officially at the Post Office Department today that despite the pier strike at New York and the tying up at that port of more than 600 steamships, more than 26,000 bags of mail were sent overseas during the six days ended Oct. 30. Eighteen shipments were made on vessels sailing from Boston, Philadelphia, Montreal, and Quebec, as well as from New York. Army transports were used also.

This result, the Department said, was possible only through hearty co-operation of the officials and employes of the United States and Canadian postal services and of the army transport service.

8 KILLED, 27 INJURED AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

Party of Masqueraders from Philadelphia Run Down at Grade Crossing Near Clarksboro, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Nov. 1.—Eight were killed and twenty-seven injured when a Pennsylvania train crashed into a truckload of Hallowe'en masqueraders near Clarksboro, N. J., tonight.

The masqueraders were all Philadelphians, and were en route to Billingsport, N. J., where they were to spend tomorrow. The truck and a Camden-bound train arrived at the crossing simultaneously, the engine striking the loaded motor directly in the middle and tearing through it.

Bodies were hurled in all directions, many of them so badly mangled that identification was difficult. Emergency calls were sent to Woodbury, N. J., Mickleton and nearby towns for physicians and ambulances, and the injured were hurried by every conveyance available to the Underwood Hospital at Woodbury and the Cooper Hospital at Camden.

There were thirty-five persons, both men and women, in the truck, and virtually every one of them, according to the best reports available at a late hour, received some sort of injury.

While the death list was placed at eight shortly after midnight, physicians working with the injured said that others were so badly hurt that the number of killed undoubtedly would be increased.

There is an open grade crossing at Clarksboro, without warning gates or signals to tell of the approach of a train. The Woodbury Pike, over which the truck was running, approaches the railroad tracks at this point with unobstructed view. The engineer, however, saw the truck too late, while the driver of the truck did not hear the noise of the train because of the laughter and singing of the merrymakers.

BRITISH LABOR KILLS INDUSTRIAL COURTS

Government Drops Its Proposals When Union Leaders Reject Them Completely.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Faced by strong opposition from labor leaders the Government has decided to drop the attempt to establish industrial courts with power to make awards binding on the parties to labor disputes. It has also given up the idea of prohibiting trade unions from using their funds to support strikes against such an award.

This was announced after it had become clear that these proposals were likely to arouse an industrial storm. Sir Robert Horne, Labor Minister, had a long conference today concerning them with a strong representative labor committee with the result that the labor leaders issued a call for a special meeting of trade unionists for Wednesday. This was followed quickly by the semi-official announcement that the Minister would not insist. Political friends of the Government, however, contended that Horne never intended to force his suggestions on the labor leaders, but advanced them merely as a basis of discussion.

Negotiations between the Government and the trade unions over the question of the continuance of the Wages (Temporary Regulations) act yesterday reached a crisis. As the counterproposal to the workers' demand for a continuance of the measure for another year and for the stabilization of all war wages in industries affected, the Minister of Labor presented a bill for the establishment of industrial courts. The effect of this bill is to continue the Wages act until Sept. 30, 1920, provided the labor movement accepts the introduction into this country of the scheme for arbitration by a court appointed by the Government, whose decisions shall be binding.

Any trade union that agrees to refer a dispute to this court will find itself liable for a breach of its decision, its funds are open to sequestration, its officers and members subject to prosecution, and the Trade Disputes act made null and void. Labor, however, declines to be a party to any legislation making strikes and lockouts illegal, and it was intimated to the Minister of Labor that if the bill in its present form went forward and was passed by the Parliamentary majority, the trade unions would simply refuse to be parties to the industrial court machinery, and that as an outcome of that refusal the whole bill would become inoperative.

WOULD CONTINUE BOARD TO CONTROL 1920 SUGAR

Senate Agriculture Committee Orders a Favorable Report on the McNary Bill.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—By a vote of 9 to 2 the Senate Agricultural Committee today ordered a favorable report of the McNary bill to continue the United States Sugar Equalization Board during 1920 and to authorize it to buy sugar crops next year.

The bill contains no provisions for licensing of the sugar trade, as requested by the board, and also does not require specifically that Cuban sugar shall be purchased.

Senators Ransdell, Louisiana, and Gore, Oklahoma, Democrats, voted against the measure, the former contending that it might be inimical to Louisiana's sugar interests. Senator Gore, it was said, opposed extending Government control over sugar.

Chairman McNary plans to report the bill to the Senate Monday.

BOMB OUTRAGE IN TOKIO.

TOKIO, Nov. 1, (Associated Press.)—A bomb exploded outside the Foreign Office here today. No fatalities resulted from the explosion, which coincided with a celebration in honor of the Emperor.

The birthday of Yoshohito, the Emperor of Japan, is Aug. 31, but because of the hot weather at that time of year it is not celebrated until Oct. 31. It seems probable, therefore, that the explosion reported in the Tokio dispatch occurred Friday.

Dying Motorman Saves Passengers.

LEONIA, N. J., Nov. 1.—While his trolley car, carrying thirty passengers, was going down an incline here on the way to the Edgewater ferry, Motorman Alexander Rabb of 170 East Thirteenth Street, Manhattan, was attacked by heart disease early this morning. His last act was to apply the emergency brake, insuring the safety of his passengers. The body was taken to McNally's morgue, Fort Lee. Rabb is survived by his wife and four children.

MILKMEN REJECT EMPLOYERS' OFFER

6,000 Drivers, Collectors, and Helpers Unanimously Refuse to Accept Latest Counterproposals

SEEK AGREEMENT TODAY

Unless Settlement Is Reached Strike Vote Will Be Taken Tomorrow —Firm Alleges Interference.

Unless an agreement is reached today between the milk distributers and their drivers, New York faces the probability of a strike of milk drivers. The final offer of the employers, as made late Friday afternoon, was unanimously rejected at a meeting of more than 4,000 members of the Milk Wagon Drivers, Collectors and Helpers' Union, Local No. 584, in Arcadia Hall, Halsey Street, near Broadway, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon. This offer had been made by the employers as a counterproposal to the demands of the union.

Many members wanted to take a strike vote yesterday, but the conservative element finally succeeded in securing a postponement of this action for twenty-four hours, in order to have the sub-committee of the Executive Committee confer further with the employers. It was announced that if a satisfactory settlement is not reached a strike vote will be taken tomorrow.

The agreement which the men had with the employers expired at midnight Oct. 31. Under this agreement they received $33 a week, 1 per cent. of all sales and collections; and one day off in every month. Their demands for this year are for $50 a week, 2 per cent. on all sales and collections, a six-day week, and a closed shop. As a counter proposal the New York Milk Conference Board made what was termed a final offer on Friday, of $35 a week, 2 per cent. on all sales and collections, and a six-day working week. They also offered a proportionate increase for all employes engaged in various other capacities, which represented about a $3 weekly increase for each of these persons. It was this offer that the members yesterday afternoon unanimously rejected.

In a statement issued last night I. Elkins Nathans, Secretary of the New York Milk Conference Board, said that the employers felt they had gone as far with the drivers as their responsibilities to the public would permit.

Argument was heard yesterday afternoon by Federal Judge A. N. Hand on an application by Farrand O. and Thomas O. Smith, comprising the firm of T. O. Smith's Sons, milk dealers, for an injunction restraining the members of the drivers' union from interfering with their employes. The complaining firm does a large milk business. It supplies many of the prominent hotels and clubs in New York, and operates fourteen wagons, which are handled by non-union drivers.

William Karlin, counsel for the union, contended that no official or other member of the union had been responsible for any of the acts complained of, and that the union was only seeking, by peaceful means, to lift the teamsters "out of the mire."

Judge Hand displayed a disinclination to sign a restraining order, and after much talk it was decided to delay the whole matter until Friday next. In the meantime Mr. Karlin is to see that the officers of the union use every means in their power to prevent the members of the union from annoying the employes of the plaintiff. In case the alleged interference continues an injunction will be granted at once, the court stated.

CLOSE DRUNKARDS' PRISON.

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 1.—Camden's municipal workhouse was closed today by prohibition. Known as the paper pickery and as an institution for the utilization of human derelicts, the workhouse since 1912 has been operated by habitual drunkards committed there by the Police Magistrates. Waste paper gathered by the Highway Department has been baled by the prisoners, and the city has been obtaining a profit of $4,000 over the operating expenses and the cost of boarding the inmates.

In addition, all the brooms for the street-sweeping machines and the handbrooms used by the street cleaners were made by the prisoners at a nominal cost. Only three workmen have been at the workhouse for the last week. Their sentences were completed some time ago, but they preferred to remain because they had no other place to go.

"This industry can't operate without help," said Street Commissioner Sayre today, as the last of the baled paper was carted away. The workhouse will be used as a warehouse.

RESTORES TRANSFER POINT.

B. R. T. Will Give Slips from Subway at Eighty-sixth Street.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company announced yesterday that it would restore today the system of transfers between the Fourth Avenue subway and the Sixty-fifth Street-Bay Ridge line at Eighty-sixth Street. Under the dual rapid transit contract the company is compelled to give transfers at this point, but they were abrogated when the Brooklyn City Railroad Company was separated from the B. R. T. system.

The Brooklyn City Company contended that it had no responsibility for any contract made with the city by the B. R. T. Company, but it agreed to continue the transfers, and the B. R. T. Company has now tardily also agreed under a peremptory direction from Public Service Commissioner Nixon.

The commission also received word that the Brooklyn City Company would comply with the order to restore through service on the Flatbush Avenue line below Nostrand and Flatbush Avenues, and that the present method of making passengers change cars would cease on Nov. 5.

Citizens of the Flatbush and Flatlands parts of Brooklyn complained yesterday that the Brooklyn City Company had moved the second fare point on the Flatbush Avenue line to Foster Avenue, making the ride for a single fare about two miles shorter from this city than when the single-fare point was at Nostrand and Flatbush Avenues. While the change is against the interests of passengers going out, it is in their favor coming in; but whether it will make any appreciable difference is to be considered by the Public Service Commission.

POLICE AND FIREMEN MEET.

Hold First Joint Gathering to Discuss Proposed Wage Increases.

For the first time in the history of the Police and Fire Departments of New York 2,500 members of the respective benevolent organizations met yesterday in Maennerchor Hall, East Fifty-sixth Street, to discuss matters relating to the proposed increase in wages for both departments.

When the joint meeting was called to order letters were read from President Robert L. Moran, Democratic candidate for re-election as President of the Board of Aldermen, and from F. L. La Guardia, the Republican candidate for the same office.

Following the reading of the letters a general discussion of wages took place, but no resolutions were adopted favoring either of the candidates. Both letters appeared to express sentiments friendly to the application of the men for a minimum wage of $2,000 per year.

NATION PROSPEROUS IN SPITE OF STRIKES

Federal Reserve Report Finds Increasing Industrial Unrest the One Cause for Anxiety.

NO SERIOUS EFFECT AS YET

Crop Returns Are Good—Manufacturing Holds Up—Prices Have Dropped—Sales Gain.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Despite disturbed industrial conditions, great prosperity obtains generally over the country, according to reports for October received by the Federal Reserve Board from its agents in the several reserve districts. A strong demand for commodities, coverging at times upon reckless in buying, was noted in virtually all sections.

Summing the reports, the board in a statement made public today said the labor situation occupied a position of primary importance, with an increasing degree of general unrest over the country.

"The coal strike, which has been long drawn out, though with production well maintained," said the summary, "is apparently approaching its end. The strike has not in recent weeks seriously hampered production.

"More serious, perhaps, in its possibilities for disturbance, than any other labor disturbance, is the general bituminous coal mine strike.

"Hopeful indication in the labor difficulty is the fact that in some districts a smaller number of actual strikes, with a smaller number of men out of work as a result, is reported.

Unrest Causes Anxiety.

"A troublesome factor in the industrial situation is seen in the existence of a widespread condition of industrial and social unrest, while disturbances growing out of strikes have not increased during the month, prospects for a growth in this direction have been such as to cause some anxiety.

"Summing up district labor situations, it would appear that in the New England regions there is no general or serious dislocation of working relationships, although there is unusual caution among employers, while in Philadelphia disturbance has been experienced. Conditions in the South, at the adjacent region, are fairly satisfactory, while in Minneapolis and the Northwest there is full employment at good wages. Unrest exists in New York and Chicago, while the labor situation in the Southwest and on the Pacific coast is unsettled."

Crop returns were reported as good in most sections, and even where decline in output has brought the total yield below the forecasts, record prices have augmented the money returns in spite of the decreased volume.

"There has been no decline in general manufacturing, while prices continue firm," said the summary. "The upward movement of trade usually noted in the Autumn was in evidence during the month, while speculative activity has been extensive and is reaching dangerous levels.

Sales Show General Gain.

"Sales of many wholesale and retail, in excess of reports are reported to be in for the same period last year. Stocks of both wholesalers and retailers in leading lines are running low, and complaint is being made of difficulty in obtaining merchandise. The demand for high grade goods continues.

"In agriculture there has been a decrease in the estimated yield of corn, against small decreases for Spring wheat, oats and oats. Both wheat and quality is low yield per acre and the poor.

"A continuance of building activity is reported. Labor difficulties and shortage and high cost of construction, both for labor and material, have continued to be regarding factors. Continuance of a satisfactory amount of building throughout the Winter is predicted.

"Official figures for the month of September show a decrease to $161,000,000 in the export balance from the figure of ure of August, 238,900,000 for the month of any month. This is the lowest figure for "Large decreases in exports are shown in meats, chiefly bacon, hams, shoulders and lard, and raw cotton, the September exports of the latter article being 50 per cent less in quantity than the month before. On the other hand, exports of breadstuffs, mainly flour and wheat, while larger both in quantity and value, for the preceding two months.

SEE END OF PRINTING TIEUP.

Both Sides Feel That Present Deadlock Cannot Last.

With the close of the first month of the lockout of the seceding pressmen and the "vacations" of the compositors the opinion prevailed yesterday among both the employers and the employers that the present tie-up in the printing industry could not continue much longer. While on the one hand more than sixty magazines are being published in cities outside New York, and on the other a number of printers in the city have come to terms with the compositors and pressmen, the situation is one that is draining the resources of both sides. While the employes and employers express confidence in their ability to hold, efforts are being made to bring matters to a conclusion.

Important developments are expected to result from a meeting of Typographical Union No. 6, to be held at the New Star Casino, 107th Street and Park Avenue at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The Labor Committee of the Printers' League has demanded that Big Six give a final answer to-morrow afternoon on the question of their willingness to submit all questions, including hours, to arbitration. Another circumstance which is expected to affect the outcome of the meeting is the receipt of news from Chicago that Typographical Union No. 16 of that city had voted three to one against an assessment to raise funds to assist the members of Big Six.

Chapel Chairmen of Pressmen's Union No. 51 will meet this afternoon in Beethoven Hall, 210 East Fifth Street, to ascertain the amount of Liberty Bonds owned by the members. These bonds will be converted into cash to swell the fund for helping those who are badly in need. It was said last night that a similar movement was on foot among the members of Franklin Union No. 23, Pressmen's Union No. 1, and Paper Handlers Union No. 1, all of these having been locked out as outlaw unions. It is believed that more than a half million dollars will be raised from the bonds thus obtained.

BRITISH ERS KILLED BY REDS

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Baron and Baroness Woerman, nephew and niece of the late Lord Armitstead, were murdered by the Bolsheviki in Riga last May, according to news reaching the Armitstead family at Dundee, Scotland.

The advices add that a grand nephew of Lord Armitstead, John Cecil Armitstead, was shot in March after having been in prison three months.

GENEVA, Nov. 1.—The new Minister to the United States, succeeding Hans Sulzer, who asked some time ago to be relieved of his post, will be Marc Peter, a prominent lawyer of this city, according to report here today. It is predicted that his appointment will be made by the Federal Council on Tuesday.

FARMERS REFUSE AID FOR LABOR SLACKERS

Will Not Join Movement for Shorter Hours and Increased Pay.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 1.—Organized labor cannot count on the farmers to join it in any efforts further to shorten the hours of labor or increase wages, and organized labor must soon heed a concerted demand from the farmers that it not only cease agitation along these lines, but that it use its best efforts toward "exerting a steadying influence" in these turbulent times, particularly by refraining from striking, according to resolutions recently adopted by the International Farm Congress at its annual three days' session at Kansas City.

The resolutions, after pledging the farmers to "continue to produce in such measure as may be required to meet any future emergency, view with apprehension and disfavor the turbulent conditions existing, particularly in the ranks of organized labor."

A protest is made against the policy of organized labor in urging greater production on the farms while deliberately restricting the output of the factories and encouraging lessened individual effort. "We contend," the resolutions recite, "that production in the factories is second in importance only to production on the farms, and that the obligation of labor to society is not less than that of the farmer."

The resolutions "deplore the calling of strikes in times like these for any reason other than a grave emergency." They oppose the unionization of police officers, or any other officials or employes in public service; view with disfavor and alarm the growing tendency toward idleness among all classes of people; voice a vigorous protest against the wide margin between prices paid the producer and those charged the consumer; condemn profiteering, particularly in the necessities of life, and oppose further Government operation of railroads.

MAP OUT NEW FIGHT ON STOCK SWINDLES

The Business Men's Anti-Stock-Swindling League, formed to come at the ruthless stock jobber, with which the New York Stock Exchange has joined forces, has issued a circular which is being distributed to all influential business houses in the Second Federal Reserve District through the medium of trade associations. The circular which calls for new members says in part:

"Every business is injured, in whatever line, and whether it be large or small, by the consequences of a continued exploitation at the hands of fraudulent stock promoters, because the public is the customer of business. Clearly, if the customer is defrauded and impoverished, his buying power is impaired. Funds which he should employ for the improvement of his own condition, to his own profit and the profit of legitimate business, are wasted.

"Thrift tends to anchor men to their jobs—to steady them and to increase their value to themselves and their employers. When they save and acquire property, whether this be the securities of the company by which they are employed, or a home, or what-not, they become steadier and more useful. The encouragement of thrift promotes better habits, both of body and of mind.

"The employe who works hard and saves, only to fall into the hands of the ruthless swindler, is the more likely to acquire a prejudice against all who represent invested capital. If he were so discriminating that such a result would not follow, he would be discriminating enough to decline to be charmed by the stories of the promoter."

Describing its plan of operation against the crooks and thieves of the financial world, the league circular says:

"Education is the basic thought of this movement. We propose, through the use of advertising, the public press, through the distribution of printed matter in pay envelopes, and the use of moving picture slides, the employment of placards, posters, &c., and by other means, to give the public the facts with which to combat such swindlers. We propose to describe the ear-marks of the faker, so that all people may know him for what he is.

"In all of this educational work, and in its various operations, the league will have the advice and the aid of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. This association has been running down and exposing stock swindlers for years and has been chiefly instrumental in bringing about the trial and conviction of the worst offenders."

HOLD TWO IN MAIL FRAUD.

Police, Trailing Dye Thieves, Discover Express Package Scheme.

A card with a name and address written on it, found yesterday in the plant of the Williamsburg Chemical Works, Horgan Avenue and Ten Eyck Street, Williamsburg, led to the arrest of two men, the recovery of $1,000 worth of dye, alleged to have been stolen, and, the police say, the discovery of a plan whereby thousands of people had been defrauded through the use of the mail. Herman Goldstein, the manager, found the card and he turned it over to the detectives who were working on the recent thefts suffered by the company.

The detectives went to 58 West Eighth Street, where, in a room on the top floor, they found a quantity of chemicals and two men. The men, who gave their names as John Delano and Angelo Cardero, were arrested.

In searching the room the police say they found 10,000 letters ready to be mailed in which the names of three fictitious express companies were used. Each addressee was told there was an unpaid express package awaiting delivery to him. The consignee was told to send $3 or $5 with which to pay express charges and the packages would be forwarded to him. The police say they found 5,000 money orders calling for the payment of about $12,500.

When Delano was told he was under arrest he knocked down a detective, climbed out the window and made his way to the ground. A second detective who started after the escaping prisoner was tripped up by Cardero. Delano was caught after a chase of four blocks, during which the detectives fired twelve shots at him.

The prisoners were taken to Brooklyn and locked up in the Clymer Street station charged with grand larceny.

ACQUIT TWO ACCOUNTANTS.

Federal Court Jury Finds They Did Not Falsify Tax Returns.

A jury in Judge Learned Hand's part of the Federal Court yesterday acquitted Morris S. Rachmil and Abraham Lincoln Samuelson of the Sterling Accounting and Audit Company of the charge of having conspired to falsify the income tax returns of Nathan Bloom, a woolen merchant.

The defendants had been tried twice on another count in the indictment charging them with having falsified the tax returns of the Coastwise Warehouses, Inc. In both of these trials the jury disagreed. The defendants were discharged from custody.

RUMANIA PROCLAIMS BESSARABIAN UNION

Offers a New Defiance to the Wishes of the Peace Conference.

ALL WARNINGS DISREGARDED

She Had Been Told That Allies Would Not Aid Her If Russia Attacked Her.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—The Peace Conference has had another serious trouble thrust upon it. Rumania announced to the Supreme Council today that she had annexed Bessarabia.

Since the armistice Rumanian troops have occupied this territory, and during the entire history of the Peace Conference Rumania has been trying to get it allotted to her. The conference favored a plebiscite, which never appealed strongly to the Rumanians, who seemed to doubt their success under such a plan.

While the conference had not taken final action on Bessarabia, it had warned the Rumanians that if they took the territory they would not please the other powers, and that if Russia ever attempted to take it back Rumania would find no helpers among them. Rumania was also warned that the League of Nations would not approve the seizure.

But, evidently heartened by her success in occupying Hungarian territory in defiance of the Peace Conference, Rumania has decided to make the best of her opportunity. Bessarabia is about the size of Ireland.

For two months the Supreme Council has been struggling with four vexing situations constituting open disregard of its authority—the presence of the Rumanians in Budapest, that of d'Annunzio in Fiume, its inability to get rid of the Hungarian treaty, and Germany's stand-pat attitude in the Baltic provinces. Now a fifth perplexity confronts it. Rumania can thus be credited with two of the five disagreeable situations before the peacemakers.

When the news of the annexation of Bessarabia arrived the Supreme Council was occupied in addressing a friendly note to Rumania, telling her that it was her duty to sign the Austrian treaty and warning her that otherwise she might not be allowed to sign the Bulgarian treaty.

WARNS AGAINST INFLUENZA.

Health Commissioner Looks for Recurrence of Disease Next Month.

Health Commissioner Dr. Royal S. Copeland yesterday issued another warning against a possible recurrence of influenza. He believes there will be another epidemic of the disease some time in December or in the early part of the year. He said that he based his belief on the history of previous epidemics, which have always recurred the following year in a milder form.

Dr. Copeland said the inspectors of the Department of Health have been instructed to use special vigilance regarding sanitary conditions throughout the city. While warning against any undue excitement, he wished to impress upon the people the necessity of safeguarding their own health and to observe the rules of sanitation and the instructions which the department has from time to time issued.

The Health Commissioner said that in a city the size of New York the avoidance of crowds was almost impossible, but that risks would be reduced to a minimum if every one would take care in coughing and would observe the provision of the Sanitary Code against spitting. If there is a recurrence of influenza, he said, the Health Department will be in better shape to cope with it, for, in addition to the nurses of the Department, the Commissioner also has the list of those who volunteered their services during the epidemic last Winter.

Dr. Copeland believes that because of the large number of influenza cases last Winter many citizens are now immune.

BETHMANN TELLS OF DOUBTING WILSON

Says That Germany Suspected President Was Insincere in Moves for Peace.

EVADES MANY QUESTIONS

Ex-Chancellor Nettled by Insistent Inquiries at Hearing in Berlin.

BERLIN, Oct. 31, (Associated Press.)—Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, who was German Chancellor during the greater part of the war, underwent today a grilling interrogation before the National Assembly sub-committee which is endeavoring to determine what possibilities for peace presented themselves during the war.

Commissioner Sinsheimer questioned the former Chancellor so insistently on matters detailed at the morning session that von Bethmann Hollweg grew almost savage, although for a long time he had adopted an apologetic attitude.

Considerable time was devoted to the part played by Ambassador Gerard, von Bethmann Hollweg repeatedly asserting that Germany was suspicious of President Wilson's sincerity in offering peace, because the President did not confide in Gerard and the latter had to go to the President for information. The ex-Chancellor said that Ambassador Gerard's observations in Germany generally coincided with his own.

The former Chancellor reiterated that Germany distrusted Wilson because, as asserted, he was known to be dilatory, and von Bethmann Hollweg had told Gerard that he was skeptical of the President's attitude.

Von Bethmann Hollweg then described repeated efforts which he said he had made to have the chief censor check Pan German newspapers in their attacks on the United States, but he asserted that the people's will for the U-boat warfare was top strong, and whether the press was quieted or not the people retained their prejudices.

"I never saw a rosy future," said von Bethmann-Hollweg, "but when the submarine war became inevitable I considered it my duty to assume a confident attitude toward the people, the army, and the Reichstag, and to speak hopefully."

PARIS WRAPS FOR EVENING

Each a Study in Plastic Art Worthy of the Collection of a Connoisseur

THIS collection of French evening wraps is more than a contribution to gowning, it is a contribution to contemporary art. Upon it, the French have lavished prodigally the gorgeousness of their imagination. No one with an appreciation of beauty can see these wraps without a sincere sense of beholding, from an artistic standpoint, something valuable and precious.

The Cloudburst Wrap

rivals the sky-gray and silver-white of a cloud with the sun shining on it. It is of beads, dazzling white where they pour over the shoulders, then softly gray and grayer, until at the bottom they are black. There is a collar of white Mongolie fur.

The Debutante Wrap

The Callot Manteau

is of black chiffon velvet blocked in gold. To throw the gold blocks into relief, the threads of the velvet are drawn by hand, like Mexican drawnwork.

DIVIDE THEIR BRILLIANCE BETWEEN THE DOUBLE OPENING OF OPERA AND HORSE SHOW, BY DOUBLING THEIR NUMBER: WITHOUT DUPLICATING THEIR STYLE

AS a crystal prism filters white light into its myriad colors, so the Winter season divides New York society into scintillating scenes. And just as each particle of color is perfect to produce the whiteness of light, so each toilette must be flawless to effect the brilliant, unblemished ensemble. Franklin Simon & Co. have collected for the Opera, the Horse Show and the countless occasions of Winter, the most beautiful of Paris gowns and creations of their Fifth Avenue workrooms. There are gowns of glittering poured-white pearls, such as La Tosca wears; piquant, provocative tulle frocks, flaunting and brilliant as Carmen; stately satin gowns an Amneris might have worn; and even others as demure as a Marguerite. The glamour of fabrics aglow with gems, the warmth of velvet, the untouched coolness of tulle, black lace, white shoulders, ropes of pearls, wrists ringed with bracelets—music: this is the spirit of these gowns that Franklin Simon & Co. have assembled for the Winter season, no two alike, no one less lovely than another.

WANT ONE MANDATE FOR ALL OF TURKEY

GEN. HARBORD SAILS TODAY

Paris Eagerly Awaits His Report on His Investigation of the Near East.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—There is as keen an interest here as in the Senate in the report which Major Gen. James G. Harbord is making on conditions in Turkey and Armenia. He and his colleagues of the American Mission who traveled 2,000 miles in Asia Minor and Transcaucasia will sail for America Saturday. General Harbord will take his report with him and deliver it in person to the President or the State Department.

He is regarded as one of the clearest-headed men in the American Army, his work in France having been second only to General Pershing's in importance; and when America sent him and his able assistants to Asia Minor the allied chancelleries took a real interest in the proceedings. General Harbord's findings will go far to determine whether the United States will accept a mandate in Turkey or Armenia and on what terms, if it does accept one. At present from the Black and Caspian Seas southward to the Indian Ocean, and from the Mediterrean to Persia, Asia is seething with intrigue among the allied powers, each of which is ambitious for territory and spheres of influence.

Americans here believe that if the United States takes a mandate at all, it should be under conditions that will permit the successful working out of the problems of the Near East. It has been commonly thought that America could take Armenia separately; but, as the situation has come to be better understood, it is apparent that interests are so intertwined and overlapping that it would be impossible for any mandatary to bring order out of chaos unless its mandate included all the Turkish-speaking territory, namely, the Constantinople area, Turkey in Asia, Armenia and the Transcaucasian Republics of Georgia, Azerbaijan and Russian Armenia. The Arab-speaking parts of the old Turkish Empire are left out.

Armenia a Difficult Problem.

The people of the United States have hitherto been interested through their philanthropic efforts principally in the future of Armenia. Armenia itself, however, has no political identity, and it is only when close study is made of the situation in the Near East that it is realized that the problem of Armenia must be solved outside of that country.

What Armenians consider as Armenia is a territory about the size of New York, Ohio, and Pennsylvania. Part of this territory belongs to Turkey, and perhaps one-third of it was territory formerly belonging to Russia, but now included in the small Republic of Armenia in the region known as Transcaucasia. The only Armenia having actual political identity at the present moment is the two small provinces which comprise the republic of that name, about the size of Ohio, which is entirely landlocked and isolated, a little State unrecognized by the powers, except Turkey, with no outlet to salt water and with no railroad giving access to the sea, over which it has any control.

The Armenians, as well as all the peoples in Asiatic Turkey, including Syria and Mesopotamia, have been accustomed for 400 years to look to Constantinople as the seat of authority and the centre of such business life as existed in the empire. Constantinople was one of the most important ports in Continental Europe in its shipping clearances before the war.

Constantinople, next to New York and Tiflis, is the most important Armenian city in the world. It had before the war 150,000 Armenians, nearly all of them engaged in business, their trade connections ramifying to all parts of the empire. These are the kind of people upon whom would largely depend the future of an autonomous Armenia.

From this it is apparent that a mandate for Armenia, in order to be successful, will have to include Constantinople. At the same time projects for the economic development of Armenia would necessarily in matters of transportation overlap the adjacent territory of the other Transcaucasian republics and of Natalia. Constantinople is separated from Armenia by Anatolia, a Turkish empire in itself.

It is not only true of the matter of transportation, but it is true also in the maintenance of order. There are in this country Kurds, Tartars, Turks, Arabs, Armenians, Greeks, and other peoples, a perfect polyglot of population which is mingled hopelessly through this region.

In what was Armenia there is an appalling lack of population today. Various estimates were made as to the number of people deported and who were either slaughtered or died from other causes, the number being generally estimated as in the neighborhood of 700,000 to 800,000. Of the surviving population there are still perhaps 300,000 refugees in Russian Armenia today.

The Turks express a willingness to have properly accredited Armenians formerly resident in Turkey come back, but they don't want Russian Armenians, who are tainted with Bolshevism.

Federation Broke Up.

Transcaucasia includes the Republics of Georgia, Azarbaijan, and Armenia. These republics were formed after the collapse of Russia.

The transcausian federation was a single Government, but when Denikin began to loom on the horizon they were frightened by the thought of a reconstituted Russia reclaiming its territories, as they formerly belonged to the Russian Empire. They considered whether or not they would stand against Denikin. Two of the Governments wished to, and the third, Armenia, declined to act against Denikin, which broke up the Transcaucasian Federation, and it dissolved into the three little republics.

They are all more or less under the influence of Bolshevism. Georgia has nationalized its land without compensation to the original owners. The principal means of communication was the Transcaucasian Railway, which ran from Batum on the Black Sea. The only means by which supplies from Europe could reach this country is by way of Tiflis, which is in about the centre of Transcaucasia, and east to west and from it to Baku, on the Caspian Sea, is the site of the great oil fields and industry so vitally necessary to the economic life of Russia.

When the Russian collapse came each of these three little countries grabbed that rolling stock there was in its territory and considered itself possessed of the Russian property. The shops of the road are at Tiflis, the oil which the engines burned is in Baku, which gave them control of the fuel and Georgia control of the shops and also the Black Sea port of Batum, giving her a dominant position to control whatever shipments were going on to Armenia.

Difficult to Reach Armenia.

Thus it has become difficult for the American Relief Committee to get flour through to starving Armenia. The Georgian Government usually demands some sort of present or a certain percentage of the flour shipped before granting permission for its shipment.

To sum up, without a mandatary conditions in Turkey and Armenia are hopeless. In view of the rivalries and jealousies among the European powers and the sentiment of the native population, the United States is the only possible mandatary. If she accepted a mandatory Constantinople, Turkey, Armenia, and the Transcaucasian republics must all be included. To attempt a mandatory of Armenia alone would be to accept a gold brick.

A mandatary over the whole territory, with Constantinople as the headquarters, would be something worth while for the United States, and American efficiency and resources would be equal to the job. This is believed to be the only way to redeem the most hopeless and miserable situation which exists anywhere on earth. Probably twenty years would be required, and we should be prepared to advance something like a billion dollars, and fifty or sixty thousand soldiers would be needed in the early stages. But after a few years the country would be self-supporting.

If the magnitude of the task were understood and recognized and the conditions above outlined insisted upon, there is general faith here that America would remove one of the worst curses from which the world has suffered. Through clean and orderly government and bringing together of all races in a public school system, religious fanaticism would probably disappear and Turkey and Armenia might become one government after the

URGES ARMENIAN MANDATE.

Says America Alone Can Help the Asiatic Republic.

Nov. 1.—The Rev. Dr. James L. Barton, Secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, who has just returned from six months' travel in the Near East, discussing "America's Responsibility in Turkey," is an address today said that America only under the mandate of Armenia could expect unity, independence and safety from anarchy.

"The hopes of the Armenian atrocities have been overdrawn," he said. "Much has been told, but never been and will never be told. I myself seemed at times as if we were in a very environs of Hades. The governmentally is hopeless, but outside assistance. There were opinions upon this point. Turk, Arab and Syrian all United States for help rather than any European country. Their confidence in America was pathetic and

"Pending the ratification of the treaty and the creation of the League, some nation must step in to save the Armenian from annihilation. If left to the Turk, Tartar and Kurd, this will necessarily be the conclusion. Again the appeal is to the United States, which has already done so much for this people, to come to their protection. Neither England nor France can do this, and Italy has declined."

"FELL" FOR FEEDING BABY.

New York is a terrible place.

Yes, indeed, this island is a wicked place.

Yesterday afternoon a crowd was gathered on the sidewalk staring fascinated at something in a doorway on Forty-second Street. Some direful crime must have been committed there. The inquisitive south rushed forward.

In the doorway sat a woman with a baby on her knee. The baby held a bottle of milk to his mouth. He clutched it in his little fists. The crowd was delighted as the milk grew less and less in the bottle.

Soon the bottle was empty. The baby looked up and grinned at the crowd. And the crowd grinned back at the baby.

Isn't it awful to have to live in such a town as this?

ITALIANS DOWNCAST BY FIUME FAILURE

With Army Still Mobilized and Expenses Three Times Income, Country's Position Is Serious.

ROME, Oct. 31.—When Signor Tittoni left Rome it was hoped that it would be his last journey to Paris, as every one was very optimistic about President Wilson accepting the Foreign Minister's last project, which differed only slightly from the one the President himself proposed during the first days of the d'Annunzio occupation. In substance, Signor Tittoni asked that a part of the district of Volosca, which President Wilson had assigned to the Jugoslavs, thus dividing Italy proper from the free State of Fiume, should be annexed to Italy. Press comments from Paris led the public to believe things were getting on splendidly, so that the fall from the heights of hopefulness to face the bitter truth that all efforts have again been vain hit the Italian people very hard. Tittoni is now reported to be returning to Rome very soon, probably to discuss with the King and the Ministers the next move.

Resentment and anger are daily growing in the hearts of Italians, especially during these last days, when is celebrated the anniversary of their great victory over Austria. A year has passed since the day of the Austrian armistice, but Italy finds herself in the same condition she did twelve months ago, with her boundaries unsettled and with the necessity of keeping up an army of 2,000,000 men to occupy the armistice zone. This also means an unnecessary daily expense of millions of dollars adding to the already terrific national debt, besides keeping 2,000,000 men from returning to their home work.

Premier Nitti's letter to his constituents continues to be largely commented on. It is considered the clearest document on the true and serious position wherein the country finds itself. The Premier does not mince matters. He thinks an exposition of affairs is the only way to bring every one to his senses and to work for the welfare of his country. The figures he gives of the financial situation are staggering. The State sustains $3,000,000,000 of expenses, with only $1,000,000,000 of income. The State loses on everything, railways, telephones, posts, telegraphs. Nitti's cry of hope of encouragement is devoutly taken up by every one: "Italy has overcome the difficulties of the war: Italy must overcome the difficulties of peace. We ask for a strong effort of will and faith. We await a great wave of fervor and enthusiasm. We wish Italy to come forth from this terrible ordeal greater and stronger."

Senate and Assembly Pass Ratification Measure—Is 17th State.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 1.—Shortly after the California State Senate had adopted without a dissenting vote a resolution ratifying the Federal Woman's Suffrage Amendment, the State Assembly adopted a similar resolution late today, by a vote of 73 to 2. The measure now goes to the Governor for signature.

California is the seventeenth State to ratify the amendment.

PETROGRAD SAVED, TROTZKY DECLARES

City Now Free from Danger of Capture by Anti-Bolsheviki, He Says.

REDS ALSO CLAIM LUGA

Street Fighting Still Going On There —Finland Urged to Join Struggle Against the Bolsheviki.

LONDON, Nov. 1, (Associated Press)—A wireless message sent from Moscow and signed by Trotsky declares that the anti-Bolshevist forces have been driven from the environs of Petrograd and that the city is free from any danger of capture.

The capture of Luga, on the railway about 100 miles south of Petrograd, is claimed by the Bolsheviki in another wireless message received here today.

The message says street fighting is continuing in the town.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Premier Lianosov of the Northwestern Russian Government has arrived in Helsingfors to discuss with the Finnish Government the question of military participation in aid of the armies of Generals Kolchak, Yudenitch, and Denikin. The Finnish Government is understood to have reached no decision on the question.

"Sovereignty of the new republic will be respected.

Representatives of Kolchak and Denikin have arrived at Helsingfors.

Soviet Russian authorities have sent a wireless to the Esthonian Government asking why the latter's troops have joined in the attack on the Bolsheviki, inasmuch as the Bolsheviki have recognized Esthonia.

SEMENOFF DEMANDED ARMS OF AMERICANS

Lieutenant with 50 Men Refused and Took Rifles Through to Kolchak.

VLADIVOSTOK, Oct. 26, (Associated Press.)—A train with part of a consignment of 4,000 rifles recently shipped from America for Admiral Kolchak was held up at Chita, Trans-Baikalia, on Oct. 24 by General Semenoff, an anti-Bolshevist leader in that part of Siberia. General Semenoff demanded that 15,000 rifles be delivered to him by 11 o'clock on the morning of Oct. 25 or force would be used to obtain them.

The Lieutenant commanding the train guard of fifty Americans communicated with Major Gen. William S. Graves, commander of the American Expeditionary Forces in Siberia, and received an order not to comply under no conditions to turn over the rifles.

Although no word has been received at American headquarters at Vladivostok regarding events at Chita since Semenoff's time limit expired, Japanese headquarters last night notified General Graves that advices from Chita—the Japanese guarded section—were that through Japanese offices the train had not been molested and had proceeded toward Omsk.

The last word from the American train guard was that General Graves's instructions had been received and that the Cossacks would need to use force to get the arms.

As compared with the small American guard, Semenoff had several thousand Cossacks with artillery and armored trains at Chita.

Major Gen. Graves recently refused the delivery of arms to the Russian authorities at Vladivostok, his action resulting in criticism of the American command by the Russian authorities in the Far East, as well as by General Knox, Chief of the British Military Mission now at Omsk, who said that General Graves had held up the delivery of arms which the Russians had bought and paid for.

Sixty-eight thousand rifles and large quantities of ammunition consigned to Admiral Kolchak arrived at Vladivostok two months ago at a time when Cossack and American relations were tense. General Graves refused the delivery of these arms and ammunition at Vladivostok, believing that they would fall into the hands of the Cossacks and never reach the Kolchak front. He finally agreed to the delivery of the arms to the Kolchak [illegible] at Irkutsk if American [illegible] guard the [illegible] country.

The Russians insisted that thirty-five cars be made up into two trains and asked permission to guard one of them. The Americans found the Russians were attempting to sandwich many cars of merchandise between the cars carrying arms. It was then insisted by the Americans that an American guard accompany both trains to Irkutsk. The first train was not molested.

In making his demand, General Semenoff quoted the authority of General Becklemesheff at Omsk. The Russian command at Vladivostok is without knowledge of the position held by General Becklemesheff. Payment for the rifles and ammunition was made after the supplies left Vladivostok.

BANDIT TOOK NOTES ON JENKINS RANSOM

$10,000 and 34,000 Pesos Cash and Took Promises for Balance of $150,000.

GUARANTEED BY FIVE MEN

State Department Gives Official Version of Robbery and Abduction of Consular Agent.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The amount that was agreed to pay to Mexican bandits for the release of William O. Jenkins, United States Consular Agent at Puebla, was 300,000 pesos, which was in addition to 50,000 pesos stolen by the bandits from Jenkins's office, it was announced today. The total amount, including the 50,000 pesos stolen, is therefore in the neighborhood of $200,000 in American currency. The payment of the ransom has been guaranteed by Jenkins and citizens of Puebla and Mexico City, and not by the United States Government. Ten thousand dollars in American currency and 34,000 pesos have already been paid.

The State Department took cognizance of the Jenkins case today by issuing a statement containing its information concerning the capture and release of the Consular Agent. This settlement follows:

"The American Embassy at Mexico City has been authorized by the Department of State to give out the following statement today regarding the case of William O. Jenkins, the American Consular Agent at Puebla:

"American Consular Agent Jenkins who was abducted from his house in Puebla on the evening of Oct. 19 after his abductors had taken approximately 50,000 pesos in gold from his safes, was released Sunday afternoon last near the hacienda Achiverra, several miles south of Puebla, and two hours later was placed under the care of physicians in the Latin American hospital in Puebla.

"Jenkins was abducted and held by a band of rebels under the command of Federico Cordoba, with whom negotiations for Jenkins's release were opened Oct. 24. The negotiations, conducted partly in writing and partly in personal conference with Cordoba or with his agents, were terminated last Saturday night and arrangements were then made for the release of the captive the following day.

"Release was effected by agreement of Jenkins to pay Cordoba 300,000 pesos in addition to the 50,000 stolen on the 19th. On Oct. 28 a first payment was made consisting of 34,000 pesos cash and two drafts of $5,000 American currency each. A total of approximately 51,000 pesos.

"The Embassy is informed that subsequent payments are to be made as rapidly as Jenkins can secure the funds until the prescribed total is paid. The fulfillment of this agreement was to be guaranteed in writing, and was so guaranteed by five responsible citizens of Puebla and Mexico City.

"When released, Jenkins was suffering from rheumatism, physical and nervous exhaustion and other effects of the deprivation and exposure to which he was subjected, but he is improving rapidly under physicians' care."

PUTS SHIPS IN COAL TRADE.

Denmark Responds Quickly to Shipping Board's Complaint.

As a result of the Shipping Board's statement several weeks ago that Europe, despite its need for fuel, was diverting its own tonnage to the more profitable trade lines, leaving to America the less profitable trade of carrying coal to her, the Danish Legation has announced that sixteen ships, aggregating 61,000 tons, are to be placed immediately at transporting coal from this country to Denmark.

The fleet will include the Nordfarer, the Aggersund, Brattingsborg, Cernesborg, Skodsborg, I. D. S. Adolph, Newa, Paillsen, Elisabeth Maersk, Norden, Toyomaru, Frederiksborg, Flynderborg, Lilleborg, and the Helmer Moerch. The fleet, it is believed, will aid the board greatly in caring for European coal needs.

Word has been received by the Shipping Board that Sweden has taken cognizance of the situation, and is preparing to devote a number of vessels under her flag to the coal trade. The board also has been advised by the Italian High Commission to this country that Italian vessels which had been reported as carrying coal from America to Gibraltar actually were taking their cargoes to Italy.

Britain Buys Potash from Germany.

The British Government has acquired from Germany, in exchange for food, 40,000 tons of potash salts for use as fertilizer, according to a report from Henry F. Grady, American Trade Commissioner in London, to the Department of Commerce. The British Potash Company has been appointed to undertake the sale throughout the United Kingdom, at prices fixed by the Government Potash Committee.

K. OF C. ENDING CAMP WORK.

Catholic Organization Says It Regrets War Department Order.

The Knights of Columbus Committee on War Activities met yesterday at the Hotel Commodore and discussed the order of the War Department taking over the war relief work that has been carried on by various agencies. The order went into effect yesterday. The committee at the conclusion of its meeting made this statement:

"The Knights of Columbus protested against the War Department's order to withdraw all war work agencies in home camps by Nov. 1. But at the time we made our protest we stated that we would of course abide by the War Department's orders. We have not changed our attitude, neither have we changed our opinion that relief work of the nature conducted by the Knights of Columbus in the camps is more efficaciously conducted by civilian than by military agency, and it is an established fact that relief work under civilian auspices is preferred by the soldier.

"Of course, in conformity with the War Department's order, the Knights of Columbus are withdrawing from the camps, leaving only such workers as are necessary to complete the winding up of our affairs in each camp. We have received many communications from camp officers regretting our departure. We shall cheerfully co-operate with the War Department in its effort to initiate relief and recreational work, and our personnel in the camps has been placed at the War Department's disposal."

SEES PATRONAGE RETAINED

Analyzing the figures of the 1920 city budget, the largest on record, for the Citizens Union, Leonard M. Wallstein, counsel for its City Government Committee, said yesterday that there was much in it discreditable to the Hylan administration. Despite the items cut out of the tentative budget, he declared, new patronage jobs and new salary increases for political place holders were retained.

"The scandal of the 1920 budget will long be remembered as one of the particularly black pages which the Hylan administration is writing in the annals of this city," said Mr. Wallstein. "Concealed in the concealment of secret meetings of the Estimate Board, the exposure of the outrages in this budget set the Mayor and the Controller to telling the truth about each other in a desperate attempt by each to fasten on the other the culpability that justly attaches to both. The government of the most important city in the country has again been dragged into contempt by the disgraceful spectacle of its principal officials hurling billingsgate at each other.

"The wrangle resulted in the appropriation of huge sums of the taxpayers' money at a meeting from which the city's chief financial officer felt compelled to withdraw. In an unseemly row the Mayor insisted upon every moment of secret session which the law allowed. It was a sadly belated regard for the rights of the public when let the Controller properly, though in vain, to oppose that course. At the last session of the Legislature it was the Controller's objection to a prohibition of secret budget sessions that furnished the pretext for the defeat of a measure which would have required the 1920 budget and subsequent ones to be prepared in the daylight of open sessions.

"The padding which was put into the tentative budget for the purpose of removing it without injury to the provisions for new patronage jobs and big increases in the salaries of existing patronage jobs has been duly removed as per schedule. Out came the unwarranted provision of over $28,000,000 for new school buildings and sites, for the redemption of $2,500,000 of tax notes, which had never been issued, and for other miscellaneous items totaling over $40,000,000. So wild was the last moment rush for a show of economy that the appropriation for garbage disposal was reduced by $300,000 to $3,000,000, in spite of the fact that during only ten months of the current year nearly $4,000,000 has already been spent for that purpose under the stupidly extravagant method of this administration for handling the problem of final disposition of garbage. Special revenue bonds will unquestionably have to be issued during 1920 to supplement the new budget's clearly inadequate provision.

"The removable and removed padding in the budget has served its purpose, for the major portion of new patronage jobs and new salary increases for political place holders is retained. True, the Mayor has been moved to eliminate the new special examiner for his own office and three other members of the Estimate Board have done the same, but four of the Borough Presidents retain the new provision for as many special examiners in their offices and in addition the Borough Presidents keep other salary increases for political retainers.

"These substantial increases in the salaries of the politicos' friends of the Borough Presidents are doubtless the price which the city pays to see the Borough Presidents mun the Mayor's steamroller as it ran over the Comptroller's tardy but lonesome vote for consideration of the budget in the public. But the Mayor has saved many of the new patronage provisions for the departments under him. True, the salary of Peter Brady, Supervisor of the City Record, and one of the Mayor's mentors on the 'people's tribune,' is to be increased by only $1,000 instead of $1,500, but then he is to be provided with a new assistant editor at the City Record at $2,250.

"Moreover, Commissioner of Plant and Structures Grover Whalen is to have a new deputy commissioner at $5,000, in addition to an increase of $500 for the present deputy commissioner, John Mara, a Tammany district leader on Washington Heights. In the Tax Department William J. King, examiner and auditor, as well as a close friend of the Tammany chief, is increased $500.

"In the Commissioner of Account's office a deputy commissioner is increased $1,000, and ten new accountants, a new examiner and new examining inspector are added to the staff. In the law department nine new places of assistant corporation counsel will doubtless be placed in the exempt class at $5,000 or course, and the generous increase for experts' fees is retained.

"In the License Department the salary of Deputy Commissioner James F. Geraghty, Tammany district leader in the Bronx, is increased $500, and his colleague among the Tammany district leaders in the Bronx, Stephen J. Nugent, Deputy Commissioner of Public Charities, receives a $1,000 increase in his salary. In the Correction Department the Deputy Commissioner, William Dalton, veteran Tammany district leader and sachem, is increased $500, and the departmental secretary, Robert L. Tudor, is likewise increased $500. The staff of four new exempt places in the Board of Purchase, with salaries totaling over $14,000, is retained, in addition to a staff of new clerks, examiners, &c.

"In the Department of Finance the Controller will have his new appraiser of real estate, $4,000; seven new examiners, and his increase of $500 for the departmental secretary and $2,000 for his chief accountant. On the staff of the Estimate Board the assistant secretary will have an increase of $1,000, to $5,000 per year."

It was said yesterday that the Republican members of the Board of Aldermen would attempt to slash the budget, cutting out many items which are considered to be salary increases for political purposes. As the Democrats have a majority in the board, however, it is not likely that the Republican efforts will prevail. Under the law the budget must be submitted to the Aldermanic Board within five days after it is signed by the members of the Board of Estimate. The Aldermen then have twenty days in which to consider the budget, and may make reductions but not increases.

SIX-FINGERED WORKER SUED

Peter Dioptra, working for a contractor in Syracuse, was injured by a pipe falling on his foot. He applied for compensation, and an examination disclosed that the injury was confined to a sixth toe. Authorities were consulted as to whether compensation could be allowed for injury to surplus members, but nothing relating to such a case could be found. So the law only was considered. This provided for certain payments in the event of a toe being hurt, without stating how many toes a claimant might have.

Objection was made to an award on the ground that Peter was entitled to only five toes, and that if he had not had more than this number he would not have been injured. It was also contended that if the sixth toe was injured so badly as to render amputation necessary the accident really benefited him instead of injuring him. But the commission was obdurate and compensation was allowed.

In departing from the judgment room Peter shook hands with the commissioner, who then discovered that Peter had five fingers and a thumb on each hand. The uninjured foot, it was learned, also was possessed of six toes. It is the opinion of the commission that Peter has 20 per cent. more chance of getting toe and finger damages than any normal man.

WILL OPPOSE VOTING ON TREATY ON NOV. 12

reservations have been disposed of," was the way Senator Borah put it.

Senator Hitchcock is opposed to fixing Nov. 12 as the day for a final vote, since it might not give the Administration forces opportunity to carry out any counterattack that might be agreed on to offset the effects of the majority campaign. The minority, it develops, fears that the majority leaders might attempt to monopolize the entire time up to Nov. 12 in such a way as to preclude a vote on substitute reservations offered by the minority.

Senator Hitchcock today characterized the Lodge proposal as a trap. He said the majority might well be suspected of having some "trick" in mind that would keep the majority reservations before the Senate exclusively up to the time to vote. Once the reservations were adopted—assuming that the majority had the votes to put them through—and the Administration forces voted against the ratifying resolution, the treaty proponents would have only one way left open to get the treaty before the Senate again and that would be through a motion to reconsider the vote on the resolution.

The Democrats do not want to put themselves in the position of having the original ratifying resolution brought back for consideration with the possibility of the Republican majority being able to block an attempt to substitute a resolution containing interpretative reservations.

When the Lodge proposal comes up on Monday Mr. Hitchcock will insist on his own proposal for limiting debate on the reservations, but will resist fixing Nov. 12 for a vote. Senator Borah, finding himself, for the first time in the treaty fight, in agreement with the leader of the minority forces on any point, will support Senator Hitchcock, and, for himself and others among the radicals, will insist that no time be set at this juncture for a vote on the resolution of ratification.

Senator Borah and some fifteen other Senators in the "battalion of death," while not in entire sympathy with the committee reservations, explained today that they would vote for them so as not to break down Senator Lodge's achievement in getting the forty-nine Republicans in line on the majority program. The Borah group is satisfied with some of the reservations, notably that on withdrawal, but finds fault with others, the chief of which is that on Article X.

PIRATES SEIZE SHIP; GET 50,000,000 RUBLES

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 29. (Associated Press.)—Pirates concealed in the steerage of the ship Maria overpowered the crew while the vessel was bound from Novorossyak for Batum and robbed the passengers, obtaining 50,000,000 rubles.

On arriving at Batum officers of the vessel made a report of the robbery to the British police, who captured several of the pirates.

Pirates frequently land along the shores of the Black Sea and rob villages. At Trebisond recently pirates boarded a Greek schooner and stabbed or threw overboard its crew of fifteen men. They also captured the Russian steamer Constantion while the vessel was bound from Batum to Constantinople.

Leviathan Naval Post Planned.

An organization meeting of the Leviathan Post of the American Legion will be held on board the United States steamer Leviathan at Pier 4, Hoboken, N. J., at 7:45 o'clock on Thursday night. All discharged or released members of the Leviathan crew are urgently requested to be present.

ZIMBO ENSEMBLE PLAYS.

Six Russian Musicians Make Profound Appeal with Folk Melodies.

One of the largest Saturday night audiences recently in Carnegie Hall greeted, last evening, the first public appearance here of the Zimro Ensemble from Petrograd and Moscow. They are six chamber musicians—string quartet, clarinet, and paino—said to have traveled across the inner routes of Asia as perhaps Marco Polo traveled centuries ago, and aiming now not to linger in America but to proceed to the Mediterranean, girdling the globe. Their music was of folk melodies, the favorite clarinet airs of an oriental wedding feast, a two-violin arrangement of Jewish dances, a "Kol-Nidre" declared to be played exactly as sung in the synagogues on the eve of the Day of Atonement.

In these and kindred settings of traditional harmonic flavor, of plaintive minor key, of quaint simplicity through all, it was apparent that the Messrs. Mistechkin, Besrodny, Moldavan, Chernlavski, Bellison, and Berdichevsky made profund appeal to their hearers, who recalled each player for three and four encores. Among those who listened were Cantor Rosenblatt and others identified with music in New York.

THINKS MONGOLIANS FEAR THE JAPANESE

HATRED OF UNITED STATES

Army Officer Deplores Vagueness of Our Policy While Propagandists Are Active.

Efforts of Mongolian chieftains to obtain the reunion of Outer Mongolia to China, as told in dispatches from Peking on Friday, are probably due to the fear of the rapidly increasing Japanese control in Mongolia and Manchuria, according to Captain Frederick F. Moore, who has been attached to the Intelligence Department of the American Expeditionary Force in Siberia.

Captain Moore said yesterday that Japan had not only greatly strengthened her forces in Siberia and Northern China, in spite of the understanding that her military strength there was not to exceed that of this country, but had been acquiring mines, public utilities, and concessions of all kinds so rapidly that, in his opinion, she would refuse ever to withdraw her forces, insisting that they were necessary for the protection of her interests and nationals.

The intelligent classes in Mongolia were beginning to realize, Captain Moore said, that their escape from absorption by Japan could only be accomplished by their return to China, from which they seceded in 1912. At the same time, he continued, China was making an effort to bind her realm together so that any future stealing of her territory would appear to the world nakedly as stealing, which could not be explained away by diplomatic subterfuges.

Captain Moore said that he found the Russian Generals Semenoff and Kalmikoff, who were opposed to Kolchak, were acting in perfect harmony with the Japanese and furthering the invasion of Japanese merchants, concessionaires, and agents of all kinds in the territory of Siberia and China controlled by them. Kalmikoff is the so-called Siberian "Villa," whose soldiers recently flogged Corporal Benjamin Sparling of the 31st Regiment.

Relief Promises Not Kept.

The Captain thought the Japanese deserved credit for the fact that they had furnished supplies and relief of all kinds for stricken parts of Siberia, where great promises of relief had been made by the United States, but little help really given. The failure of the United States to carry out definite promises of relief made by the Creel Committee, together with general dullsomeness as to the purposes of this country in keeping its expeditionary forces in Russia, had produced an active public sentiment against this country in Russia.

Major Gen. Graves had at one time held up supplies intended for Kolchak as a means of disciplining the press of Vladivostok for bitter attacks on the United States and the expeditionary forces, according to the Captain. The Northern Chinese have been generally induced to hate this country because of an artful propaganda, the Captain said, to make it appear that America was mainly responsible for the Shantung transaction.

Hated on all sides, the American Expeditionary Force in Russia was not in an enviable position, Captain Moore asserted. He said that there was danger of repetitions of the massacre at Souchan last Summer, when a number of American soldiers were killed. He was stationed for a time at Chita in Siberia, near Lake Baikal.

"On my return from Chita to Vladivostok last Winter," Captain Moore said, "our train stopped at Tsitsihar, a Manchurian city about half-way between Chita and Vladivostok, and Semenoff's train and his private staff were in the station. There were also Mongolian and Manchu bannermen and a number of local princes. From my observations, it was obvious that Semenoff was making some deal with the local princes, and I reported on the subject when I got back to Vladivostok.

"Semenoff had an army of about 5,000 Mongolians, Buriats, Russians and Chinese. His arms were supplied by the Japanese, and the Japanese for some time financed his army. Semenoff later was reported to have interfered with the Trans-Siberian Railroad near Chita in order to interrupt traffic between Kolchak at Omsk and the allied forces at Vladivostok. For that reason Kolchak denounced Semenoff as a traitor.

Keeping Siberians Split Up.

"'At the same time Kalmikoff refused to aid Kolchak with the consequences that the Amur provinces and the Trans-baikal provinces were being ruled by two Cossack chiefs, both backed by the Japanese who gave them arms and money and advice. There is no doubt that the Japanese were and still are keeping the Siberians split up into little sections, and are dealing with them in detail. That is the reason that the Kolchak army is not getting the support of all Siberians, and that is why the Kolchak régime appears so weak.

"While the Japanese were keeping the country split up in sections under Cossack chiefs, they were importing in the guise of military supplies, millions of dollars worth of goods on which of course no duty was paid. These were turned over to Japanese civilians and others to open up stores, where they were sold at a high profit to the local populations. Japan is being stripped of manufactured articles to be sold throughout the interior, after having been transported as military supplies. This being the source from which the populations got so much food, clothes, and other necessaries to keep them alive, there is naturally little cause to complain about the failure to pay duty.

"Semenoff ran stores of his own which he called Semenoff stores. They were supposedly for the benefit of the population, and did benefit people who were in such dire need, but there is no doubt that Semenoff was in partnership with the Japanese in these stores, or else he was operating them as his stores and being paid a large rake-off. Through these stores flour, canned foods, sugar, salt, tea, candles, spices, blankets, boots and clothing and innumerable other things were being sold at very high prices.

"Semenoff also improved his position by forcing loans from the local bankers, and with the military and other aid which he received from Japan, was able to put himself in a very strong position where he could defy Kolchak. He insisted on bossing the Trans-Siberian railroad through his district and was a constant thorn in the side of the American Expeditionary Force. It was apparent that he was acting in concert with Little Hsu, the Chinese General in Mongolia, and with the Japanese, and that the plan was to erect a separate kingdom consisting of a portion of Siberia and a portion of Mongolia.

Serious Situation for A. E. F.

"This situation is a very serious one for the American Expeditionary Force. Having one in there and having taken a certain amount of control over the railroad, we are not only likely to get into trouble with the Siberian element, but we are likely to be directly involved with China, especially as China feels very badly about the Shantung affair. It is very easy now after the Shantung affair to tell the Chinese of Manchuria and of Mongolia and of all China that the United States, having allowed Shantung to be sliced off, is now ready to slice off a chunk of Mongolia and combine it with a chunk of Siberia and control it. That may sound absurd to us here in the United States, but it does not sound absurd to the Chinese.

"I cannot understand why our forces in Siberia put up so long with the tactics of Kalmikoff and Semenoff. There may be diplomatic reasons that are kept from the general public, but so far as I can see we have never defined our position, and our policy there has resulted in the utter bewilderment not only of the Russians, Chinese, and Japanese, but of the American people. We are operating over there in various ways with about 8,000 troops and have been giving aid through the Red Cross, and all the while we have been vilified by various factions and races.

"We are making enemies of the Chinese. We are not establishing any particular friendship with the Japanese. The Russians are doubtful of our intentions. No one seems to know anything about the intentions of our Government regarding the Siberian situation. This results in our general vilification."

British Commerce in September.

British imports during September reached a valuation of £148,625,074, and exports of £66,500,895, according to a cable from Consul General Hollis, in London, to the Department of Commerce in Washington. The imports for the nine months ended in September were valued at £1,166,607,457 and the exports at £541,344,352.

PERSHING FAVORS VETERANS' RESERVE

TRAINED YOUTHS TO FILL IN

Admits Difficulty of Preserving the State Guard, but Says It Must Be Federally Controlled.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—A volunteer force of officers and men who served in the great war, so organized as to preserve wartime designations of units, was proposed to the Military Affairs Committees of the Congress today by General Pershing, as the basis of a permanent reserve to be maintained in future by universal service.

Until universal training got under way, he told the committee, divisions of smaller units now disbanded could be brought back into existence on paper, with enough volunteers from their former personnel to make up the skeleton of a continuing reserve system.

Later, he continued, men emerging from universal training camps could be assigned to these reserve units in their home localities. He suggested that the men thus assigned be assembled for drill or manoeuvers "once or twice during the period they are held for possible service" after training, though they could not actually be called into active service except in time of war.

The general said the problem of fitting in this plan with any continuance of the National Guard as such, was a difficult one. He suggested that the Governors of States might be given authority to call the reserves into service in local emergencies, but preferred that their training and organizations be distinctly Federal.

Prefers Selective System.

General Pershing also declared his preference for army promotions by selection rather than seniority, and recommended a single list for promotion. In that way, he said, much "dead timber" could be eliminated and existing inequalities between staff and line removed. The present promotion system he characterized as "absurd."

"Nearly every army officer goes around with a reorganization bill in his vest pocket," said General Pershing, "and if you examine them, you'll find each has one arranging good promotions in his own service.

"In France we assigned officers to duty without regard to what their previous service had been, and they performed efficient service."

Chairman Wadsworth said some recent promotions had created fifty-nine Colonels for fifteen cavalry regiments. General Pershing said his scheme would prevent that.

"Staff officers have been able to come to Congress," General Pershing added, "and get promotions to the exclusion of promotions for officers of the actual fighting arms.

When the proposed consolidation of the chemical warfare service with the engineer corps was taken up, a committeeman asked if use of poison gas should not be eliminated.

"I'd be glad to see that," General Pershing returned, "but somebody else might use it and leave us in the lurch. I would continue preparation for chemical warfare."

Extending some of his remarks of yesterday, General Pershing said the Army Department of Purchase and Finance recommended by him should not take over the buying of articles now secured by the Quartermaster General's Bureau.

In reducing the army from 500,000 to 300,000 men, General said, only a very small reduction could be made in the number of staff officers.

"We had 3,800 on our staff in France for an army of 2,000,000 men," he said. "We should have needed the same number for half as many."

Gives Plan for Guard.

General Pershing was asked to explain exactly what his theory was for utilizing the National Guard in connection with the military establishment.

"I think it would be wise to take all troops that have seen war service in National Guard units and induct them into the Federal reserve units," he answered. "The National Guard could be kept as part of the training service.

"You will always have forty-eight different units to deal with in connection with the National Guard. The States have control over the Guard, but the Federal Government has some authority to enforce regulations over it.

"If no system of military training is adopted, we shall have to fall back upon the National Guard, but I should hate to see it."

Several committee members came to the defense of the Guard system and its results.

"This law provides that every man trained shall be automatically called into service in case of war," said Representative Miller, Republican, of Washington. "What are your views as to that?"

General Pershing said he would favor passing the trained men into reserve organizations and automatically on their unit was needed.

"You wouldn't have a selective draft, then?" Representative Miller pursued.

"I think the other would be the better plan," said General Pershing.

"The National Guard performed excellent service in the war, considering its limited opportunity for training," said the General. "Its officers and men had the feeling, and quite properly so, that they had not had complete support from the regular army."

One-year enlistments in the regular army, General Pershing said, should be continued, and men enlisting for that period should be exempted from universal training.

The General agreed with Chairman Wadsworth of the Senate committee that the names and organizations of former National Guard organizations should be retained in the Federal Reserve. He added that he believed the Federal Government would be glad to take over their armories and arsenals.

The witness virtually completed his statement before the joint sessions of the committees today, but he asked time to consider some of the questions submitted by members, and probably will appear again next week.

Under authority given by Congress to retain 18,000 commissioned officers in the army until the end of the fiscal year, the War Department has decided to retain in their present emergency grades about 100 general officers, including General March and Lieut. Gens. Hunter Liggett and Robert L. Bullard. There will be fifty-five Major Generals, headed by Leonard Wood, commander of the Central Department.

New Home [illegible] will [illegible]

PARIS, Nov. 1. (Associated Press.)—The American Ambassador, Hugh C. Wallace, has taken up his official residence at 5 Place d'Iena, removing from the residence of his predecessor, William G. Sharp, in the Avenue d'Eylau.

The mansion now occupied by Mr. Wallace is famous in the annals of Paris. It was once occupied by Prince and Princess Radziwill. The building, a spacious, imposing structure, is surrounded by beautiful gardens and overlooks the Seine River and the Champs de Mars.

Among the new neighbors of the Ambassador are Mme. Félix Faure, widow of the former President of France; Prince Bonaparte, and Mrs. James Gordon Bennett.

KAHLER SHOES For Men & Women

When Grandmother Wore a Hoopskirt

She had a canny predilection for quality. She went to Kahler's for footwear as a matter of course. Kahler shoes are quality shoes today, as they have been for over half a century—and smart, too—smart as the crack of a whip. They are comfortable, being planned to conform to the foot without sacrificing style a whit. You may buy Kahler shoes with assurance. The quality is the same as of old, the style is obvious, and they are famous for their comfort.

A New Standard of Values in Tailored Clothes

THE Tailored Woman, Inc., is offering a tailored clothes service that is proving of considerable interest and of untold value to New York women. It has set a new standard of values in tailored clothes,—that of quality rather than price.

Some women judge the value of clothes largely by their price.

Some shops base their selling prices largely on the appearance rather than the cost of their cloths, asking as much as they think they can get.

Both of these factors have made many women believe that it is impossible to get really smart clothes of the highest quality except at an almost prohibitive price.

That is not so.

The Tailored Woman, Inc., is proving to women every day that it is quite possible to obtain assured fashions in tailored clothes of the highest character at very much less than had heretofore seemed possible.

This has been accomplished first, by specializing on tailored clothes, and secondly, by giving the customers the benefit of expert buying, determining the selling price in every case solely by the cost.

The well-known "Wooltex Tailor Mades," both coats and suits, are sold at The Tailored Woman, Inc., exclusively in New York City.

The result is a collection of clothes that are distinguished for their authentic fashion, the superior quality of fabrics used in every instance, and the fair prices at which they are offered.

Following youth and Paris

ALWAYS, youth loves the new, and with an eternal talent at original line and coloring, with just the right flair for the gay and the glad, Paris, of all interpreters, is the one best fitted to express the carefree spirit of youth in fashions.

These models are copies of French imports—wraps, dresses, and suits which first reached us bearing the enchanted names of Madeleine and Madeleine, Agnes, Paquin, Premet and Paton. Jauntily French in every line, a suit in autumn scarlet gains a smart piquancy through distended pleats at the waistline. One wrap with a hugged-about-the-figure silhouette is draped out of cherry, peachbloom, the bottom a dusk of seal. And as for frocks—but you must see them all.

Skilfully preserving a fine simplicity and yet naively retaining the subtlety of line, of dexterous trimming, and of clever cut synonymous with Paris, these models spell, above all else, the charms of youth.

Ann: Silken inserts embroidered in brown run along the skirt of this blue burella frock. $149.00

Eugenia: In this suit, made of Rodier's cloth which we specially imported, blue plaid is combined with squirrel cuffs and collar. $149.00

Pauline: Worsted embroidery, King's blue, bands the bottom of this suit of navy blue Peachbloom. $129.00

June: Georgette crepe, banded smartly with taupe silk duvetyn strips, forms the blouse of this frock, combined with an English twill skirt trimmed with Hudson seal. $189.00

Emma: Tightly swathed about the figure, this wrap of Cherry Peachbloom is combined with Hudson seal. $196.00

Frances: Set-in strips of silk wind about the navy blue skirt of this trim frock with a vest of silver and black. $189.00

Madeleine: All down the front of this black frock go Roman stripes and fringe, and a collar of mole lends a rich finish. $189.00

Vivian: Double puffs and graceful fullness billow in this Peachbloom, cape collared with Kolinsky Squirrel. $139.00

Jacqueline: Dashingly portraying the latest Paris lines, this Peachbloom suit has distended pleats at the waist-line and a collar of Hudson seal. $129.00

GERMAN, DEPORTED, JUMPS OVERBOARD

CAPTURED BY FEDERAL BOAT

The saddest man without doubt on board the American steamship Oscoda, which is now steaming toward the coast of France, is Frederick Haigstots, a German, 30 years old, who was deported after being nine years in America and having taken out his first papers. He was caught in his native land by the war in 1914, and returned recently as a stowaway on the American freighter Steadfast. He will be sent back by train to his home in Strasbourg, Alsace.

The thought of returning to Europe so preyed on the young man that as the steamship was passing Quarantine yesterday afternoon he jumped over the port quarter from the top deck into the water and struck out for the Brooklyn shore, while the Oscoda steamed on toward the open sea.

Unfortunately for the stowaway he was seen by Captain J. Halpin of the Ellis Island steamboat Immigrant, which pursued and rescued him against his will after he had swum for fifteen minutes. Then the Captain of the Immigrant started full speed after the Oscoda, blowing signals for that vessel to stop, which it did to receive the unwilling passenger. To insure that Haigstots would not be tempted to go over the side again he was locked up in the ship's hospital.

Haigstots told the immigration officials that he came first to this country on May 24, 1904, and went to work as a bookkeeper for Merritt & Elliott of 134 Duane Street, and the following year he took out his first citizenship papers.

Haigstots said he went to visit his parents in Strasburg, and when the war began in 1914 the Germans forced him to serve three months in the infantry. He managed to desert and went to Berlin, where he posed as an American citizen and refused to remain in the army. After much trouble with the military authorities he was released, but had no chance to get to this country until he stowed away on the Steadfast at a French port.

He was taken to Ellis Island on his arrival in New York, where the Board of Special Inquiry ordered him to be excluded. He said he had three uncles living in Brooklyn, Gottlieb, Christopher, and Charles Wilburmuth, who had agreed to assist him in purchasing and equipping a ranch in Texas.

VIRGINIANS ELECT OFFICERS

State Society Holds Annual Meeting at the Plaza.

The annual meeting of the Virginians was held at the Plaza last night, at which there were present about one hundred members and their guests. After the business meeting a "smoker" was held.

The following officers were elected to serve for the coming year: Governor, Walter L. McCorkle; Vice Governor, Dr. William E. Dold; Treasurer, William D. Buckner; Secretary, Hamilton Rogers; members of the Executive Council to serve until Nov. 1922, Walter G. Dunnington, Jr., Edwin C. Luke, and John P. East.

This society ranks as the oldest of the State societies in the city, tracing its organization back to the earlier part of 1858, but was inactive during the period of the civil war and few years thereafter.

Leaves $150 to Cousin's Unborn Son

The will of George Christian Oswald, who died March 9 last at 545 East Thirtieth Street, leaves $150 to be deposited in a bank for fifty years and to be paid at the end of that time to "the son's son, yet unborn, of my cousin, upon reaching his majority." The will provides that if there is no such heir the fund is to go to the Twenty-third Street Y. M. C. A. The testator also said: "Mine will be a cheap funeral. Fifty dollars will be spent for a silk flag and dark roses."

THERE is comparatively little furniture of "the Hathaway kind."

This phrase has come to have a definite meaning to those who are familiar with our show-rooms.

It implies first of all the physical essential of superior craftsmanship, and beyond this a noticeable element of discrimination which eliminates the ordinary on the one hand and the "faddish" on the other.

The Redingote, the Russian Blouse and Tunic styles are featured in engaging ways in such lovely fabrics as Tricolette, Paulette, Satin, Tricotine, Wool Jersey, Velour, Georgette Crepe and Velveteen. Beading, embroidery, tucks, odd arrangements of buttons and tie girdles provide the adornment.

FLYING CLUB GRANTS ALTITUDE RECORD

Contest Committee Finds That 31,800 Feet Was Attained with a Passenger.

VICTORY FOR SUPERCHARGER

Major Schroeder's Performance Proves Value of Device for Raising Motor's Efficiency.

In the flight made by Major R. W. Schroeder, with Lieutenant George W. Ehody as passenger, at McCook Field, Dayton, Ohio, on Oct. 4, for the purpose of testing the new "supercharger" for airplane motors and to obtain additional data for mapping aerial trade winds, a new world's altitude record of 31,800 feet for a plane carrying a passenger was made, according to the Contest Committee of the American Flying Club, which homologated the records of the performance. Speaking of the flight, Chance Voight, Chairman of the committee, said yesterday:

"Major Schroeder's record of 31,700 feet was made with a passenger, flying a Lepere biplane equipped with a 400 horse-power Liberty motor, equiped with a 'supercharger.' The machine is actually capable of 37,000 feet, for at the time when 31,500 feet was reached he was still climbing, indicating that, even with pilot and passenger the machine was good for at least 36,000 feet. The 'normal ceiling' of this type of plane, carrying fuel tanks, pilot, observer, and special instruments, is only about 32,500 feet as a military fighting machine, and the marked difference in capability has been brought about by the use of the newly invented 'supercharger.'

"According to experimental data in the possession of the technical sections of the Air Service, it has been found that at a height of 20,000 feet an airplane engine only gives 45 per cent. of the power yielded at sea level. The tremendous value of the 'supercharger' lies in its ability to make a motor yield the same horse power at 20,000 feet that it does flying at the lowest altitudes. Whereas his machine is capable of a speed of 136-7 miles per hour at sea level, at 25,000 feet, the altitude at which most of the air fighting in the next war is expected to take place, Major Schroeder's biplane has shown a speed of 134 miles, a loss of only two-thirds of a mile per hour.

Major Schroeder is the chief test pilot for the airplane engine division of the Air Service and has made many valuable contributions to the development of plane motors.

TO AID DESERTED WIVES.

District Attorney Lewis Suggests Police Bureau for Such Cases.

District Attorney Harry E. Lewis of Kings County has written to Police Commissioner Enright suggesting that a desertion bureau be established in connection with the Bureau of Missing Persons. During the year a number of women complained to the District Attorney that they had been deserted by their husbands, and in many cases the prosecutor aided in bringing back the husbands and compelling them to support their families.

Many women who appeared at the District Attorney's office, however, could not tell where their husbands were. It is to aid these women that Mr. Lewis desires to establish the desertion bureau in order to find the deserting husbands.

TWO HELD AS ANARCHISTS.

Police Seize 25,000 Circulars in Prisoners' Printing Establishment.

Sergeant James J. Gegan and Detectives Brown, Murphy, and Correll of the "anarchist squad" yesterday arrested Benjamin Roback, 24 years old, of 102 East Fourth Street, and Morris S. Nessim, 22 years old, of 170 Essex Street, on charges of criminal anarchy and confiscated about 25,000 circulars which they found in the printing establishment of Tobac[illegible] in Fifth Street.

One of the handbills announced a mass meeting of the [illegible] Party," to be held [illegible] Square "to celebrate the second anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution." It was stated that no permit had been granted for this meeting, because of the apparent illegality of the proposed assemblage, and that the police will be in Rutgers Square in force on the day named.

Another circular is headed, "Boycott the Elections," and urges that the time has come for radicals to reject "parliamentarism."

ODDS GIVEN ON TAMMANY.

6 to 5 Offered on All Major Candidates—Betting Is Light.

Little election betting was reported last night. The odds favored Tammany candidates in Manhattan, and in Brooklyn one of the Republican candidates, Representative Reuben L. Haskell, "wet," nominee for County Judge of Kings.

Prevailing odds in the hotel betting were 2 to 1 in favor of Robert L. Moran for Aldermanic President, 3 to 1 on Edward F. Boyle, the Tammany candidate for Borough President of Manhattan, and 6 to 5 that Tammany would elect all its major candidates.

A group of Tammany politicians wagered $5,000 against $2,500 with Republican friends of Representative La Guardia that Moran would defeat him, and announced that the Republicans could have as much more money as they could cover at the same odds.

Hammerstein's Widow Sues His Son

Mrs. Emma Swift Hammerstein, widow of Oscar Hammerstein, filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against his son, Arthur, to recover $2,500 as the quarterly installment of rent due in August for the Republic Theatre, which she alleges the defendant agreed to pay her in the presence of her late husband.

MERCIER BESTOWS PARTING BLESSING

Sailing From Quebec, He Sends a Message of Gratitude to American People.

REJUVENATED BY WELCOME

Cardinal Says the Self-Denial of the War Can Be Made for All a Rule of Life.

Before leaving Quebec for Antwerp on the steamship Megantic yesterday, Cardinal Mercier expressed his thanks to the American people for the reception accorded him in a message, which was given out here by George Gillespie, Chairman of the Mercier Reception Committee, as follows:

"It is difficult for me to give adequate expression to my feelings at this moment, when I am about to leave your wonderful and hospitable land. The sympathy and love with which I have been received everywhere, both in large cities and the lesser ones, and even at small stations by the way, have gone to my heart. I can say with full truth that the moral comfort which you have brought to my soul has indeed rejuvenated me and given me new strength and vigor with which to face whatever duties the Divine Providence may call upon me to accomplish in my dear Belgium.

"I have learned to admire the American people. I have learned to love them. I feel a strong assurance that a lasting tie of mutual sympathy and confidence has been established between your country and mine, and that it will endure for generations to come. The calamities of this great war and the bitter sufferings which it entailed for our people have brought one bright thought—the bond of union between us.

"I realize and firmly believe Americans also realize that it has been a privilege for our generation to go through the crucible of this gigantic struggle. For those who would be exalted spiritually and morally by its lessons it is an opportunity such as has never been given at any other time of the world's existence. By these lessons which can be sought, and I may say which stand out in bold letters on every page of the annals of the war—I mean the magnificent instances of individual and national self-sacrifice and self-denial, object lessons of the highest moral order—each one of us may make his rule of life in the future.

"I had hoped before leaving to be received by your President, Mr. Woodrow Wilson. To my keen regret this has been impossible owing to the present state of his health. I express my sincerest wishes and prayers for his prompt and complete recovery.

"Let me in conclusion, my dear people, assure you that you will ever be present in my memory and in my prayers, and give me the privilege of bestowing my blessing on you with all my heart.

"D. T. CARDINAL MERCIER,
"Archbishop of Malines."

Coincident with the issuance of the message, it was asserted that the expense of the private car "New York" which the Cardinal and his party used during their stay in the United States was borne by Thomas Fortune Ryan.

LABOR AIMS TO RULE WORLD CONFERENCE

FORCE HALT IN PROGRAM

Workers' Group Decides to Try to Throw Out Votes of Governmental Appointees.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Dissatisfied with the present basis of representation in the International Labor Conference, the labor group delegates decided today to make an effort to throw out the votes of all countries which have not sent worker delegates and are represented only by governmental appointees.

More than ten Latin-American countries, as well as China, Rumania, and Siam, have not sent labor delegates, and are represented by a diplomatic officer stationed in this country. The labor delegates contend these officials are not acquainted intimately with conditions in their home countries, and are not qualified to represent them.

The grievance goes back to the provisions of the Versailles treaty, which gave the Government two delegates, employers one, and labor one. At the Amsterdam meeting of the International Federation of Trade Unions, which will hold its second session here on the arrival of the German and Austrian representatives, the demand was made that the Government delegation in each case also be reduced to one.

The raising of this issue blocked the program of the conference to take up Monday the question of the eight-hour day and the forty-eight-hour week. The Commission on Selection, which is the conference steering committee, was unable to agree on procedure to handle the subjects which probably will come before the conference next week. Some delegates favored referring the question of representation to a committee to prepare a plan for reorganization of the conference.

Labor delegates sought this delay in the program for the further purpose of preventing action prior to the arrival of the Germans and Austrians, it was said, as they are expected to be almost solidly in sympathy with the workers. By eliminating the votes of governmental delegates from countries without labor representation, and through the support of the governmental appointees of Germany, Austrian, and other countries believed to side with labor as against capital, the labor group leaders hoped, it was said, to create a bloc strong enough to prevent the conference from taking any action unfavorable to it. A two-thirds vote is required on all conclusions of the conference. The Government delegates of Czechoslovakia, and probably of Holland and Belgium, would take the part of the workers on all issues included in the agenda of the conference, one foreign delegate said.

The German and Austrian delegates sailed from Amsterdam on Oct. 24, and should be here by Wednesday, according to W. A. Appleton of England, President of the International Federation of Trade Unions. It was frankly admitted that their presence might produce an awkward situation. The eleven men from each of the two Central powers will be placed on a quasi-diplomatic status, it was said, and may be housed in the old German Embassy, which now flies the Swiss flag. They would take their seats at the conference in alphabetical order, in accordance with present seating arrangements.

The conference hall has an international aspect with each country's place at the long tables identified by its flag, but the German and Austrian colors will be excluded, due to legislation prohibiting the display of enemy colors.

The Commission on Selection today named a committee on the admission of new countries, which will have to take up the status of Finland and Mexico. Its members are:

Government—Arthur Fontaine, France, and Newton W. Rowell, Canada. Employers—M. Colinet, France, and Marcel Fraipont, Belgium. Labor — Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, (N. M. Joshi of Indiana will act in his stead until the United States is represented officially,) and Gino Baldesi of Italy.

The following Committee on Standing Orders was named: Government—Count de Esa, Spain; M. Keshaw, Indiana; M. Mahaim, Belgium. Employers—M. Golnsau, France; Dr. Miall, Great Britain; Mr. Verkade, Holland. Labor—Conrad Ilg, Switzerland; Mr. Tayerle, Czechoslovakia, and P. M. Draper, Canada.

HINT AT NEW PLOT IN TRACTION INQUIRY

BODY WILL MEET TOMORROW

No Definite Announcement by Jurors Is Expected Until After Election Day.

The nature of the particular phase of the traction situation that the Extraordinary Grand Jury has given intimation is to be investigated, despite the protest and advice to them by the District Attorney, to the effect that the jury was charged to investigate certain information and had no legal ground for official consideration of other features of the inquiry, was not disclosed yesterday. But persistent rumors at the Criminal Courts Building made it appear that the further inquiry may be conducted along lines to determine if a conspiracy had existed between any public officials and others to force the Interborough Rapid Transit Company to relinquish control of its subway routes, for the purpose of diverting the lines to municipal ownership or operation.

If this is to be the next move by this Grand Jury their purpose will not be indicated until after election, although they are to meet again tomorrow. The only intimation the jurymen gave of their desire to inquire into some special feature of the traction matters other than the specific phase presented to them based on information submitted to the county prosecutor by Mayor Hylan was contained in their letter to Governor Smith, asking for special counsel to replace the District Attorney, and stating that if their request be refused "a crime which completely overshadows that charged by the Mayor may escape detection."

The District Attorney, in his defense against the jury's charges before the Governor, wrote in his public letter: "From nothing that has developed from the examination has the District Attorney been able to surmise what is meant by the words that 'a crime may escape detection.'"

Judge Swann informed Governor Smith that the jury would be given every assistance his office could command to prosecute the evidence if the jury would indicate the crime referred to. Mr. Swann said he would submit the evidence to one or the other of grand juries sitting in the county, asserting that he did not consider all the members of the Extraordinary Grand Jury to be qualified to open a general inquiry into the transit situation. The District Attorney declared that one of the jurymen held his business position as the representative of J. P. Morgan & Co., and that at least three others of the jury owned bonds of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company.

The information and testimony from witnesses presented to the jury by the District Attorney had to do with the specific question of collusion between officials and employes of the Interborough, based on the allegation that the recent strike of the employes was brought about as a part of the propaganda to get an increase in transit fares.

Whether or not the jury had made known to Mr. Swann the nature of the "crime" mentioned in the jury's letter, when he appeared before them on Friday and was asked if he was willing to become a witness and waive immunity, could not be learned yesterday. Mr. Swann was at his country home over the week-end. The jury was not in session yesterday.

A statement at the Criminal Court Building on behalf of Mr. Swann was to the effect that the District Attorney had not taken the attitude of refusing to appear as a witness or of declining to waive immunity in any investigation which the Grand Jury may properly inquire into at a regular session. It was said that the District Attorney had simply refused to answer any questions of members of the jury as individuals or while they were meeting informally and not as a Grand Jury.

Some days ago the Grand Jury had taken the initiative in calling and questioning Mayor Hylan, Public Service Commissioner Nixon and the city editor of The New York American. It was said yesterday that the Grand Jury may request city officials and others who have been active in transit matters to appear and testify, and that documents and other information relating to the subject in possession of the city authorities, will be asked for.

MME. D'ALVAREZ SINGS.

Peruvian Contralto, Still a Tragedy Queen, Pleases Large Audience.

Mme. Marguerite d'Alvarez, a Peruvian contralto who first appeared here in the later seasons of Hammerstein's Manhattan Opera, returned after some years on the British concert stage to sing yesterday in Carnegie Hall before a large audience, that stayed after her long program until she gave the favorite air from "Samson et Dalila," and a lyric trifle, "Bon Jour, Suson," as encores. Her concert, which was interesting, might well have had more of the lighter moments; yet, allowing for limits of contralto range and sombre repertory the singer aimed to escape monotony by much dramatic action in lieu of more varied mood in songs.

Mme. d'Alvarez has modeled her recent career after British models, such as Brema or Kirkby-Lunn. She is still the majestic figure, the tragedy queen of youthful days, and she is still young. Robed in lustreless black amid flowers and palms on a dim-lit platform, she was herself the vivid contrast, often heard but not seen, until from the shadow she suddenly emerged with salient gesture and climax of tone. Her powerful voice was not without vibrato, it was at times strangely modified by emotion, yet effectively in control for the artist's purpose, and eloquent in sustained pianissimo.

Her audience heard with pleasure old aira from Monteverde's "Orfeo," Rameau's "Castor and Pollux," a recitative and air from the English Purcell's "Dido and Aeneas," and the air of Clytemnestra from Gluck's "Iphigenia in Aulis." Before a final number in the large form, Borodine's "La Mer," she sang modern pieces by Bantock and John Ireland, by Debussy and Chausson, by Granados and F. Pedrell, two Spanish composers, these last, evidently gratifying to her South American compatriots, many of whom were present.

RED CROSS TO AID MOURNERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Americans visiting the graves of relatives and friends in France will receive every assistance under plans announced here today by the American Red Cross. A new bureau, the "Service for American Relatives Visiting Cemeteries," has been established overseas by the Red Cross, in co-operation with the Y. W. C. A.

The Red Cross Central Information Bureau in Paris will furnish information concerning trains, accommodations and other details of service for visitors to the cemeteries. A Red Cross transportation service has been established at St. Quentin for Bony and the smaller cemeteries; at Soissons for Fismes and the contiguous graves; at Château-Thierry for Fere en Tardenois and Belleau Woods, and at Verdun for Remagne and Thiaucourt.

Hotels and rest houses to be operated by the Y. W. C. A. are being provided near the various cemeteries.

POLICE FAIL TO STOP PROTEST FOR RUSSIA

OPPOSE THE BLOCKADE

Police reserves from two stations were ordered to the Hotel Commodore yesterday after information had reached Inspector Thomas V. Underhill that a committee of women would attempt to form a parade there as part of a propaganda movement for the lifting of the blockade against Russia. The action of Inspector Underhill, who commands the Sixth Inspection District, was taken because no permit for the parade had been issued.

Although some of the women told Inspector Underhill that they had obtained permission from a Police Lieutenant in the East Fifty-first Street Station to carry out their intention of picketing Fifth Avenue, the Inspector said that he would permit no parade nor demonstration, no matter how orderly, unless a permit were obtained. Other members of the committee denied that they had intended to parade in the vehicle lanes in Fifth Avenue, and said they wished merely to form picket lines on the sidewalk.

About 150 women started to walk through Forty-second Street toward Fifth Avenue in such an orderly manner and with so much distance between marchers that Inspector Underhill and Captain William W. Duggan of the East Fifty-first Street Station decided the demonstration could not be classed as a parade. The marchers were on the sidewalks and, because of the placards carried by them might have passed as "sandwich women."

Enthusiasm Wanes in the Rain.

Mounted policemen who had been ordered to prevent any demonstration rode along the street, and their presence attracted attention to the sidewalk marchers.

This sidewalk parade marched up Fifth Avenue to Fifty-ninth Street and then down, on the opposite side, to Washington Square. There the marchers disbanded, and some of them reported that the mounted policemen had doffed their caps and smiled gracious adieus, forgetting police orders and the long ride in the pouring rain.

Miss Lucy Branham marched at the head of the sidewalk procession with an American flag. Directly behind her was Miss Helen Todd with a placard reading: "We Are American Women." Others carried signs reading: "Milk for Russian Babies." Others who were reported as marching as members of the American Women's Emergency Committee were: Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, Mrs. John Rogers, Mrs. William Hard, Mrs. Jon Macy, Dr. Agnes Cloud, Caroline Lexow Babcock, Dr. Mary Halton, Charlotte Rudyard, Miss Vida Milholland, Miss Hazel Mackaye, Elizabeth C. Watson, and Amy Mali Hicks.

Members of the committee said that they had not considered whether they would be aiding the Bolsheviki and did not wish to bring up the question at all with American women. Russian politics—"and you know the Bolsheviki form a political party"—was not of interest to the committee, it was said by members, the only desire being to aid Russian women and children.

NAMED TO MINING CONGRESS

Wilson Appoints Ten Delegates—Labor Problems to be Discussed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Ten delegates at large to the American Mining Congress, to be held in St. Louis, Nov. 17 to 21, were appointed to-day by President Wilson. Officials of the Congress announced that an industrial conference would be held in connection with the meeting in an effort to work out solutions of the labor problems confronting the country.

The delegates named by the President were:

Emmet D. Boyle, of Reno, Nev.; Albert B. Carlton, of Cripple Creek, Col.; George J. Baer and Wallace Libbey, Jr., of Scranton, Pa.; Van H. Manning, Director of the Bureau of Mines, and George Otis Smith, of Washington; W. A. McCutcheon, of Pittsburgh; Francis S. Peabody, of Chicago, and F. B. Richards, of Cleveland.

Y., Nov. 1.—Receipts from the operation of the stock transfer law for October totaled $1,330,309, the largest amount for a month since the statute became operative in 1905, State Controller Eugene W. Provide Now Against Any Coal Scarcity

A coal shortage is one of the possibilities just now—and Gimbels New Kind of Housefurnishing Store again comes to the front in an effort to serve its patrons in this exigency.

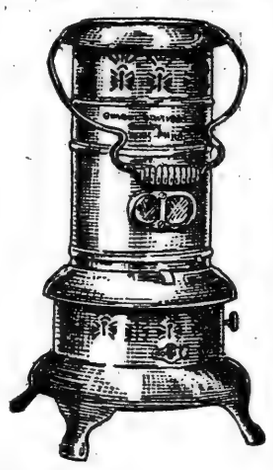
People will remember a somewhat similar situation two years ago when men and women crowded by the hundreds into our Housefurnishing Section—and waited patiently for hours in some cases for further shipments of heaters to arrive.

We advise people to get their oil heaters now before the cold weather sets in in earnest and before the scarcity of coal becomes alarming.

You Don't Need Coal for Heating Purposes

Oil heating has been proven by scientists to be 25% cheaper than heating by coal. It's cleaner, too—no ashes, no soot, no smoke, and the heat starts instantly.

O-Keh Oil Heaters $4.95



At $4.95 the O-Keh is a wonderful value. We have sold thousands to the thorough satisfaction of delighted patrons. In fact, this sale price is the same as the price of years ago, in spite of the way prices have been rising.

YALE MEN TO TAKE CENSUS.

300 Promptly Volunteer for 100 Jobs as Enumerators.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 1.—The City of New Haven wanted 100 census enumerators and wanted them in a hurry. It was suggested that Yale might be able to furnish the men. Within a few hours of the call in The Yale Daily News over 300 Yale students had filed application with the district supervisor to become official enumerators. This information was made public today by the Yale Bureau of Appointments, through whose agency the men were enlisted.

Since there is actual need for only 100 canvassers in New Haven, the Yale men will be selected by competitive examination. Dean Jones of the college and Director Chittenden of the Scientific School have announced that men of sufficiently high scholastic standing will, if necessary, be excused from certain curricular work in order to devote themselves to this public service.

In 1910 the recompense that censustakers received was $70 for twelve eight-hour days. This Winter the pay will doubtless be higher; $100 is the unofficial estimate.

LEASES LEXINGTON THEATRE

Henry Burden McDowell, a consulting engineer of Cambridge, Mass., announced yesterday at the Hotel Commodore that he had leased the Lexington Theatre until September, 1920. Mr. McDowell, who declared emphatically that no German opera would appear there during his lease, said he planned to devote the playhouse to educational "movies" and community rallies, beginning tomorrow night.

The engineer leased the theatre from G. P. Grundy, who said that the contract for the Chicago Opera Company, due to be operative from January to March, had been assumed by Mr. McDowell.

UNTERMYER AGREES TO PUBLISH RECORD

Writes to Colby He Consents to Its Inspection if War Department Is Willing.

DEFENDS FORMER ATTITUDE

Hesitated to Set Precedent That Might Do Injustice to Any Registrant.

Irwin Untermyer, Tammany candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court, made public last night a letter he had written to Bainbridge Colby, Chairman of the Non-Partisan Judiciary Committee which is conducting the campaign of the anti-Tammany Judiciary nominees, embodying a proposal for the inspection of his draft questionnaire by a person representing himself and one representing Mr. Colby, provided the War Department will give its consent. The letter follows:

Nov. 1, 1919.

Sir—I, too, am replying to your communication to the newspapers prior to its receipt through the mails, because, as you say, there is no time to be lost.

I observe, with amazement, that your discussion of my status in the draft is not based upon any evidence whatever, nor even upon suspicion, and that you disclaim any intention to suggest that I made any claim with which you have any fault to find. I am deeply grateful to you, however, for this frank admission which dismisses that branch of the subject.

You suggest that although no one is prepared to make even an intimation that I failed in any respect in my duty to my country, and although I have published two comprehensive statements on this subject, you desire to inspect my questionnaire.

I will, however, authorize you to inspect my questionnaire under the conditions now to be stated:

I have hesitated to establish a precedent so pernicious and so dangerous to every man who filed a questionnaire under the bond of secrecy, containing matters of a strictly private and personal kind, and in their interest I had hoped that you would not insist upon disclosures. This apparently is of no concern to you, and I therefore place upon you and your associates in this campaign the responsibility for lifting the veil of secrecy and protection from all the men who responded to the call of their country.

I do not know to what extent my consent will be effective, since all of such papers are in the custody of the War Department, but I will do everything within my power to procure the exhibition of my questionnaire, not, however, to you alone or to others who, like you, would seek to convert it into political capital, but to a representative of yours and a representative of mine, who, together, may publish every material part of it.

As you say, the time is short and I therefore suggest that we immediately co-operate to end this controversy.

Yours truly,
IRWIN UNTERMYER.

Mr. Colby's letter, to which the above was an answer, follows in part:

"I should think that, at the first intimation of this charge, you would have demanded, as a matter of right, the production of the questionnaire which you answered, and that, if your demand were not promptly complied with, you would appeal, on the ground of high personal privilege, that the document be exhibited. But you do nothing of the kind. You 'stand pat,' to use the words of your campaign manager, upon your unverified version of the facts. You persistently and doggedly withhold your consent to the production of the document.

"You are entirely in error in imputing to me the origination, or even the circulation, of the charges attaching to your treatment of the Federal draft questionnaire. These charges have been freely made in the press, and you must know that their discussion has a wide currency otherwise. I allowed ten days to elapse after their first publication in several newspaper before alluding to the subject, and in my speech of Thursday night I expressly disclaimed any interest in the question as to whether or not you had sought to evade your duty under the draft by seeking a deferred classification. With that I have no concern. I may have an opinion, but I feel neither warrant nor temptation to express it.

Mr. Colby wound up his letter by urging Mr. Untermyer to alter his position and permit the production of his questionnaire.

"Any good adviser will tell you," he wrote, "that, even if its contents are embarrassing to you, it will be better to explain as best you can what it contains rather than to persist in this self-destroying refusal to give your consent to its production."

ACCUSES GERMAN OFFICERS.

PARIS, Nov. 1, (Associated Press.)—Charges of murder and burglary, based on Articles 227 and 230 of the Versailles Peace Treaty, were lodged against German officers in the Paris Court House yesterday by a firm of jewelers in the Rue de la Paix.

This firm had a branch house at Ostend when the Germans occupied the town in October, 1914. The manager of the store and his wife were shot, and three safes were blown up and their contents taken. The names of the officers responsible are said to be Aco and Ignace.

The Under Secretary of State for Military Justice has been requested to apply for the extradition of the officers.

TELLS HISTORY OF TIMES MEXICAN MAP

Brig. Gen. Churchill Says His Office Supplied Map from Which It Was Drawn.

GRAHAM MISUNDERSTOOD

Wrote Without Full Knowledge of the Facts, but Did Not Intend to Repudiate Map, Churchill Says.

Military Intelligence Division.
In replying refer to 9527-253.
WAR DEPARTMENT,
Office of the Chief of Staff,
Washington, Oct. 31, 1919.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Dear Sir: Since writing my letter to you, dated Oct. 28, 1919, with reference to the article in The New York Call, dated Oct. 27, in which I was erroneously quoted as "giving the lie" to THE NEW YORK TIMES, I have since seen alleged quotations from your letter to James G. McDonald, dated Oct. 27, in which you submit your reasons for considering the map of Mexico published in THE NEW YORK TIMES of June 22, 1919, as "official."

In order that the matter may be entirely cleared up I desire to submit the following facts concerning the map, the way in which it came into the possession of THE NEW YORK TIMES, and the misunderstanding which has been caused by the letter of Oct. 15 to James G. McDonald, signed by Colonel William B. Graham, which was misinterpreted by The New York Call on Oct. 27.

On or about June 8 I reported to General Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff, that your Washington representative desired to reproduce the situation map of Mexico which had been prepared early in June. After directing me to suppress certain confidential explanatory legends which formed an essential portion of the official map, and to delete any lettering which might give a false impression as to its official character, General March authorized the map to be furnished to your representative.

The information upon which this map was based was not from secret or confidential sources, and could not be guaranteed absolutely accurate or authoritative, owing to the turbulent and rapidly changing situation in Mexico. It was not an exclusive privilege to THE NEW YORK TIMES, because any other reputable paper which had asked for the privilege in the proper way would have received it. For the reason that its accuracy could not be guaranteed and because we did not wish to involve the controversy, THE NEW YORK TIMES was requested not to publish this official map and not to disclose the source. Accordingly, a map redrawn in THE NEW YORK TIMES office, based on our map, but not to scale, was furnished two weeks before and compiled some time before that, was published on June 22. THE NEW YORK TIMES put no title under it and did not at that time claim any official character for it.

On or about Aug. 8 The Washington Star reproduced this map and erroneously stated that it had been prepared in the War College.

It is understood that this map has been referred to in Congressional hearings as an official War Department map.

On Oct. 7 Mr. James G. McDonald, Chairman of the Executive Committee, League of Nations Association, addressed a letter to the Military Intelligence Division making inquiries as to the character and accuracy of the map. Colonel William B. Graham, General Staff, Chief of Military Information Section, answered this letter on Oct. 15. Due to the fact that THE NEW YORK TIMES had redrawn the map in such a way as to change the method of presentation, Colonel Graham naturally failed to recognize it as based upon our information, and informed Mr. McDonald that there was no map on file similar to the one submitted. This statement was literally correct.

Colonel Graham's letter to Mr. McDonald was not intended as a repudiation of THE NEW YORK TIMES map. His statement to the effect that he had found differences from our map on file as of June 22 could not reasonably or properly be made the basis of an assertion that the Military Intelligence Division had given the lie to THE NEW YORK TIMES. Colonel Graham took pains to state that "we would not say that the person who prepared THE TIMES chart was not sincere in his work, according to the information from Mexico available to him."

Notwithstanding this fact, The New York Call on Oct. 27 stated that I personally had "given the lie to THE TIMES assertion that the June 22 map was an official map of the Government."

In view of the fact that Colonel Graham's letter had been misunderstood and had been made the basis of an unauthorized quotation by me, on Oct. 29 I made a statement to THE NEW YORK TIMES which was published on Oct. 30.

To sum up:

(a) There was no impropriety in furnishing THE NEW YORK TIMES or any other reputable newspaper with information not obtained from secret or confidential sources.

(b) Colonel Graham's letter of Oct. 15 was written without a full knowledge of the facts. It did not reflect on the integrity or sincerity of THE NEW YORK TIMES. I have never repudiated Colonel Graham's letter or stated that it was written without my authority. Colonel Graham had ample authority to answer what he understood to be a routine letter concerned with information handled by his section.

(c) The entire matter is a controversy between THE NEW YORK TIMES and certain persons who doubt the correctness and official character of the map published June 22. The map, although based on information in official files, could not properly be published as an official map. The situation showed by the map, however, agreed with our data on file early in June and the map on which THE NEW YORK TIMES map was based was drawn in our office.

Very truly yours,
M. CHURCHILL,
Brigadier General, General Staff, Director of Military Intelligence.

A letter embodying the above statement of facts has been furnished this date to James G. McDonald, Chairman of the Executive Committee, League of Free Nations Association. M. C.

PLAN LEGION MEMORIALS.

Chairman Lindsley Asks Posts to Discuss Practical Monument.

Local posts of the American Legion throughout the country are requested by Henry D. Lindsley, Chairman of the National Executive Committee, to discuss, as part of their patriotic observance of American Legion Day, Nov. 11, the first anniversary of the armistice, the form which a living and practical memorial in their communities should take in order to commemorate the sacrifices and heroism of their dead comrades.

State branches of the American Legion are urging the Governors of their States to proclaim Nov. 11 a legal holiday, and this also will be the principal day of the sessions of the first national convention of the legion in Minneapolis.

"It has been suggested by some posts that a fitting memorial should not be a monument," Mr. Lindsley says in a letter to all State Chairmen, "but rather a building on whose walls shall be inscribed the names of those who died in the service from the community, in which there shall be a room for records of their service as well as those who served with them and their trophies, and where American Legion members and other ex-service men may meet.

"There is no doubt that such a building would be of continuing service to the community and, held in the custody of the American Legion, whose members were their comrades in arms, it would be a most appropriate memorial to those who died in the service of their country."

Gold Badge for Captain Gillespie.

Fire Captain Frank J. Gillespie of Engine Company No. 41, in East 150th Street, the Bronx, and Acting Chief of the 11th Fire Battalion, in the business section of that borough, was honored last night by the officers and men of his company upon the occasion of the twentieth anniversary of his appointment in the fire service. He was presented with a regulation twenty-year gold badge studded with diamonds. The Bronx Aerie of Eagles presented the Captain with a gold medallion, which is a replica of a Fire Captain's official shield.

CLUBS FOR 6,000,000 BOYS.

The Boys' Club Federation yesterday began a nation-wide survey of six million under-privileged boys, or boys of limited opportunities, in the United States, with a view to organizing them into boys' clubs, federating and fitting them for useful citizenship and occupation. A class of instruction for workers with boys has just been opened by Columbia University, in co-operation with the Boys' Club Federation, as a part of the plan of country-wide extension, better to prepare teachers and supervisors for this welfare extension work.

The purposes of the Federation are wholly philanthropic, and the organization operates without profit to itself, it being the only organization of its kind that takes the boy under 12 years. It provides direction, vocational training and activities, and builds up physically the lad whose home environment may otherwise lead him to spend his spare hours on the streets.

According to the statistics of the Federation, many large industrial concerns are organizing these boys' clubs in their plants, in co-operation with the Federation.

PREDICT COOLIDGE WILL BE VICTORIOUS

Some Figure 75,000 Plurality or More for Governor in Hot Bay State Fight.

DEMOCRATS TURN TO HIM

Lodge and Walsh Join Battalion of Speechmakers in Final Appeals.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 1.—"Coolidge by 75,000 at least," was the prediction heard on the streets tonight of the result of Tuesday's election. Some political prophets placed the expected majority for the Republican candidate for Governor at 100,000 to 125,000.

Supporters of Long, the Democratic nominee, are making desperate efforts to hold the party vote together and check the stampede to the support of Governor Coolidge. A house-to-house canvass is being attempted by friends of the striking policemen, who expect reinstatement if Long is elected.

The "law and order" issue in the campaign is swinging hundreds of regular Democrats to the support of Coolidge in order that they may register their protest at anarchy and radicalism. A record vote is expected.

The campaign, which has been the hardest fought known in any recent "off year," wound up tonight with meetings in which both Senators from Massachusetts participated. Mr. Lodge and Mr. Walsh, arriving at the eleventh hour, spoke, the former at a Republican rally in Tremont Temple, and the latter at Mechanics Hall.

At the Tremont Temple meeting messages from several governors indorsing Coolidge's attitude toward the striking policemen and appealing for non-partisan support of his candidacy, because of the effect upon the country, were read. The messages came from Governors Stephens of California, Goodrich of Indiana, Davis of Idaho, Philipp of Wisconsin, Clement of Vermont, Allen of Kansas, Sproul of Pennsylvania, Sleeper of Michigan, Lowden of Illinois, Shoup of Colorado, Milliken of Maine, Burnquist of Minnesota, and Bartlett of New Hampshire. In addition messages were received from Elihu Root and Theodore Roosevelt.

Governor Coolidge in his speech said: "The one fundamental issue in the campaign is the support of the Government in its determination to maintain order. Having saved Europe, are we to surrender America? That this is the issue was entirely due to circumstances beyond my control. That anybody should dare to put in jeopardy the stability of our Government for the purpose of securing office was to me inconceivable."

Senator Lodge quoted from the statement made by President Wilson the day after the Boston policemen struck, when he said that fur police officers to abandon their posts was a "crime against civilization," and added:

"I differ with the President politically. His policies in times of peace are not my policies. But on this question the President and all who support him and I are marching the same way. It is no figure of speech when I say to you that the eyes of the country are on Massachusetts.

"The great fundamental principle of Americanism is in the political arena. If Massachusetts fails, a great blow will have been struck at American principles throughout the United States."

Richard H. Long, Democratic candidate for Governor, at Mechanics' Hall said:

"There was no defense for the police who went on strike, and they have been punished. They have been condemned and crucified. But as a result of their protest better conditions and living wages have been brought to policemen, firemen, and other public employes throughout the country.

"As Governor I shall bring about peace and order and contentment in Boston, and also return free speech, which is being denied on the streets of this great city. Boston needs the old policemen, and as Governor I shall restore all who wish and who have good records, to their former positions.

Henry M. Whitney, candidate for Governor in 1907, is among the Democrats who are backing Long, and supporting Coolidge for re-election. Mr. Whitney gave out a statement in which he said:

"The principles for which Governor Coolidge stands are vital to the life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness in the State of Massachusetts, in the United States, and over the whole world."

ALBANY CAMPAIGN CLOSE.

Ex-Soldier Contests Office with Republican Mayor.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 1.—The bitterest municipal campaign that has ever been waged in this city came to an end tonight, when both Democrats and Republicans held demonstrations, the Democrats with a big parade and the Republicans with a mass meeting. James R. Watt, the Republican candidate for Mayor, who is seeking re-election, is being opposed by Captain Reynolds King Townsend, who was attached to the 51st Pioneers. Both sides are claiming victory tonight.

For the first time women of Albany will vote at a municipal election. The women have shown keen interest in the campaign.

Albany County will elect three members of Assembly. The outlook is that they will all be Republicans. In the First District Clarence F. Welch, the present member, is seeking re-election on an independent ticket, having been turned down by the Republicans.

RACE FOR GOVERNOR CLOSE IN KENTUCKY

Local Issues May Defeat Black, Democratic Incumbent, Who Advocates Covenant.

Special to The New York Times.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 1.—The eyes of the United States are on the Kentucky Governorship election, Tuesday, in which James D. Black, Democratic incumbent, and Edwin P. Morrow, Republican, are candidates. Governor Black is advocating the League of Nations, while the Republican candidate has remained silent on the subject throughout his campaign.

Considering this, it is generally believed outside of Kentucky that the result of the election will be an indication of the sentiment of Kentuckians toward the League. In the last days of the campaign, however, local issues have been brought up by the Republicans which may materially affect the Democratic vote, possibly enough to cause a Republican victory.

It has been charged by the Republicans that the Board of Control purchased denim for penal institutions at $1 the yard from A. S. J. Armstrong, Louisville, when the same material had been offered by others at 49 cents. Armstrong is a brother-in-law of Eugene Ray, former Secretary of the board. He is a plumber by trade, but the bill for the goods bore a heading, "A. S. J. Armstrong, Cloth Broker."

All efforts to locate the firm in Louisville failed. Armstrong was finally found in an engine room in Louisville, where he was working. After Governor Black requested an investigation by the Grand Jury of three counties Armstrong disappeared and his whereabouts are unknown.

While the board members were appointed by Governor Stanley, whom Governor Black succeeded, the latter is being held responsible by the Republican organization for not removing them. The Governor is waiting for reports from the Grand Juries, which probably will not be made until after the election.

For this reason, and because of other local issues, Kentucky would not look upon a Democratic defeat as a repudiation of the League. Both sides are predicting victory and the contest is looked on generally as a close one.

Morrow was defeated by Stanley in the last election by 471 votes. He probably will have the support of Louisville, which Stanley carried but which now has a Republican administration, but Black, who is a mountain man, will receive many Republican votes in the G. O. P. stronghold in the mountains.

FOWLER PRAISES FOLEY.

Retiring Surrogate Commends Democratic Candidate for His Place.

Robert Ludlow Fowler, who will retire as Surrogate at the end of the year, has written a letter of praise and congratulation to ex-Senator James A. Foley, the Democratic candiate for Surrogate to succeed him. The letter, which was made public last night by ex-Senator John Godfrey Saxe, Chairman of the Non-Partisan Lawyers' Committee, supporting Mr. Foley, follows:

Robert Ludlow Fowler, Surrogate.
Oct. 31, 1919.

My Dear Sir: Permit me to offer you my congratulations on your nomination for the office of Surrogate in the County of New York. It is a responsible and dignified office, chiefly because of two circumstances—that a large portion of the wealth of America is concentrated in the City of New York, and that the judicial powers committed to the Surrogate of this county over estates have become more far-reaching and important than is elsewhere customary. It is needless to say that such an office may be well administered or abased. The administration may be either elevated or commonplace; it cannot be both.

I am fully persuaded both from the general approval of your long public and professional life and my own acquaintance with you that, if elected, you, with your wider experience, will administer your office and the powers indicated well and only in the best interest of the community. This is my confident hope and expectation. For that reason I venture to offer you my congratulations.

I beg to remain, my dear Sir, yours respectfully,

ROBERT LUDLOW FOWLER.

To Hon. James A. Foley.

Senator Foley said last night that he felt very confident that he would be elected.

SAYS ALUMNI OWE DEBT.

Committee Makes Special Appeal for Cornell Fund.

Cornell University alumni who graduated within the last twenty years owe their alma mater approximately two to six times as much as they paid in tuition fees, the debt being the difference between the fees and the cost to the university of educating them, according to a compilation by a special committee of the Cornell Trustees made public last night by the local Cornell Endowment Campaign Committee at 511 Fifth Avenue. Cornell is seeking $10,000,000, which will be used to increase the salaries of the Faculty and meet other needs.

While the former Cornell students paid a tuition of $150 a year, or $600 for their four-year course, those who entered the university in 1899 owe for their instruction $3,523, according to the estimate, and the members of the class who graduated last Spring owe $931, the average amount of excess cost to Cornell over the full tuition being computed at 5 per cent. and allowing for the changing values of the dollar.

EDGE URGES VOTERS TO ELECT BUGBEE

SEES CONSTRUCTIVE RULE

Gives List of Projects Which He Says His Party Carried Through to Success.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—In an eve-of-election address to the voters of his home State United States Senator Walter E. Edge, who has been kept from participating in the Gubernatorial campaign in New Jersey by his duties in the Senate, urged the election of State Controller Newton A. K. Bugbee, Republican candidate for Governor.

"I have unbounded confidence, from contact and experience with him, in the ability of Mr. Bugbee to make New Jersey a broad-minded, efficient, and conscientious Governor," said Senator Edge in his statement.

Prohibition, which has been quite an issue, both in the primary election and in the campaign that followed, is disposed of by Senator Edge with the statement that it is a matter of Federal responsibility now and that the voters of New Jersey fully appreciate this.

Senator Edge proceeds to enter into a criticism or defense of the Public Utilities Commission and the naturally unpopular raise in trolley rates; the commission must be responsible for its own decisions, although it as just a little inconsistent for any one to feel that trolley companies constitute the only type of business that should be able to make reasonable returns on investments at pre-war rates with the present standard of after-war wages and expenses; other these companies were making absolutely scandalous profits before the war, and their sworn financial statements hardly warrant that view, or they are entitled to some consideration since the war," Senator Edge went on.

Calling attention to attacks made by ex-Senator Edwards in his campaign speeches on the Republican State Administration because of increased administrative expenditures, Senator Edge, who was Chief Executive of his home State until his elevation to the United States Senate, urged that the actual cost of administering the Government during the last year of his own term was only 16 per cent. in excess of the pre-war cost of government in New Jersey, and average living expenses had increased almost 100 per cent. He went on to enumerate constructive projects, "footballed through both the Wilson and Fielder administrations without solution" and left for the Republicans to grapple with.

Such projects enumerated by Senator Edge as to the Republicans [illegible] credit of the New Jersey [illegible] the Hudson subway [illegible] construction of the Delaware, the launching of a system and the taking [illegible] counties of trunk line [illegible] of institutional re[illegible] elimination [illegible] creation of a real executive [illegible] creation of a central per[illegible] for the many departments which, according to the New Jersey institutions [illegible] obtained last [illegible] supplies they required; [illegible] hour day of labor [illegible] on the part of officials [illegible] use, including the Governorship, not second to [illegible] in the Union, a mobilization and reorganization of the National Guard, accomplished in [illegible] hours, not without semblance of scandal or criticism.

JERSEY VOTE IN BALANCE.

Changing Political Sentiment Makes Predictions Difficult.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 1.—Although Newton A. K. [illegible] Republican candidate for [illegible] governor today issued a statement in which he predicted he would be elected [illegible] next over Edward I. Edwards, Democrat, by a majority of 35,000 or more, the census is that [illegible] will win by not more than 12,000 or [illegible].

The enormous registration in Hudson County, the home of Senator Edwards, is viewed with concern by Republican managers and the Democratic claiming for Senator Edwards a plurality ranging from 30,000 to 35,000 in that county, not without cause, for pivotal point in the election. For may, perhaps, be considered as the slight swing either direction might give one or the other candidate a decided advantage. If as claimed by James R. Nugent, the Essex leader, Senator Edwards gets an even break in Essex, he will on the other hand, Republican claims for a majority from 10,000 to 15,000 for Bugbee and probable winner. If, Bugbee's election is assured.

PACKERS REJECT TERMS OF STRIKERS

Association Refuses Proposals of Men Who Stopped Work Friday and Yesterday.

DIFFER AS TO NUMBERS

Union Officials Assert 4,000 or 5,000 Workers Are Out—Estimate Too High, Say Employers.

The New York and Brooklyn Meat Packers Association, at a meeting at the Hotel Commodore yesterday, rejected the proposal of the butchers, drivers, and delicatessen salesmen who went out on strike in New York City Friday and yesterday. Union officials assert that 4,000 or 5,000 men stopped work in New York, Jersey City, Newark, and Asteria, while the employers say that estimate is too high.

There was a report in Brooklyn yesterday that the drivers and helpers employed by the various meat packing houses and the larger butcher shops might join the strike. These men are formulating demands for an increase in wages of about $7 a week and an increase of 1 per cent. on collections. It is said that at present these men receive an average of $18 a week and 1 per cent. commission on collections.

The agreement submitted to the packers provided for a forty-four-hour week of eight hours a day and a wage increase, it is said. The packers claim that the common laborers at the shops and slaughter houses receive an average of $35 a week and that butchers have been paid an average of $44 a week. They also receive double time for work on holidays.

Reports yesterday indicated that there are thousands of pounds of meat in the plants of the several bologna and meat packing establishments that will be destroyed unless the strike is soon settled. Max Trunx of 25 Lombardi Street, Brooklyn, whose forty men joined the strike, said that he had 80,000 pounds of meat in his establishment and much of it would spoil unless it can be handled within a few days. Fred Figge of 289 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, had several thousand pounds of meat on hand when his 300 employes went out yesterday.

George W. Sheppard, business agent of Local 19, one of the largest store tenders' locals in the city, which has headquarters at 1 Columbus Avenue, said yesterday that 190 firms signed the new agreement yesterday, making a total of 217 who have agreed to the new terms. He said these shops employ about 700 men. The demands of the local provide for a standard working week of fifty-six hours, hours from 8 A. M. to 6 P. M., except on Saturday, when they shall be from 7 A. M. to 7 P. M. Heretofore the stores have closed at 9 o'clock and Mr. Sheppard said the principal difficulty was regulating the earlier closing hour for Saturday nights. They also ask a minimum of $40 a week, an average increase of $6 a week. The increase for extra help is $1 a day.

John Minder, President of the Washington Market Merchants' Association, said that only twenty-one of the 225 employes at the Washington Market went on strike yesterday.

To the Public:

To reassure that large part of the public which has been unable to secure entrance to the Capitol Theatre during the 9 days of its operation of a further opportunity to view the opening motion picture attraction, Douglas Fairbanks in "His Majesty, the American," this explanation is made:

We expected to open on Monday, October 20th. Another important motion picture feature was contracted to follow the two weeks' engagement of Fairbanks in "His Majesty, the American." Unexpected structural problems delayed our opening until Friday, October 24, which unavoidably shortens the engagement of the Fairbanks picture, although thousands of patrons are still clamoring to see it.

The fact that every seat in the house has been sold at every performance, and that multitudes have been turned away for lack of space, despite the huge capacity of the Capitol, is responsible for this.

For this accommodation of the disappointed patrons the management plans to arrange a return showing of "His Majesty, the American," on the first occasion possible.

it makes it difficult for your Government, for your President, for your officials generally, to be as effective in their public office in a time like this as they should be or could be when they have to be giving of their time and giving of their energy to explaining away wilful, cold-blooded and premeditated assaults upon their character, because they refuse to bow their knee to the greatest aristocrat and the greatest autocrat that this country ever contained.

"This evening's paper tonight hisses forth with the headline, 'Governor Smith's Defense Proven False.' Why, I made no defense. There is no defense necessary. I proved my case beyond a doubt. I went before an audience and made a speech that has traveled around this country and is being read today as far West as the Rocky Mountains, in which I specifically charged him with certain grave and grievous offenses not only against me, but against the State itself. And he has made no answer to it. He can make no answer. Nobody can ever make a lie right. A lie is a lie. And if it is a lie when it is spoken, it never can become the truth.

Refers to Hearst Paper.

"I just want to take this paper for a minute. (At this point the Governor spread a copy of The New York Journal out upon the table.) You all know what a cuttlefish is. The cuttlefish is so constructed that it can emit black vapor from its body while floating through water or swimming through water for the purpose of hiding itself from its enemies. That is the definition of a cuttlefish. There is emitted here this black vapor of ink in every edition of this paper for the purpose of hiding the proprietor and the men responsible for this assault on me.

"The cuttlefish, when he gets under cover, studies the way of getting out again. I nailed a lie last Wednesday night on the stage at Carnegie Hall. I nailed it as cold as any that ever was nailed in this country. The next day The New York Globe exposed it by giving a parallel column of what really happened and what was testified to before the Battle Commission. And the cuttlefish, to save himself, comes forward today with another and entirely different bill which I vetoed and seeks to make it appear to the public that I was the one that told the lie on Wednesday night.

"He brings forth a bill that I did veto, and for his benefit, if he ever hears it, and for the benefit of the men who write for him if they ever hear it, let me say this: The bill that he has printed tonight in the paper is one that seeks to extend sanitary control only to the Department of Farms and Markets, and I vetoed that upon the very urgent request of Dr. Copeland, the Commissioner of Health of this city, and Dr. Biggs, the State Health Commissioner, on the ground that they did not believe the best interests of the State would be subserved if two different departments dealt with sanitary conditions. Now don't let them come out tomorrow or Monday and say that that is any explanation of the thing, because the original lie still stands, it is up to him to answer that one, not me."

It was while praising the work of Robert L. Luce, who sat at the table with him, that the Governor referred to The New York American as the "Mud-gutter Gazette," which wanted to know "why he didn't say a good word for Luce." The Governor said he did not have to say a word for Luce, but that he appointed him Supreme Court Justice because he believed him to be "able, clean, forceful, intelligent, and diligent." The Governor also urged the election of Robert L. Moran as President of the Board of Aldermen, and Joseph M. Callahan as Judge of the City Court.

In the earlier part of his speech the Governor defended his support of the social welfare bills, and especially of those prohibiting night work of a certain character for women and providing a minimum wage.

RAIDING OF SALOONS BROUGHT TO AN END

Chief of Revenue Agents Says Evidence of Liquor Violations Will Be Gathered Quietly.

WILL ISSUE SUBPOENAS

Elihu Root Will Present Argument for Brewers in Injunction Suit Next Friday.

H. W. Mager, Chief of Internal Revenue Agents in the United States, announced yesterday that the period of raiding alleged violators of the Wartime Prohibition act is over and that hereafter evidence will be gathered in no spectacular manner. Subpoenas will be issued to alleged lawbreakers and only in flagrant cases will arrests be made, he said.

"There will be no more spectacular raids," declared Mr. Mager. "We are not in the raiding business. Of course the liquor law must be enforced the same as any other law. In cases where the alleged violations appear to be of a technical nature subpoenas will be served."

Mr. Mager also announced that beginning tomorrow a school for revenue agents will be conducted at the Custom House, where the entire law will be taken up and many of the questions that are daily being passed on by the Attorney General will be explained. He said that in the usual course of duty hereafter all Federal agents, revenue service employes, and others, will be of greater assistance in enforcing the law than if a corps of detectives were hired to do nothing else but to "sniff" for stills. The regular agents will be able, it is added, to mingle with the public at clubs and saloons and thus gather all the evidence needed.

Allan H. Walsh, in charge of revenue agents in New Jersey, reported to Mr. Mager yesterday that conditions in his district were satisfactory and that the majority of liquor dealers had closed their places. He estimated that not more than one-tenth of the dealers in the State were violating the law. Complaints received in the local offices of the revenue service regarding alleged violators of the law are being investigated.

A general survey of Brooklyn made by supervisory Field Agent H. B. Stokes showed that 80 per cent. of the saloons of that borough were closed. A survey of the number closed in Manhattan is now being made.

Elihu Root will appear before Judge Hand in the Federal court on Friday and launch the argument on behalf of the brewers, who request the court to issue a temporary injunction restraining the Government from acting to enforce the War-Time Prohibition act. Emory R. Buckner of Mr. Root's law firm made formal application for the injunction yesterday, and Friday at 10 o'clock was fixed as the time for argument.

On motion of Assistant U. S. Attorney Karl B Barnes, Federal Judge A. N. Hand granted injunctions yesterday restraining four more saloon men, under arrest on a charge of violating the liquor law, from selling intoxicating liquors while their cases are pending in court. Those enjoined are William Fitzgerald, 778 Sixth Avenue; O'Brien Cotter, 259 West Forty-second Street, W. Bowen, 135 Fourth Avenue, and Michael Bernhard, 8,830 Third Avenue. This makes seven injunctions of this character obtained so far by the Government.

United States Marshal Powers directed raids against three roadhouses at Huntington, L. I., yesterday. He arrested men who gave their names as John Muller, bartender at the North Side Hotel; John Smith, bartender at the Engelhardt Hotel, and William J. Snyder, bartender at Hall's Hotel. They were charged with violating the War-time Prohibition act.

The arrests were made on warrants issued on the complaint of Victor Hugo, a special agent of the Northwestern Protective Association. Hugo said he visited the places in company with another man and bought two drinks of whisky in each place, paying $1.50 for the liquor. Bail was fixed at $1,000 when the men were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner McGoldrick.

Charged with having sold a bottle of whisky to a revenue agent, Joseph De Michele of 234 Smith Street, employed in the retail liquor store of Samuel Levine, 274 Court Street, was held in $500 bail when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Dick.

MAKES REPLY TO TUMULTY.

Senator Frelinghuysen Says He Is Not Interested in Veto Denial.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 1.—Replying to the statement of Mr. Tumulty, denying that he was instrumental in inducing the President to veto the Enforcement act, United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen said today:

"I have read what purports to be a denial from Mr. Tumulty that he was instrumental in influencing the President to veto the Enforcement act. His statement is not a denial but a criticism of me for expressing, in a conversation with a newspaper reporter, the impression that the veto was an effort to influence the election in New Jersey. Much to my surprise this was published. Notwithstanding Mr. Tumulty's statement, I am not convinced that I am incorrect in my belief that owing to the unfortunate illness of the President he was unable to give the matter any consideration."

Continuing, Senator Frelinghuysen said: "I am not in the least interested in Mr. Tumulty's views as to my duties as a United States Senator. I am interested, however, as a citizen in upholding the great Commonwealth that I have the honor, in part, to represent, in preventing the election of the candidate Mr. Tumulty favors for Governor.

"I am opposed to any man and to all men who state that they will nullify the organic law of the land. The radical elements in our population are almost on the point of revolt, and this has created a serious situation for the Government.

"If there ever was a time in the history of this country when we need sobriety of every kind we need it now, in the next six or eight months, for the protection of our families and our homes."

FAMILY FOUND POISONED.

Mother and Three Children in Agony After Eating Cheese.

Mrs. Annie Gezerien, 25 years old, her daughter Fannie, 6, another daughter, Margaret, 3, and a son, Charles, 4, were taken to the Reception Hospital last night from their home, 236 East Seventy-eighth Street, suffering from ptomaine poisoning. Mrs. Gezerien, who was seriously ill, said they were poisoned from eating pot cheese which she had purchased from a store in the neighborhood.

The family, with the exception of the mother, who was at work, was at dinner last night, when one by one they left the table, complaining of cramps. In a few minutes all were writhing on the floor in agony.

A small boy ran up to Policeman O'Leary at Second Avenue and Seventy-fifth Street and excitedly told him that some people were dead on the top floor of the house at 236 East Seventy-eighth Street. The patrolman found the mother and children unconscious. Mrs. Gezerien and Margaret were lying in the vestibule, Fannie was on the bedroom floor, while Charles was stretched out on the dining room floor.

O'Leary sent in an ambulance call to Reception Hospital, which was answered by Dr Moorebrink. Before the physician arrived, the patrolman worked over the bodies with first aid treatment. A patrolman went to the store mentioned by Mrs. Gezerien and purchased a pound and a half of the cheese, all that was left. It will be sent to the Health Department for examination.

GERMANS ARE NOW HARD AT WORK

The chemical industry, too, is flourishing, and most of the factories work three shifts for twenty-four hours. Owing to the peculiar nature of this industry there is little piecework and little chance for making extra money for ambitious workmen. To keep their men the manufacturers buy up large quantities of foodstuffs and other necessities which they retail to their laborers at prices they can afford. But it is only fair to state here that the inducements offered by the manufacturers in the metal and chemical branches would not be sufficient to keep their laborers steady if their high intelligence had not told them and the experience of the last nine months taught them that only work, work can save Germany. All good men have become convinced of this fact, and if, as in the present Berlin metal workers, strike, unruly, even criminal, elements, sometimes seem to gain the upper hand, it is because the latter, with the aid of Spartacists and Independent Socialists, succeed in mixing politics with labor questions, causing havoc in the brains of even intelligent workmen. However, even Spartacus is now nearly played out.

More difficult is the situation in other branches of industry, such as textiles, which depend on foreign countries for raw products. In these branches the largest number of unemployed are registered. Chemnitz, one of the centres of this industry, has received incredibly large orders from all the world, but is absolutely unable to deliver.

A well-known New York merchant, whose name it is not permitted to reveal, has solved the problem with the usual American promptness. He brought over his own cotton yarn, valued in Germany at 25,000,000 marks, and at once set to work thousands of men and women, who make it into stockings and other tricotage.

Workmen and manufacturers alike fear the coming Winter because there is no coal, because there are no locomotives, because of unsatisfactory work.

Lowest Value for the Mark.

COLOGNE, Oct. 31.—The mark reached its lowest point on the Cologne Bourse today, 351 marks being rated as equivalent to 100 francs. The official army rate for November will be 20 marks to $1.

Bankers attribute the drop in the mark as due partly to reports of the failure of German attempts to get further credits in America.

GERMANS UNMOVED BY HUGE WAR DEBT

Bankers and Economists Think Financial Chaos Is Also Affair of Entente.

LOAN BY LEAGUE SUGGESTED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—In The Berlin Zeitung am Mittag a statement appeared today to the effect that the German mark had reached the lowest value yet recorded on the Swiss Exchange. At the time this paper appeared Erzberger, Germany's Finance Minister, was explaining to the National Assembly the estimated expenditure for the financial year 1919-1920 was, in round figures 57,500,000,000 marks and that at the close of the financial year the national debt would probably amount to nearly 213,000,000,000 marks. In addition to this debt there are, of course, various municipal and other local debts. Nor can the full estimate yet be made of Germany's indebtedness, as her liability under the Peace Treaty for reconstruction has not yet been fixed.

These figures are rather staggering even for a post-war budget. Nor is the effect lessened when one remembers that the mark is now practically worthless abroad, that Germany is still without raw materials, that she is to lose large tracts of territory and large numbers of her population and that her coal and transport difficulties are very great.

Yet the body of the people do not seem to be in the least staggered at the debts they have incurred. They still spend their paper money royally wherever it is to be spent. Probably a greater recognition of the ensuing restriction lead to some amelioration of Germany's financial plight. I believe it is not worse and until the Allies come to aid them out of the difficulties which they do not believe themselves capable of surmounting every scheme of reform almost inevitably fails. One scheme I heard discussed among bankers is one whereby Germany's finances can be restored only by the re-establishment of her mark value by means of a large loan granted by the League of Nations. This loan would be large enough to re-establish values all over Central Europe and would be subscribed to by members of the League, the interest at last during the period of European recuperation being the first charge upon each country's finances.

The calculation if the bankers whom I heard discuss the scheme is that each country has lost the war financially; that such a League of Nations loan would depreciate all war loans, and that this depreciation would then be the measure of each country's loss.

Erzberger in his speech today touched upon matters of credits and exchanges and the ability to fulfill treaty obligations, and, while opposing or asking for no hercic scheme, yet he made his opinion abundantly clear that Germany's financial chaos is an affair of the Entente as well as of Germany. Within Germany itself he said much can be done. Production can be increased. He pointed out that floating credits, both inland and abroad, can be consolidated, while the market must be preserved against the folly of unnecessary loan issues.

"But only work can really help us," he said amidst cheers. Perhaps the cheers would have been greater and he been able to say what German workmen were to employ themselves upon.

CONFESS TISZA MURDER.

Former Marine Says He Got 20,000 Crowns for It from Officials.

BUDAPEST, Oct. 31, (Associated Press.)—A man named Sztenykowski, one of the band which brought about the assassination of Count Stephen Tisza in November, 1918, confessed today to having fired the first shot, in the course of an investigation into the assassination of the former Premier.

A former marine, named Dobo, admitted having received 10,000 crowns from War Minister Lindner after the murder was accomplished, and that two weeks later he received another 10,000 crowns from Secretary of State Lahne. Dobo said, however, he was not aware if Lahne knew why he was ordered to pay the money.

GOVERNOR PRAISES MORAN.

Governor Smith stopped yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Commodore on his way to a meeting in the Bronx to give his personal testimony as to the ability and fitness for office of Robert L. Moran, candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen. The Governor spoke at a meeting under the auspices of the Women's Democratic Club in the ballroom of the hotel. Mrs. George H. Childs presided, and Miss Elisabeth Marbury and Assistant District Attorneys Alfred J. Talley and Ferdinand Pecora also spoke.

Mr. Moran was Vice Chairman of the Board of Aldermen when the Governor became its President, and he spoke of the great assistance that the Vice Chairman had given him.

"The time is here," said the Governor, "when the old style of campaigning must cease. The old method of candidates promising their constituents the earth has got to stop. There is today too much intelligence in the electorate to get very far with that kind of talk."

Continuing, the Governor said the tendency of the time is to increase interest in the Government and its affairs among the people, not around campaign times, but every day in the year.

Training for Home Management

Many of the young women who enter employment quite naturally look upon their work as an opportunity for an active and profitable interval between school and marriage—a most commendable and natural attitude.

As a training for managing a home successfully or for a business future, the advantages of store experience are valuable. Women do the greater part of the family purchasing, and the first essential of a good home manager is the ability to buy wisely. Where can she gain so broad and accurate a knowledge of qualities and values as in a good store?

We welcome to Lord & Taylor the young woman to whose life we can contribute something of permanent value besides her weekly pay.

Talk it over with an executive on the 10th floor.

BAKER LAYS CORNERSTONE.

Judge Buffington Speaks at Hill School Event.

POTTSTOWN, Penn., Nov. 1.—Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, today laid the cornerstone of a memorial hall at the Hill School here, for students killed in the war. The building dedicated will be an auditorium and library, with rooms for literary work.

Judge Buffington of Pittsburgh in a short address said:

"The memorial laid here today is not only one of brick and stones and mortar. It is something finer; it is spirit and soul. We feel today, as never before, the need of the two foundation stones, law and order. Law and order and love of country sum up our needs."

MUSIC

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

Miss Janacopulos and Mr. Buhlig.

Frequenters of song recitals sometimes feel moved to complain of their sameness, of the inability of the singers to make one song seem different from another, and to make them all interesting. Nobody who heard Miss Vera Janacopulos in her recital in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon—and many heard her—had occasion to make any such complaint. She had a thrill for every number that was at all capable of carrying a thrill, and abundant resources for furnishing it. For numbers not capable of it her resources were considerably less.

She sang here last season; her Brazilian-Greek origin and French training furnish her with an abundance of "temperament"; an impetuous dramatic sense that floods her singing and sometimes submerges the musical quality of it. She has a voice that might have been of excellent metal; but her training, in many respects faulty, and her temperament have been too much for it. In some of her songs yesterday she was more of the "diseuse" than the singer. The voice is badly placed; and in her middle and upper tones, when she forces it, which she not infrequently does, the quality becomes hard and the pitch an uncertain matter.

In some old French folk-songs Miss Janacopulos disclosed a certain vivacity, archness, and tenderness, more through her manner than the musical quality of her delivery. In a group of Spanish songs by Granados and Manuel de Falla, which she sang in Spanish, and Albeniz's "Caterpillar" in English, temperament carried her far; far enough to make her listeners demand a repetition of the "Caterpillar" of Albeniz and the "Seguidilla" of da Falla, with its half-shouted "hola"; and so it did in Moussorgsky's songs, miniature dramas filled more with delineative detail than musical substance; the sort of thing to delight an artist such as Miss Janacopulos, who, singing them in Russian, exhibited all they hold of picturesqueness and dramatic quality, without hampering herself unduly with care about putting musical quality into them.

But the ariette from Monsigny's opera "La Belle Arsène" is a different affair; here good singing is needed, in tone, phrasing, style, vocal grace, and finish; and as these are not abundant in Miss Janacopulos's equipment, there was much to be desired in her performance. So was there in a group of Schumann's songs which she sang in French, the titles being quaintly translated as "Fanfare," "Nocturne," and "J'ai Pardonne." She put plenty of spirit into the first, and in the last so much dramatic fervor that the passion, as well as her voice, was somewhat torn, if not to tatters. The "Nocturne" needs a sustained and equable tone that Miss Janacopulos could not give.

Mr. Buhlig's Beethoven Recital.

In the execution of his comprehensive scheme of exhibiting the works of some of the most important and significant periods of piano music Richard Buhlig, last evening, reached his second recital in Aeolian Hall, where a large audience heard him, in spite of the weather. This recital was devoted to Beethoven and the program included four sonatas, three of his early period, the "Pathetique," the "Sonata quasi una Fantasia," in A flat, Op. 26, No. 1, and that in D, Op. 10, and the "Appassionata" sonata, Op. 57, whic his reckoned to belong to his middle period by the biographers. Mr. Buhlig will, suitably enough, give two more recitals to Beethoven, devoted chiefly to works of his last period.

Mr. Buhlig's playing of these works was deeply serious, that of an artist concerned with the "true performance" of the music. There were breadth of proportion and finish of detail in his performance. His tone was somewhat unyielding, somewhat lacking in color, as it has been before. But his playing gave pleasure to an audience ready to be engrossed with the deeper things of art.

EX-POLICE COMMISSIONER

Chairman of Kings County Democratic Committee for Eight Years—Was a Prominent Lawyer.

Colonel James D. Bell, soldier, lawyer, publicist and politician, and Commander in Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, to which office he was elected last September, died yesterday from hardening of the arteries at his residence, 91 Rugby Road, Flatbush. He had been ill less than a week. Colonel Bell was in his seventy-fifth year.

A native of this city, Colonel Bell was a student in the institution now known as the College of the City of New York when the civil war began, and, although only 16 years of age at the time, he convinced the recruiting officers that he was of the required age and was assigned to Troop B, 1st New York Mounted Rifles. Most of his service was in campaigns in Virginia, where he was twice wounded. He was also held as a prisoner of war at Salisbury, N. C., for a short time, and at the end of the war he was honorably discharged as a First Sergeant of Troop E. He then engaged in newspaper work, first on The Graphic and then on The World.

On his removal to the Williamsburg section, in 1871, he at once became active in the civic affairs of that district. After being admitted to the bar, in 1880, he became a member of the firm of Daily & Bell, the firm name later being changed to Daily, Bell & Crane. Colonel Bell was associated with this firm for a quarter of a century.

In politics Colonel Bell was a Democrat. In 1886, he was the candidate for Congress in the old Third Congress District, but was defeated. He became Police Commissioner of Brooklyn in 1888, and then for ten years was Commissioner and Secretary of the Williamsburg Bridge Commission. From 1904 until 1911, he was Assistant Corporation Counsel in charge of the Brooklyn office, and in March last he was sworn in as Assistant United States District Attorney in Brooklyn to serve under a temporary appointment. Colonel Bell ran for the Supreme Court in 1906 and was defeated. Since 1911 he had been Chairman of the General Democratic Committee of Kings County.

Colonel Bell for years had been one of the leaders in G. A. R. circles in Brooklyn, and had held practically every office in the gift of the New York State Department of the civil war veterans. He was a charter member of Abel Smith Post and for thirteen times its commander.

Colonel Bell was an indefatigable reader and had collected a library of close to 10,000 volumes, one of the largest private libraries in Brooklyn and which contains many rare volumes and first editions. He was a devoted student of history, especially on matters relating to the civil war.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal Church, Ocean Avenue and Beverly Road, Brooklyn. The Rev. Dr. Robert M. Moore, pastor, will conduct the services. In conjunction the Grand Army service will be held, under the direction of national officers.

The Importance of a Detail

By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER.

"If you want to know all about a subject, write about it; and if you want to learn all about a thing, start in and talk about it to others."

Since I am writing about Frank E. Campbell and his wonderful institution for burials and cremations, located at Broadway and 66th Street, I receive daily letters full of information about happenings and incidents I had never even heard of.

When I brought some of these flattering missives to the attention of Mr. Campbell, he said: "We did not do anything especially noteworthy in this case; what we did was perfectly natural."

To do the right thing at the right time is just as "natural" for Mr. Campbell and his organization of well-selected men and women, as it is for the florist to "take Rosemary, that's for remembrance, and pansies, that's for thought."

But, what seems "natural" to one, often proves a delightful surprise to others.

Asked a lady the other day, rather excitedly: "Do you know who sent that beautiful wreath of violets and orchids? I do not remember even a small part of the lovely flower pieces laid down at the bier of my dear departed husband."

"To keep a record of every floral piece is a part of 'Campbell Service.' Here is the list, and here are the cards accompanying each floral offering."

The floral record shows the name of the donor, the description of the floral piece, the hour of delivery, the florist's name of whom the piece was purchased, and a copy of the card accompanying the flowers. Thus, acknowledgment may be made by the recipient so no one may feel slighted.

"You certainly have a wonderful organization," said Mrs. H.; "you actually anticipate every wish."

Which brings to my mind a letter just received:

Just a note to express my appreciation for the generous courtesy accorded me by your hospitality at The Funeral Church yesterday.

Every moment of my time was most interesting, educational and surprising—truly, you are not "Undertakers"—your wonderful institution is the radiant of love, sympathy and comfort—what a consolation to those whom you have administered your soothing helpfulness.

Again expressing my appreciation for your gracious hospitality, I remain,

Most sincerely,
CHAS. C. SWISHER, Scranton, Pa.

GAIN OF DEPOSITS IN RESERVE BANKS

Increase for the Week Totals $58,100,000—Bill Holdings Up by $71,900,000.

GOLD RESERVES FALL OFF

Cash Reserves Also Show Decline of $9,000,000—Reduction in Note Circulation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Aggregate increases of $71,900,000 in bill holdings and of $58,100,000 in net deposits and a resulting decline of the reserve ratio from 48.7 to 47.9 per cent. are indicated by the Federal Reserve Board's weekly bank statement, issued as at the close of business on Oct. 31, 1919.

All classes of bills show higher totals than the week before, war paper holdings by about $15,000,000, other discounts by $31,400,000, and bills purchased in the open market by about $25,500,000. War paper holdings of the Chicago Bank include $28,900,000 of paper held under rediscount for other banks, as against $43,100,000 the week before, while acceptance holding of the Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, and San Francisco Banks are inclusive of bills acquired from other banks.

Treasury certificate holdings increased $700,000 though the circulation of Federal Reserve Bank notes, which are largely secured by these certificates, shows an increase for the week of $3,300,000.

Government deposits went up $16,500,000, members' reserve deposits, $19,900,000, other deposits, including foreign Government credits, fell off $1,000,000, while the "float" carried by the reserve banks shows a diminution of $22,800,000.

As a result net deposits work out $58,100,000 in excess of the previous week's total. Federal Reserve note circulation for the first time since July 25 shows a decline for the week. Gold reserves fell off $8,600,000, of which $3,100,000 represents a reduction in the amount held at the Bank of England, while total cash reserves declined about $9,000,000.

URGES AMERICANS TO INVEST ABROAD

GOLD AN IMPORTANT FACTOR

This is the time of America's opportunity for investment in foreign countries, according to Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company, who is of the opinion that the investing public should be made to see that opportunity. He says that to maintain our position in world trade and to keep open the markets of the world for American products it is vital that our foreign trade should be financed through the extension of credit abroad and the purchase of foreign securities.

"The rapid development of the vast areas of the United States was made possible by the investment of capital from other countries," says Mr. Sisson. "The continued investment of capital, in combination with our nationalistic policy, encouraged the development of a diversified industry, which during the period of our expansion found the market for its products within the country. Our industries grew to such an extent that many became interested in foreign trade as an outlet for their products. The recent world war led to a further expansion of our industrial capacity and the establishment of comparatively new industries.

"The maintenance of an outlet for our products in other countries is essential to the maintenance and development of American industries. The investment of capital in other countries is one of the effective ways to keep world markets open for American products. This involves the purchase of foreign securities and the development of an international finance market in this country.

"The world war changed this country from a borrowing to a lending nation, and set in operation forces that will make this country an increasingly important lender of capital. As we are entering this period of development it is well to consider what other countries have done; what methods they have used to obtain outlets for their surplus of capital.

"As their wealth increased and they were able to lend large amounts, Amsterdam, London, Paris, Brussels, and Berlin became in their turn financial centres, to which all countries, but especially those seeking to develop new sources of wealth, looked for assistance through credit extensions. When the fleets of the Netherlands dominated the seas and the possession of the rich islands in the Far East gave them predominance in world trade, Amsterdam was the financial centre of the world. It lost its predominance to London after the Napoleonic wars. Later, the industrial development on the Continent of Europe led to the development of important financial centres at Paris, Brussels, and Berlin.

"Today it is imperative that we give attention to the opportunities of America in foreign trade and in the foreign investment field. We, individually, must do our utmost to prepare the public and our financial leaders to play the great part which this opportunity presents. It takes vision and courage to venture out into new activities which will lead to an expansion of world trade. The American public must be educated to see the necessity of investing in foreign securities and the relation that it bears to our own industrial and economic life.

"The interest paid to foreign capitalists by the United States has been of less importance to those capitalists than the increase in the wealth of this country, which their investments made possible. Such increase in our wealth has meant increased buying power, and demand for the products of the lending country so that the returns from foreign investments have been infinitely larger than have the interest payments. In the same way every investment now made by us in other countries means an increase in their wealth, and, consequently, in the ability of the peoples of those countries to purchase our products. The war has reversed the position of America, and instead of other countries increasing their sales here through increases of wealth brought about by investments in American enterprises, we are now able to increase our sales abroad upon the same principle.

"The United States is now in an unusually favorable position for making foreign loans. There are available for export vast supplies of foodstuffs and raw materials. According to the industrial census for 1914, the industrial plant of the United States had a total capital in excess of $22,000,000,000, while the value of output was more than $24,000,000,000. The war resulted in increases to our industrial plant. This is indicated by the pig iron production, which is about 45 per cent. larger than before the war; the establishment of important chemical and dyestuff industries, and the great expansion of our shipbuilding industry. Our diversified production and our natural resources will enable us to supply the materials which will form the material bases of loans to other countries.

"As a further basis for foreign loans, this country has large absorbing power for foreign loans. The annual savings, which amounted to $8,000,000,000 before the war, reached a total of $15,000,000,000 during the war. The annual income from the balance of foreign loans, which will be due this country as a creditor nation, will probably be largely absorbed in new investments. The development of a strong and growing merchant marine will further add to our ability to invest capital in other countries. The extraordinarily large gold supply of the country, in combination with a free gold market, will give bills drawn in American dollars a worldwide reputation as synonomous with gold, and funds can be loaned payable in gold. This gold reserve is a sound basis for our credit structure—an essential requirement in an expansion program."

Both Lines Carried 635,530,455 Passengers in Nine Months Ended Sept. 30, 1919.

NET INCREASE 60,932,365

Elevated Lines Carry 255,607,-917 Passengers, a Decrease of Nearly 14,000,000.

RECORD DAY'S HAUL OCT. 20

During his talk with reporters last Wednesday Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, was asked if traffic on the subway was increasing, and he replied, "Enormously." Yesterday figures were procured from the Public Service Commission showing the traffic on the lines operated by the company during the nine months from January to September, inclusive, and they justified Mr. Hedley's description of the growth.

During the nine months' period the total number of passengers carried by the subway lines was 397,922,538, an increase of 74,122,453 over the traffic of a similar period during 1918. The net increase in both the subway and elevated lines was 60,932,365, the elevated lines showing a decrease in the nine months of nearly 14,000,000. The maximum day's traffic was on Oct. 20, when the subway carried 1,955,301 passengers and the elevated lines 1,171,350, making a total for the day of 3,126,651.

This indicates that the traffic for the remaining months of the year will exceed any previous quarter of it, and that the term "enormously" as applied to the growth might be made even stronger at the close of the year. The following table shows the changes month to month:

Mr. Hedley was asked whether the growth in traffic would be sufficient eventually to carry the Interborough Company across the danger line of bankruptcy and he replied that it would not at a 5-cent fare. He explained this by saying that the increase in costs had so far exceeded the increase in revenues that nothing save a greater fare would ever enable the company to pay its fixed charges and keep the service at its present point of efficiency.

Great as the growth of the Interborough traffic has been it is far below the comparative growth of the Broadway subway operated by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. During the eight months, from January to September, the traffic of this line has grown in one year from 27,462,286 to 38,491,127, an increase of more than 11,000,000. The following figures indicate the varying monthly increases:

It was because of the loss on the elevated lines that the Interborough Company, the lessee of them, suffered a net loss of about $4,000,000 during the year ended June 30 last.

HIBBEN URGES HIGHER PAY.

Tells Princeton Alumni Universities Are Losing Best Educators.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 1.—In an address delivered at the first national conference of the Princeton Alumni Associations, held today at the William Penn Hotel, President John Grier Hibben of Princeton University urged an immediate increase in the salaries of teachers throughout the country, declaring that if the teaching profession is permitted to deteriorate the loss will be keenly felt in future generations. President Hibben said, in part:

"There is grave danger at the present time of losing the best men of our college faculties. Since the beginning of the war they have been rapidly withdrawing from their teaching activities into business and professional life. They cannot live on the salaries which are today given by our universities. We must pay our teachers at least a living wage—they are not receiving it at present. The average salary of an instructor is less than that of a chauffeur and the average salary of an assistant professor is less than that of a railroad engineer.

"Another danger which I see, may entail a great loss in the future, not only to the universities but to the great world of industry; the large industrial corporations are offering our young scholars and investigators larger salaries than they receive at present, in order to engage them in the practical activities of these corporations. If there is a loss to the universities of the scholars who are the fruitful investigators in the realm of pure science, that loss will be sooner or later felt in all branches of applied science."

LOVERS USE MELANITE TO END THEIR LIVES

CHAUTEAU THIERRY, Oct. 31, (Associated Press)—Thirty-five pounds of melanite, set off by a detonator, was the method employed by Adrien Thumerel and his sweetheart to end their lives here today.

Thumerel, an employe of the explosives depot at Mesy, near here, was charged with the theft of hams from stores destined for war prisoners and was to appear in court tomorrow to answer the charge.

The melanite was made ready in a shack, where Thumerel and his sweetheart met. The explosion which followed was heard for miles and destroyed property within a radius of 100 yards.

FRENCH SEEK RETURN OF HUGE WAR PROFITS

New Chamber to Demand Disgorging of 500,000,000 Francs by Various Firms.

PARIS, Nov. 1, (Associated Press.)—Commissions instituted by the Senate and Chamber of Deputies for looking into war contracts between the State and private firms have ended their investigations and deposited their findings. One of the first duties of the new Chamber when it convenes will be to take legislative measures necessary to obtain from firms sums amounting to 500,000,000 francs, which the commissions say would leave the firms "a normal profit" on their war contracts.

The Senate report estimates that one firm alone would be called on to return to the State over 2,500,000 francs. Airplane and motor manufacturing concerns are among those mentioned in the report for sums totaling well into tens of millions of francs.

All the firms mentioned in the reports have signified their intention of defending themselves against surrendering any of their profits.

HAS THE EX-KAISER'S CAR.

Long Island Automobile Repairer Is Restoring Luxurious Krupp Product

Special to The New York Times.

PATCHOGUE, Nov. 1.—An automobile built specially by Krupp for the Kaiser and used by him behind the German lines in the big drives of the Spring of 1918, is here in the repair shop of Frank Homan, a woodworker and automobile maker, who is restoring it to its original condition for the present owner, George E. Crater, a retired American capitalist, who has a home near Yaphank, L. I.

The car was abandoned by the Kaiser during the German retreat, and its top, fittings, and upholstery ruined by a bomb dropped near it by an aviator. The Kaiser's chauffeur, according to the history of the car, using the freedom of motion which the Kaiser's arms on the car and his credentials gave him, drove to a point on the Swiss border. Here the machine was acquired after the armistice by Mr. Crater and sent to this country in an Italian tramp steamship.

Photographs of the car and original plans, obtained from Krupps, are being used to restore the car to its condition when the Kaiser used it. Each part of the machinery bears the stamp "Krupp-Essen." The car has a minute kitchen under the driver's seat, equipped with a small blue flame stove, cooking utensils and plate. It is equipped with porcelain, enamel and silver plumbing, running water, a drinking fountain and a reading lamp. A strip of plate glass eighteen inches wide runs around the whole car level with the eyes of the passengers, so that their view in every direction is unimpeded.

THANKS BOARD FOR MEDAL.

Lieut. Com. Osborn Says Prisoners' Own Efforts Underestimated.

Lieut. Commander Thomas Mott Osborn has sent a letter to the National Committee on Prisons and Prison Labor thanking it for the medal for distinguished service in the cause of prison reform which was recently awarded to him. The letter was sent to Adolph Lewisohn, Chairman of the committee.

"The public and the friends of the movement unduly exaggerate my individual effort, while they constantly underrate what has been done by the prisoners themselves," wrote Lieut. Commander Osborn. "After all we must come back continually to the fact that there is nothing that any of us outside can do for the prisoner comparable to what he can do for himself; and the history of the Mutual Welfare League from the beginning to the present time is that of very remarkable service and accomplishment by the men. What you and the rest of us can do is important, of course, in its help from outside, but the main work must be done inside the prison, and, in fact, inside the prisoner, and he is the only one who can do it and he deserves the credit for success."

WALES IS ANXIOUS TO MEET AMERICANS

Prince Will Reach Here by the Middle of November—To Live on the Renown.

HE IS INTERESTED IN PEOPLE

Heir to Throne Has Grown Up Through the Ranks Under Rigid Training.

Somewhere about the middle of this month New York City will be visited by a young Englishman dressed in the uniform of a Captain in the British Navy, who is known as H. R. H. Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Parick David, Prince of Wales, and Earl of Chester, Duke of Cornwall, Duke of Rothesay, Prince of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha and Duke of Saxony, Earl of Carrick, Baron Renrew, Lord of the Isles and Great Steward of Scotland, K. G., M. C., and Colonel of the Welsh Guards.

In spite of all these titles he signs himself officially "Edward P.," and to his family and intimate friends and to his intimate brother officers in the army and navy, when on service, he was "Davy." They describe him as a cheery youngster who took his turn at duty the same as the rest and never spared himself any fatigue or danger.

The British public, with whom he is intensely popular, call him "Prince Eddy."

He was not allowed to go over the top with the Guards regiment when he was at the front in France, much to his disappointment, but his Colonel said that the Prince went on three different occasions with the consolidation troops to take over posts just after the enemy had been driven from them, and that was even more dangerous than going over the top.

He enjoyed the dances back of the lines in France with army nurses the same as he has done on his trip through Canada. On one occasion when the King was with him at a dance near Amiens, he suggested that his father looked tired about 10 o'clock and should go to bed. Prince Eddy went with him and then returned to the dance room half an hour later and said: "Now, dad's gone to roost, let's have a good time."

There were some American army officers present and he offered them his cigar case with the remark, "These are some of the governor's own particular brand. I guess you will find them all right."

In appearance the Prince of Wales is a good-looking youngster, with golden fair hair and blue eyes, clean shaven, medium height and slightly built. He is clean shaven, and was 25 years old on June 23, but does not look his age by at least five years.

He is a great admirer of beauty and very fond of dancing, especially the fox trot, and the one-step. Whenever he addresses his senior officers he stands at attention and uses the word "Sir" in replying to an order. One of his seniors in France was the son of his tailor in London, who had the order for making the Prince's uniforms. In conversation he is always addressed as "Sir."

Has Keene Sense of Humor.

Unlike most Englishmen are generally supposed to be by Americans, the Prince of Wales has a sense of humor, likes a good story, and tells a number of good ones himself.

During his stay on the battle cruiser Renown in New York Harbor, off Eighty-sixth Street, North River, the Prince will attend numerous functions, including a dinner of the British Societies and the Pilgrims, and a luncheon by the women workers in the great war.

Lieut. Col. Norman Thwaites of the Fourth Dragoon Guards and Assistant Military Attaché and A. P. M. in New York will be in charge of the arrangements from the time the Prince of Wales arrives in the city until he departs on the Renown for England.

Here is a brief summary of his career:

He began at the age of twelve and a half years as a naval cadet at Dartmouth, going through the ordinary curriculum just like any other naval cadet. He had no special position what his own personality gave him. On completion of his course he was posted to H. M. S. Hindustan as a midshipman, where again his duties were those of any other middy. When his term of service in the Hindustan terminated he matriculated at Oxford and was an undergraduate there for two years, his studies being interrupted by the outbreak of war in 1914. On joining the Grenadier Guards as a second lieutenant he was put on the barrack square and drilled, not by a senior officer, but by a sergeant-major along with a number of other junior officers. During this period he fulfilled the ordinary duties of a subaltern, taking his turn as officer of the day, inspection of posts, etc. He was not allowed to take up his duties until he had been passed out of the drill square, by the sergeant-major. It was not after the war that the Prince achieved his promotion to the captaincy. Towards the end of the war he was given a further distinction when he was appointed colonel of the Welsh Guards.

Now Captain in the Navy.

In the navy he has lately been promoted to the rank of Captain. In this connection it is right to remember that his studies in navigation, seamanship, and seacraft generally entitle him to this rank.

During his service in France the Prince was attached to the 2d Division, 4th Guards Brigade. Here he had experience of trench life in parts of Belgium and France. His rations were identical with those of the ordinary soldier, to the value of 42 cents (1s. 9.) per day. It consisted of one pound of bread or biscuits, one pound of meat, fresh or tinned (American bully beef,) three ounces of sugar, quarter of an ounce of tea, quarter of a pound of jam or marmalade, and half a gill of Jamaica rum.

For four years the heir to the English throne has been constantly under shellfire, and whenever he could slip away he would endeavor to get under rifle and machine-gun fire so as to be with his comrades of the Grenadier Guards when they went over the top. He has been present at more than half of the major engagements of the war and was given the Military Cross for gallant service as a junior officer during some of the most important battles.

Recently he went into Germany with the British troops and stayed at Canadian headquarters, as well as at the Guards Division.

He was attached to the American General staff during some of the most exciting fighting done by the American troops in the neighborhood of Bar le Duc, when their headquarters were at Chaumont, and he is looking forward to meeting and renewing acquaintance with many of the friends made among General Pershing's officers and men when he comes to the United States.

It is reported among his friends that the young man has very clear cut ideas as to whom he will marry and is not likely to brook much interference where his sentiments are concerned.

The Prince has done a good deal of flying, and would have done more but for the opposition he has encountered on the part of his family. Whenever he goes to France, however, he almost invariably uses the air route in preference to steamer or train.

The Prince of Wales takes more interest in people than he does in scenery and makes a very good speech without reading from notes.

"Loyalty—Service" to be the Motto Of Roosevelt College League

The Roosevelt Memorial Association announced yesterday that the example of New York University in establishing a branch of the association had been followed by so many other colleges that it had been found necessary to start a Roosevelt College League. Those who proposed the new league had suggested the motto "Loyalty-Service."

When the Roosevelt Memorial flag was draped over the bust of Theodore Roosevelt in the Hall of Fame on Oct. 21 the suggestion was made that a branch of the organization be established and the idea was so popular with the students that the same suggestion was made at Columbia University, and Adelphi and Manhattan Colleges. Seeing the success of those institutions the Memorial Association immediately telegraphed to colleges and universities throughout the country urging them to organize branches for the new college league.

A resolution adopted by the student body of New York University called for the organization of the club "in order to pay tribute to the immortal Roosevelt and in token of the love and admiration we have for his memory." It was pointed out that the objects of the club "are to be primarily the non-partisan discussion of the economic, social and spiritual topics of American life." It is the intention that "Roosevelt's life shall be the inspiration of this organization."

In his telegram to the colleges, Colonel William Boyce Thompson of the Roosevelt Memorial Association quoted from a speech made by William McKinley in 1892, when he was Governor of Ohio. He said:

"There is no such school for political education as the college and university. What is inculated here penetrates every corner of the country where the college man goes. He goes everywhere, and wherever he goes he is a mighty force in making and molding public sentiment."

ENGLISH TO ASSIST IN PILGRIM FESTIVAL

TO REVIVE PIONEER SPIRIT

Forefathers' Story to be Retold on the Stage, in Lectures, and by Moving Pictures.

Churches of England and America are to unite to celebrate the Mayflower Tercentenary. It was announced yesterday that the Administrative Committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America has decided to name a special committee for the tercentenary to work in co-operation with the British Council's Mayflower Committee. The Rev. M. E. Aubrey, Honorary Secretary of the Mayflower Committee and special delegate from the Free Church Council of Great Britain, has just presented to the Administrative Committee the plans of the British body for an international celebration of the anniversary.

"There is in Great Britain," said Dr. Aubrey, "a deep and earnest longing for such a celebration of this great occasion as shall bring the churches of the two nations closer together. By emphasizing their common origin we hope to make this a truly international celebration. One means toward this end should be the interchange of delegates between British and American churches. We trust that the celebration will strike the note of Christian outlook and motive in international affairs. We must admit that some of our high idealism has been lost or obscured in the stress of the war. The note of selfishness, both national and individual, has been recurring of late and the Christian destiny of our nation's needs cleared emphasis.

"We need to go back to the true sense of social and moral values for which the Pilgrims stood. These might be summarized under three headings: First—Christian democracy. Both civil and religious freedom were dominant notes with the men and women who came to your shores on the Mayflower. Second—higher education ideals. The Pilgrims left Holland because they felt that the surroundings there were demoralizing to their children, and they sought to create an environment where they might rear them in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

"Third—missionary zeal. These pioneers did not come to America in any selfish spirit of merely seeking to work out their own social and religious problems, but they sought to further the Kingdom of God through the evangelizing of the people with whom they came into contact. And today the churches still stand for these great principles. Although the Congregational body is in a peculiar sense the heir of the Pilgrims, yet all of our churches have a common right to this priceless heritage.

"We are seeking to tell the story of the Pilgrims in every possible way, through books by some of our ablest authors, by the drama—and one of our foremost Quaker ministers, Rendel Harris, has written a play based on the sailing of the Mayflower—through the cinema, for which a version of the Mayflower story is being prepared by Rider Haggard; through lectures and preliminary meetings throughout Great Britain, and by the appointment of local committees. By all these means we hope by the date of the sailing of the Mayflower, September, 1920, to have held meetings in all the Free Churches of England and in many of the churches of the Establishment. Great celebrations will be held consecutively in Plymouth, in London, in Southampton, in Nottingham, in Northumberland, as well as in Amsterdam and Leyden, so that the delegates who come from America will be able to make a pilgrimage of the places associated with the story of the Pilgrims.

"After the celebration on the other side we should like to have a boat chartered to bring back the American visitors with a British delegation, on which conferences may be held daily preparatory to striking the common note in the American celebration. The Mayflower Council in Great Britain is a powerful organization. It is planning definitely that the spiritual elements in the program shall have first place. It is not to be a financial campaign. There have been, however, suggestions from prominent British churchmen that may involve some considerable expenditure."

RED CROSS STARTS DRIVE FOR MEMBERS

Its Third Roll Call Begins Today with a Membership of 20,000,000 and a Great Record.

UNHAMPERED BY RED TAPE

In Disasters on Land and Sea and in Lesser Emergencies It Is Every Ready.

An energetic drive for members will be made by the Red Cross in its Third Roll Call, which extends from Nov. 2 to Nov. 11. The Roll Call is being held a month earlier than it was last year, because weather conditions impeded it then.

The Red Cross, whose membership today is 20,000,000, hopes to keep its membership in line to support the organization in its work at home and abroad. Brig. Gen. George R. Dyer, Chairman of the Metropolitan Committee, says in his appeal to New York:

"Up to July, 1919, the Red Cross Home Service had been of use in one way or another to 800,000 American families, assistance ranging from the writing of letters from mothers to sons, to giving a start in business to families deprived of their bread-winner.

"At the signing of the armistice the American Red Cross had 6,374 workers in active service abroad, and commissions were operating in Russia, Italy, Serbia, Rumania, Great Britain, Belgium, France, Palestine, Switzerland, Greece, Siberia, Archangel, Poland, the Baltic provinces, and among Russian allied prisoners in Germany. At home, in addition to home service workers, the nursing service performed marvels of mercy. When the great influenza epidemic swept the country from end to end in 1918, the Red Cross was able to mobolize 20,000 nurses and nurses' aids to combat the scourge.

"This was in line with the whole record of the American Red Cross since its organization in Washington thirty-eight years ago. In that time it has participated in 180 disaster relief operations, some abroad, but the great majority in the United States, and has expended or directed the expenditure of $12,500,000 in these activities. The first expenditure of considerable size, and one within the recollection of the present generation, was one of $3,087,470 for the earthquake and fire sufferers of San Francisco.

"At the time of the Titanic disaster $125,993 was expended; the Eastland steamship disaster caused a disbursement of $372,000; the Halifax relief work called for $95,000, and $135,000 was used for the assistance of sufferers from the munitions plant explosion at Perth Amboy.

"The list could be expanded indefinitely, for when flood or tornado, fire or riot brought suffering in its train the American Red Cross was prompt with shelter and succor. At the Greenpoint fire, still fresh in the memory of every New Yorker and many others, the Red Cross came promptly upon the scene with aid to the families driven from their homes, and with refreshing food and drink and medical aid to the firemen and policemen.

"Promptness is the first outstanding quality of the organization. As Vice Admiral Sims once said in a speech to workers in England, 'the emblem of the Red Cross is two small pieces of red tape, laid neatly across each other. But this is the only bit of red tape they have got.' General Pershing in paying tribute to the promptness and efficiency of the Red Cross has said: 'In giving prompt and efficient relief the Red Cross has won the eternal gratitude of millions of people.'

"In this campaign, however, we are interested in the welfare of the American Red Cross. Remember, it is not my Red Cross, nor yours, but our Red Cross, but it will never be our Red Cross in the truest and strictest sense of the word until each and every citizen becomes directly interested in its work and in its perpetuation, and no one can become really and truly interested in either of these unless he becomes a member."

IRON ORE FOR GERMANY.

Some Rich Deposits Have Been Found Not Far from Coblenz.

Prospecting in the Idarwald, about thirty miles south of Coblenz, has assured Germany, according to the British Board of Trade Journal, rich iron ore deposits that ought to compensate for the loss of those of Lorraine. While the Germans were in possession of the latter territory the exploitation of the ore deposits was not considered profitable.

The work of the last few months, however, has given very satisfactory results, and deposits have already been discovered in the regions of Rhaunen-Sulsbach, Wetiersbach, and Horbruch. The ore has been discovered at a depth of six to ten feet, but in several places just below the surface. Analysis shows that it contains from 55 to 60 per cent. metal and up to 30 per cent. manganese. The transport could be effected at a small cost by means of the Hunsbruck Railway.

Seek Military Training in France.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—The French War Office has received through various diplomatic agents of foreign powers the applications of 600 officers in foreign armies who are desirous of taking up courses in French military schools. Requests have also been received for training with different corps of the French army. This is the largest number of such applicants on record.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA IS RID OF BOLSHEVISM

Leader Is in Jail and the "Man in the Street" Is Too Wise for It.

A CHANCE FOR AMERICANS

The New Nation Is Eager to Trade with Us and Economic Conditions Are Improving Rapidly.

Czechoslovakia is fast returning to normal and only a matter of months must intervene before the new nation, making its début in world commerce, opens the war-closed natural richness of the country to trade, according to Captain Emanuel V. Voska, formerly of the General Staff, A. E. F., just back from Prague after founding the Czechoslovakia Commercial Corporation.

Throughout the length and breadth of President Thomas G. Masaryk's land there is hardly a trace of Bolshevism, he said. Muna, a Czech, who tried to emulate in Czechoslovakia the example of Lenin, is in jail and had been for two months before Captain Voska left Prague, on Oct. 5. Dominating the country by his tremendous popularity, President Masaryk banished Bolshevism by banishing discontent, said the Captain, signing as his first official act a measure that made the eight-hour day a national law of Czechoslovakia.

Captain Voska declared that the Czechoslovaks were eager to trade with America, but that they had been held back because of the existing rate of exchange on the crown. The crown is discounted so far below the dollar that trade is practically impossible, and for this reason the commercial corporation had been brought into being. Captain Voska, who is associated with Carl Byoir, formerly of the Committee on Public Information, said that the corporation already had engaged in trade between America and Czechoslovakia, buying for dollars and selling in crowns; only goods passing between the countries, thus circumventing the regulations that forbid the Czechoslovakian merchant from sending the Republic's currency out of the country at disadvantageous rates.

Saved from Bolshevism.

Under the terms of the Peace Treaty the country is entitled to the use of Hamburg as its port. Two ships with American goods have made the trip to Hamburg, and from there the cargoes were moved into Prague by the Elbe. Captain Voska said that he believed that within two years the exports of his country would exceed the imports, with at least 50 per cent. of the country's manufactures, especially textiles, being sold abroad.

"Economic conditions," he said, "are rapidly getting better, although they are not yet normal. The harvest has been exceptionally good in all crops, with the exception of small sections of Slovakia. From neighboring countries we are gradually getting raw materials with which to start the factories, and all that is needed now to bring industry to its fullest measure is more raw materials. Among them I include cotton and leather, the latter because the shoe industry is one of the largest items in the commerce of Czechoslovakia. There is also need of fine metals.

"The explanation of why economic conditions are generally good lies in the fact that political conditions are daily becoming better. Some people in America do not appreciate how it is that Czechoslovakia, in giving full and just representation in the Government to the proletariat saves itself from Bolshevism. And yet, due to these very measures, it has become absolutely impossible for Bolshevism to obtain a foothold.

"I can hardly find words to express how the plain people, 'the man in the street' hates Bolshevism. They detest it and they loathe it. Muna, who attempted to plant it, is in prison, while Smeral, who led the radical wing of the Social Democrats, has been forced to flee into Switzerland.

Good Chance for Americans.

"Bolshevism is always the result of dissatisfaction, and there is less dissatisfaction among the people in Czechoslovakia, I believe, than anywhere else. If economical and political conditions improve as fast as they have improved in the last six months, then even that small percentage of people who are inclined today to seek false salvation in Bolshevism will drop that idea.

"Textiles, of course, are the most important industry of Czechoslovakia, but next comes the famous Bohemian glass works. Practically all of these works are starting again to work, and it is merely a question of supplying raw materials in large enough quantities before all can resume. There are many opportunities for American business men in Czechoslovakia, because the people never forget your country's part in the gaining of their freedom.

"Then, apart from business, the country has the famous resorts of Carlsbad, Marienbad, and Pistany, in Slovakia. The republic is planning to make them as famous in the future as they have been in the past."

According to Captain Voska, Czechoslovakia is furnishing all of the coal used on the Austrian railways, and much of the supplies purchased by the Viennese householders is of Czechoslovakian origin. Already, he said, there has been produced a surplus of agricultural products, especially of sugar beets. Because of the abundance of the beets, sugar is plentiful, so much so, in fact, that it is enjoying a temporary vogue as "commercial currency."

ASKS COURT TO KEEP PLAY.

French Author Opposes Withdrawal of Capacity-Drawing Performance.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—The courts will be called on to decide whether a theatrical manager has the right to withdraw from the boards, despite the protests of the author, a play which is appearing to capacity houses.

Leon Volterra, manager of a Paris theatre, has announced that the last performance of the production in question is set for Nov. 12. The author remonstrated. The manager claimed a previous arrangement with another author to produce his play on Nov. 14. The author of the play running decided to apply for an injunction.

There is no precedent in France, either from a legal or theatrical standpoint, where a money-making play has been withdrawn.

Madrid Opens Tube Railway System

MADRID, Oct. 31.—The tube railway system was opened to the public today. Great crowds besieged the stations, curious to investigate the underground mysteries, and it was necessary to call for police assistance to regulate them.

Grip Epidemic Spreads in Bolivia.

WOMAN THREATENS SPEAKER'S SEAT

Miss Dickman's Campaign Against Sweet for Assembly Nomination Stirs Oswego.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 1.—With his back to the wall, Thaddeus C. Sweet, Speaker of the New York Legislature, is fighting for political existence. It is a new experience for this astute politician who for years has carried the vote of Oswego County in his vest pocket. It is the irony of politics that suffrage for women, a movement vigorously opposed by Speaker Sweet while in its making, may be his undoing. His opponent is Miss Marion Dickerman, 29 years of age, tall and slender, dark haired, a live feminine wire imbued with the idea that she has a mission to perform in the uplift of humanity.

For ten years Speaker Sweet had the Assembly nomination handed to him on a silver platter. Now Oswego County—always a hotbed of politics in local campaigns—is all stirred up over the current contest, the most spectacular battle of ballots in its history.

From small beginnings the campaign of Miss Dickerman, nominated by Democrats and Prohibitionists without her knowledge while she was returning from welfare work overseas, has assumed such proportions that Mr. Sweet, who ignored it at first, has been compelled to put forth strenuous efforts to resist the tide setting in against him.

The principal weapon employed in the offensive is that Speaker Sweet used his political position to kill various welfare bills advocated my many women's organizations and having the approval of the State Federation of Labor. These bills provided for higher wages and an eight-hour day for women and minors engaged in stores and factories.

At first Oswego County did not take Miss Dickerman seriously. Neither did Speaker Sweet. Now both do.

Taking the stump, the feminine campaigner has waged vigorous warfare in county districts and in the Cities of Oswego and Fulton, where there are many foreign-born workers in industrial plants. Backed with money and the influence of prominent New York women, styled by the Sweet adherents "parlor Socialists," Miss Dickerman has accumulated a large following.

At the eleventh hour political ethics are ignored and a rapid fire exchange of personalities is in progress. Tonight Speaker Sweet absolutely denied that he had at any time in speech or writing reflected on the character of Miss Dickerman as charged in political advertisements and news notices in the Oswego County press.

Although hard pressed, it is the opinion in political circles that Speaker Sweet will win. His principal assets are the good-will of the farmers, who constitute a good majority of the Oswego County voters, and his record in the Assembly.

SHARP MARYLAND CAMPAIGN

Republicans Urge National Issues—Close Vote Predicted.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31.—While the Democrats have tried to confine the issues in the exciting State campaign now closing to state matters, the Republicans have injected national issues, charging the Wilson Administration with gross extravagance and urging the election of the Republican State ticket as a rebuke to the Democratic Administrations, both national and State.

The Republicans are counting largely upon carrying Baltimore city as they did in the Spring election this year when they elected William F. Broening Mayor, the first Republican Mayor in many years. Albert C. Ritchie, the Democratic candidate for Governor, is the present Attorney General of the State. Harry W. Nice, the Republican candidate for Governor, is the present State's attorney for Baltimore City, having succeeded Mr. Broening when the latter was elected Mayor.

Other State officers and members of the Legislature will be elected. The last Republican Governor of Maryland was Phillips Lee-Goldsborough, who was elected eight years ago.

The present contest centres in this city, but the indications are considered to be that hundreds of Democrats and independents who voted for Broening for Mayor will vote next Tuesday for Ritchie for Governor. The Republicans are making a strong fight against the Democratic city machine, the methods of which were largely responsible for the defeat of the Democratic municipal ticket in the Spring.

New registration in the city and counties favors the Democrats. The forecasts indicate the vote will be close and that Maryland will again be placed in the doubtful column for the Presidential election.

THE TIMES IN SIBERIA.

Troops There Eager for Rotogravure and Magazine Sections.

The rotogravure section of THE NEW YORK TIMES and the Magazine Section were demanded yesterday on behalf of the soldiers in Siberia by Garry McGarry, former musical comedy star, who had been directing the welfare work of the Knights of Columbus. The message was received by William P. Larkin, overseas director, and had the following brief appeal:

"Ship Rotogravure and Magazine Section with THE SUNDAY TIMES because men are very fond of it. Newspapers are scarce and a hard Winter is on hand. McGARRY."

In commenting on the message, Mr. Larkin said that not one-third of the thousands of men now stationed in Siberia came from this city, but apparently they had a keen appreciation for the newspapers printed here, in fact more so than they displayed for home town publications. The Knights have arranged for the shipment of 1,000 copies this week.

RESTORE FRENCH RAILROADS

More Than 20,000 Miles of Track Already Repaired.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—The Petit Parisien says that in the course of a recent trip by Albert Claveille, Minister of Public Works, to the devastated regions, he learned of the excellent results of efforts being made to repair the railway system and roads.

Thirty-three thousand kilometers of destroyed track have been almost completely restored, and of 48,000 kilometers of devastated roads 12,000 kilometers have already been repaired.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 1.—The Senate today adopted a resolution granting a credit of 25,000,000 francs to France for the reconstruction of devastated regions.

French Liners for Indo-China.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—Georges Leygues, Minister of Marine, has just given instructions for the building of ten cargo vessels and six liners, the latter to be used in the Indo-China traffic. Work on the vessels is to be started at once and the instructions stipulate they must be launched in 1922.

ALL SEE VICTORY AS CAMPAIGN ENDS

Many Alien Issues Admitted to Have Complicated a Dull Political Fight.

GERMAN AND IRISH PUZZLES

Tammany Far from Sure of Effect After-War Conditions Will Have.

WET AND DRY FIGHT IN KINGS

The Bronx Apparently the One Borough Where the Democrats Are Harmonious.

With one of the dullest campaigns on record, even for an "off year," drawing to a close, the usual claims of victory were forthcoming yesterday from both Democratic and Republican leaders. Many observers who have had their ears to the ground declare that the outcome this year is more uncertain than ever within their memories.

It is a fact that the fight for purely local offices has been complicated with so many issues as to leave the politicians puzzled. Generally speaking, the alien issues are such as to lead to a general belief that Tammany and its allies outside of Manhattan will be the chief sufferers. On this the Republican claims of victory are very largely based.

The effect of wartime prohibition, President Wilson's veto of the Enforcement bill and its re-enactment by a Republican Congress loom large in the minds of the politicians, but they confess that they cannot gauge the effects.

Another problem that puzzles the Tammany politicians is the extent of the disaffection among Irish and German voters, always reckoned a sure asset in any purely local election by Tammany. The former are disgruntled over the omission from the League of Nations covenant of any provision for Ireland; the latter over what they regard as the unduly harsh terms imposed upon Germany in the Peace Treaty itself. Tammany leaders have known from the beginning that they would lose thousands of votes as a result, and are now trying to find out whether the disgruntled voters will vote with the Republicans, stay at home, or join the Socialists.

The Socialist leaders are claiming from 100,000 to 150,000 votes, which would be more than were cast for Morris Hillquit for Mayor two years ago when war conditions boosted the Socialist strength. The housing situation, resulting in the formation of the Tenants League, which is run by Socialists, and undoubtedly will become a factor on Tuesday, the prevailing unrest and the waterfront strikes, the Socialists say, will swell their strength in some districts where Tammany usually is strong.

Until recently Tammany has been noticeably nervousness, but men of the wigwam say that within the last week the situation has cleared. Charles F. Murphy who never depends entirely on the reports of his district leaders, it was said yesterday, has never given his volunteer intelligence corps, made up of men and women from all walks of life, so much work as in the present campaign. It was only two days ago that Murphy began to tell his friends that Tammany was "out of the woods."

Manhattan is the only borough in which the Democratic organization is not rent with factional differences. In Brooklyn there has been a strong fight on John H. McCooey. In Queens the fight on Borough President Maurice Connolly flared up again this year under the leadership of Dr. Arthur E. Keating, former Democratic leader, who is after Connelly's political scalp. Keating is carrying his fight to the polls with candidates of his own in some district and indorsement for the Republican candidates in others. The strength of the Keating faction is estimated at about 12,000 votes. Richmond, too, had a bitter fight in the primaries, but it is regarded as unlikely that this will more than slightly impair the normal Democratic majority in that borough.

Tammany leaders yesterday predicted victory for Robert L. Moran for President of the Aldermanic Board and Edward F. Boyle for President of Manhattan. At Tammany Hall it was asserted also that Justice Robert L. Luce and Irwin Untermyer would be elected. Ex-Senator James A. Foley, Tammany's candidate for Surrogate, it was predicted, would defeat James O'Malley, the Republican candidate, by an impressive plurality.

No figures were offered, but it was stated that some might be forthcoming from Murphy today or tomorrow.

In the face of these Tammany predictions, Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, said yesterday that the reports from his district leaders indicated a very large vote in Republican districts and a paring down to the danger point of the Tammany pluralities in districts generally regarded as Tammany strongholds. With similar conditions reflected in the Bronx, in Queens and Richmond, and with Brooklyn, as the Republican leaders there claim, coming across with Republican pluralities big enough to elect their county tickets, "strong hopes" are entertained by Mr. Koenig that Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia, Republican candidate for Aldermanic President, will win.

It was said last night that Republican hopes centre on a plurality of from 20,000 to 30,000 for La Guardia, but no estimate in figures was ventured at Republican headquarters. The Republican leaders believe that the Italian vote, estimated at 30,000 in the city, will go practically undivided to La Guardia. The Democrats believe, however, that the Italians holding jobs under the City

Administration will support the Democratic candidates.

The Republican canvass of Manhattan, it was said yesterday, indicated that Justice Newburger would carry the borough by an ample plurality. In Tammany circles there is less confidence of Tammany's ability to defeat Justice Newburger than any other candidate on the opposition ticket. Reports from the Bronx, however, are less favorable to Justice Newburger. These indicate that in that borough Justice Luce and Irwin Untermyer both will get more votes than will Justice Newburger, and that Robert L. Moran will carry the borough by at least 35,000.

Popular interest in Brooklyn centres in the fight for the two places on the County Court bench, because the injection of prohibition as an issue has focused attention on this contest. Representative Reuben L. Haskell, Republican, is running for County Judge on an avowedly "wet" platform and surface appearances indicate his election. Haskell thinks he will run 75,000 ahead of his "dry" rivals, but this confidence is not shared by Republican leaders whom he has embarrassed by raising the wet and dry issue. They know he will be knifed by dry Republicans, but Haskell expects a big Democratic vote.

McCooey said last night that, except for a few Aldermanic and Assembly nominees, the party ticket was certain of election, and that Moran, for President of the Board of Aldermen, would get a "rousing plurality" in Brooklyn.

Jacob A. Livingston, Republican leader, was also optimistic. He seemed to think District Attorney Harry E. Lewis was certain of re-election, and that the entire Republican county ticket, as well as Mr. Squires for the Supreme Court, would be successful. Mr. Livingston figured that the Republicans would elect fourteen Assemblymen and about as many Aldermen.

Republican State Chairman George A. Glynn said yesterday that he expected a decided gain in the number of Republican Assemblymen from the city. A year ago there were only five.

The Republicans are concentrating their efforts up-State on Assembly candidates for the effect it may have in the Presidential fight next year. At present only two Assembly districts up State—one in Rensselaer and one in Erie—are represented by Democrats.

Speaker Sweet, who has had a stiff fight for re-election against Miss Marion Dickerman, who, besides the Democratic nomination has the Socialist and Prohibition indorsements, was certain to win by 6,000, Chairman Glynn said.

PACIFIC SHIPPING ACTIVE.

Japan Is Building Large Vessels for Trade with the United States.

Considerable activity in trans-Pacific shipping appears from the Eastern end of the line, according to George E. Anderson, Consul General at Hongkong, in a recent report on the situation to the Department of Commerce. Indications are, he said, that there will be a fair demand from the Far East homeward that will last throughout most of the coming Winter.

In Japan, Mr. Anderson said, most of the shipping companies have announced important additions to their fleets. The Osaka Shosen Kaisha is cited as having four new passenger ships of 10,000 tons each, and a fifth ship of the Harbin Maru class on the ways for delivery by April for the run to the Pacific Coast of the United States. The Nippon Yusen Kaisha is announced as having ten new vessels in construction for delivery by April(four ships of 10,000 tons each ordered for delivery earlier in the year, and three other vessels which hav been bought, one of them of 11,000 tons.

The demand for shipping for Europe, the report says, continues unabated, although there is nothing in the nature of a boom. It seems to be felt that if the demand becomes strong enough, many vessels now in service for the British and French Governments on the Atlantic will be shifted to the Oriental service for their countries. The chief demand at present is for ships to carry sugar and other foods from the East Indies to Northern Europe.

Most of the British lines are reported to be bringing their Far Eastern services up to date as rapidly as possible. Service to Australia has been resumed, the service from Hongkong in that direction including two British lines in addton to a Japanese line with steamships running on regular schedule and several smaller lines maintaining a tramp service.

Freight rates are showing a slight tendency to rise, and it is probable that rates for first-class and second-class passengers also will be advanced early in the coming year.

According to an announcement made by the Japanese Department of Communications, steamships of more than twenty tons registered in Japan, excluding Korea and Kwantung, numbered 2,770, with a total of 2,539,484 tons, at the end of May. Included in these were 677 ships of more than 1,000 tons each, of which there were six vessels exceeding 10,000 tons each.

GRANT'S TOMB DRAWS MANY

Loyal Servitor of 87 Weeps as He Beholds Memorial.

Since the war there has been a great increase in the number of visitors to Grant's Tomb. They come from all parts of the United States, from Alaska to Florida. It would seem that no stranger to the city fails to visit the shrine to pay homage to the great General. They arrive singly, with their families or friends, or in delegations organized especially for such a pilgrimage. Between 900 and 1,100 persons visit the tomb daily, and about 400,000 a year.

The Tomb is taken care of by a custodian, an assistant custodian, and two attendants. George D. Burnside, whose father was a cousin of General Burnside of civil war fame, is the custodian. He has more than an official interest in th esacred edifice. When it was being built he was foreman of construction, and it was his duty to see that the blocks of stone and marble were laid with proper care and precision. Because he had a great part in building the tomb and understood its construction better than most men, the Grant's Tomb Memorial Association selected him as custodian, and when the structure was completed in 1897, he entered upon his duties. When it was dedicated by President McKinley, General Horace Porter handed Burnside its keys, and it was Burnside who sealed with his own hands the great sarcophagus containing the remands of General Grant.

"During the past year," he said, "many soldiers and sailors visited the Tomb. Indeed, about one-quarter of our visitors were men in the service."

Since the Tomb has been opened a regular visitor once a year is the aged woman who for years served as maid to Mrs. Grant. She comes every year on Mrs. Grant's birthday bearing a wreath of flowers. One day an aged negro hobbled into the mausoleum. He explained to Mr. Burnside that he had served General Grant during the civil war. He told with a great deal of pride how he had held the General's horse, and what a good boss the General had always been. Grant, he said, was a most modest and unassuming man. The old negro knelt reverentially before the sarcophagus and wept bitterly.

"He treated me all right," he sobbed. "He treated me all right, 'deed he did. I'se 87, I is, and I'se a pore old man, but I'se glad I come here and seen dis beautiful tomb, 'dead I am. Its grand but it an't none too good for de General, God bless and rest his soul."

MEMORIAL BUILDING PLAN GAINS FAVOR

More Than 300 States, Cities, and Towns Decide to Erect Monuments of Service.

TO BENEFIT ALL CLASSES

Forms of Buildings Will Vary—Some to be Hospitals, Others Churches and Neighborhood Houses.

When Harold S. Buttenheim, editor of The American City, conceived the idea of the National Community Memorial building movement as a war memorial, it is possible that he did not realize how big a thing it really was.

Referred to at first as Liberty buildings or Victory buildings, they were recommended as an expression of public feeling, vastly superior to any mere monument in stone or bronze—living memorials, that could be vitalized by service.

The idea sprang into instant popularity and was taken up in the most unexpected quarters—large towns and small towns—from Boston's magnificent plans for a building approaching the monumental classic, to Hockanum, Conn., where $10,000 was raised by popular subscription—the population in question numbering just two hundred and fifty!

Up to the present time more than 300 communities have definitely decided upon some form of memorial building.

Vastly diversified are the community buildings, ranging in such wide fields as are covered by hospitals, libraries, school buildings, churches, club houses, theatres. One hundred and fifty take the form of what is considered typical community houses, which provide for the whole range of civic, social, and recreational activities for the average town of the smaller sort.

Of great interest at this time are the American Legion buildings. They will work with their own funds, form their own committees, and be in every way sponsors for the building, which, when completed, will then be an American Legion Post. This is not looked upon as the most ideal form of community memorial building, as it will cater almost exclusively to the ex-service men and possibly not be as largely useful in a general sense as it might be, it is said. In Brooklyn a whole chain of these is planned.

The victory memorial building is essentially designed to perpetuate the ideals, the service—the spirit that made possible the winning of the war—the conception of the community memorial is 'the home of service.'

To Represent All the People.

The aim is to have the local committee represent every element of the population, just as it is desired that every element of the community shall make use of the memorial building when it is completed.

In many of the smaller communities the people themselves have voiced the general feeling of regret at the prospect of losing the spirit of united service which sprang up during the war. That Mrs. O'Grady and the Colonel's lady are aisters under the skin was discovered some years ago in poetry, and, with their sons in service, the fact that that poem voiced was rediscovered all over again in many a small community by the local edition of both the aisters mentioned. Also in these communities there is a feeling of loss. I is found more difficult to waste now the time that had to be apparently made for special war activities, and it is found that this time can be very preciously invested in service for the community.

In other words, the community wants "to get together." And the community house gives them the opportunity and the facilities for doing this. In some places it is reminiscent of the old "meetin' house" spirit, and the community committee has decided on a church for the form the memorial building will take. In others a library building has long been desired, and, now, by combination of activities, the opportunity is given to fulfill the wish. The war proved in many places how human and community-spirited a library could be. The "socialized library," in the new memorial building will, it is considered, justify its being.

In one town in the Middle West they are already at work on their memorial building. It is a church and theatre combined. These civic fathers are only turning back the pages of history a few years, comparatively speaking, for, in the time of Shakespeare the theatre was looked upon as the most potent element in the education of the people, the one force that, more than any other, could influence their conduct and mold their thought. In the mid-western town, considerable question arose as to the actual details of construction, and economy and orthodoxy fought a pitched battle. But, with actual differences once accommodated, the pulpit ingeniously placed at one end, and the stage at the other, all factions have fallen to with a vim, and, with everyone's ideas contained and embodied, it should be a fairly successful community memorial building.

For Helping the Community.

At the office of the manager of the Bureau of Memorial Buildings it was said:

"The National Committee on Memorial Buildings, established to assist in the promotion and guidance of the nation-wide movement to erect community buildings as war memorials, has merged its activities with those of War Camp Community Service. This committee, composed of 100 representative men and women from all parts of the country, has become the Advisory Committee on Memorial Buildings of War Camp Community Service.

"The Bureau of Memorial Buildings is designed to serve as a clearing house of information and service in regard to planning, erecting, and administering community houses, auditoriums, recreation centres, and other 'living' memorials. The bureau does not undertake to erect or finance memorials anywhere it exists for the purpose of helping the local community or local Building Committee that has been formed in every possible way. Our main service is to make them familiar with the best that is being done.

"We do not have architect service for them, but we put them in touch with the Institute of Architects in Washington. We are able to give them actual service to the extent of advice as to the incorporation of the facilities best suited to their community, when we know what their local situation is. We also help in suggesting a program of service.

"A great many of the smaller communities have appealed, also, for advice in the matter of raising the necessary funds, submitting their ideas and asking for criticism and suggestions."

It was pointed out that when one of these communities had taken part in War Camp Community Service activities it was at a distinct advantage, as it found itself with an expert on the ground, thoroughly posted as to local conditions and requirements and ready to co-operate in planning the sort of building that the community ought to have and in outlining the work. It was emphasized that this was better than any long-distance survey of the situation could possibly be.

The building must be fitted to the community. It must meet local needs and not be based on what some other community has done, however successful that may be.

The choice of a hospital for the form that the community memorial building should take was commented upon, with some surprise, twenty-eight communities having already decided for such a building. It was suggested that possibly the "boys" had acquired a different feeling for the hospital since their war experiences, seeing the hospital in a different light, as it were. A quite contrary suggestion was to the effect that in some of these communities there was a very real knowledge of what the need of hospital service, or more complete hospital equipment may have meant for some of the men. At any rate, it is certain the meaning of suffering on a large scale has been brought home to many a community, as never before.

State and County Buildings.

Many of the memorial buildings will be State memorials, and State funds are being appropriated for these. County memorial buildings are among some of the most interesting planned to date. Such a one is the Wayne County Memorial at Goldsboro, N. C. This provides for the farmers' grange meetings. It also makes some provision for the comfort of the country women who come to town to do their shopping. There are rest rooms, and it is stated that there will be competent women to take charge of babies, leaving mothers free to attend to the activities that brought them to town, and Goldsboro acknowledges it borrowed that idea from the hostess houses established during the war.

The Goldsboro Community Building will have an auditorium seating 870 people, with a regular modern stage, this auditorium having been especially sought because the town happens to have no big auditorium of any kind. The auditorium has therefore been made as large as possible. It is two stories high with a large balcony and the stage is equipped for professional performances as well as for community drama. The plans show a very fine adaptation of the true Southern Colonial form of architecture, of great dignity and beauty.

The plans also show a memorial room, a Red Cross room, offices of the Associated Charities, the Community Director's room. Two rooms are designated Chamber of Commerce, and these rooms can be thrown together, to form one large meeting room. There are also smaller assembly halls for meetings, &c.

The upper floor has a large reading room where a branch library will be established, and the building is also provided with gymnasium and swimming pool. The memorial room in some cases is known locally as the Hall of Fame, and in it are incorporated any war trophies as well as tablets giving the names of men of the community who served in the war. The building has featured the auditorium, but it has managed to include a great many other features; nothing appears to be omitted. In the basement are bowling alleys, locker rooms, "game rooms," &c.

This is a very fine example of a community memorial building for a town falling in the ten to thirty thousand population class.

There are many more county memorial buildings, for instance the Des Moines County Community Building, at Burlington, Iowa.

Many of the memorial buildings have provided for removable seats in assembly rooms and details are carefully thought out, such as having floors so built that they may be raised to form an inclined plane for an auditorium, or it may remain level, for dancing, etc. Some have kitchens. The community building kitchen offers an experimental centre for all sorts of demonstrations, dietary studies, etc. Community canning and similar activities suggest the community kitchen.

Gets Large Support.

Some of the best known names in educational and artistic circles, as well as people prominent in social welfare work, are included in the list of the Advisory Committee and the movement is receiving strong support from artists throughout the country. The aim is to make the memorial building the home of the arts in the community.

As pointed out by the bureau it is quite possible now that the Committee on Memorial Buildings represents some of the greatest artistic interests in the country, to get traveling art exhibitions for even the smaller communities. With proper facilities, an adequate place to show them, including proper lighting, and with promise of the right handling and care painting and statuary and other forms of art expression should be obtainable.

Chamber music will be brought within reach of the people, too, and with the big auditorium for mass singing, it is expected that the arts will receive a big impetus throughout the land.

In the case of the South Carolina State Memorial Building Committee, the money has been actually raised, and the commenement of operations is only delayed pending a decision as to what form the memorial building will take. The community is torn between a State memorial hospital and a building to be erected in connection with the University of South Carolina. The latter would be a university building, memorial chapel and college hall. State legislation has provided for the erection of this building, and simply the inability to decide is holding it up. It is reported that the idea for the hospital is largely favored by the returned men.

It is felt in many localities that the war has stimulated reading and libraries have been brought to the attenton of the communities as human, democratic things. The A. L. A. national headquarters and the State library organizations are working together in some sections of the country to cover the community with more adequate library systems.

In certain sections of the South, particularly, the need of books is great. From one community comes a letter stating that the books furnished for distribution among returned soldiers were being read by all. It is easy to understand the demand for a library community building in such a locality. In both the Carolinas, in Tennessee, and Kentucky still exist what are called "moonlight schools," and men and women of 50 and 60 tramp three and four miles at night, over some of the roughest mountain trails to get a little education. It is said they want to be able to read their Bibles.

If these people can come to the nearest town, eventually the community organization will reach out and include them in its fold, and the smallest community will have its little group.

The State of Michigan has given its Government support to the community memorial building movement. During the war there was established the Camp Custer Community House, which proved a splendid recreation centre. This was at Grand Rapids, and built by the Michigan State War Board. It was the first instance of a State having come forward with funds for a recreation building. It proved highly successful and fully justified the action. The organization is now a permanent Statewide body.

In some cases the plans for the memorial building may be selected as the result of an architectural competition, the competition being under the supervision of and conducted by the Institute of Architects in Washington.

This, however, is not considered, in most way, it is said. If a plan can be found, familiar to the local conditions, of the community, his actualized.

To have a memorial building, as by the Alumni Association Massachusetts Agricultural College grounds and then ated to the college, to be with all sorts of community the President of the university kindly to the movement. this building is looked departure in the direction ity extension. The site college grounds is a very

How Money Is Raised.

In some communities the financing of the memorial building is being handled through a basis, but it is considered preferable to make it a spontaneous community achievement, an expression of community spirit. In some cases part is raised by voluntary subscription, all part by bonds.

When local municipal interests are incorporated, as in a community using the memorial building as a Town Hall, municipal funds are used, but the community memorial building, a meeting place and social centre, is first and foremost for the returned soldiers and sailors of the community.

"In this connection," it is pointed out by the Bureau of Memorial Buildings, "it should provide for the preservation of relics and records of the war, especially those having local significance. We have already emphasized as a primary necessity the tribute to those who have fallen. Trophies, flags, and souvenirs must be exhibited and kept safe. Documents, manuscripts, maps, books and other memorabilia and historical records should be properly housed in every community not provided with a fireproof library. Some communities will be able to afford a war museum and war library."

The Bureau of Memorial Buildings also emphasizes the work done by many of our classes of highly complex society. The memorial building is looked to to furnish a meeting place for all these various associations. The Red Cross, the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the local Board of Trade or Chamber of Commerce, the Grange, the various civic organizations, women's clubs, the local literary and artistic societies, local charities, improvement societies, Rotarians, boys' and girls' clubs, patriotic, historical and defense societies—all should find and make full use of the community building.

"Beauty and usefulness are the attributes which the memorial building must have," is the warning administered by the bureau to the Advice-Seeking Community Committee.

"Expense without beauty will profit the community nothing; indeed, it is worse than mere futility; ridicule or contempt will be its portion; men will laugh or groan over it, depending upon their mood and disposition, and, worst of all, it will fail of its primary purpose as a real memorial."

While still living wrote to France, General Pershman of the Memorial Building Paul D. Cravath, Chairman of the Committee on Memorial Buildings, indorsing the movement "for the direction of useful communities throughout the country as living tributes to those who served in the war. This sort of monument appeals very strongly to me," he wrote, "as it should have a great effect on the future lives of our citizens."

More recently General O'Ryan said: "I believe that the soldiers themselves would prefer living, possessing a soul, rather than something stony and dead. They would prefer something that would play a part in the life of their community."

Franklin K. Lane, Cardinal Mercier, Dr. van Dyke, and many others of national and international prominence have given their heartiest indorsement to the movement, which is now spreading rapidly throughout the United States.

GAZA LAID LOW BY THE WAR.

City of Bible Times Is Half in Ruins from Shellfire.

Gaza, principal town in South Palestine, the city from which Samson once carried off the gates, lies half ruined by the war, a commercial importance gone, with the romance which has come down from Bible times and the Middle Ages as its only possession.

Many of its buildings have been laid low or made uninhabitable by the shellfire of General Allenby. The great mosque was used as an ammunition dump by the Turks and eventually was blown to pieces by them. The whole town is reported in a ruinous condition, and unless its condition is remedied there is little hope that the town ever will regain its pre-war importance as the centre of a rich agricultural district.

Before the war Gaza had a population of some 40,000, most of them Moslems. It was the seat of a Governor, and had a small garrison, an international Post Office, telegraph office, orphanage, and European hospital. It was situated at the direct line of communications between Egypt and Syria, and, though the caravan traffic virtually had ceased, it remained an important market for Bedouins, being abundantly supplied with dates, figs, olives, lentils, and other provisions. Barley was largely grown in this district and exported to Liverpool, and the olive harvest also was considerable.

At least one quarter of the town was damaged so badly that it cannot be repaired, and the reconstruction of the remaining houses is too big a problem for the municipality to deal with. The most urgent problems of repair are wood and iron. The town is virtually bare of wood in any shape, and the country has no iron. Building stone the hills, but so much can be brought down from to have this done. move has been taken

A small harbor was begun before the war, although all experts were put on board ships by lighters. In normal times a few ships would anchor off the city and take on board some 40,000 tons of barley and perhaps half as much wheat each year. The barley was of excellent quality and was sent largely to England for the manufacture of whisky. The other exports consisted chiefly of olive oil and native pottery.

Gaza is a place of unusual historical interest. On the east is shown a place which the natives say is the tomb of Samson. From the fifth to the twelfth century the city was an episcopal see of the Latin Church. Hashem, an ancestor of Mahomet, is buried there.

HOPE SOON TO CLOSE GREAT JEWISH DRIVE

Col. Guinzburg Calls for Two Weeks of Intensive Work for Building Fund.

NEARLY $6,000,000 RAISED

Program Calls for $4,000,000 More to be Brought In Before Nov. 15.

Colonel H. A. Guinsberg, Chairman of the United Building Fund Campaign of Federated Jewish Institutions, announce Federated Jewish Institutions, announced yesterday that nearly $6,000,000 of the $10,000,000 sought has been raised. He issued a call to chairmen of industrial committees asking that they rally their forces for an intensive two weeks "clean-up" compaign. More than $1,000,000 had been pledged vervally, said Colonel Guinsburg.

The appeal was especially directed to the members of the garment industry, which had pledged itself to raise $1,000,000, and also to other industries which have not raised their quotas. The workers were urged to complete the entire sum desired by the middle of November.

"With a two weeks, whirl-wind campaign we expect every Chairman to raise his quota," Colonel Guinsburg said. "Many Chairmen have not relaxed their efforts since the beginning of the drive and have gone over the quota pledged by them and will continue to raise additional funds for the drive. The cloak and suit industry which pledged itself to raise $850,000, of which $600,000 is already on hand, has just designated a new Chairman, Harry Cohn of J. C. Stratton & Co., to succeed Jacob Rappoport who recently sailed for Europe. This committee, which consists, in addition to Mr. Cohn, of Max Lachman, Isadore Blauner, Louis Lustig, Jacob Sperber, and Ben Erdman, has promised to call upon every man in the industry and see that its pledge is fulfilled. A new committee—the Eldridge Street Merchant Committee—organized through the efforts of Bernard Semel, has promised to canvas all merchants of the east side. The clothing manufacturers industry, headed by William Goldman and Morris Amof, has visited every manufacturer in the city. We have designated the next two weeks as 'clean up' weeks. We know that $10,000,000 will be raised when all of our prospective contributors have been approached, but we recognize the fact that it is valueless to drag on a campaign for weeks and months until this sum is secured. Consequently our Chairmen will endeavor to clean up their industries in the next fortnight, and I am certain that they will be successful.

"The Campaign Committee is able to announce that nearly $6,000,000 in cash and pledges is already on hand. This represents a little more than 4,000 subscribers. Many of our institutions are already feeling the hardships imposed by inadequate housing. The thirty-one hospitals, orphanages, day nurseries, sanitaria and other social institutions that are uniting in this building fund campaign present a crying need. They are so badly overcrowded in many or in such a wornout state that Winter brings genuine fear of hardship to them. Every man and woman who has his steam-heated, comfortable home should think of these unfortunates who, because their fellow-citizens have failed to provide sufficient funds, are compelled to endure all manner of hardship because of lack of adequate institutions. There are those still more unfortunate who must, because of lack of room, be denied admission to these institutions which are their only refuge. Although we do not like to contemplate it, there is a possibility of a recurrence of last year's epidemic, but we should not allow a recurrence of last year's overcrowded condition of hospitals, and this is best to be prevented by enlarging present hospital facilities."

NEW USE FOR EUCALYPTUS.

Australian Devises Method of Making Rope from Its Bark.

A method of using the bark of a large variety of eucalyptus trees for commercial purposes has been discovered in Australia, according to the weekly bulletin of the Canadian Department of Trade and Commerce. It is reported that from the bark there can be made a fibre suitable for the manufacture of twine, rope and bagging of a quality equal to the best flax and Indian jute goods at half the cost of the latter.

The inventor of the process is said to have been experimenting fifteen years, and now has available for inspection in a factory near Melbourne samples of binder twine, light and heavy rope, and bags for agricultural products. It is said that every particle of the fibre can be used either in the manufacture of the articles named or as waste for furniture stuffing, fibrous-plaster work, packing refrigerator chambers, and like purposes.

So far as can be ascertained, the bark first is passed through a "softening" machine, which loosens out the fibres, and then through carding and spinning machines specially adapted to the purpose. The supply of raw material is practically inexhaustible, and can be had for the cost of collecting and transportation to the factory.

MORE SUGAR FOR GROCERS

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Reduction of the sugar allowances to manufacturers of nonessentials and others so that the retail groceries may obtain a greater supply was ordered today by the State Commission on Necessaries of Life.

Wholesalers and jobbers were directed to ascertain what percentage of their stocks each customer received during July, August, and September. Distribution will be on this proportional basis, except that the supply to makers of candy, ice cream, and other "nonessentials" will be cut 50 per cent., that to bottlers will be reduced 75 per cent. and bakers will receive 70 per cent. of their former allotments. The surplus sugar released by these reductions is to be distributed to the retail grocery trade.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The stock market developed nothing new yesterday and the sort of business recorded in the two hours of trading was fully in keeping with what went on during the preceding sessions of the week. First, a renewal of speculation for the rise lifted a number of industrial shares, especially steel stocks, for gains extending from 4 to more than 10 points. Then a natural wave of profit taking sales swept into the market, reducing the advance of nearly all the volatile issues and leaving the majority with net declines. The familiar exhibition of sheer-force tactics being applied to particular stocks was once more seen. While profit-taking was heavy in the last hour, it appeared not to be accompanied by extensive operations for the short account; at least, the comment of brokerage circles made little reference to short selling. Presumably, the agility displayed by the speculative industrial shares earlier in the week, following periods of unsettlement over the coal strike and advances of call money rates, was discouraging to traders who are wont to watch for opportunity to "feed out" lines of short stocks.

The last week recorded a stock market which was puzzling to observers who like to lay stress on economic phenomena, but not so puzzling to persons of long experience in speculation as to others. No doubt the coal labor controversy had considerable influence in directing fluctuations of the day to day variety, but the net result of an active week showed clearly that the strike had no permanent effect on prices. Ten to twenty per cent. call money also had a part in curbing the advance now and then, yet after each downward flurry quotations were bid upward with fresh zest. This was especially the case among steel and iron shares, one after another being lifted rapidly. The "old-timers" in the Street have seen just such markets in other years, and the more cynical were busy during the week looking up past performances, tracing the late stages of boom periods when stiffening cost of credit pointed the way to a final jarring decline. The major difficulty in arranging calculations about the life of the current bull market lies in the fact that the amount of bank credit available for all purposes is greater than ever before, making money market signs, represented by demand loan rates, less easy to read than in preceding years.

The Clearing House banks reported an increase of $32,500,000 in loans, contained in the statement of actual condition on Friday, and an expansion of $50,000,000 in demand deposits. The surplus reserve increased $12,500,000. The Federal Reserve Bank's report showed that member banks had rediscounted their Government bonds and mercantile bills freely, resulting in an increase of $18,600,000 in reserve credits at the central institution. Rediscounts of Government paper expanded $26,800,000 and other discounts were enlarged by $25,700,000, as compared with the week before.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Bank Statement.

The bank statement clearly showed the effects of the month-end needs for money. There was an increase in actual loans of $32,535,000, against a decrease in average loans of $7,270,000, indicating that the expansion in this account took place at the close of the week. Also, there was an increase in reserves at the Reserve Bank of $18,684,000 in the actual, compared with a decrease of $14,244,000 in the same item in the average, which would also seem to indicate that the member banks were making greater efforts at the close of the week than they were earlier. Actual demand deposits increased $50,090,000, while average deposits fell off $24,817,000 and even the Government's deposit account showed a greater decline in the actual than in the average. The most pleasing feature of the display was the increase in excess reserve of $12,552,310 reported in the actual, against a decrease of $11,285,150 reported in this account in the average statement.

At the Reserve Bank.

The Reserve Bank's weekly display also reflected the influence of the end of the month. In rediscounts there was an increase of $26,805,854 in the rediscounts of bills secured by Government paper and an increase of $25,795,692 in other bills rediscounted, while the bank lightened its load of bills purchased in the open market to the extent of $12,551,020, with the result that the consolidated loan account showed an expansion of $40,051,525. The deposit items showed a decline of $17,864,875 in Government deposits and an increase of $18,908,621 in member banks' reserve deposits. The gold and reserve items all showed contractions—$36,369,547 in the gold held by the bank, $37,366,247 in total gold held and $38,323,815 in total reserve.

Call Money at 9 Per Cent.

A small amount of call money was lent on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and it went at 9 per cent., as against Friday's official closing of 19 per cent. and the unofficial closing on that date at 20 per cent. The amount lent yesterday, of course, was very small, and probably no particular significance could be attached to the recession in rate. Nevertheless, it is interesting to note that the rate did come down from the previous night's closing so as to conform with Friday's renewal rate.

Railroad Shares Irregular.

There was little evidence in the half-day market that the railroad shares were feeling the weight of selling other than by those who desired to ease their commitments over Sunday and Monday so that they could enjoy a three-day holiday over Election Day without having to watch the market. This group was probably as apathetic as any, with price changes fractional where there was any change and with the aggregate turnover typical of a week-end trading session.

Federal Control Extension?

During the last week there have been persistent rumors in banking circles that the railroads would not be turned back to their owners at the close of 1919, as was originally stated by the President on his return from the Peace Conference. In conservative quarters it is admitted that there is a possibility that the period of Federal control will be extended for a few months, but in other quarters it is asserted emphatically that the sooner the roads are turned back the better. Of course a number of managers of roads which would find themselves in none too secure financial position if their properties were turned back without some protective legislation, have held right along that the period of Federal control should be extended. In fact, one corporate manager came out in favor of an extension of the period for five years, as suggested by the former Director General of Railroads. But the consensus of opinion among railroad men is that the roads should be returned as soon as possible provided protective measures were passed by Congress which would eliminate the possibility for immediate receiverships on many of the lines.

Hydro-Electric Companies Favored.

While there is a very hesitant inquiry and demand for the stocks and notes and bonds of public utility companies which operate traction properties with power derived from steam, it has been reported recently that those concerns which depend on water power plants for their electricity, especially when they own the power houses themselves, are being looked upon with favor. This is said by utility specialists to be particularly true of the hydro-electric companies which enjoy a year-round water power supply, and do not have to depend on their steam plants except in emergencies. It is true that the cost of labor in these plants has advanced rapidly and that the upkeep has also materially advanced, but less labor is hired, and the upkeep is less than for companies which depend upon steam for power.

Steel Stocks in Good Demand.

The past week has seen a heavier demand for the steel shares than has been witnessed in some time. Practically all of the prominent issues have made substantial advances, the one notable exception having been United States Steel, which has thus far responded little to the forward movement evidenced elsewhere throughout the group. Republic and Lackawanna have been market sensations for a number of days, and Sloss-Sheffield joined the coterie yesterday with a gain of more than 11 points. Part of the forward movement may be accounted for by manipulation, but the fact remains that the steel companies are meeting with a steadily increasing demand for their products.

Rail Needs Are Heavy.

There is a difference of opinion as to just what the railroads will need in the way of rolling stock when they are returned to private ownership, some maintaining that heavy orders must be placed to bring the carriers up to normal, while others contend that extensive repairs will reclaim equipment to the point of making extensive new purchases unnecessary. There seems, however, to be unanimity of opinion regarding the heavy demand which will arise for steel rails. The inquiry of one road, the Pennsylvania, for 200,000 tons of rails shows the way of things. On this basis the rail needs of the carriers would total about 2,600,000 tons. It is, however, quite improbable that the Pennsylvania order represents its entire needs. If it is 50 per cent. of its requirement, with the Pennsylvania representing about 7 per cent. of the total trackage of the United States, the entire railroad need would approximate 5,200,000 tons, a figure which is not looked upon as being far from correct by many railroad men.

Tobacco Prices to Move Forward.

Edward Wise, Chairman of the Board of the United Cigar Stores Company, announced yesterday that an upturn in tobacco prices might be expected within a short time. "It is not unlikely," he said, "that prices of cigarettes will advance steadily and will not return to the old selling price for several years." This advance, he said, would be made necessary by the rise in leaf tobacco, which is at the highest price in the history of the industry. On this basis there would be no increase in the earnings of tobacco companies manufacturing finished products, presuming of course that the increase is only to offset additional costs.

FOREIGN CREDIT RATINGS.

These Can Be Obtained if Proper Methods Are Followed.

The Far Eastern Division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce recently had called to its attention a case which showed that manufacturers outside of New York are not familiar with the methods of obtaining credit information concerning foreign customers. A firm in Penang gave as their reference two British banks and advised the manufacturer to refer to these banks for their financial standing. The manufacturer was unable to get a credit rating from either of the New York offices of these banks and advised the Chinese firm to request their bankers to place a report on them with their branches here.

When the matter was called to the attention of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, it was immediately taken up with an American bank that maintains a branch in Singapore, and the information was given that, if the manufacturer had called on his own bank or written to the bureau for the names of American banks specializing in the financing of foreign trade, not only the necessary credit data would have been obtained but also the details of how shipments of the kind should be handled. In this case the American bank's New York office had a complete report on the Chinese importer in the Straits Settlements and would have been willing to purchase the manufacturer's draft on the merchant.

First Holland Salt Produced.

With the delivery of three carloads of salt, the company formed to bore for salt in the Provinces of Gelderland and Overyssel believes a start has been made in making Holland independent of foreign supply. The preliminary investigation of the deposits indicated the possibility, reports Consul Frank W. Mahin at Amsterdam, of a billion tons or more of salt underlying the soil of the provinces mentioned. The consumption of salt in Holland has been at the rate of 170,000 tons a year, all of which has hitherto been imported.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Although price movements were irregular on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday, the average advances were wider and more rapid than the declines. The steel and equipment shares at the outset registered advances of from 1 to 8 points, while the specialties, motors, and coppers were inclined to sag. Lackawanna Steel at the maximum netted a gain of 7½, while Republic Steel was moved up 3⅝, reaching new high marks. Mexican Petroleum was offered down 2¾, Pan American 1¾, and Sinclair 1⅛. Studebaker, at the minimum, fell back 3½, Pierce-Arrow 2¼, and White 2¼. Retail Stores receded 1¾, American Woolen 3, United States Rubber 2¾, and Keystone Tire 2¼, while United States Alcohol was bid up 6 and International Paper 2¾.

Pipe Line to Beggs

The Empire Pipe Line Company is to start construction of a pipe line from Okmulgee, Okla., into the new Beggs field, and expects to have it completed in record time. The Beggs field, according to oil men, is the largest oil field opened in Oklahoma since the Cushing field, with a total daily production now of about 24,000 barrels and over 300 wells drilling. The new pipe line will connect the Beggs field with the main pipe line system of the Empire Pipe Line Co., and also will furnish oil to the refinery of the Empire Refining Co. at Okmulgee. The oil from the Beggs field is a very high gravity petroleum. The larger companies are active in this field.

ALL COTTON OPTIONS SHOW STRONG GAINS

Short Session of the Market Active, with Prices Up 27 to 55 Points.

SPOTS REACH 38.25 HERE

Weather Conditions Continue Unfavorable — Liverpool and Trade Buying Active.

Yesterday's cotton market, notwithstanding that the session was of only two hours' duration, was active and the price movement was distinctly upward after the brief hesitancy at the opening. First prices were off 5 and 2 points respectively for December and January, and up 5 to 9 points for the later months. This was followed by a decline which took the list down 10 to 20 points before the recovery set in. But after the low levels were reached the market turned very strong and before the closing time prices had gone up 27 points for December and 48 to 55 points for the other options. At the close these gains were well held, even the far distant months like September of next year scoring gains of upward of 50 points. Spot cotton was up 25 points to the basis of 38.65 for middling at New York.

The labor uncertainty inspired a little Wall Street and ring selling, and it was this which gave the market an appearance of nervousness at the opening. However, publication of the worst weather map seen in some time soon corrected the market and on fairly good trade and Liverpool buying prices shot up. Speculative interest was somewhat below normal, but the trade buying more than offset this. Offerings were light after the first few minutes and buyers had to bid for their requirements.

The predictions for weather conditions over the week-end were highly unfavorable. This, added to the very bad weather reported over Friday night, served to create a highly bullish attitude among many of the trade interests. Yesterday's weather map showed unusual rains in the central and western portions of the belt and low temperatures. Freezing weather was reported in some places and the predictions were for more of this.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.
December	36.90	36.92	36.45	36.80@36.82	36.65

The local market for spot cotton was steady, up 25 points to 38.65 for middling upland; sales none.

CONSOLIDATED STOCK EXCHANGE OF NEW YORK

The Second Largest Stock Exchange in the United States in Volume of Stock Transactions.

The remarkable growth in size and importance of the Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York since the days of its infancy as the New York Mining Exchange, forty-three years ago, is due primarily to the splendid opportunities offered to all operators and investors.

Beginning with only twenty-five Charter Members, the Exchange grew rapidly, absorbing four other exchanges within the first ten years.

Within a year of this consolidation the volume of business totaled 41,6[illegible]5,170 shares, and the following year, 1887, the sales increased over six million. In 1[illegible]06 the transactions totaled 91,346,000 shares, and at the present time the volume of business is enormous.

The universally used Clearing House System, originated and perfected in this Exchange in 1883, renders the members invaluable service at a minimum cost.

The Consolidated Stock Exchange, in conjunction with its efficient Clearing System, handles the tremendous odd lot business of its members with ease and expedition, in nowise interfering with handling and clearing the transactions in large lots. It thus fills the essential and important role of giving equal time and attention to the orders of both small and large dealers.

The increasing demand for Exchange memberships at advancing prices indicates a growing realization of the value of the facilities offered by the Exchange to its members and their customers.

Such memberships as are from time to time offered for sale by retiring members, or those of deceased members, can be obtained through the Secretary's office. As a business proposition no other field offers so great an opportunity.

Seven Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock

With Right to Purchase Common Stock

PEOPLES TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK, CHICAGO, REGISTRAR AND TRANSFER AGENT

CAPITALIZATION

Seven Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock, $100 par value, authorized and outstanding $1,200,000
Common Stock of no par value, authorized and outstanding ..... 120,000 shares

The Preferred Stock is exempt from personal property tax in Illinois. It is preferred as to dividends and assets. Dividends are payable quarterly, the first day of September, December, March and June.

No mortgage indebtedness may be created without the consent of 95% of the holders of the Preferred Stock.

SINKING FUND

Beginning January 1, 1920, the Company will set aside not less than $50,000 per year for the retirement of the Preferred Stock, which shall be purchased in the open market or called at $107.50 per share and accrued dividend.

Application will be made in due time to list both classes of stock on the Chicago Stock Exchange.

All legal matters pertaining to this issue have been passed upon by Messrs. Barthell, Fitts & Rundall, of Chicago, for the bankers, and Lawrence A. Olwell, Esq., Milwaukee, for the Company. The books of the Company have been audited by Messrs. Jonathan B. Cook & Company, Certified Public Accountants, Chicago, and the appraisal of the plant and property has been made under the direction of the Rau Appraisal Company of Milwaukee.

THE COMPANY

American Candy Company is one of the largest, oldest and best known Candy manufacturing industries in the United States. As a Wisconsin corporation, it was first chartered in 1889. Its plant, located in Milwaukee, equipped with every device for the manufacture of Confectionery on a large scale and on a most economical basis, is one of the most complete Candy manufacturing units in the world. The Company manufactures every variety of confections, and in addition is the owner of such well-known brands and trade marks, which are extensively advertised in the Saturday Evening Post and other mediums, as "Milady" Chocolates and "Rex" brand of confections, etc. At the head of the enterprise remains Mr. Louis Kuhn, one of the best-known men in the industry and President of the National Confectioners Association in 1916-17.

EARNINGS

The great strength and successful history of the Company is indicated by its record of sales, earnings and dividends. This shows that the volume of sales has risen steadily and continuously from one hundred thirty-three thousand dollars in 1893, to one million seven hundred seventy-three thousand dollars in 1918. Net profits of a little over three thousand dollars in 1893 rose to three hundred thousand dollars in 1918. Net profits for the period from 1893 to 1918 have averaged 28% on the outstanding capital stock. While dividends of one million four hundred fifty-six thousand four hundred ninety dollars were declared during the period, the Company's assets and working capital maintained a steady and continuous increase.

THE EFFECT OF PROHIBITION ON CANDY CONSUMPTION

The advent of prohibition has created so great a demand for Candy that the Company, like many others, is forced to refuse orders daily. Orders are now on its books to keep the plant running to its fullest capacity into 1920. The annual consumption is now at the rate of over a billion pounds, an increase of over twenty per cent during the past two years. It is the intention to greatly increase the Company's facilities, thereby insuring an increasing volume of business.

ESTIMATED EARNINGS FOR 1919—$500,000

The total sales to July 19th, this year, were one million eighty-one thousand dollars, compared with seven hundred and thirty-six thousand dollars for the same period last year. Net profits for this period prior to the deduction of Federal Income Tax are over two hundred thousand dollars. On account of so much Candy being kept in storage during the summer months the largest volume of business and the largest profits are always realized during the last six months of the year. It is conservatively estimated that the total net profits for 1919 prior to deduction of Federal Income Taxes will be five hundred thousand dollars—nearly six times the annual dividend requirement on the Preferred Stock. After liberal allowance for taxes, net earnings applicable to Common Stock for the year will be at the rate of 25% on the offering price.

PRICE—PREFERRED AND COMMON

A large amount of this issue having been retained by interests identified with the management, we offer the balance, subject to prior sale, on the following terms: The Preferred Stock at par flat, or $100 per share. For a limited time, with each share of Preferred Stock purchased, we extend the option to purchase five shares of the Common Stock at $7.50 per share. Checks should be made payable to F. A. Brewer & Co., or if desired, to the Peoples Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, and sent to F. A. Brewer & Co. The amount of both classes of stock available to the public being limited and an over-subscription of this balance being anticipated upon this the first public offering, we advise clients to wire or telephone their reservations at our expense. The right to reject any and all subscriptions or to allot a smaller number than subscribed for is reserved.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

Ten cents per word; capitals, fifteen cents per word.

AN INVESTMENT OF LESS THAN $200 WILL MAKE YOU OWNER OF A PERMANENT AND PROFITABLE BUSINESS THAT WILL SOON PAY FOR ITSELF AND THEN MAKE LARGE PROFITS WEEKLY.

An OPPORTUNITY never before equaled. A few square feet of space in a good location and a sum invested in equipment and material prepares you with a complete plant ready to supply an enormous popular demand.

Make AMERICA DOUGHNUTS IN YOUR WINDOW and sell them to the crowds who will throng the store, attracted by the human interest of the operation, the enticing odor of the frying delicacies, and, above all, the natural taste and craving of the American people for this wonderful food.

DOUGHNUTS have taken the country by storm. The Army, the Red Cross, the Salvation Army made DOUGHNUTS all the rage. They are the best advertised and most popular food on the market today and have come to stay. They are nutritious, wholesome and delicious.

THE TIME was never riper to seize a lifetime opportunity. Grasp it now and get established in this business that is becoming the sensation of the retail trade.

HUNDREDS OF DOUGHNUT STANDS and Doughnut departments in shops and stores are springing up all over the country in towns both large and small as business people realize the ease, the satisfaction and the profits that can be made from operating one or more stands or departments.

WE ARE PIONEERS in this business and have developed a complete doughnut making apparatus designed expressly for window display that combines as does no other machine on the market neatness, cleanliness, compactness and popular interest. No details have been overlooked and the operations have been so simplified that no previous experience is necessary.

FROM LONG EXPERIENCE in the Doughnut business and acquaintance with the popular taste we have developed AMERICA DOUGHNUT MIXTURE, a combination of the ingredients that make up a famous recipe mixed and blended by a scientific process with the water entirely removed.

THE RESULT, a product that is always uniform and uniformly good; that will keep fresh indefinitely and when ready simply add water and mix. Consider the saving over handling, mixing and weighing the ten ingredients required by the old method.

SIMPLICITY in preparing; no skill is required. Any boy or girl can do it.

ECONOMY of purchasing materials in huge quantities compared with the price of butter, eggs, sugar today means a price that will enable you to turn out a finished product, easier, better and cheaper.

Our proposition is simply this:

A COMPLETE WINDOW DOUGHNUT EQUIPMENT and sufficient AMERICA DOUGHNUT MIXTURE to produce enough finished goods to pay for the entire expenditure.

Total cost less than $200 and should pay for itself within a short time.

For complete information write or wire at once.

AN UNUSUAL BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY.

We are now alloting Exclusive Territory to Agents for the Lowest-Priced Automobile on the Market.

THE SPACKE ROADSTER,
A NEW TYPE OF SMALL MOTOR CAR.

Combining: Ease of Operation—Light Weight —Economy of Upkeep.
List Price, F. O. B. Factory, $295.00.
With Detachable Delivery Case, $315.00.
Manufactured by
THE SPACKE MACHINE & TOOL CO.
Factories—Indianapolis, Ind.

SPEED—40 Miles an Hour.
GAS—40 to 50 Miles on a Gallon.
TIRES—Less Than 1-3 Cost of the Average Small Car.
Length Over All, 118 Inches.
Weight, Complete, 390 lbs.

The fact that THE SPACKE MACHINE & TOOL CO., who for the past twenty years have been recognized as one of the leading manufacturers of high-grade motors, transmissions, axles and automotive parts, are putting their name and reputation back of this car, is the best guarantee of its durability.

The SPACKE is not only the lowest-priced automobile on the market, but the most economical to operate. Just think of it:—The man who can keep a car in his back yard can operate a SPACKE for a whole year and cover 5,000 miles at a cost not to exceed $2.00 per week, after allowing 30c. per gallon of gasoline for the maximum of 125 gallons required, ($37.50,) and have $62.50 for tires, oil and repairs, which is more than enough. It is almost unbelievable, but nevertheless a fact.

FOR QUICK COMMERCIAL DELIVERY the SPACKE has no rival, as it will not only make deliveries quickly and cheaply, but after business hours the owner can, in a few minutes, detach the delivery case, and use it as a pleasure car.

And the SPACKE not only appeals to the man who cannot afford a high-priced car, but also to the "moneyed" man who wants an auxiliary car to take him to and from the railroad station, the golf links or country club.

The SPACKE practically sells itself by reason of its low price, economy of upkeep and beauty of construction.

A SPACKE exclusive agency should show large returns on the capital invested.

As we are at present appointing agents in the LARGER CITIES ONLY, it will require an investment of $10,000 or more to swing an agency.

If interested write at once stating what territory you desire, and TO INSURE ATTENTION give particulars as to your present business connections, together with A STATEMENT of your financial standing and BANKING REFERENCES.

IN THE DRESS INDUSTRY.

Trade Problems to be Discussed at Its Coming Convention.

The rising cost of women's clothing and the means of checking it and bringing prices down to a normal basis will be one of the most important topics to be brought up at the coming convention of the Associated Dress Industries of America, which will be held in the roof garden of The Breakers, Atlantic City, on Dec. 2, 3, and 4. From present indications the convention, which will be the first of its kind ever held in the women's garment trades, will be attended by over 500 of the most representative men in that and the associated industries. They will represent firms doing an aggregate annual business in excess of $100,000,000.

Other topics of trade interest will also be brought up at the convention, among them the various trade reforms that are necessary for the welfare of the dress industry. Many problems that have come about as a result of the war also will be discussed. Tentative arrangements for the convention, which are in the hands of a committee headed by Executive Director David N. Mosessohn, call for a fashion show, to be held on the last day, at which the newest styles for Spring will be displayed on living models. This feature is in charge of a special committee, from which a definite report one way or the other will be received within the next ten days. Another feature of the convention will be the presence of many of the leading retail merchants of the country, who will tell the wholesale trade just what can be done, in their judgment, to establish closer relations between buyers and sellers.

It is expected that 300 delegates to the convention will attend from this city alone, and out-of-town delegations will come to it, according to Mr. Mosessohn, from Philadelphia, Cleveland, Baltimore, Cincinnati, Chicago, Milwaukee, San Francisco, Los Angeles, St. Louis, and Boston.

IMITATION HAT VELOUR.

A Cheap Substitute Made by a British Firm at Manchester.

American visitors to England, especially women, have remarked upon the high prices of British millinery, says Trade Commissioner Leonard B. Gary in a report to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Hats in the United Kingdom are very much higher priced than in the United States. This season the velour hat is again very popular, but, as velours are rather expensive, they are beyond the reach of women with little money to spend on dress. To meet this condition, an English hat manufacturer is placing on the market an imitation velour made of stiffened cotton flannelette.

The material for the manufacture of this particular style of hat is being turned out by a large textile firm in Manchester in great quantities. One of the Directors of this firm said that thousands of yards of it are being ordered and the demand for it can barely be met. He exhibited several pieces of this flannelette, which when brushed has the appearance of a good grade of velour. He now has a man in the United States investigating the market to see what women's styles are going to be, and hopes to supply this material in large quantities to American hat manufacturers.

SUGAR IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Regulations There to Keep Sufficient Supplies at Home.

The sugar regulations in the Union of South Africa provide that supplies of the commodity must be maintained for the consumer. Other guarantees are also obtained through the agreement made between the Government and the Natal Sugar Association. These regulations were taken to safeguard the interests of the consumer and the producer.

The agreement, which was entered by the Government owing to the abnormal demand overseas for sugar and the high prices in the world's markets, gives sugar price and export control within the Union. Exports are granted only on condition that all profits on exports be divided pro rata between the millers and planters. Permits to export are issued only to the Natal Sugar Association. Such licenses are even required in the case of sugar desired for ship stores. Overseas passengers are allowed two pounds under permit from the Collector of Customs, and the same official authorizes parcel post shipments from residents of the Union to outside friends of not more than one pound.

German Exchange Requirements.

A cablegram from Commercial Attaché Edwards at Amsterdam announces that the requirement that imports into Germany be paid for in marks unless a credit of two years is granted, or a similar requirement, is frequently used by the German Government as a condition precedent to the issue of an import license, especially for articles less urgently required. However, in consequence of the cancellation of the exchange ordinance, the German Government has no means of imposing such requirements as regards the importation of articles on the list of goods free from import restrictions.

Cotton Crop of Chosen.

The Government of Chosen has been encouraging the cultivation of cotton and, notwithstanding the adverse weather conditions of the last year, the yield amounted to nearly 70,000,000 pounds, while in 1913 the crop was but half this amount. Cotton of home species is grown in various parts of the country, while the upland species of American origin grows best only in the southern part of the country. The Chosen Government is planning to increase the annual cotton crop to 250,000,000 pounds in the near future.

Uruguayan Customs Laws.

The attention of American exporters is called to the fact that Uruguayan customs laws impose heavy penalties for incorrect declarations of merchandise. Where the error discovered in the declaration is in favor of the importer, the penalties are confiscation of the excess, or a surtax of 50 per cent. on duties. On the other hand, if customs inspection shows less merchandise than the declaration, the importer must pay full duties on the amount declared.

NEW VIEWPOINT IN CHARGE ACCOUNTS

Higher Prices Considered as They Affect the Extension of Retail Credits.

While it was said yesterday by one of the best-posted retail credit men in the city that there has been no marked increase in the amount of buying done by the public since the armistice was signed nearly a year ago, the advances that have taken place in many lines of merchandise since that time—particularly in women's garments—has swelled the sales totals considerably. The new prices have also added a good deal to the responsibility of the credit men, for the so-called customers' limits that existed even a year ago are now much too small in the great majority of cases.

"One reason why there has not been a marked expansion of business since the end of hostilities," the credit man in question said, "is that the people who were compelled by high living costs to economize while the fighting was going on are still compelled to watch their nickels and dimes. Those who have not suffered that restriction on their purchasing activities bought as freely a year ago as they are doing today.

"The people who are doing the buying these days for the most part fall into two general classes. The first is made up of those who got wealthy through war contracts. They show up in the charge accounts. The second class is made up of skilled workers and others who profited from their physical efforts during the war. They pay cash, and they are spending it just as freely on Fifth Avenue as they are on Sixth.

"When I said that there has been no marked increase in buying in the last year I did not mean to give the impression that business is not good now. It is, and collections also are good. The only thing which bothers the credit man at the present time is that he must exercise a great deal closer supervision over his charge accounts than he has ever had to before. This is not because there is any slowness in paying bills—in fact it is quite the reverse in most instances—but because the present high prices have completely set aside the credit limits put on customers of varying degrees of wealth during normal times. It is not a rare thing now for a woman to purchase a single garment that costs more than her entire limit used to be.

"In other words, where a certain woman might in the old days have had a $100 limit, today she may come into the store and buy a suit at $125 or more. In the most extreme case of this kind that has yet come to my attention, a woman with a $50 limit and who had never before been on our books for more than $30 at any one time, recently purchased a fur coat at $750. On the face of it, to pass a credit like that looks like taking a very long chance. I passed it, however, because the woman had always paid her small bills promptly and because I found out through our 'intelligence bureau' that her husband's business has been increasing rapidly for some time.

"Had she been at all slow in paying her small bills I would not have passed the credit. Many women are having 'charges' held up these days because they were not careful in guarding their credit standing in less strenuous times. Many of the credits that I have refused to pass have looked a great deal safer, on the surface, than that of the woman who bought the fur coat. The woman whose 'charges' have been turned down might eventually have settled in full, but so many people want charge accounts these days that no store really has to put up with chronic 'slow pays.' Whenever we spot one nowadays we simply close the account. With the present co-operation there is between the credit men of the leading stores and shops, it does not take long for 'Mrs. Slow Pay' to get squeezed out all the way around. 'Mrs. Dead Beat' is figuratively shot on sight, but it must honestly be said that there are fewer of both types of customers nowadays.

"In closing, I would like to say this to all women who have, or intend to get, charge accounts: Watch your credit standing. The charge account has never been a greater privilege extended to customers of the right kind than it is today. As long as prices continue as high as they are this will be the case; if they go still higher the privilege of the charge account will increase in proportion. A break in prices will have to come some time, and when it does I believe the charge account privilege will then be the greatest. Prices will not break until something else breaks first. It may take a mild panic to do it, but something out of the ordinary will have to come in order to break the present orgy of high prices. When that something does come, credits are going to be scanned very, very closely, and the woman who holds her charge account under that scanning will be the woman who has not neglected her obligations."

TO HELP SPANISH TRADE.

Society Has Been Formed to Develop Commercial Relations.

Under the name Sociedad Americana de Expansion Comercial, an organization has been founded in Spain which, as its name indicates, is to devote its activities to the development of commercial relations between Spain and America. Four permanent expositions, according to Commercial Attaché Chester Lloyd Jones, will be established for the products of American manufacturers who desire to exhibit their goods. To intending buyers all details will be furnished concerning articles sent by manufacturers to the society. At the same time, inquirers will be informed of prices, discounts, method of payment, transportation, freight rates, customs charges, &c., in order that they may be able to purchase goods with the least possible difficulty.

Two offices will be opened, one to establish new industries in the country and expand others, and the other in behalf of exhibitors who may wish to use the knowledge of the society for promoting their lines. The society will not compete with agents or representatives now in Spain, but will do what is possible to assist them.

New Manufactures in Sheffield.

Among the exhibits at an exposition being held in Sheffield, England, is one showing sixty varieties of permanent magnets, which make Great Britain independent of foreign supplies. Carbonless metals and alloys for consumption in the iron, steel, and nonferrous trade represent another industry which Sheffield has wrested from Germany. Stainless steel, shown in many novel forms, is another exhibition that attracted attention. A revival of the lens industry is anticipated in Sheffield, and the exhibits in this line range from the smallest telescope to a lens with a diameter of nine inches.

Tractors in the Philippines.

The Bureau of Agriculture of the Philippine Islands is planning a demonstration of tractors, which are now on the Manila market, to show that these machines can be economically employed for the preparation of uplands for food crops, including upland rice. It is proposed to plow, disk and harrow 500 acres of land at the Alabang Agricultural Station. The land, after being prepared, is to be rented to persons living in the vicinity of the agricultural station, who are to plant, cultivate and harvest the crops.

Transit of Goods in Italy.

Consul O'Hara has cabled from Trieste that the official journal of the Venezia Galacia Government announces new changes in the decree concerning certificates of origin. Custom houses are authorized to permit free transit of all foreign goods except for Bolshevik Russia without requesting the exhibition of a certificate of origin. Goods subject to embargo will still require export licenses, however, unless the bill of lading indicates the country of ultimate destination.

The Merchant's Point of View

THERE is a wide divergence of opinion nowadays among persons engaged in mercantile business as to what is in store for the future. But this concerns only two points, namely, when prices are due for a fall and whether they will come down suddenly or gradually. There is but one opinion as to their falling. Prices are everywhere conceded to be abnormally high and unwarranted. They are not justified by the costs of material or labor. The swollen profits of factories and mills, as shown in their reports of dividends and surpluses above and beyond anything they ever dreamed of, are convincing evidence of this fact. Not so long ago there was quoted in these columns the statement of an executive of one of the greatest of the textile combinations. He said they were asking large prices for their products and were getting them because conditions permitted them to do so. It is another case, like that of the Pacific railways in former days, of exacting "all that the traffic will bear." That such a condition is unstable, all concede. That it also affords a pretext, if not a reason, for labor to demand its proportionate share of the exactions, has been only too apparent. The mutterings of that patient beast of burden, the ultimate consumer, are now beginning to be heard in protest against the system of exploitation at his expense, and it is only a question of time when it must stop. Whether the drop in prices comes suddenly or not is the disturbing thought which has much to do with the wavering policy of much of the business now current.

Will Prohibition Help Trade

While the imminence of prohibition brought out much discussion and many data of the injury to trade resulting from the suppression of the liquor traffic, there is now being more attention paid to the other side of the account. It is recalled, for instance, that nearly half a billion dollars a year was collected by the Federal Government alone in revenues, licenses, and import duties on fermented and distilled liquors. States and municipalities also collected vast sums, the amount for the State of New York being about $20,000,000 a year. Now, these figures indicated a drink bill for the country of several billion dollars a year paid by consumers. Under prohibition this vast amount will not be paid, and the inquiry is what will people do with the money. Will it go into savings banks, thrift funds, and the like, or will a large portion of it be diverted toward the purchase of articles of utility and adornment heretofore impossible? Manifestly, if only one of the several billions of dollars hitherto expended for drink should be diverted to buying goods, trade will be very much stimulated. This, it has been often asserted, has proved to be the case in States or cities where prohibition has gone into effect. Tradesmen in such places speak enthusiastically of the result. Will it be the same when prohibition is tried on a nation-wide scale? There is also another angle which appeals to producers. This is that the absence of drink tends to more production and less idleness on the part of workers. And these should be potent in reducing the high cost of living. It will not take long to discover whether the virtues of prohibition are all those which its advocates insisted upon.

Reclaiming of Waste.

While the war was on, economies of divers kinds were inculcated as a matter of patriotic duty and the response in certain directions was immediate and quite general. Utilizing food to its utmost and so keeping down the contents of the garbage can to the smallest dimensions was one of the forms in which thrift was manifested. Another was greater care in the use of clothing so as to make it last longer than it used to. These are economies which are being fairly well kept up by many though not by all at the present time because of the urge of high prices. But there were other directions in which thrift was shown, among them being the collection and sale of waste of one kind or another which it had been customary to destroy. Paper and rags, tinfoil and other metals and miscellaneous odds and ends, were carefully collected, usually for the benefit of the Red Cross or other charities, and were utilized in manufactures. In many instances the quantities were comparatively small, but the sum total for the country as a whole was very large and represented a big value in dollars and cents. Latterly, the enthusiasm for this saving and collection of waste seems to have waned. And yet, of itself, it might be a big factor in aiding the prosperity of the country. In various parts of Europe, Germany especially, the collection and utilization of waste is a habit and it helps solve the problem of cheaper manufactures. And every country which does not look after its waste products is apt to be at a serious disadvantage in a competition with other countries which do.

Changing Trade of Japan.

Japan is a country whose foreign trade figures before the war were an enigma to some of the amateur political economists. Its imports each year showed an excess over its exports and, measured by the footrule of the "balance of trade" theorists, it ought long ago to have gone to the demnition bowwows of bankruptcy. But it simply went on prospering despite its foreign trade handicap. As soon, however, as the great war got under way, the Japanese trade balance shifted to the other side of the ledger. Exports increased much faster than the imports and soon showed a great excess over them. This continued while the war lasted and resulted in Japan's accumulating quite a gold reserve. Since hostilities ceased, the pendulum has again swung back to its former position. The latest figures available for that country's foreign trade are for the first half of the current calendar year. In that period the total foreign trade was more than $50,000,000 above that of the similar period the year before. But the imports showed an increase of more than $100,000,000, while the exports showed a loss of about $35,000,000. The details are rather interesting. Thus, there was an increase of about $50,000,000 in imports of each of the two groups "food, drink, and tobacco" and "raw materials," and of about $23,000,000 in manufactured articles, and a drop of about $20,000,000 in manufactures for further use in manufacturing. In the exports there was a drop of about $20,000,000 in foods, teas, &c.; one of $7,000,000 in raw materials, and one of $4,000,000 in manufactures for further use in manufacturing. Exports of manufactured articles remained almost stationary.

Making Trade Figures Available.

Statistics of foreign trade have a little added significance just now and promise to command more attention in the immediate future. This is because of the realignments of national boundaries and the founding of new industries in various countries, no less than the establishment of new trade routes. The lack of uniformity in the classifications of imports and exports in use by different nations has been in the past a very serious drawback to intelligent comparison and study of the figures. This was recognized nearly a score of years ago when the International Customs Conference, at a meeting in Paris, recommended that the various countries unite on a common statistical classification of the most important articles to serve as a basis for international statistics. Later on, a tentative classification was made up and referred to the various Governments for further consideration. In 1913 a schedule of 186 classifications was adopted. The principal European countries and thirteen American ones ratified this and agreed to furnish reports in accordance therewith to an international bureau to be located at Brussels. The United States and six other American countries, which were then not represented, have since expressed approval of the plan and agreed to furnish the annual reports. Though the war interfered with the establishment of the bureau, the project has not been allowed to drop. It is proposed, among other things, to secure uniformity in values by expressing them in denominations of "Pan Americanos," equalling one-fifth of a dollar. The operation of the plan will be great aid toward making trade figures available for legislators as well as students.

As to Cotton and Cotton Goods.

There seemed to be no lack of reasons advanced during the past week to warrant advances in cotton quotations, Prime among them was the rediscovery of the fact that the Germans had been buying some cotton in order to get their mills at work, at least partially. Another argument in favor of higher prices was the general belief that the new Government estimate would show a poorer condition of the crop than the one of last month. But the real strength of the market lay in the fact that the demand for spot cotton in the South was large. The shorts were caught in their contracts to deliver high-grade cotton to domestic and foreign spinners and had to bid up prices to get themselves out of a hole. The great demand is for good grades, the supply of which from the present crop is said to be comparatively small. There is a belief that the lower grades, of which there is a large quantity, will soon be in better demand because they will have to be utilized in default of something better. Staple cotton of from 1⅛ to 1⅜ inches, good middling, has sold as high as 75 cents a pound. Conditions in the goods' market perplex even the most knowing. Mills appear to be running all right, but not much goods are offered for immediate delivery, while fabrics in comparatively large volume are disposed of for delivery up to the beginning of next Summer at record prices. Finished fabrics have advanced in price to keep pace with goods in the gray, and colored ones are partaking in both the increased demand and the higher prices. Added price strength in yarns is stiffening the market for knit goods, which have been selling for delivery in the first quarter of the new year, and have led to advances in price for hosiery.

Situation in Wool and Woolens.

In the absence of any transactions of size, the wool situation remains rather quiescent. The auction of privately owned wools at Philadelphia on Thursday was no more of a success than the one which preceded it. Out of 2,671,000 pounds offered only 303,500 pounds were sold, the remainder being withdrawn for lack of bids or because the prices offered were too low to be considered. It may be that the imminence of the auction of Government-owned wools, scheduled to begin a week from tomorrow, had something to do with the result. The effort by domestic wool growers to check imports of wool has been countered by the National Association of Wool Manufacturers. The growers had a bill introduced in Congress to put an embargo on wool imports and also to reduce the duty on woolen goods by 25 per cent. The movement was one to hold a club over the heads of the wool manufacturers. It fails to work just now because the latter know that no such bill can become a law so long as the present administration remains in power. No material change has occurred in the goods' market, where high prices are still maintained and where supplies are being doled out in accordance with the plan determined on. In dress goods for Spring there continues an apparent scarcity of wanted fabrics. This is strikingly shown from day to day in the "Buyers' Wants" columns of THE TIMES. But the number and quantity of the offerings appearing in the adjoining columns seem to indicate that goods may be had—at a price.

DEPARTMENT STORE FOR OLD CLOTHES

With the universal search going on for ways of reducing the cost of living, the appearance of the first second-hand department store has been very well timed. The store, at present, is not a pretentious one, but the first announcements of its existence to the general public has brought such a response that the owner is already negotiating for additional space. He has had seventeen years to his credit as a second-hand dealer, so he can scarcely be put down as a haphazard trader or speculator.

An interview with the pioneer in the second-hand department store field disclosed some of the interesting facts connected with the operations of second-hand dealers and at the same time explained why the new store has been able to start off with such a good nucleus of trade.

"We will sell practically everything that the ordinary store handles," said he. "This will include men's clothing, women's apparel of all kinds, shoes, furniture, furs, diamonds, and many other articles. The store will operate just as any other retail house. We will buy second-hand goods, mark a fixed profit and price on them, and offer them to our customers. There will be none of the caustic prices which the public has always associated with the second-hand dealer. My present customers are fully aware of the fact that a price with me means that price, and no amount of bargaining can bring it down one penny. We pursue the same policy in our buying, and often we have left people who wished us to name a higher price for what they had to sell, only to have them call us later and accept our offer. These people, of course, believed that by holding out for a better price they could get it, because this was the method of other dealers.

"Our sources of supply are large enough, I believe, to take care of any future increase in our sales. About 60 per cent. of those who practice selling their clothing and other articles to us are the uptown Broadway people, who are usually very fashionably dressed. They require frequent changes, as the styles become slightly modified, and as a result, have lots of slightly worn clothes they can sell us. The remainder comes from the first-class shops which find an outlet through us for their shopworn samples. We have also men able to do quite a business with manufacturers who sell us their samples.

"The savings we can offer the public can be appreciated when I explain that even some garments that have never been worn but have hung in a shop window, can sometimes be purchased from the most prominent Fifth Avenue dressmakers for as low as $8 a piece. Such garments would ordinarily sell for many times that amount, but that does not mean we get more than our usual profits. We might sell the $8 garments for $11 or even less.

"The buying for the store is done by three of my employes. Sometimes, when it is necessary to visit a lady of very high social position, my wife will call. Her visit is made under circumstances that do not offer the least bit of criticism. Her card does not give the slightest hint of her business, and the transaction is held behind closed doors. Some of the leading society women of the city adopt this means of getting rid of their surplus gowns, frocks, and dresses, which for one reason or another they do not wish to pass along to friends. Often the check we give in payment comes back to us indorsed by the Red Cross, which shows the money has been donated to that worthy charity.

"The appeal of the store is directed at three classes, one the woman who has been rich and and is therefore accustomed to buying the best clothes; secondly, the woman of average means who knows that to buy the best is cheaper in the long run, and then theatrical people who depend so much on appearance to win them recognition in their profession. I have found in a number of instances that where we get one member of a family we soon have the rest as customers.

"As far as the style of the goods we sell is concerned, I think that we will be able to keep just as up to date as the average store. The reason for this is that a large amount of our stock is obtained from either very high-class houses or from very fashionable women. These two are the very sources of style, and are generally months, perhaps a season, ahead of the usual run of fashions, with the result that we get the designs that are just becoming popular.

"Besides our policy of fixed prices," concluded the speaker, "we take the best care in cleaning and fumigating clothing that has been worn, so that our customers may be assured that there is no danger to their health in buying the second-hand goods we offer."

DEALINGS IN GRAY GOODS.

Fairly Active Trading Yesterday at the New High Levels.

A fairly active business was done in the local market for gray goods yesterday, in spite of the short business day. Nineteen cents was paid for 38½-inch 64-60s for December-March delivery, while for shipment through this month and next buyers took additional lots of 39-inch 80 squares at 20 cents and 68-72s at 23 cents. Also for this delivery, and for January and February as well, sales of 38½-inch 60-48s were made at 16¼ cents.

Sales of sheetings were not as active as they might have been, but for delivery during the next three months business was done on 5-yard goods at 16½c and on 5.50s at 15 cents. Large sales of sateens and the other clothing styles were reported at top prices for deliveries ranging up to June 1 on some contracts. Fine yarn goods did not develop much of interest during the day, but buyers are expected to take a "fresh hold" on them tomorrow.

RAW SILK MARKETS.

A Continuance of Activity Is Reported from All of Them.

Prices of raw silk at Yokohama have rebounded to such an extent that the drop recorded at the beginning of the week—when Sinshiu No. 1 touched 2,600 yen per picul—was practically all made up and the grade in question was held at 2,600 yen. At the end of the week there was a large demand for silks in the Japanese market, and sales on Oct. 30 alone amounted to 2,800 bales. The visible stock at Yokohama is now reduced to between 10,000 and 11,000 bales, according to cables received by A. P. Villa & Brothers, Inc., of this city.

The Canton market continues active and reelers have again raised their limits. It is estimated that of a total crop for this year of 50,000 bales, 40,000 bales have already been contracted for. This leaves only 10,000 bales to be sold during the rest of the season, which runs up to the end of April. This quantity, with the present demand, will soon be covered by orders. At Shanghai things are moderately active, but as reelers have sold away ahead they are taking advantage of the situation and are raising prices.

The Italian market is still active and there is a steady rise in prices at Milan. Stocks are about exhausted there, and soon there will be nothing left but small isolated lots. In the local market the demand is broadening out again, and manufacturers are buying now for January-March delivery, evidently convinced that there will be no drop of moment in raw silk prices. Business continues good with the manufacturers and there is very little stock of made-up silks on hand.

Ready for Lyons Fair.

The fifth Spring fair will be held at Lyons, France, March 1 to 15, 1920, and the administration has announced its readiness to receive applications. A catalogue giving the names and addresses of exhibitors will be issued a month prior to the opening, so that buyers may be acquainted beforehand with the articles to be shown.

The bulletin also describes a new rainbow effect, ... which it says: "A new arrangement ... of the rainbow colors was seen the other ... day. —YOUR "GOOD WILL"

Build and maintain "good will" with both your Debtors and Creditors and at the same time make more money for yourself.

"Good will" may not be a tangible asset to a manufacturer or wholesaler, but he is not likely to make much money without it.

Satisfied customers constitute the biggest element of your "good will"—they are your best sales..men—and draw no commissions or salary.

If you could sell your merchandise for cash, it would give you a great deal more cash-working capital and enable you to do a much larger volume of business, and thus make more selling profits. You could buy closer for cash, or anticipate your bills—thus improving your credit standing and "good will" with your Creditors.

You can sell us your customers' active accounts for probably less than the discount you offer them for cash and reach practically the same results as if they paid cash—and yet accommodate them with credit. You get your cash immediately, and yet maintain your "good will," as you collect the accounts as usual without notice of the transfer to your customers.

Write for our brief rate folder "Bigger Business Builders" or for our representative to call and explain, without obligating you.

APPEALS FOR AID TO LOUVAIN FUND

TELLS OF LIBRARY'S NEEDS

Rector Declares Lack of Reference Books Paralyzes Work of the University.

Two Princes of the Catholic Church last night joined in a message to the American people, urging support for the nation-wide movement to raise $500,000 with which to build and equip a new library at the University of Louvain to replace the historic structure destroyed by the Germans.

From Baltimore came an appeal from Cardinal Gibbons urging the nation to see to it that the project was successful. From Montreal Cardinal Mercier repeated his heartfelt gratitude to America for its efforts in Belgian restoration, and declaring no greater need existed in Belgium than that which called for the erection of a library. Unless Louvain's library were speedily restored, Cardinal Mercier's message said, the work of the university could not go on effectively, and the intellectual regeneration of Belgium as well as the continent would be seriously retarded.

Coincidental with the issuance of the messages from Cardinal Gibbons and from Cardinal Mercier, there went forth from the Executive Committee of the National Committee of the United States for the Restoration of the University of Louvain, a strongly worded appeal for subscriptions to the Louvain Library Fund. This appeal, sent out in the name of Nicholas Murray Butler, Chairman of the Executive Committee, and his colleagues on this committee, consisting of Thomas W. Lamont, E. H. Outerbridge, Alexander J. Hemphill and Herbert Putnam, Librarian of Congress, stated that the need for the library at Louvain was acute, and that immediate restoration was a duty which this country could not well ignore.

Large Amount Needed.

Mr. Butler's statement, which was shared in by William H. Taft, Charles J. Bonaparte, and bankers in leading cities, asserted that a large amount was needed to complete the fund, and that it was the earnest desire of the sponsors of the movement to raise the $500,000 before Cardinal Mercier sailed for home.

Subscriptions, it was said, might be forwarded to J. P. Morgan & Co. or to Mr. Butler of Columbia. Other bankers who have volunteered to act as depositories are: William H. Crocker, President Crocker National Bank, San Francisco, Cal.; George H. Prince, President Merchants' National Bank, St. Paul, Minn.; George M. Reynolds, President Continental and Commercial National Bank, Chicago, Ill.; William H. Lee, President Merchants' Laclede National Bank, St. Louis, Mo.; J. A. Graves, President Merchants and Farmers' National Bank, Los Angeles, Cal.; Clifford B. Wright, President Union Savings Bank and Trust Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, and Alfred L. Aiken, President National Shawmut Bank, Boston, Mass.

Cardinal Gibbons in a message said:

"The history of the Library of Louvain speaks for itself to all the centres of education in the world. Men of learning everywhere were shocked to hear the news of its destruction. Their sympathies went out generously to the Faculty of Louvain. We hope that this sympathy will be transformed into an earnest and continued co-operation to restore in so far as we can this invaluable fount of learning."

Taft Voices Sympathy.

From New Haven ex-President Taft sent a message expressing his hearty sympathy for the movement and dwelling upon the necessity of rebuilding Louvain's library at once.

From Baltimore Mr. Bonaparte, who was a member of the Cabinet of President Roosevelt, sent a message expressing similar views.

The Executive Committee last night also made public a statement from the Faculty of the University of Louvain, signed by Mgr. Ladouze, rector of Louvain, which described the pressing need of a library. The message from the Belgian scholar said that the scientific activities which heretofore gave to the university life of Louvain a very special character had been paralyzed. The message continued: "Before the war Louvain directed more than thirty periodicals, of which only a small number survive, the others having disappeared through lack of documentation of reference works.

"For the same reason the work of the study circles and, the reduction of those for special doctorates such as theology, political and social science, history, philology, medicine, biology, chemistry, physics, botany, geology, &c., have been seriously hampered.

"These original studies which heretofore gave to the university a pre-eminent place in the intellectual world and created among the students an elite of pioneer workers in the fields of science, cannot be undertaken again successfully until the reconstruction of the library.

"The committee in the United States has sent a large number of reference books which partially fill the above-mentioned shortcomings. The reconstruction of the building for which the American committee has just appealed to the public, will make it possible for the university to use to better advantage the publications received from abroad, to once more obtain before long the rank which Louvain had acquired among the first scientific institutions of the world."

Belgians Flock to Louvain.

Reports reaching America emphasize the intellectual awakening of Continental Europe. Young Belgians, it was said, were eager for university training, and were flocking to Louvain in large numbers. The Executive Committee cited this condition as evidence of the duty resting upon the American people to aid in promoting the educational uplifting of Belgium.

The committee, through Mr. Butler, expressed the hope that the coming week would witness a flow of subscriptions to complete the $500,000 fund.

Another European institution which is feeling the stimulus of the post-war period is the University of Strasbourg. A message from the Rector of Strasbourg to President Butler invites the Faculties of Columbia University to be represented on Nov. 21, 22, and 23, when the reopening of the University of Strasbourg in Alsace will be celebrated.

Responding to the invitation President Butler said:

"We recall that the fine traditions of this university reach back into the eighteenth century, and that works of scholarship and high patriotism have gone forth to the world in its name. The unhappy interruption in the life of this university from 1870 to 1919 will be remembered in years to come only as one more evidence of the unconquerable power of the French spirit and the inability of any force, however brutal or however cruel, to suppress or to destroy it, the spirit of France and of French Strasbourg, and from Columbia University I send heartiest congratulations and warmest greetings, as well as every wish for long years of prosperity and service to scholarship and to science."

GOOD-BYE TO MIDDAY "CAN."

Workmen Rush the Milk Bottle in Place of It.

Persons on Amsterdam, in the neighborhood of 151st Street, witnessed a strange sight yesterday. A large gang of workmen is making repairs to the street on the avenue. When the 12 o'clock whistle blew the men laid aside their tools and prepared for the midday meal. Six of them picked up baskets, entering nearby dairy and grocery stores. When they returned their baskets were well stocked with quart bottles of milk. This milk they distributed among their companions, a bottle between two men. There was a noisy clatter of dinner pails along the curb as they sat down to eat. Between mouthfuls of food they took generous and thirsty draughts of milk. One workman, it was observed, had a large dill pickle, but he seemed to relish the milk nevertheless as much as his companion.

"These men," the foreman said, "have been drinking milk instead of the familiar beer with their lunch for several weeks. The workman, after toiling with pick or shovel, likes something cold to tickle his palate, and they have found that milk is a pretty good substitute for beer. I am not prepared to say that they prefer it to beer, yet many prefer it, they tell me, to 2.75 or near beer.

"Others, of course, would much prefer the old style beer if they could have it. They have found, however, that milk is a pretty good substitute, and would like it better if it were cheaper. These men are by no means the only workmen who have acquired a taste for milk. Workmen in different trades and parts of the city have acquired the milk habit and like it. If gmilk lacks the kick of beer it is at least stimulating."

WORKERS TO RUN FACTORY.

An interesting experiment in factory management with the participation of the workers in Italy is reported by H. C. MacLean, Trade Commissioner at Rome, to the Department of Commerce.

Upon the recommendation of Under Secretary of State Conti, the Interministerial Committee for the Transformation of War Industries has decided to turn over a plant at Castenaso, in Bologna Province, to a group of manufacturers that a trial may be made of its operation with the participation of the workers. The plant during the war employed 2,000 workmen.

The workers will have their own representatives on a Board of Directors and a share in the profits and the privilege of purchasing the plant within a specified period.

Figures furnished by Alfred P. Dennis, commercial attaché of the American Embassy in Rome, show that there has been an increase during the war of from 135 to 270 per cent. in the pay of ordinary laborers. Following are some of the advances in terms of United States currency:

Class of Labor.	Hourly Pay Av. Yr. 1914.	Hourly Pay June, 1919.	PC. of Inc.
Pick and shovel	6.56	24.32	270
Common labor	4.25	14.47	241
Bricklayers	9.26	30.88	233
Painters	9.26	28.95	212
Turners	5.98	14.28	139
Pressmen	7.33	18.33	165
Pressmen	7.88	18.88	150
Stokers	6.56	15.44	135
Joiners	10.62	27.02	154

Increases in other lines of labor include: Painters and whitewashers, 74 to 217 per cent.; highway labor, 132 to 209 per cent.; goldsmiths, 7 to 15 per cent.; purse and portfolio makers, 97 to 133 per cent.; boot and shoe labor, 25 to 187 per cent.; net weavers, 10 to 100 per cent.; lace makers, 33 to 175 per cent., and millers, 18 to 40 per cent.

Farm labor received before the war an average of $57.90, with perquisites in the way of subsistence. The average now is $123.52, with the same perquisites and an eight-hour day. This represents a reduction of two hours a day in labor and an increase of 113 per cent. in wages.

Surrogate Fowler's Endorsement of Senator Foley

Hon. Robert Ludlow Fowler, the retiring Surrogate who has had a brilliant record in that office, has written the following letter to James A. Foley, the Democratic candidate for that office. The letter is given out by John Godfrey Saxe, Chairman of the Non-partisan Lawyers Committee supporting Senator Foley:

CHAMBERS OF THE SURROGATES
COURT, HALL OF RECORDS,
NEW YORK.
ROBERT LUDLOW FOWLER,
SURROGATE.
October 31, 1919.

My Dear Sir:

Permit me to offer you my congratulations on your nomination for the office of Surrogate in the County of New York. It is a responsible and dignified office, chiefly because of two circumstances: That a large portion of the wealth of America is concentrated in the City of New York, and that the judicial powers committed to the Surrogate of this county over estates have become more far-reaching and important than is elsewhere customary. It is needless to say that such an office may be well administered or abused. The administration may be either elevated or commonplace; it cannot be both.

I am fully persuaded, both from the general approval of your long public and professional life and my own acquaintance with you, that, if elected, you, with your wider experience, will administer your office and the powers indicated well, and only in the best interest of the community. This is my confident hope and expectation. For that reason I venture to offer you my congratulations.

I beg to remain, my dear Sir,

Yours respectfully,

ROBERT LUDLOW FOWLER.

To Hon. James A. Foley.

LOVELY LINENS

To Grace Your Home

TABLE LINENS DECORATIVE LINENS BED LINENS

An Offering As Rare in Quality as in Value

LINENS, especially of the fine qualities contained in this offering, are rapidly assuming a value which may well result in removing them from the sphere of daily use and in placing them in museums and private collections, along with other art treasures. For, whether they receive the ornamental handiwork in Belgium, France, Ireland, or the Islands, 85 per cent. of the flax is raised in Russia, and the abortive chaos reigning there gives no sign of abating.

BLOOMINGDALES is fortunate in having on hand unusual stocks of the quality linens for which we have long been famous. In keeping with our policy, these linens have been punctiliously marked in accordance with the prices we paid for them, and not in proportion to their increased value because of todays advanced market. This despite the fact that we are daily paying more for replacement stocks than our own retail asking-price for similar, if not better linens.

Secure for yourself and your children some of these choice linens from this rapidly passing opportunity.

WITH HOW LITTLE WISDOM.

"Behold, my son, with how little wisdom the world is governed," wrote OXENSTERN some three hundred years ago. How far have the world's Governments advanced in the paths of wisdom in the intervening centuries?

In the annual Treasury report transmitted to the Speaker of the House of Representatives on Dec. 2, 1918, Secretary MCADOO estimated the Federal expenditures for war purposes, War and Navy Departments combined, in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, at $4,082,152,834. Deducting $23,000,000 for rivers and harbors, there still remains more than $4,000,000,000 of estimated war expenditure, or more than one-half the entire estimated costs of the Government for the year. A very great part of this estimated total is for fortifications, naval construction, and support of the army—that is, the money is to be spent in preparation for wars to come.

The covenant of the League of Nations, in Article VIII., contains these provisions:

> The members of the League recognize that the maintenance of peace requires a reduction of national armaments to the lowest point consistent with national safety and the enforcement by common action of international obligations.
> The Council, taking account of the geographical situation and the circumstances of each State, shall formulate plans for such reduction for the consideration and action of the several Governments.
> Such plans shall be subject to reconsideration and revision at least every ten years.
> After these plans shall have been adopted by the several Governments, the limits of armaments therein fixed shall not be exceeded without the concurrence of the Council.

The remedy within our reach, ready to our hand, we let the old and dreadful malady gnaw at our vitals and sap the nation's strength. And Senators of the United States would shatter the cup that holds the cure.

Secretary MCADOO's estimate is somewhat reduced by current budget makers. But even Representative SLEMP, who figures out a surplus of $185,000,000 on July 1 next instead of the $1,250,000,000 deficit estimated by the Secretary of the Treasury, puts the total army and navy expenditure for the year at $2,901,703,292. The taxpayers must hand over to the Government $3,000,000,000 to perpetuate the disease from which the covenant would set us free. Quantula sapientia mundus regitur.

BLASCO IBANEZ.

The distinguished man of letters who arrived last week on his first visit to a nation where he is at this moment probably the best-selling author—an eminence attained by foreigners very rarely in recent years—is likely to find friends and admirers wherever he goes. A popularity first won by a novel which proved to be the most fiery literary interpretation of the war has been heightened by the publication of most of the other works of BLASCO IBANEZ, and while the works translated do not as yet include some of those which are esteemed his best, the story of his fame as an author has been read by all. Moreover, he has given a notable example of the combination of art and politics which is more frequently and successfully attempted in the Latin countries than among us.

But there is one group of Americans which as yet has offered no greetings to Señor BLASCO IBANEZ, which has apparently displayed no enthusiasm for him; and this is the very faction which might have been expected to welcome him with the highest enthusiasm—our revolutionaries, parlor and otherwise. Our Spanish visitor has written much and brilliantly in the cause of the social revolution; he has gone to jail for it; among revolutionaries the world over one would expect to see him honored. But he has committed two crimes unpardonable to our American rebels—he was not pro-German, and he seems to regard the social revolution as a means to be employed when necessary rather than as an end always and everywhere desirable for itself alone. In his first interview given here he said that the United States had a capable and progressive Government which cures its own defects. To our starry-eyed young upheavalites this is heresy, which no honorable scars in battles for liberty can expiate.

But our revolutionists, though very loud, are neither very numerous nor very powerful. To the rest of us BLASCO IBANEZ will be an honored guest. He expects to find here material for novels, but prudently disclaims any intention of depicting American characters; the American scene, however, he may be expected to portray with the brilliancy that has marked his pictures of Spanish life, and with an insight into some of its phenomena that the habituated resident may be unable to attain. Those who, in reading "Blood and Sand," have perhaps sighed to think that a matchless sporting reporter was spoiled even to make an excellent novelist, cannot help wishing that he could stay with us long enough to write a novel about our own national game. Baseball has inspired our own writers only to comedy, varying from medium to low. That is not unnatural, for baseball has not the picturesque and tragic elements of the bullfight; but the suspicion persists that there is more in it than our sporting writers who turn out magazine fiction have discovered.

LABOR'S RIGHTS.

The Federation of Labor and the Railway Brotherhoods unite in a call for a conference to consider the "foundations of the structure" of the labor movement in this country. Its "fundamental principles" are threatened, and there is a necessity for a program which will protect the "citizen rights of wage earners." The signers of the call hope that the farmers will join them in deciding what "wage earners will accept in performing their duty as citizens, and at the same time maintaining the right of free men in order to conserve human interest and welfare." The idea that there is some distinction between the citizen rights of wage earners and others is not so novel as might be wished, and there is cause for regret also in the familiar omission of any mention of the citizen duties of wage earners and everybody else. Citizens generally "accept" the law from the courts and Judges, but unionists choose which laws they will obey and which they will defy. The law which causes the conference as yet is merely a proposal that labor connected with the railways shall receive specific privileges in conditions of employment in consideration of something like an enlistment which shall prevent striking without punishment for violation of contract.

The superiority of the right to strike over the duty to observe contracts has been asserted so often in connection with recent strikes, that the present time is not favorable to prepossess the public in favor of a formal movement to commit labor to something like rebellion in support of the principle that nothing can be enacted which shall in any way limit labor's right to strike at any time for any cause. If that seems too bad a thing to say of such formerly conservative organizations as the Federation and the Brotherhoods, they have only themselves to blame for it. Mr. PLUMB promised the country an industrial revolution if the plan were enacted. Mr. GOMPERS repeatedly within a month has declared that wage earners would not even accept compulsory arbitration, and would not obey anti-strike laws even if declared constitutional by the Supreme Court. STONE and SHEA of the Brotherhoods are on record to like effect. The country has no excuse for being taken by surprise by labor's idea of collective bargaining in practice, so different from its theory.

Labor, says Mr. GOMPERS, is men and women, and capital is cattle, machinery, wool—commodities, in short. The soul of mankind goes out to men and women and children rather than to capital, and the same laws are not applicable to the regulation of them. "If the old concept of labor and capital still prevailed in this year of strife, you would find children in the textile mills of America working twelve, fourteen, and sixteen hours a day." But the argument is weakened by a supposition contrary to the fact, and the same holds true of other relations of labor to the law. There is not the same reason for relaxing the law against strikers that there was when it was held to be a conspiracy to seek to improve conditions of labor by reasonable combinations of wage earners for that purpose. The proposed law which labor gives notice will not be accepted is not designed to oppress labor, but to protect the general welfare against inhumane methods practiced by labor rather than against it. That is a general statement, of permanent application, but is especially true of the injunction issued against the coal strike. That was granted to prevent conspiracies to "restrict or destroy the supply of food or fuel." But the Federation opposes even this, on the same day that the House unanimously approves the Senate's declaration in support of the Administration's procedure. The Federation has need to watch its step when it breaks with its well wishers on such a point as this, and even challenges the regulation of strikes in peace. Collective bargaining will survive even such maltreatment, but the Federation may not if it neglects eligible opportunities to choose whether it will consort with radicals or conservatives.

That labor is suffering from a bad conscience appears from its dissatisfaction with the law which was passed to in order to exempt labor from the anti-trust law. If the exemption was good there was no need of forbidding prosecutions, but year after year labor has caused Congress to degrade itself by forbidding funds for the prosecution of lawbreakers to be used against unlawful acts done by special classes. At the same convention which ordered the coal strike there was presented to the United Mine Workers a report rejecting the doctrine that unions and their officers can be held responsible for violence against the operators and workers of non-union mines. Thus the citizen's right to work is brought into conflict with the citizen's right to strike, and there is a conflict of humanities which perplexes others less than those who wish to be free of the law and to be as inhumane as they wish while pleading for humanity. It is to be remarked that damages have been awarded, although the union was not incorporated, and it is further to be remarked that in the Danbury hatters' case the homes of individual unionists were sold to satisfy damages for wrongful acts. These cases are of a sort to suggest to unionists that they would be prudent to limit the liability of the unions and their members, since, so long as they are voluntary associations, they are more vulnerable under the law than corporations. In any case it is not premature to set a backfire against proposals to make strikers and strikes impregnable to legal process designed to protect the interests of nonunionists rather than to persecute unionists.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

In the November number of the Scientific Monthly Professor GEORGE T. PATRICK of the State University of Iowa has a study of the "psychology of daylight saving." The extreme conservatism of the American people had something to do with the failure of daylight saving as a statutory benefit, he thinks. They cannot be induced to replace their cumbersome system of weights and measures with the simple and convenient metric system. Many people could not reconcile themselves to standard time when Congress adopted it. And so it was not surprising that putting the clock forward was not popular everywhere, being regarded as an interference with a routine of life that was well enough before. In settled communities there were doubtless Americans who agreed with the English dissenter that daylight saving would be a "leap in the dark," a specimen of unconscious humor. Pursuing his psychological inquiry, Professor PATRICK says that "with the invention of artificial light, and especially since the invention of the electric light, there has come about a displacement between the daylight day and the human day, so that now we rise two or three, or even four or five, hours after daylight and remain up two, three, or even five or six, hours after dark, using artificial light." He elaborates:

> Every year it seems to be a little harder to go to bed or to get up at the old accustomed time. Automobiles, unlike the horse, travel as well at night as by day and keep increasingly late hours. College and high school students study later at night or engage in social activities. To go to bed early is not just the thing. It is a little out of date. To meet the requirements of our complicated modern life, more and more industries continue through the night; for instance, railroad and steamship lines, hotels, police service, news collecting, and newspaper printing.

To some people this reasoning may not be plausible as it bears upon the operation of daylight saving, but it should be remembered that the clock was put forward in the Spring and set back late in the Autumn. Professor PATRICK himself thinks that the period of daylight saving was extended over too long a time. His psychology argument loses force when applied to July and August, in which months very hot weather often occurs, banishing artificial light, except when it must be used. At the extremes of the daylight saving plan, say in April and October, many people who are not bucolic prefer the old time. Night life is perhaps not so popular as Professor PATRICK assumes. When he says that "to live by night and sleep by day is a sign of class distinction," and that "to go to bed early is not just the thing from the social point of view," he wanders into a psychological maze. Social practice or distinction had very little to do with opposition to daylight saving in America.

But Professor PATRICK is a good friend of the experiment and deplores the passing of it, which he believes will be temporary. It represents, he says, "just what the present age stands for, health, economy, conservation, and common sense." He is of the opinion that the farmers and the milkmen made no good case against daylight saving, and that they could have adjusted themselves to it with comparatively little inconvenience. He observes that "the need of synchronizing farm and city hours of labor during three or four months of the year is not so great as to ask a whole nation during the whole Summer to begin its day's work an hour later in the morning and live by artificial light an hour later at night." It may be predicted that daylight saving, reintroduced in many localities for the public health and pleasure, and for greater efficiency in industry, will in the end be accepted by the whole nation. In this matter the people will not submit to an organized minority.

THE FIRST FOLIO.

It is only by an unwarrantable stretching of the term that the volume of plays by SHAKESPEARE for which Mr. H. C. FOLGER, JR., paid the record price of $100,000 can be called "a First Folio"—or, indeed, a folio of any kind. The volume is not of the folio but of the quarto size—the printer's sheets being folded not once but twice, so that the leaves are only half as large. And whereas the folios of SHAKESPEARE contain thirty-six plays, or all but one of the plays in which his hand appears even as an adapter, (the thirty-seventh, "Pericles," being added in the Third Folio,) the present volume contains only nine plays. It can scarcely even be called a copy of "the first collected edition of SHAKESPEARE'S works"; for, in addition to containing only a fourth of the plays, each one of them has a separate title page and date as if printed to be published by itself—as, indeed, it oftenest was. It is true, however, that in the present volume the nine plays appear to have been bound together at the time they were printed; and it has been very plausibly suggested that the volume was intended as the first of a complete collection. From the point of view of Shakespearean scholarship it adds little or nothing, the text having been mainly pirated from previous quartos. Its value consists chiefly in the fact that it is the only one of its kind extant, and presumably of historic value as indicating a step in the process by which the famous First Folio came to be published.

The date assigned to the volume is 1619, though five of the plays have earlier dates, supposedly false, on their title pages. At that time only one Elizabethan dramatist had published a collected edition of his plays. "The Works of BENIAMIN JONSON," published in 1616, the year of SHAKESPEARE'S death, was a folio containing nine of his plays already published separately in quarto. It was the first time that plays had been called "workes" or put forth so portentously, and Rare BEN was subjected to diverse gibes at his ponderosity—which must have made him considerably rarer. The title of Mr. FOLGER'S volume has not been divulged; it would be interesting to know it. When the First Folio was published, in 1623, the title page read: "Mr. WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE'S Comedies, Histories, & Tragedies." The third collective edition of Elizabethan-Jacobean plays was the "Comedies and Tragedies" of BEAUMONT and FLETCHER, published in 1647. As long as BEN JONSON lived, and for many years thereafter, he remained alone with his "Workes."

The First Folio of SHAKESPEARE is undoubtedly a most interesting and most precious literary monument. It contains no less than twenty plays of which we have no earlier text and which, except for the pious enterprise of SHAKESPEARE'S old comrades of the Globe who published it, might have been forever lost—among them "The Tempest," "As You Like It," "Twelfth Night," "The Winter's Tale," "Julius Caesar," "Macbeth," and "Coriolanus." Ragged as the text is and abounding in typographical errors, it stands today as incomparably the best. A multitude of editors have made only a few emendations of note and have added each a crop of his own guesses, often wildly prepostercus. One and all have interpolated stage directions, often false, and scenic localities, conceived with reference to the modern pictorial stage, which belie SHAKESPEARE'S own visual image of the performance and which, when followed by a producing manager, stultify his dramaturgy. The vast library of Alexandria may or may not have been superfluous in a world that possessed the Koran; but SHAKESPEARE the dramatist will be dead to the theatre until actors and managers discard all later editions and produce from the point of view of the Folio and of the stage for which the plays were written.

One copy of the First Folio now in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, is of peculiar and transcendent value. It contains the most authentic portrait of SHAKESPEARE extant. This affords conclusive evidence, furthermore, that the painted likeness which Stratford-on-Avon still exploits as a genuine life portrait is not genuine, whereas another and far more beautiful portrait, which for reasons of its own Stratford-on-Avon hides under a bushel, is in all probability genuine, and painted from the life. The main facts of the case are simple, though the details are multifarious. In this single copy of the Folio the portrait of SHAKESPEARE (which was engraved by MARTIN DROESHOUT and is printed on the title page) appears in its earliest and most perfect state. Later, as it wore flat on the press, it was cross-hatched and crosslotted by another and bungling hand. In its earliest state the lighting and modeling of the face are far more delicate, especially about the lips and beneath the eyes—points of prime importance in conveying character and expression. In the later states, as a result of repeated touching up, mouth and eyes have a wooden expression, the mustache is crudely enlarged and spread upon the cheeks, and the hair is made to look like a wig. Now, in all these particulars the Ely Palace portrait closely resembles the original state of the engraving and is, moreover, vastly more lifelike and expressive of poetic character. The so-called "Droeshout Original" repeats all the faults of the latest and most corrupt state of the engraving and is thus clearly a copy from it. Yet Stratford still exploits it as genuine, and Sir SIDNEY LEE, though he records the facts here stated, uses this picture as frontispiece to the latest edition of his "Life." A second copy of the original state of the engraving was cut out of the Folio by HALLIWELL-PHILLIPS and is now in the possession of Mr. FOLGER.

The highest price yet paid for the First Folio at public auction was £3,600, or only about $18,000, which was paid for the copy now at Harvard. Unless Mr. FOLGER'S collection of quartos has some point of value not as yet divulged, it is difficult to account for the price paid for it. From the point of view of the lover of SHAKESPEARE, as distinguished from that of the collector of rarities, the transcendent value lies in the book that brings one closest to the spirit that gave the world its greatest heritage of laughter and romance, of ennobled human nature and majestic tragedy.

SOME VICTORIAN FRIENDS.

The Literary Supplement of The London Times publishes some extracts from letters written by DANTE GABRIEL ROSSETTI to ALGERNON CHARLES SWINBURNE between 1864 and 1871. When the correspondence began, ROSSETTI was 36, SWINBURNE 27. ROSSETTI was already famous as a painter, but most of the poems which were to give him a new fame in 1870 were still buried in the grave of his wife. In 1864 ROSSETTI was in Paris. "The whole of French art at present," he writes, "is a beastly slop and really makes one sick." But, he says with prophetic vision, "there is one man named MILLET, who can't sell his pictures except to some one who buys him up cheap and at whose house I saw a collection of them, really glorious things. Really there seems to be no one else alive except INGRES, who's nearly dead, and GEROME, whom one can't stand forever (as he doesn't paint). DELACROIX gains every time I see him. He is a real great man, though often wonderfully shaky."

"BAUDELAIRE is away, or I think I should have met him. Give love to "WHISTLER." There came a time when SWINBURNE had no love to give to WHISTLER. Indeed, "JIMMY" cultivated to perfection the art of losing friends. Mrs. ROSSETTI had died in 1862. As we all know, her husband, stricken with mingled grief and remorse, put beside her face in the coffin the manuscript book of his unprinted poems. In 1869 the book was taken out, and in 1870 the poems were published and won ROSSETTI a great name. "I hope," he writes on Oct. 26, 1869, "you will think none the worse of my feeling for the memory of one for whom I know you had a true regard. The truth is, that no one so much as herself would have approved of my doing this. Art was the only thing for which she felt very seriously. Had it been possible to her, I should have found the book on my pillow the night she was buried; and could she have opened the grave, no other hand would have been needed." "No strength of words," wrote SWINBURNE in reply, "can seem too strong * * * to render my inmost and sincerest sense of the importance of the question whether we are all to be the richer or the poorer by one more treasure of art: of art which always was and is to me the highest, deepest, most precious and serious pleasure to be got out of life."

Of TENNYSON'S new invoice of "Idylls of the King," (1869,) ROSSETTI, who calls the Laureate "a tolerable maunderer, if you will," says with not wholly unjustified biliousness:

> I must say that to have Sir Pelleas turned into a schoolboy deserving and not getting the birch through pages irrigated with irritation to every poetic sense one possesses (In spite of good verbal passages) is rather too much for one furnished with a helpful vocabulary of Ratcliff Highway as an Appendix to JOHNSON [sic] and WEBSTER. The same may be said of the rest so far as I have read, except the "Northern Farmer," which is very good.

Of their friend WILLIAM MORRIS, "Top," SWINBURNE had written that "his Muse is like HOMER'S Trojan Women: she drags her robes when she walks." ROSSETTI speaks of "the more Topsaic forms of the speech of daily life." SWINBURNE'S criticism of "Top's" new volume "is, of course, true criticism; but I think so excellent a poet must, after all, be allowed his own style in forms of poetry where deliberateness and delay are not absolutely inadvisable. More variety in the verse would, I admit, still be possible and desirable. But 'Gudrun' is a wonderful poem." Still, "the fact is, Topsy writes too much both for his own sake and that of his appreciators."

This was written in 1869. Mr. MORRIS, a man of varied activities, was yet to write many books. Mr. SWINBURNE had not yet published "Songs Before Sunrise," (1871.) His fame would probably be the same if he had written nothing after that. In view of his long series of subsequent volumes, ROSSETTI'S complaint of "Top's" fertility now looks comical. Even chronic Swinburnians have sometimes suspected that the ever-vigilant guardian and janitor WATTS-DUNTON would have used his influence on the poet to better advantage if, instead of restricting him to a glass of beer a day, he had restricted him to a book every ten years. It is curious to find ROSSETTI writing SWINBURNE that there is "something of you, perhaps," in WALTER PATER'S famous essay on Leonardo. "I confess," replies SWINBURNE, "I did fancy there was a little spice of my style, as you say, but much good stuff of his own and of much interest." To the uninstructed mind there could hardly be a stronger contrast of prose styles than that between PATER'S and SWINBURNE'S. Curious again, save to the venerable, is it to find SWINBURNE saying that JOHN MORLEY "took not a little credit for moral courage in printing" some sonnets of his in The Fortnightly Review. All Swinburnians will rejoice in ROSSETTI'S testimonial to his brilliant, if sometimes too explosive, friend:

> When I have proved you in private such a loyal and generous reiterator of old belief in my old doings, I am well aware how friendship only can account for the point to which you carry the comparison between your friends' work and your own at times; but such friendship is the only thing as well worth having even as poetic preeminence.

BASEBALL AND WAGES.

The most highly specialized of American arts is furnishing a useful object lesson to students of current tendencies in industrial relations. As all men know, the Cincinnati Baseball Club this year won the championship of the Cosmos. The salaries of its members were not particularly high, but each man got some $5,000 as his share of the receipts in the games for the world's championship. Increases in most of the salaries were to be expected, but it is reported that they will not be large enough. A number of the world's champions insist on large increases, larger than the club which employs them is inclined to pay. And their argument is that the club owners cleared something like $300,000 on the season just ended.

Very possibly they did. But about nine years out of ten the Cincinnati club shows no profit at all, according to the general belief of the baseball world. Some of the heaviest stockholders sold out a year or so ago because they were tired of putting more money into a business venture which seemed to show nothing but losses. Others who clung to their holdings will hardly be compensated for years of loss by their share of last season's profits. In the years when the capitalist club owners were losing money the players sold their services at the market rate, and there was no enthusiasm for loss-sharing such as there now is for profit-sharing. Here is a case where capital got its wage late, and perhaps very far from all of it; but labor was drawing its hire every Saturday all through the lean years.

Again, consider the case of a personage named RUTH, of Boston, a gentleman of hitherto unattained proficiency in the art of producing home runs. In 1918 he made a dozen or so and acquired great fame thereby. At the beginning of the season of 1919 he signed a three years' contract, at a salary of $10,000 a year—all this at least according to the rumor which surrounds the closely guarded finances of baseball.

Last Spring this seemed to be a very good contract, for wise men expected little interest in baseball in the first year after the war. Salaries were low, and according to the sages would be low for some time; the luckier, then, was Mr. RUTH, whose annual ten thousand would have been a pretty good salary in any year. But the experts were found to be wrong; the season of 1919 was the most successful, financially, in the whole history of baseball. Incidentally, it was a good year for Mr. RUTH, who attained the hitherto unknown distinction of making twenty-nine home runs in one season. And now one hears that he will refuse to put on a uniform next year unless the ten thousand is raised to twenty thousand.

The capitalist took the chance; he had to pay his ten thousand in 1919 and 1920 and 1921, whether anybody came to his ball park or not. But the other party to the contract would amend it. Nobody can compel him to play ball; it would be both unconstitutional and unwise, though he can be enjoined from playing ball for anybody else but the other party to the contract. He can quit if he wants to. A first-rate ball player who is not extravagant and has ordinary business judgment is usually fairly well-to-do when old age forces his retirement, but it is hardly likely that Mr. RUTH, if he quits midway in his career, will find it easy to make $10,000 in six months at any other occupation. He is now learning the cigar business, starting as a workman with the purpose of becoming a manufacturer. And when he is a capitalistic employer himself he may take a different view of wage disputes. Meanwhile, his present employer has the pleasant task of deciding whether he can better afford to put up $20,000 more than the contract calls for or take his team around the circuit without its principal attraction.

PERSHING'S UNMILITARY CRITICS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Representative Bland, Republican, of Indiana, is quoted as saying, "If General Pershing didn't know more about the disposition of sugar than he did about the front line, it would be useless to ask him. I found him 200 miles from the front on July 19, 1918, when the battle of Château-Thierry was at its height." Such a slurring remark as the foregoing as to the whereabouts of the C. in C. of the American forces in France is entirely uncalled for and shows very plainly how narrow-minded and unpatriotic some of our public servants are.

If General Pershing was 200 miles in the rear, it may be taken for granted that his presence was required there. No one point of the line required his personal attention any more than the hundreds of others. What can it matter if he was 200 miles or 2,000 miles in rear of the line if he had proper communication? Suppose he had been near the front and a stray shell had "sent him west," would anything have been gained?

I would suggest that in the next war a few of the gentlemen from Washington get up near the front and direct operations where the Generals are afraid to go. Also that credit be given to whom it is due and that unnecessary remarks and criticisms be left unsaid. GERALD F. MCGIMSEY.

"SAVE MONROE'S HOUSE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The appeal contained in your editorial article of Oct. 25 for the preservation of the James Monroe house in New York CITY should receive the support not only of patriotic and historical societies but of all who realize the true value of our rapidly vanishing landmarks. The loss of these memorials, many of which are of distinct architectural interest, as, for example, St. John's Chapel, lately destroyed, is too apt to be disregarded in the absence of such timely expressions of appreciation and warning as your editorial contains.

It should be more widely understood that these ancient buildings possess not merely a sentimental value, but where they have some direct association with historical events or personages they can exercise an important educational influence, especially when situated, as is most frequently the case, in the older sections of our cities now given over largely to our foreign-born population.

Properly restored and maintained, they may thus be made object lessons in American history and in teaching the principles and ideals upon which our Government is founded.

The purchase of the Octagon house at Washington by the American Institute of Architects guarantees the preservation of that monument where the Treaty of Ghent was signed during its occupancy by President James Madison, and it would be to the credit of New York if the home of Madison's successor, President Monroe, could, as you suggest, be secured and maintained in commemoration of the times and events with which his name is associated.

A LACK OF ARMY STORES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Regarding the immediate enforcement of national prohibition, why does the good old U. S. A. discriminate against the soldier who served her in France and cater to the man who didn't go?

The latter class was amply forewarned by the Government that the country was going "dry" and was given every opportunity legally to supply himself for the desert we all must cross, and was protected by law in having same in his possession and using it.

Having served as a Captain in the A. E. F., and having landed in America and been discharged after wartime prohibition went into effect, the writer finds himself in the former class, which comprises a few hundred thousand men who risked their all for the preservation of America's ideals of liberty.

They, however, were not permitted to supply themselves, and were therefore denied the right of having in their possession something the other man was protected by law in having in his possession.

THE MOST EXPENSIVE CITIES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My attention has recently been called to reports that my capital, Stockholm, is the most expensive city in which to live.

These statements are, however, to my mind, considerably exaggerated. Prices here are about the same. At the present rate of exchange I get in Sweden for $1 four Swedish crowns, and here for four Swedish crowns $1.

In New York I get a good room at a hotel for $3.50 and in Stockholm at a fine hotel for twelve to fourteen crowns. In New York restaurants I get an ordinary lunch for about $1 and in Stockholm for about four crowns. In the show windows I see the prices are about the same. I can get a pair of ordinary shoes for $10 and in Stockholm for forty crowns.

Perhaps prices here are a little higher than in Stockholm, but there is a great exception, that of street car fares.

FALLEN LEAVES.

I cherish Autumn as my oldest friend—
I came into this splendid world with him. . .
Some year, when all his pageant is at end,
I, too, may see the splendid world grow dim.

I love his red suns lamping misty days,
His frost-set morns and glittering, great-starred eves;
How, as a child, I loved the drifted ways
Where one walked ankle-deep amid the leaves!

Then, my light footsteps, like the very wind,
Ran scudding through their restless, umber drifts—
A pleasant voice it was! But now I find
Some spirit born of place its warning lifts.

If more it warns—or grieves, I cannot know:
But, ankle-deep amid the fallen leaves,
I stay my feet, or onward swiftly go,
While round me ancient necromancy weaves.

A voice! It is from far, and yet is near;
"Hush, hush—" It rises, ebbs away, is still;
A voice once passing sweet, now grown austere,
As age had made it querulous and shrill:

A voice of many—out of other time,
When happy sighings breathed through Summer boughs,
With twittering bird-note and cicada's chime—
None such bare forest-rafters now can rouse!

"Hush, hush—" I hear the gathering sound repeat:
It is command, with sharp monition blent;
For all that sound I hear my own heart beat—
It is to me the message has been sent!

"Hush, hush—and heed!"—the hoarse susurrus runs.
I heed. No more young heart old years deceives;
Your word I heed, O fallen myrmidons—
The voice of man is as the voice of leaves!

STRIKES, THE TREATY, AND OTHER SUBJECTS DISCUSSED IN LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

VIEWS ON STRIKES

Some Opinions Called Forth by Industrial Conference and the Miners' Stand

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Many employers who, like myself, believe in the principle of collective bargaining through national trade unions, feel that if any formal recognition is to be given to this principle a quid pro quo must be exacted in the shape of the submission of unions to some method of incorporation or licensing and to some modicum of control. The representatives of the employers in the recent National Industrial Conference at Washington were perhaps justified in their reluctance to agree to rather vague resolutions which recognized collective bargaining without making provision for such control. Many sincere and progressive delegates no doubt hesitated to assist in the acceleration of the growth of our "labor trusts" without any system being simultaneously adopted or even outlined for the regulation of these organizations. Recent excesses on the part of some labor leaders have emphasized the justice of this position.

As Mr. Daniel Guggenheim has pointed out in his excellent interview in today's TIMES, some measure of control must be instituted. Measures for the delay of strikes or lockouts until full investigation should be provided, similar in character to the nine months' period of delay that is provided for in the covenant of the League of Nations. Some provision for enforcing responsibility for trade agreements must also be included and there are many other details which must be worked out by experts. It goes without saying that employers' associations as well as trade unions must be included in such control. In any event, the fundamental proposition of governmental control in exchange for official recognition would seem to be sound.

Wars Among the Unions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The editorial article regarding labor in last Sunday's issue is much to the point. Labor is so unorganized that it is impossible to treat with it.

We have just completed in Cincinnati a new Court House which cost to exceed $3,000,000. I served as Chairman of the commission which built the Court House and am familiar with the details of the continuous strikes which interrupted the orderly process of construction. In Cincinnati the building trades are thoroughly organized—you either build with union labor or you do not build at all. During the five years in which the Court House was in the process of construction we were seldom more than two or three months without a strike of some kind, and there were several strikes which entirely stopped operations of every kind.

These strikes were not because the men were dissatisfied with the hours of labor or with the wages; the strikes were entirely jurisdictional, and it speedily developed that in the building trades at least there is no authority to decide the disputes. There were constant clashes between the carpenters, who claimed the right to hang doors and windows, and the iron workers, who claimed the same privilege. There were endless disputes between the plumbers and the steamfitters. There were disputes between the electricians and the elevator erectors. And there was no supreme court to which we could go to adjudicate the questions. The unions themselves were impossible—they did not meet each other in any spirit of conciliation or compromise. The iron workers laid down the law that such and such was their work, and if they did not have it they would pull off every man affiliated with the particular combination of unions to which they belong—and so they did. The carpenters claimed that such and such things belonged to them, and if they were not given them they would strike and pull off everybody affiliated with their combination of unions—so they did.

I appealed to John Donlan, President of the building section of the American Federation. He frankly acknowledged that he sympathized with us deeply in our troubles, but that he had no power to help in these jurisdictional disputes except to try what kind words would do—and kind words accomplished nothing. I appealed to Mr. Gompers, who said that the American Federation some years hence would consider these questions of jurisdiction in the building trades and settle them. The public was helpless, and these unions fought things out among themselves. The Building Commission discovered that there was no higher authority outside of these warring unions in this city that could with a decisive voice pronounce judgment and say that this was right and that was wrong, and we were reduced to the humiliating necessity of erecting the building in pieces meal—when the carpenters finished their work then the iron structural men came on the job, and so it went on. Instead of working harmoniously together they worked in separate detachments.

Abuse of Labor Organization.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Government of the people by the people and for the people seems to have been interpreted by one-tenth of the population of this land as meaning domination of the remaining 90 per cent.

As this oligarchy holds itself not amenable to law, and exempt from its penalties, it is not surprising that it defies Congress, challenges the Government to accede to its demands or take the consequences, forbids any man to work who is not affiliated with its movements, and attempts to invalidate any law which protects such a man in his efforts to make a living for himself and his family.

We have heard much of the tyranny of imperial autocracy, but the ruthlessness of those decayed systems pales into insignificance compared with the fixed purpose of the leaders and agitators of this new departure to take possession of the industries of the country or to paralyze them; to take possession of the machinery of our present form of government and adapt it to their own purposes or precipitate into revolution the unrest and turmoil which they already have well under way.

Mr. Gompers struck a ringing keynote when he declared he would not want to live if strikes are declared unlawful, unmindful of the millions of toilers who simply want their right to work to be undisturbed, and who are not in the undistricted, and who are not in the least interested in strikes. We are at present experiencing some of the advantages and beauties of this fundamental constructive form of government.

No sane human being can deny or underrate the value of organization to labor. It is the abuse of this system, not the system itself, which calls for repudiation.

No organization can survive in civilized society which deliberately makes its plans to tie up railroads and shipping facilities so that neither milk, food, nor any other necessaries of life can be carried to cold and hungry people.

A Strike of the People.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It would seem to me that at this time when capital and labor are having such a conflict, and when labor has become so autocratic, the great mass of the people, who are really the greatest sufferers from the conflict, should form a union similar to the labor unions in order to protect themselves. If the common people were properly organized, it seems to me they could exert an immense influence and prevent to a great extent the troubles brought about by the labor strikes.

It has been stated that the great strike at Winnipeg last Summer was broken by a counterstrike of the common people. They got tired of the sufferings caused them by the strike and got together. They took a census and found that out of each fifteen persons of the population only one was a striker, so that the other fourteen were suffering for the strike of one man. So they organized, and then counterstruck. They told the strikers that if they or their families got sick, the doctors would not attend them and the druggists would not sell them drugs; the lawyers said they would not take their cases; the butcher would not sell them meat, and the grocer would not sell them groceries. And the strike was broken almost immediately. The idea was taken up in other cities in Western Canada, with the same quick results. Why cannot we do the same here?

Picketing.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why not stop the strikes and bring about fair play by stopping picketing? I never could understand why if a man didn't want to work at a particular job, for any reason whatever, he had any right to try and prevent another man from working at the job he had thrown up. Has there ever been given a logical reason for such action? Surely the right to relinquish work on the part of any man carries with it a corresponding right to do the work on the part of another man.

Until we make unlawful all picketing and intimidation we are only pandering to the baser elements of the labor unions. Freedom not to work should also mean freedom to work. If this principle were adopted we would have few strikes.

Free Speech.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On page 2 of THE TIMES this morning I read:

"Unions' Leaders Go to Washington. Pittsburgh Delegation to Demand Rights of Free Speech and Assemblage."

And on page 3 of the same issue:

"Pressmen Censor Life. Refuse to Work in Boston Plant Till Objectionable Cartoon is 'Killed.'"

To the man on the street these simultaneous actions would appear somewhat inconsistent.

Wasteful Strikes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You have performed a great service in presenting in your issue of the 24th a summary of the cost of the miners' demands and the enormous wastefulness during the last decade of these wage disputes in the coal fields.

In this emergency is it not possible to start a movement to mobilize all of the idle farm labor for service under Government auspices in this great emergency long enough to enable the parties to the controversy to get together?

High Cost of Strikes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We talk volubly about the high cost of living, but the high cost of loafing is the real problem. The railroad workers go on strike and while they are loafing every commodity which must be carried on a railroad grows scarcer and dearer. The steel workers strike, and while they are loafing every article made of steel or made by the use of steel machinery becomes scantier in quantity and higher in price. It is futile to talk of profiteering in a country which harbors a thousand strikers for every possible profiteer. The high cost of loafing is the heaviest burden which the poor man in America is forced to bear.

Time for the Public to Act.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If the American Federation of Labor has such an antipathy to war and is willing to compromise to any extent to preserve peace among the nations, why do its members insist upon retaining the right and privilege of striking whenever their demands are not granted?

We have only to look back to the passing of the Adamson law to see how far short its practice falls from its ideals. The very name of the power (strike) it insists on retaining implies the use of violence, and the denial of every man's right to be a free agent. The public must not allow itself to be led off the track by a few high-sounding phrases and patriotic allusions. This recalling the struggle of the American Colonies with Great Britain to enlist our sympathy with what labor claims to be a revolution for the emancipation of the handworker of America is bosh. When Mr. Gompers threatens, if a bill penalizing the strike is passed, there will be a revolution, he uses the wrong term. The defiant breaking of the law would be the act of rebels and should be punished accordingly.

Do not let the American people allow themselves to be deceived by an organized minority which talks fair but has despotism in its heart, the despotism of a class.

I don't mean to say that every member of the Federation realizes where his activities are leading him, but his leaders do well enough. They have gone too far to retrace their steps. They dare not advise co-operation with representatives, giving in return the inviolability of contracts and arbitration. Now is the time for the public to step in and speak loud and strong.

Labor Agitators in Politics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

How long is this suffering country to be kept in constantly recurring states of apprehension and turmoil from strikes and riots? There is a cause and a cure.

The cause is plainly that our cowardly politicians have formed a habit of betraying the interests of the public when threatened by the labor leaders, as for instance in the shameless surrender to the railway men's holdup three years ago. What we are now enduring is the natural effect of the cause.

The power-drunken labor leaders have now set out to control the entire country. But such is their effrontery and brutal disregard of justice that there are signs that even the politicians are beginning to awaken to the fact that something in opposition must be done.

The cure will come when the Government is at last driven to stand for the simple truth that these so-called labor men—the agitators who labor only with their jaws and who are solely responsible for strikes, idleness, and rioting—are to be denounced as the conspirators and public enemies that they are and sent to jail.

REPRESENTATIVE BODIES.

Proportional System in Elections as a Remedy for Labor Troubles.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The gravest industrial problems are pressing upon us for solution. In our difficulties we have recourse to specially arranged conferences intended to be representative of capital, labor, and the public. Such bodies may help in a crisis. But it is obvious that the crying need is for permanent bodies, in the nation, and in each separate State, that are truly representative of all opinions and interests. And it is evident, too, that our legislative bodies as now constituted do not fill this requirement.

Is it not time for us to consider seriously the adoption of proportional representation for our representative bodies? Other countries are being driven to it; no fewer than eight have adopted the new principle for the election of representatives since July, 1918, namely, Czechoslovakia, Germany (imperial), Switzerland, New South Wales, Germany (republican), Poland, France (inadequate and unsatisfactory application of the principle,) and Italy.

The new system is having a trial in our own country, Kalamazoo, Mich., and Ashtabula, Ohio, elect their councils under it on Nov. 4. The counting of the ballots in these cities will follow either the same night or the next day. It is to be hoped that civic and political organizations will send representatives to witness the elections and the counting of the ballots in these cities.

Perhaps the most interesting advance of the principle of proportional representation that has ever occurred in the English-speaking world was its recent adoption by the British Parliament for all local elections in Ireland. The Government bill prescribing the Hare system of proportional representation for Irish local elections became law on July 3. Its enactment is the direct result of the astonishing election under the same system in Sligo, Ireland, last January—the first municipal election under the new system in the United Kingdom—when the bitterest of political opponents, including the Sinn Feiners, all declared themselves after the election as satisfied with the result. On Jan. 15, 1920, some 127 cities and urban districts of Ireland are to hold simultaneous elections under the new system.

In its general convention last Summer, the first one held for more than twenty years, the Liberal Party of Canada adopted proportional representation as a plank in its platform. It also elected as leader, to take the place of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, a convinced proportionalist.

Let me close, as I began, by emphasizing the important bearing that true representation has upon social unrest and stability of constitutional government. Speaking in London on July 3, the Earl of Selborne used the following significant words:

"If once the nation loses confidence in the House of Commons as a true reflection of the opinion of the people, you are launched on a sea of experiment the issue of which no one yet sees. * * * It would be odd if we had not got to change part of the machinery, to adapt it to the great changes which have taken place in all these generations. But I believe the adaptations are possible. I believe that the political genius of our people is capable of making those adaptations. But I am quite sure that the bedrock on which those adaptations must rest is proportional representation."

Proportional representation—the same system that is used in Ashtabula and Kalamazoo—is prescribed for the election of the entire Senate and part of the House of Commons of Ireland. An amendment to the recent Reform act—the Representation of the People act—1918—prescribing it for the British House of Commons was passed by the House of Lords by a vote of 131 to 42. Is it not time that leading statesmen and business men in this country, as well as reformers, should give this subject very serious attention?

Quiet Sundays for Heroes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A pleasant little town in Westchester, about an hour from New York, wishes to erect a memorial to its boys who served in the war. After long and careful consideration by all the intellectual and social forces it is decided that it shall take the form of an athletic field—an excellent choice.

The money is raised, the field purchased, and the great day dawns. The young heroes are welcomed home with bands, a parade headed by all town officials, dinner, and dedication of the field with oratory and great festivities.

The next Sunday the boys, rejoicing in the new memorial, flock to the field for a game of ball, but the authorities call out the police and chase the young heroes off the field that they have just dedicated to them with oratory galore. All protest by the boys is of no avail and at present the town authorities sit supreme in unapproachable majesty—the memorial field is left to the weeds, while the young heroes journey every Sunday for their game of ball to a town of broader vision and more social spirit, eight miles away.

DEMOCRACY IN THE COLLEGES

Washington, Oct. 26, 1919.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial article on "Democracy in College" in today's issue sounds a timely warning to those who have to do with the aims and aspirations of these institutions of higher education.

There are two distinct lines of duty, as I see the situation, in this matter. One is that of setting the right kind of goals before the mind of the student mass; the other is the duty of the student body to develop within these limits, and along these lines, the forms and methods of democratic character.

What ought to be the essential quality or content of the democratic character, and by what means may it be most acceptably evolved?

To this double question there is a double answer. It is to be made both by Faculty and student acting in co-operation and interacting in such ways as contribute to the essential results, be they direct or indirect. It is for each institution to decide for itself what these instrumentalities and methods are. But there is no doubt as to the necessity for positive definition of the problem on fundamental lines if we are to have colleges and universities that reflect the image and likeness of the aspirations of our national democracy in its deep and abiding hopes for itself and for mankind in general.

I cannot quite agree, however, that "the situation in wider perspective who see the situation clearly know that the faults spring from an ancient defect in organization, not from any original undergraduate sin." That exculpates the undergraduate attitude I imagine in whose individual attitude of the difficulty rests most, if not half, of the members of Dartmouth or Yale—the two colleges which I have attended—actually make it a point of calling upon each and every classmate once or more a year? How can democracy take deep and firm root where the soil of ordinary personal sociability is lacking? A certain amount of mutual acquaintance is necessary before the democratic qualities can function in the relations of a group even as close as a student class in college.

Let there be a beginning in the individual students to see that he becomes personally acquainted by calling at the place of abode of each of his classmates. Before he gets through with that part of democratizing duty, or pleasure, he will discover, for instance, how wide a range in the conditions of living there is between the fellow with a rich father and the man who is making his own way through college. The very discovery of this difference between extremes will serve to enhance his estimate of the value of the common denominator of purpose that makes them equals in the same institution as mates in the mastery of the secret of the larger life for which they are preparing. But by far the greater good will be found in the capacity to feel at home and understand one another in the fellowship of the intellectual and spiritual life of which the college is the exponent.

I may be mistaken, but I believe that in this little cosmos of college class acquaintanceship there are treasures new and old that once disclosed will go far toward unfolding the democratic resources of college life.

How many of us have felt, when the graduating curtain falls on college life, that we have left uncultivated many of the best relationships that lay within our period of sojourn there! Those within the class unit are only one of the kind. There are interclass connections that have possibilities whose unfoldings are needed to realize the still larger aspects of college democracy. Something is being done in the field of religious activities to bring all classes together. But not all members take an interest in religious matters. Here may be an unexploited field for some kind of appealing civic organization into which the whole undergraduate membership may give its sense of association on democratic lines satisfying forms of expression.

Just by way of suggestion, why should there not be some such an organization as a world congress, in which the entire student body were divided up among the nations of the world, to represent them in the discussion and enactment of measures looking to the insurance of democracy on lines in harmony with the spirit of these new-born times?

AN INTERNATIONALIZED THRACE

Salem, Mass., Oct. 22, 1919.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is very unfortunate that the Peace Conference is sitting at a time when our country is preparing for the great electoral struggle of 1920. Many an issue which might have received the undivided support of every American, irrespective of party affiliation, has become involved in the struggle between our Democratic and Republican Parties. The question of Thrace has not escaped this danger.

The question of Thrace is one which interests every intelligent American citizen from both the ethical and the practical point of view. From the ethical point of view, every American citizen desires to see the question of Thrace solved in a just manner to all parties concerned. From the practical point of view, he wishes to see to it that the outcome of the solution shall be permanent peace in the Balkans.

Our delegation at Paris is now convinced that Bulgaria has no right to Thrace. Moreover, Bulgaria's ownership of territory on the Aegean is a dangerous thing, in view of that country's repeated treacherous attacks upon her neighbors and upon the Allies. But, thinks our commission, "we may succeed in reconciling the Bulgarians by another course, namely, by making Thrace neither Greek nor Bulgarian, but international, under the League of Nations.

"The Greek majority is not subjected to the hated Bulgarians. On the other hand, the Bulgarian will be satisfied that Greece has not become a strong Balkan State."

At first view this solution seems to be a promising one. Unfortunately, our commission is apparently disregarding certain great objections which such a decision will have to meet. One of these objections is that the Greek nation cannot be reconciled to the proposition of making Thrace international.

The Greeks, from their childhood, have been looking to Thrace as the great Hellas irredenta. The principles of President Wilson have made the Greeks so confident that Thrace will become Greek that no argument can induce them now to believe that any other solution but Greek annexation can be a just one. Add to this the fact that our original experts on the Thracian question have already reported for Greek annexation, and that France, England, Italy and Japan insist that Thrace is by right Greek, and should be given to Greece as a matter of plane allied policy; add also the fact that the entire American public opinion, as voiced by the great dailies of our country, is in favor of giving Thrace to Greece, and we have a condition of mind of the Greek people which will be impossible to alter except by actual force.

On the other hand, our commission seems to ignore the dreams and ambitions of the Bulgarian nation for hegemony in the Balkans. The Bulgarians, like the Prussians, launched upon a daring enterprise of conquest. They were defeated. But neither the Germans nor the Bulgarians have abandoned their long-cherished dreams for hegemony.

The mere internationalization of Thrace cannot satisfy the dreams of Bulgaria. The friendship of our American friends in Bulgaria and Robert College men at Constantinople, which has been of immense value to Bulgaria during the Peace Conference, will be cleverly exploited by the well-organized Bulgarian propaganda to secure from an American Administration at Constantinople encouragement to Bulgarian immigration into Thrace until the majority there is earned in favor of Bulgaria.

If Greece remains in the League of Nations she must submit to Bulgarian domination. Train from creating difficulties by dumping into the international State artificial Greek immigrants to maintain the Greek majority. If Greece lives up to her obligations to the League, Thrace will be forever lost for the Greeks. If Greece, there will be constant rivalries between the two States, from which dangerous possibilities will surely result.

But even if Greece, by dumping into Thrace a Greek population, succeeds in maintaining the majority in that Province, the Bulgarian population there will be so large that the Council of the League of Nations will not find it easy to surrender ultimately Thrace to Greece with a large Bulgarian population inimical to Greece.

Thus, internationalization of Thrace means for Greece loss of Thrace; for Bulgaria the next best thing to present Bulgarian annexation.

These considerations are in the minds of both Greeks and Bulgarians. For that reason the Greeks cannot accept any other solution than annexation of that portion of Thrace which constitutes the Province of Adrianople, while the Bulgarians will welcome internationalization.

CONSTANTINE C. MOUSTAKOS.

Friends of Bulgaria.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With your permission I am taking the liberty of supplying a little information on the subject of the letter signed by "Politikos" and published in your Sunday's issue of Oct. 26, under the heading of "The Bulgarian Treaty."

"Politikos" seems to doubt Bulgaria's word of honor. Everybody else trusts Bulgaria and rightly so, because Bulgaria was the only Balkan State to keep in good faith the clauses of the Berlin treaty, imposed on her in 1878. There were no pogroms and massacres in Bulgaria; on the contrary, Bulgaria always served as a home of refuge for numerous unfortunates who had to flee from the friends of "Politikos." Further "Politikos" speaks of "infamies" committed by Bulgarians. Unfortunately for "Politikos," however, the commission sent to Macedonia by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, after the end of the Balkan war in 1913, has declared that the compatriots of "Politikos," the Greeks, were by far more guilty in most outrages than the Bulgarians.

It is admittedly true that the Macedonian guerrilla warriors, who had fought against the tyranny of the Turks for more than half a century, did not nurse any tender feelings toward their betrayers, the Greeks. Thus to quote "Historicus," a Robert College professor, in his admirable study "Bulgaria and Her Neighbors," Page 98:

"In 1908, when the most serious insurrectionary movement in Macedonia took place, * * * the Greeks organized bands to fight, not with the Bulgarian insurgents, for the freedom and autonomy of Macedonia, but against them and in conjunction with the Turkish troops. These bands were recruited in Greece, especially in the island of Crete and in Thessaly, and sent over to Macedonia to help the Turks in putting down the insurrection. They were real mercenaries and even local Turks were hired to co-operate with them."

In view of these facts one can easily determine who were acting as brigands, who were fighting for the liberty of Macedonia or helping the Turks to keep it in subjection.

Finally, "Politikos" laments the fact that some Americans, ministers connected with various missions in the Balkans and Robert College professors, are friendly to Bulgaria. Well, there are a great many others! There is no stranger who has had the good fortune to dwell in Bulgaria who has not a word of praise for the hard-working, honest and efficient Bulgarian Nation. Thus, Mr. Dominic I. Murphy, the American Consul General to Bulgaria, who resided in Bulgaria during the entire duration of the great war, has refuted the fake stories about "infamies," manufactured by the paid Hellenic propaganda, and has been advising his colleagues, friends and acquaintances not to believe a single word that emanates from Athens or Saloniki.

SUFFRAGE REACTION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You seem to think the small number of women registering is principally accounted for by the novelty of voting having worn off. It isn't that, but we women who worked so hard for woman suffrage have got so much more than we expected or wanted that we are becoming antis. We've got women bosses now; they are everywhere all the time, it seems to us, and we have to keep wide awake and on the watch to see that they don't take away all our liberties. We won't stand for that, and so we are getting so weary of our New York women politicians we haven't even a desire to vote any more.

We are beginning to think the antis were right; they could see further than we; they knew women—at least women who had nothing to do—and they knew what would happen.

We women have worked many years, and have been able to run our own affairs, thank you, to our satisfaction, and to our employers, too, without the aid of lady politicians. These ladies of leisure seem to think we are their servants, and they are attempting to run us and our affairs just as through the years of the past they tried to run their servants, (but could not.) The servants struck, and now they are concentrating upon the office workers and trying to run us. Well, we will strike, too—not against our employers, as these women are urging us to do, but against these women bosses who are trying to get bills passed whereby they will have the power to boss us still more.

We've had enough of women politicians during the last Winter up at Albany to last us a lifetime, and we want nothing more to do with them, or with politics, if that's what politics is going to do for us and to us. Give us men to speak for us. They're intelligent, they take long views of things, they don't have fads and fancies, and they aren't all the time talking, talking, talking about uplifting us, and doing us good, and pretending to know better what we want and need than we who are on the job, and have been on the job for years, almost before some of these women politicians were born.

RALPH J. PRESTON.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On behalf of his old associates in the American Red Cross I venture to write this letter to record our love and esteem for the late Ralph J. Preston.

He was one of the first little group that sailed from New York for Bordeaux in June, 1917, and that laid in France the foundation for the great work of mercy and courage that the Red Cross carried on abroad during the war. To those of us who composed that party the venture appeared full of pitfalls and difficulties. We were embarking on uncharted seas, and we felt to a tremendous degree our lack of experience in the work to be done.

In many respects our fears were justified. The success which crowned the work of the Red Cross abroad in its early days was due not to the skill or efficiency with which it was directed, but to the high spirit of courage and faith in the organization and to the affectionate loyalty of its members which never faltered, but met and overcame obstacles through sheer devotion and unselfish enthusiasm. I have worked with many different men and women in my life, but I have never seen, and I know that I shall never see any other organization as splendid in its soul as the American Red Cross abroad was in 1917. Those of us who were there know that there were none more responsible for the creation and maintenance of this morale than Ralph Preston. His charming personality, his utter unselfishness, his indefatigable industry in the cause which he so much loved to serve, combined with rare wisdom in dealing with the tangled human problems which were constantly arising in war-worn France, were of untold value to the situation. For myself I cannot conceive the Red Cross in Europe without him. I cannot find words to tell the measure of his contributions. He spent his money as he spent himself. No records will ever show his benefactions, though many lives were made happier and better through them.

He was a man who held firmly to the fine old traditions of honor and service. His daughter and his three sons served as he did in the war. One boy was in the tank corps, another with combat troops in the front lines throughout the Summer and Fall of 1918. It was characteristic of him that, devotedly as he loved his boys, he sought constantly to help them to go where the fighting was hottest. He spared neither them nor himself in the service in which he had engaged.

His loss will be mourned by many men about the world. His kindness and his consideration reached all classes and knew no bounds of creed or race. Those of us who were closest to him will never gather again without feeling that our gathering is incomplete, and many places where we have worked and played together will be haunted with sadness now. But he died after the accomplishment of a great work, admired and loved by every comrade who had labored at his side, and he leaves behind him a tradition of high courage and noble friendship, which shall make us who knew him so well better for thinking of what he was to us and to the world.

College Men as Miners.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Reading with interest in THE TIMES this morning the editorial article entitled "Called to a New Vocation," I wondered why some one did not suggest that our thousands of college students did not band themselves into a volunteer organization ready to offer their services at any employment the nation and President required. They would be ideal at breaking the miners' strike, as their recent military training gives them the advantage physically over the teachers. Of course, anything that interferes with their college course is to be deprecated, and they should not be called out lightly, but the mere fact that labor knew they were ready would have a salutary effect. These are serious times and we should be ready to meet them.

FINAL TREATY ARGUMENTS

Senator Hitchcock Is Convincing Where Senator Borah Is Not

Tucson, Ariz., Oct. 26, 1919.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your Sunday issue of Oct. 19 the contrasted opinions of Senators Borah and Hitchcock as to what would happen should we reject the treaty promised to be of vital interest.

Senator Hitchcock, indeed, set down in business-like form the material advantages which would accrue to us should we sign the treaty, advantages which we should naturally lose should we reject the treaty. He next outlines what nature of a makeshift, unsatisfactory peace we would then be forced to conclude by ourselves with Germany, under conditions far less advantageous to us than prevailed at Paris. He finally illustrated how our withdrawal would emasculate the League of Nations, and would eliminate the most stable and potent element for peace in world politics.

Personally, I do not agree with Senator Hitchcock in all his statements and conclusions. Moreover, his answer is mostly negative in that he stresses what would not happen should we reject the treaty, and gives us very little idea of what he considers would happen, which, after all, is the question asked in the title to this article, namely: "If the treaty is rejected—what then?"

But at least Senator Hitchcock's answer has the merit of being business-like, coherent, and sincere, while he presents cold facts which can be discounted for their true worth.

Senator Borah's answer, on the other hand, is pitiful by contrast. He makes no attempt to predict how, after rejecting the present treaty, we could make a separate peace with Germany, what sort of a peace we could then obtain, and when we should get it. After all, we must have peace some time, prohibition or no prohibition. Nor does he offer any justification for our throwing overboard the financial and commercial advantages which are assured to us in the present treaty, or any suggestion as to howe we could obtain the same by other methods and under changed circumstances.

Throughout his whole article there runs really but one underlying argument, namely: "If we reject the treaty, we will be relieved at once of all obligations, legal or moral." He doubtless must forget that it was just such obligations which led to the United States declaring war on Germany, and I, for one, should hope that, as a nation, the last thing we should ever attempt to do would be to shirk "all legal or moral obligations." It is an accepted fact that in any society, whether of individuals or of States, every one must submit to and respect certain legal and moral obligations, conducive to the welfare of the whole. Without such acceptances, society and progress would be replaced by chaos. This is an undisputed, ethical and sociological axiom.

Senator Borah, however, would have us act like a sullen boy with a sore head, who slams the door on the rest of the world and says, "I am going to do what I want to, and when I want to."

In the course of his paper he of course trots out the old Shantung gray mare, overlooking the fact that it is about time for China with its population of 400,000,000 to make an attempt to look after itself, and at the same time contradicting his own previous plea for isolation from all European or Asiatic affairs. In all these passionate partisan pleas for Shantung, couched in such altruistic terms, which the Republican Senators keep dinning into us, it seems a little incongruous that we never hear a whisper concerning the rape of Korea, a much bolder and ambitious attempt than the Shantung "betrayal."

Senator Borah next modestly states that if we reject this treaty, "any legislation necessary to remove supposed obstacles to trade or war legislation could be passed within a fortnight." If by this statement he intimates that in a fortnight we would have satisfactorily patched up our little mix-up with Germany, he either has a fatuous conception of the capacity for quick work by the United States Senate or an idea that the reading public will swallow any ridiculous statement that he hastily cares to put on paper.

His concluding paragraphs are a repetition of the provincial plea that we confine ourselves to playing with the ducks in our own little pond—home politics, home problems, &c. He refuses to admit that such problems must needs react to the social and economic security of the world as a whole, and that the sooner our attitude and position in world politics are defined the sooner our rights will be assured.

He finally concludes his paper with an utterly irrelevant picture of Mr. Gary and Mr. Foster playing a new imaginative card game in which the object seems to be to let the opponent declare the trumps. This is intended to be a simile of the United States "sitting in" with the League of Nations.

Such arguments may appeal to the voters of Idaho, though I doubt it, but they certainly will not help to strengthen the opposition to the treaty as it now stands.

Personally I still side with the mild reservationists, and there is no doubt that the treaty could be improved and elucidated.

Senator Borah's statement even lacks the mud-slinging fervor of Senator Reed's address to those Irish citizens and voters for Tammany Hall, which is reported on another page of this same issue. By the way, I thought that hyphenated Americans were to be discarded?

After all this war has proved that we are vitally interested in the welfare of the world at large, and in the safeguarding of certain ideals and principles. Is it not the wisest policy for us to take our seat without quibbling in the councils of the nations, and endeavor to forestall at the very outset any attempts to disrupt the equilibrium of world politics? By delaying our entry we merely allow the cancer to grow, so that when we do decide to operate we inevitably find the trouble more serious and more dangerous.

FREDERIC STEVENS ALLEN.

AMERICANS WITH THE ALLIES

New York, Oct. 29, 1919.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES this morning you state that "most of the survivors, (of those Americans who had enlisted early in the war in allied armies,) of course, were finally transferred to the American forces." If that is a statement of a fact it will come as news to many of my brother Americans who served in allied armies and who strove mightily to be transferred to the American forces.

My own case, I believe, is typical. In April, 1917, while the Canadians, with whom I was serving, were enjoying a breathing spell after taking Vimy Ridge, I had an opportunity, for the first time for many months, of catching up with my correspondence; but I wasted much of that valuable time in writing to the United States Government, army officers, political and newspaper friends, and the like, in an endeavor to obtain a transfer. In all instances I observed the most punctilious military form—and I was not ignorant of such matters, as I had formerly served under two flags—but apart from letters of sympathy and promises of co-operation from Albany and Washington I obtained little satisfaction.

For months thereafter I was involved in a mass of correspondence to the same end, and when I obtained leave, after Passchendaele, in December of that year, I visited American headquarters in London. While I was treated there with sufficient courtesy, I was shown very conclusively that there was little hope of a transfer being arranged.

In one of the few cases of actual transfer of which I was cognizant—and I was in France until sent to England, wounded, from Cambria a year ago—the man was discharged, at the request of the American authorities, from the Canadian Army, and was ordered to proceed to Paris at his own expense. On arrival there he learned that he could not be accepted for the American service, as he was over the age limit. This, mind you, after his record had been forwarded to and, supposedly, scrutinized by American officials. The last I heard of him he was having rather a hard time of it, for his funds were becoming exhausted and he could neither have transportation to the States arranged nor could he get in touch, with any speed, with his people at home. These statements come from the man himself, and I have reason to believe that his word is entirely trustworthy.

We who were with the Canadians have lost nothing financially by remaining with an army that was treated so generously on demobilization, but, and the fact hurt badly, we were informed in published orders that, as we had elected to enlist in alien armies from a sense of duty to humanity, there seemed to be little necessity for our transfer, as we could prosecute our humane efforts as well with the armies in which we were then serving as under the Stars and Stripes.

In at least one case of which I know, a friend of mine, formerly an American citizen, has elected to remain in Canada, on the grounds that, as he was not wanted in his own army, he would not, perhaps, receive too warm a welcome home as a citizen. He feels, too, that he now owes something to a Government that, besides treating him well during his service and allowing him a substantial bonus on discharge, is ready to give him a piece of fertile ground and finance him in starting as a farmer should he so desire.

HONDURAS REVOLUTION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During the last few days the papers of this country have printed without comment reports forwarded from San Salvador on the very recent revolution in the Republic of Honduras.

The vast significance of the aims of this revolution and the profound conception that the people had of them renders it of great importance to all those who hold dear the principles of democracy and freedom.

All throughout the Latin-American countries the lovers of democracy have watched with expectant eyes the magnificent spectacle that the people of Honduras have rendered to the cause of democracy.

Honduras has long been considered by her sister republics of Central America as a nation with a high sense of democracy. Thus the successful battle that her sons have just fought against the forces of autocracy that democracy shall ever live on her soil and that political opinions shall not be considered a crime, has raised her moral value.

Never has there been a revolution in Latin-American countries or elsewhere with such a sense of justification as this one. President Bertrand, against the overwhelming will of the people and in violation of the laws of the country, tried to force upon the people one of his kin as President for the coming period of 1920-24.

By all sorts of transgressions, which would be too long to enumerate, he precipitated what resulted in a universal uprising of the Hondurans. Forced to resign, he deposited the Presidency unlawfully in his Cabinet, all of the members of which were his accomplices. The people would not recognize them. As the Vice President resigned, Dr. Francisco Bogran, the next lawful successor, to the Vice President, was sworn into office.

Dr. Bogran, widely known in Honduras as a thoroughly honest man and of great intelligence, in a very impressive and historical ceremony in the presence of the principal leaders of the revolution and several foreign representatives declared in a frank and open way that he would uphold the law to the utmost. Thus there are great hopes that General Lopez Gutierrez, the Liberal leader, will be elected.

The cause of the people and the aims of the revolution, that is the guarantee of a free election for every citizen, have been accomplished, and the blood shed has not been in vain.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want to express my gratitude for the dignified and beautiful editorial article in today's TIMES, "Remembering Roosevelt." No written tribute could be finer in spirit and expression than in this brief summing up of Roosevelt's career.

CONGRESS PROGRAM FOR OUR TRADING FLEET

Aims at Prompt Return to Private Ownership, Encouragement of Investors, and Building and Operation on a Great Scale.

CONGRESS'S shipping program, recognized as one of the great tasks of the present session, has advanced to the point where it is fairly well outlined. The Merchant Marine Committee of the House is completing hearings on what is designed to be the chief piece of legislation and in a short time the measure will be reported out. Main features of the bill are:

Private ownership of our merchant marine.

Taking from the President control over the Shipping Board and centralising authority and responsibility in that body.

Sale by the Shipping Board of all ships as soon as possible.

Long-term payments on ships to facilitate their purchase by private owners.

William S. Greene, Chairman of the Merchant Marine Committee, was asked in Washington the other day for a statement of the main aims of the bill and the reasons back of the provisions it contained. He said:

"The Government should contemplate retirement from commercial shipbuilding, ship-owning and ship-operating activities at the earliest date which may be convenient and practical in order:

"First, to give our overseas trade the full benefit of competitive service.

"Second, to impart to present and prospective steamship operators that confidence which they must feel before they can be expected to put their money in existing ships and to place orders for new ships, without which the outlook for the American shipbuilding industry will not be encouraging.

"The committee on Merchant Marine has endeavored, since the opening of the special session of Congress, to secure all the valuable information with respect to the different phases of shipbuilding that it could possibly obtain for the general purpose of acquiring that knowledge which is so essential to the making of sound and intelligent legislation for the exclusive benefit of our country. With this end in view, the committee has held a series of hearings on practically every phase of shipping, including the subject of marine insurance and that of mortgaging vessels, and its general views are well embraced in the bill recently introduced by me as Chairman of the committee.

Repeal of Emergency Legislation.

"This bill provides for the repeal of all emergency shipping legislation and cancels all the extraordinary powers conferred on the President for the requisitioning of ships, wharves, and other properties. It also repeals the power to control ocean freights and charters, and eliminates any further extension of the Shipping Board house-building program. It specifies that all property acquired under these acts shall be transferred to the Shipping Board. While the power conferred upon the President to operate under the emergency shipping legislation has been exercised by the Shipping Board under the order of the President, it is, nevertheless, evident that a dual control exists which this act prevents, thereby concentrating all power in the Shipping Board.

"The act then arranges for the sale of ships and provides for extended payments on them up to ten years; provision is also made authorizing the board to accept mortgages. It instructs the board to discontinue shipbuilding so far as is consistent with good judgment, and requires that the board make no further investments in new ships or plants, and further insists that they shall endeavor to withdraw as quickly as possible from all investments made by them and turn the money into the Treasury of the United States. It states in addition that all requisitioned property in which the Government has no financial interests must be returned to the owners.

"It is apparent to every one familiar with the shipping problem that America must act quickly if it expects to compete successfully with other powerful maritime nations, like Great Britain. If we act intelligently and with proper co-operation, there is not the slightest doubt that we shall become one of the leading shipbuilding nations of the world. We shall have the largest number of shipyards, the materials and the labor, and when our shipbuilding plants are completed and well organized on sound business principles, so as to produce ships cheaply and rapidly, we shall not only produce ships enough to become the leader in the commerce of the world by furnishing transportation at reasonable rates—thereby performing a service to the rest of the world—but we shall build ships, I venture to state, in such large numbers and at such fair prices that we shall become the Mecca of the shipbuilding trade of the world.

Bureau of Shipping.

"An American Bureau of Shipping has been created, which will provide for the classification of shipping after the manner of the British Lloyds, and with the co-operation of shipowners and American shipping interests this valuable adjunct of the American merchant marine will be materially enhanced. It has too long been the custom to place marine insurance abroad to a considerable extent. In view of this important bureau already established and with the information now being collected and soon to be presented to Congress, there is no doubt that there will be large investments of money made by American marine insurance companies, which will probably be established to meet the great demand for insurance of the world's shipping, and especially of American shipping.

"It is to the strong, courageous and swift that opportunity presents itself. Shall we sleep while the opportunity to be the dominant financial, industrial power of the world, with all its great moral potentialities, is trying to force itself into our indifferent grasp, or shall we, with the courage, decision, enterprise and vision of our ancestors, seize this great opportunity and make America a permanent and irresistible force for the welfare of humanity and progress of civilization? This is a vital problem, which the shipping men of our country will have to help to determine. And it is of the utmost importance that the control and operation of our future great American merchant marine be placed in the hands of those experienced and shrewd shipping men who have heretofore demonstrated their business ability."

The ship mortgage bill, which will probably be the next piece of legislation reported out, following the main shipping measure, is intended to open the way to draw such large investment from the public into our merchant marine as now goes into public utilities and other standard stocks. Such support, taking into consideration the experience of other countries, is deemed essential in providing funds for a great American trading fleet. Representative George W. Edmunds of Pennsylvania, who ranks next to Mr. Greene on the committee and who has been giving especial attention to this bill, said with regard to the difficulties it seeks to overcome:

"Heretofore mortgages on ships have taken second place. All ordinary maritime liens occupied first place, the contention being that ships could not operate without being free to create these liens ahead of any other obligation. The practice, however, has had the effect of limiting investment in shipping property, as trust companies and banking institutions could not invest funds in securities whose position was unstable. Therefore shipping investments in this country were forced in the hands of large companies whose bonds did not stand as a mortgage against single ships but against a group of ships, so that the loss of one was not felt as an injury to the loan.

"Now our endeavor, in order to aid in solving a fundamental problem of the shipping situation, should be to encourage as many different interests as possible to go into shipping, so as to make shipping popular in all parts of the country among people at large. Every other maritime country has been successful in making ship securities a popular form of investment. This is particularly true of Great Britain, Norway, Sweden, and Denmark. To attain this object in this country requires education among our people who have no knowledge of shipping. This work will no doubt be taken up by our banking interests as soon as the status of the ship mortgage is permanently determined. In England five-pound shipping debenture bonds are widely scattered among families of small means. The solution of this problem recommended by the committee will probably be to provide that a certain percentage of the ship be lienable, so as to give elbow room for operation, and to reserve the remainder as subject to first mortgage loans.

"Another important part of the shipping legislation program is the load-line bill which has just been passed by the House. The load-line marks the depth to which ships may be loaded, and therefore adds safety to the vessel at sea. All of the great maritime countries have load-line laws except the United States and Japan. In the development of merchant marine, marine insurance facilities and resources are factors of the first importance, to take care of the hazard that marks this business. The load-line bill prepared by this committee is a fundamental aid to that end, for our marine insurance companies, those in existence and those which are expected to come into existence, will have a better basis for their risks to rest upon, and there will at the same time be a benefit to operators in the stabilization of insurance rates. During the war I saw that the premium for insurance of a ship bound for Archangel was $200,000. Even a slight difference in insurance rates may mean the difference between profit and loss to the ship owner."

No Price-Fixing Legislation.

No legislation to guide or direct the Shiping Board in fixing the prices on the ship[illegible] to be disposed of is contemplated. That is held to be a responsibility th[illegible] board must itself carry, but Mr. Edw[illegible]rds thinks that the policy of the boar[illegible] thus far has retarded the upbuilding [illegible] our merchant marine at a time whe[illegible] every delay is costly.

"The [illegible]hipping Board," said Mr. Edwards, "[illegible]as set prices too high. I am firmly o[illegible] the opinion that they will be unable t[illegible] dispose of their vessels unless they [illegible] are prepared to amortize a certain p[illegible]portion of the extra cost occasioned [illegible]y the war. The difference, the amou[illegible]t of loss that has to be taken, will not [illegible]e so great at this time, but will beco[illegible]e greater as the tonnage of the world [illegible]more nearly approaches the carrying [illegible]capacity needed to do the world's w[illegible]rk. Therefore I hold that to delay fix[illegible]g prices on the ships that will enabl[illegible] our private operators to buy them not [illegible]only postpones at a pivotal time the [illegible]expansion of our shipping industry, b[illegible]t also means a greater loss to the Go[illegible]ernment in the long run.

"It cer[illegible]inly cannot be expected with only a ye[illegible] or so of profitable operation in view—f[illegible] assuredly beyond that time the outlo[illegible] is very indefinite—that investment [illegible]ill seek such extraordinary high pric[illegible] as the Shipping Board is asking. I [illegible]know my views do not meet those of t[illegible] Shipping Board; they think the cost o[illegible] new ships is going to appreciate and [illegible]more nearly reach the price they dem[illegible]nd, but my opinion is that unless the[illegible] is a considerable let-down in buildin[illegible] by all countries, in course of two or [illegible]three years the world will be overbuilt. [illegible]There is nothing so sensitive as the pri[illegible] of a ship when it cannot be put in use[illegible]

"The S[illegible]pping Board is asking from $200 to $22[illegible] a ton, which is not less than $75 a ton [illegible]ore than foreign shipbuilders are asking[illegible] I know that new ships, recently put [illegible]off the ways in England, were sold for $108 a ton. These ships have been built since the war closed. It is manifestly impossible for our operators to pay the prices asked by the Shipping Board and compete with the operators of other countries who can buy at a figure so much lower.

Hope of Higher Prices.

"Admitting that there is a shortage of vessels now, what do the figures show to support the claim of the Shipping Board that prices are to continue strong and advancing? In 1914 the world's shipping amounted to 49,000,000 tons, and that was from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 tons too much—that is, shipping that was under profitable operation. Today, according to Lloyd's Register, the total of world shipping is 50,919,000 tons. Add to this the 8,000,000 tons on the ways. If the maritime countries continue to build at this feverish rate we shall soon reach the point where the world will be overbuilt in shipping—that is, in excess of the point of profitable operation, and if that time comes how will the Shipping Board be able to get rid of its ships without shouldering a very heavy loss? Even Australia has started to build her own ships.

"Our program is to put our merchant marine in private hands wholly. That is the policy recommended by the Shipping Board itself; but how can it be done, especially at the time when it should be done, when the Shipping Board is keeping prices $75 a ton higher than operators in competitive countries can buy ships?"

NURSING FOR FRANCE.

By GRACE ELLISON.

TRAINED nurses, and particularly trained visiting nurses, are vitally needed to care for the civilian population of France. Those who have not had the opportunity of studying French social life take their own fine nursing system a little too much for granted, and do not quite understand why France, like other Latin countries, has not a definite organized system of trained nurses. Let me explain.

Until the separation of the French Church and State the nursing was almost exclusively in the hands of the nuns. They, however, left the country—in many cases with twenty-four hours' notice—before other nurses had been trained to take their places.

And so nursing became the profession of the women of the people, generally rough, uncouth servants, often discharged for immorality and theft, who demanded tips for all services rendered. They are, in fact, another edition of the British "Gampa" of fifty years ago, which Dickens immortalized, but which Florence Nightingale swept into the past.

The war nursing was done for the greater part by the Volunteer Workers of the French Red Cross, who gave admirable service, but, nevertheless, untrained service. Many of them, however, have worked with British and American nurses and taken a keen interest. They would be willing to train as professional nurses, if this could be done without their becoming "déclassée" or having to brave the criticism of doctors and students until they have proved professional nurses can be ladies.

Many women have become widows, many girls are fatherless. The School of the Legion of Honor at St. Denis, where French officers' daughters are educated free of charge by the French State, has many excellent candidates for the nursing profession, but French mothers must be persuaded their daughters' futures will not be jeopardized by becoming professional nurses.

For the last eighteen years, however, the teaching of Florence Nightingale has been put into practice in Bordeaux, and to a woman of British origin, though naturalized French, Dr. Anna Hamilton, is due the honor of introducing into France a similar work.

In 1900 Dr. Hamilton took her degree from the University of Montpellier, and looked for a hospital in which to try her nursing system. Finally she chose the Protestant Hospital at Bordeaux. This was built fifty years ago for Protestant sailors of all nations, but has gradually grown into a general hospital, and is open to men, women, and children of all races and creeds. It was here that the Florence Nightingale nursing was tried. Almost at once a few educated women responded to the call, but the number of nurses trained is insufficient to meet present requirements.

Mothers Taught to Teach Children

"COME, let us live with our children!" Froebel delivered that message a good many years ago when the burden of parenthood was not, as it is today, that the children "are too much with us, late and soon." Not that the parent and "parent" means for the most part the mother, does not love and cherish her young, but that under present economic conditions and modes of living, the ordinary and necessary work of the day is hampered when the little ones trail upon one's heels and try the patience of the sweetest women. Recognizing the difficulties under which the modern mother labors, the Bureau of Education has made an attempt not so much to perform the act of supererogation involved in telling her to live with her children, but to cast a little sunshine into her life and to lighten her burden by telling her how to live with her children.

In a series of articles brought together in an attractive pamphlet form, many mothers, most of whom have at one time or another been kindergartners, tell of their own success, not only in making life more bearable for themselves, but in educating the children. "Bring the kindergarten into your own home" might be the slogan. All these women have done it and they are anxious to help other women to do it. A note inclosing 15 cents, addressed to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., brings their words to any woman, or man for that matter, in the United States. And speaking of men, the child-loving father who picks up the pamphlet is going to think harshly of somebody in the Government for the crass assumption that he does not exist and can not "live with his children." But the estimable women who have written about their children would probably admit, if pressed for an answer, that father was responsible for some of the suggestions, and that, at least, he could put many of them into practice if he were properly educated up to it.

Happy the child who has not been called a pest at one time or another, even by his or her mother. And yet the only difficulty is that the child usually is full of energy and does not know how to spend it. These kindergartner mothers are full of suggestions, inexpensive, homely suggestions for the 2 or 3 or 4-year-old. Dorothy Canfield Fisher, for instance, who has had time to bring up her children as well as write novels, recognizes that "every child instinctively desires to use his hands. A pan of beans or shelled corn, with a wide-mouthed bottle and a spoon, will keep a 2 or 3-year-old happy and absorbed for a long time. A pack of cards to be shuffled or used to build houses is another 'plaything' which does not need to be specially bought. A big rag doll, the size of a small child, is easy to make, and stuff with cotton. A new corncob pipe and a small bowl of soapsuds means harmless fun for the 3-year-old, which is always watched with rapture by the littler ones. And then there are blocks, perennial blocks, which do not need to be bought from a store. A collection of empty spools of different sizes is a treasure for the child of 3, who will rejoice in stringing them on a cord passed through a bodkin." Lumps of dough on baking day, a basin of soapy water on washing day, clay for modeling, dried peas, dried watermelon and sunflower seeds, dried corn cobs, toothpicks, and a rag bag, all play their part in making the child happy.

Another tells of all that can be done with a home-made scrap book, the foundation of which is nothing more than heavy paper and pictures cut from the magazines, the newspapers, anywhere. And these are not used for mere amusement, but for actual teaching in the processes of home building. In making the child acquainted with the animal and flower world.

One of the simplest of the devices combining amusement, and education, yet not likely to be thought of by the untrained mother, is that of the kindergarten calendar which can easily be made at home. "For this purpose a sheet of white cardboard is ruled off into a sufficient number of blank squares for the days of the month. The children mark the calendar each day with a suitable emblem. Yellow circles should be provided for sunny days and gray for cloudy. Tiny umbrellas denote rain; a gray circle partly covered with white indicates snow. Advertisements furnish pictures for special occasions—a little church, a toy, a birthday cake, a Christmas tree, and the like. The particular emblem is less important to the children than the pleasure they take in attending to the calendar regularly, and the fact that they are being helped to a realization of divisions of time. The card should be large enough to allow for a suitable picture for the month to be mounted outside of the ruled portion. Landseer's 'Squirrel and Pair of Nutcrackers' may be used for the October sheet; Correggio's 'Holy Night' for December; Washington's or Lincoln's portrait for February."

Unlike much of the advice given to parents, that contained in the Education Bureau's "Training Little Children" does not lose itself in vague generalities. Not only is the mother urged to tell the children good stories and to buy suitable kindergarten material, but there is no hesitancy in telling the names and publishers of the stories, and the makers of the material. Using the information in the pamphlet the mother in the furthest backwoods, provided only that she be within reach of a Post Office, can with the aid of a letter and a money order bring to her assistance the best that the country affords for the amusement and education of little children.

One of the omissions of early child life is the failure to make use of opportunities to teach those subjects which are thought to come later in the child's life. Number work and language work can be taught very early if they are taken in the spirit of play. Take number work:

"Count your steps from one point to another up to 10 or 20 (with the little ones only). Count forward and backward. Odd numbers, even numbers, simple multiplication tables, combinations in adding and subtracting, can be well drilled."

The titles of some of the other chapters which deal with phases not mentioned above are: Froebel's philosophy helps the mother; Mutual recognition of rights is essential; Love what you have to do; Training for membership in the family circle; Development of ideas makes useful men and women; Enter into the play spirit of your boys and girls; It is easy to teach through play; Social intercourse brings valuable lessons; Give children toys which answer their needs; The home must lay the foundations of character; Sharing the children's work and pleasure; Simple playthings may be utilized; Helpful plays can be carried on while mother is busy; Isolation is an effective punishment; The influence and inspiration of spiritual motherhood; A kindergarten for every neighborhood; Planting a garden more fun than playing house; Let us not cripple our children's self-dependence; Bravery is natural; Fear is inculcated; Music and elemental part of life; Being a good mother requires understanding, devotion, and sacrifice; Learning to play with others is the first lesson in social training; Story telling for patriotism.

Maibohm Six

VALVE-IN-HEAD

"Built For The Extra Strain"

THE majority of men and women who have had broad experience with automobiles, now insist on a car that is good for all kinds of service—in city streets, on country roads, in sand, in mud and on hills. The Maibohm Light-Weight "Six" with its powerful Valve-in-Head, sweet-running motor is designed to accomplish these things economically and thoroughly in the hands of the man or woman who is going to operate and maintain it.

The Maibohm "Six" is in its fourth year; production is concentrated on one chassis, and this standard chassis receives the full benefit of the skill and energy which the ample resources of the Maibohm Company command. This specialization permits of a great saving in the cost of manufacture, which is one reason for the remarkable value. The saving in manufacturing cost goes into the Maibohm "Six" in increased efficiency.

For value the Maibohm is the outstanding "Six." There are larger "Sixes," some with tremendous power ratings and much higher in price, but none can offer more in point of good looks, performance and comfort. As to mileage—owners in various sections of the United States are reporting as high as 22 miles to the gallon, and tires, due to the light weight and fundamentally correct construction of the Maibohm "Six," last unusually long.

There is choice of three body styles, all of which make a distinct appeal to good taste through their grace and beauty—the 5-passenger Touring Car, the 5-passenger Sedan, and the 4-passenger Brougham. These bodies are built in the Maibohm factory—and Maibohm has been building fashionable coach bodies for more than thirty years, another reason for the remarkable Maibohm "Six" value. The savings in body building go into the Maibohm "Six" in increased comfort and stylish appearance.

THE MAIBOHM "SIX" IS A REMARKABLE CAR AND IS BUILT FOR THE EXTRA STRAIN

A WAY OUT OF MANDATES

By LEWIS EINSTEIN,
Former Minister to Costa Rica.

THE American people stands today perplexed before the question of assuming mandate in the Near East. A series of arguments, all the more difficult to resist because their appeal is made to the heart and based on known human misery, press on us to assume these. Another series of arguments, even more powerful, which spring from reason and the inherited weight of prized traditions, urge us to refrain. The country must sway between these two currents until able definitely to settle its mind in one direction or another.

It is regrettable that the alternatives have been put in such sharp contrast as to be almost mutually exclusive, for there is little doubt that certain features in each program commend themselves to the nation. With the healthy wish to help humanity there is a no less healthy wish to avoid unknown responsibilities. Differences in opinion about the mandates are therefore based less on the intrinsic merits of the question than on the estimate which may be taken of the relative importance of desired and undesired sides of each position.

Is it, however, necessary to regard our future action over the Near Eastern mandates solely from the point of view of such alternatives? To put it in another way, if this question had never arisen is it likely that our philanthropic enterprise in that part of the world should suddenly cease or that American educational institutions in Turkey would shut their doors? Quite irrespective of the mandate or of this being assumed by any other power, one very important function of what we could hope to do would certainly go on.

In another sphere the continuance of our food relief and of assistance through the Red Cross is entirely apart from the question of any mandate. No political responsibility need be assumed in order to continue humanitarian work in the Near East or in any other afflicted region of the world.

Still a different side covers financial help. Yet we have lent money freely to help our associates in the war, and may lend them so again without any idea of assuming political responsibility.

In other words, many of the functions of mandates as its educational, philanthropic, economic, and financial aspects, have already been exercised and can continue to be exercised in the future without either involving the direct governmental responsibility of the United States or a mandate of any kind.

A British Example.

Turning for a moment to England, we find that her practice in opening up a new country like Rhodesia, for instance, where the British Government wished to avoid direct responsibility, is to favor the creation of a chartered company which, under authority from the crown, can exercise many of the attributes of sovereignty. English colonial experience has made use of this procedure since the days of the East India Company as most likely to foster precarious ventures without governmental expense or responsibility. Only later, after the enterprise had proved successful, was it taken over by the British administration.

Our goal in the Near East, instead of being commercial and colonizing, is entirely altruistic. Yet why should we not use the suggestions of English example to tackle the problem in an American way, but with due appreciation of both our strength and our deficiencies. Such strength comes from the deep wells of national idealism and generous purpose from a very real capacity for organization which grows from strong roots and from a wealth of material in mechanization and in constructive management which can easily be turned to the guidance of any human energy.

Yet if these elements which are splendidly healthy and straight when they arise from the peoples tend, for reasons unnecessary to dilate, to become warped and cramped by our official atmosphere. Moreover, the essence of the democratic spirit is little favorable to the assertion of one man over another such as is necessary to make the successful administrator of an alien race. We have had no wide colonial experience. We fortunately possess no particular traditions of class domination, while our political efforts in the uplifting of other people tend to become spasmodic and subject to change in accordance with the fluctuations of domestic politics within the United States.

Can anything worse be imagined, however, for the future of the Near East than to make of it a larger San Domingo, where some later Bryan may seek to appoint his deserving henchmen?

The purely political aspects of the mandate which are the least undesirable are thus also the ones where we are weakest, while those where we are strongest and able to do our best work require no mandate of any kind. Why cannot practical use be made of such circumstance in a way which will enable us to carry out our mission without hazardous political results?

It is possible to conceive of the creation of a flexible organization which would embrace the different sides of our assistance. This would be connected with the Red Cross and with the Rockefeller Institute; with the Board of Foreign Missions; with the universities and schools of social research; with the Food Administration and with a banking group—in fact, with any form of activity likely to be of use and possessing even a military branch lent by the War Department. Such organization, governed by a board of directors partly appointed by the institutions which had helped to create it, partly by the President of the United States, could enjoy a semi-official standing as the recognized medium of action between America and the countries we wished to assist. It might be supported in part by voluntary contribution, in part by direct assistance or by loans from the Government. Its great advantage would be in allowing us to carry out our work for humanity in a way less subversive to our traditions, and less precarious to our real interests, and do carry this out in a more efficient and more easily adjustable manner than is possible under an official bureaucracy, which tends to harden and grow rigid until sharply shaken or displaced by the advent of another administration.

Another Nation Might Help.

Would such organization be welcome to the people who now expect our aid? Different courses are open to them, but only two are likely. An appeal might be made to some other State to assume the political and military functions of government which we would be glad to be free from and to us only for assistance in other respects. Or more likely such organization could be asked to assume the entire responsibility. How competent would it be to handle such a situation as the difficult can be imagined, for none more certainly depends on the amount of support received from our Government, and the grinding would mainly take the form of guns, soldiers, and food. Yet even the military direction attached to such an organization would be able to do its work with somewhat fewer resources than if the mandate had been taken over by the United States Government. In such case those in charge would be far more likely to feel that they were able to draw freely on all our national resources, to carry out a thorough task which would then involve the restoration of order in neighboring lands as well.

But if the work of pacification were in the hands of the organization, instead of American regiments going, say, to the Caucasus, there might be regiments composed of citizens of other nations as well, and the responsibility would rest not primarily on the United States Government, nor would the honor of our flag be involved. Practically speaking, our intervention in the Near East would only mean that a benevolent organization, acting as an intermediary between the Armenian people and the American Government, but disposed to welcome any assistance, had taken on itself with the support, but without the responsibility, of the United States Government the task of helping the afflicted in the Near East.

ADVERTISING GAINS IN CHILE

American Methods Are Changing Business System of Republic.

America's unrivalled power in advertising is in a fair way to revolutionize trading methods in Chile, according to a report just made by J. W. Sanger, Trade Commissioner of the Department of Commerce, on the advertising situation in the west coast countries of South America.

"At present," Mr. Sanger's report says, "Chile is passing through a transition period as regards both advertising and merchandising. It has not wholly broken away from the old method, whereby a small group of strong importing commission houses practically controlled the entire business of the country.

"Those importers used advertising in only a perfunctory way, depending more upon their acquaintance with the trade and their ability to extend credit suitable to the buyer. They have buying offices established in all the important buying centres, particularly in Europe, and the consumer found them willing and eager to extend credit on anything from a plow or typewriter to the entire equipment for a factory.

"Having been established for generations, and having filled a want that was met in no other way, they came to occupy a place of marked influence. Today, however, the smaller merchants are coming more and more to buy direct from the factories, placing their orders with the salesmen who make regular visits, or with American house which have established branch agencies."

The report adds that whereas the dealers formerly were skeptical of the wisdom of the large appropriations made by American manufacturers for domestic advertising, there is now, especially among importers of such lines as automobiles, an enthusiastic acceptance of advertising as a method of cutting down selling expense. In a non-manufacturing country like Chile, with a high ratio of imports per capita and an excellent average of literacy among its aggressive population, it says, advertising deserves a place as a sales-promoting force of far more importance than it now holds.

TRADE WITH TURKS GROWING

Imports from Constantinople More Than Double.

During the three months which ended Sept. 30, exports to this country from the Port of Constantinople totalled in value $2,950,000, according to a report just received by the Federal Department of Commerce. This is an increase of more than 100 per cent. over the exports for the preceding quarter, which totalled $1,350,000.

At the present rate, the report says, the exports for the year will exceed the pre-war figures. There also has been a large increase in goods imported into Turkey from the United States, due largely, it is said, to the establishment of direct shipping service between American ports and Constantinople.

WAS POPE PIUS X. MURDERED?

French Priest Offers Evidence That German Intrigue Also Did Away With Two Cardinals

By WALTER LITCHFIELD.

WAS Pope Pius X. murdered? A French war priest, who has intimate connections with the Vatican, seems to think he was, and has written a book to prove it. The priest is Abbé Daniel. He calls his book "Le Baptême de Sang"—the baptism of blood—and Michel of Paris publishes it.

To a well-known Italian prelate, now in this country, the Abbé's story of tragedy was made known, and he said:

"I am not competent to pass on Monsieur l'Abbé's evidence. He presents, however, a plausible array of circumstantial evidence. Rumors of what he charges so directly have been afloat in our circles for some time. For example—and this is not a matter of rumor—it is known that until the great Consistory of 1911 the trend of the Vatican under the gentle ministrations of Cardinal Merry del Val had been distinctly away from English-speaking Catholics. His Eminence, as Papal Secretary of State, had taken the initial step which made an equitable adjustment of the French Concordat of 1801—such as had been the ardent desire of Leo XIII. and Cardinal Rampolla—impossible. In the year before the great Consistory, which created two new American Cardinals as well as a successor to Cardinal Vaughan at Westminster, his diplomatic manoeuvres had prevented the only living ex-President of the United States from having an audience with Pius X.

"That, as subsequent consistories show, ended one phase of the Vatican's policy. Its complement, however, the Teutonic "drang nach Vaticano" continued until the Spring preceding the war, when his Holiness, recovering from a sudden, mysterious illness, began to assert himself. We all know he made an extraordinary effort to free himself from his Secretary of State, who had come to be known both in French and Italian circles as the "maifattore del Vaticano," and from the Austro-German prelates who had gradually come to the Vatican. Rampolla being dead, he sent in haste for Rampolla's disciple, Cardinal Ferrata, who served the new Pope, Benedict XV., as Secretary for a few weeks. He survived Pius X. only about seven weeks—from Aug. 20 till Oct. 10, 1914—and then died in the circumstances related by l'Abbé Daniel.

"As to Mgr. von Gerlach, the fact that he was convicted by an Italian military court in June, 1917, for having conspired to blow up the battleship Leonardo da Vinci the year before, in the harbor of Taranto, is a matter of record. So is the fact that after he fled from the Vatican in January, 1917, two Italian agents ransacked his safe in Vienna and secured the documentary evidence which caused his conviction "in contumacia" six months later and dealt a death blow to Austria's campaign of "sabotage" in the Peninsula.

"Nor is it any secret that Pius X., a few days before his death, is believed to have sent one—some say two—letters to Emperor Francis Joseph, imploring him to end the war and threatening him with excommunication unless he did so.

"The last letter is said to have been composed by his Holiness, assisted by Cardinal Ferrata, on Aug. 17. That night he was taken ill. He died on Aug. 20 at 1:20 o'clock in the morning. According to the published report of the death scene there were with him at the end one of his sisters and Cardinals Merry del Val, Bisleti, Cagliano, Ferrata, and della Volpe. The last, who was Camerlengo, had been hastily summoned from Imola the day before. We have a report, nothing more, that the Holy Father said just before his death:

"'Now I begin to think, as the end is approaching, that the Almighty in His inexhaustible goodness wishes to spare me the horrors Europe is undergoing.'

"Those horrors were left for Benedict XV. to face. Mgr. von Gerlach was a private chamberlain under the late Pope. He retained that office under Pius's successor. When the Austrian fled to Vienna Benedict, who had been loath to believe evil of him, said:

"'It is too bad. Gerlach was always so jolly and seemed so frank and loyal.'

"That is all I know, except of course the Spanish veto which was invoked by Emperor Francis Joseph at the demand of the German Emperor at the conclave of August, 1903, which elected Pius X. Rampolla had already received sixty-two votes and would certainly have been elected had it not been for the veto. It was eternally abolished by a Papal bull in the following year with the heavy penalty of major excommunication for any Cardinal who should attempt to use it or even venture to exert influence at a conclave at the behest of a foreign Government. But all this is a matter of history. I may say, however, that l'Abbé Daniel would be more convincing if he had restrained somewhat the violence of his obvious modernism."

Abbé Daniel declares that there was an Austrian plot at the Vatican to bring "impious and corrupt France" back to the fold by a "baptism of blood." All other considerations, even the Balkan diplomacy of Vienna and St. Petersburg, are not mentioned. The late German Emperor, working through the Catholic Hapsburgs, appears in the story to have been the cause of it all. It began by the attempt to divert the obvious pro-French policy of Leo XIII., who, after a pontificate of a quarter of a century, died in 1903, at the age of 93, and of his Secretary of State, Cardinal Mariano Rampolla del Tindaro.

The first move was to prevent Rampolla from becoming Pope. The second was to install "the Spaniard," Merry del Val, at the Vatican as Secretary of State to Pius X. Both moves succeeded. For ten years, l'Abbé Daniel tells us, Merry del Val ran the Vatican in the interests of Germany and Austria, subsidising newspapers, organising anti-French propaganda, selling preferment.

When the benign Pope, who had been Patriarch of Venice, awoke he found himself practically the prisoner of his German jailers. He found that he had broken with France and had alienated the English-speaking world, and that the only policies his jailers had allowed him to indulge in were an attempt to have Gregorian music prevail, the elevation of the United States from a "missionary country," a condemnation of the tango, the specification of kind of oil to be used in sanctuary lamps, and the regulation of Lenten meals.

Amazed at the situation, the Pope summoned Rampolla to ask his advice. This was on Dec. 16, 1913. On that day the Cardinal had taken part in a religious ceremony; within twenty-four hours he was dead. A strong box containing his private papers had disappeared; also one of his servants. Neither was ever traced. There was talk of a post-mortem, but nothing came of it. And that is all the evidence l'Abbé Daniel produces to confirm his assertion that Rampolla, the friend of France, was murdered.

Pius X. is described as living in constant fear of assassination. His peasant sisters brought him his meals, which he took from their hands alone. When he fell ill, in the Spring preceding the war, he summoned to his bedside a physician of Venice, an old friend. That is said to have annoyed Merry del Val. But the Pope soon recovered his health. He sought every possible means for dismissing his Secretary of State. All were thwarted by his German jailers.

When the Germans invaded Belgium he had a violent scene with Merry del Val and declared that he was going to the front with an olive branch in his hand and fling himself between the contending armies. The Secretary and the German prelates with difficulty restrained him. Then he sent a secret messenger to the Lateran Palace to bring Cardinal Ferrata, another to Vienna with a letter to Emperor Francis Joseph. Ferrata came and was closeted with his Holiness.

From Aug. 6 until Aug. 17 the two old men waited for news of the other messenger and the letter. Then they wrote another, which, in part, is said to read as follows:

"I write not as Pope but as father. * * * I kiss your feet and implore you to forsake this impious war, this horrible iniquity. * * * O my erring son, all covered with blood, drenched in the tears of mothers and widows and orphans. * * * If I do not excommunicate you the curse of heaven shall yet fall upon your head."

They were interrupted in their composition, writes l'Abbé Daniel, by the Cardinal Secretary of State, his Eminence Merry del Val. Ferrata arose. The Pope waved him back to his seat and said in tones of thunder to the intruder: "He remains with me." "Then it is I who must go," said Merry del Val quietly.

That night the Holy Father fell ill. In three days he was dead. Ferrata had only once left him: when he returned he found Mgr. von Gerlach leaving the chamber.

And that is all the evidence l'Abbé Daniel offers to support his assertion that Pope Pius X. met the alleged fate of Rampolla.

Immediately, we tells us, steps were taken by the German and Austrian prelates at the Vatican to secure a Pope favorable to the Kaisers. The fatal veto, however, was a thing of the past and at the Conclave Ferrata was the favorite. Della Chiesa, whose name came up in the last day, was elected as the result of a compromise and on the explicit understanding that he should have as Secretary of State Cardinal Ferrata. The new Pope, who took the name of Benedict XV., so appointed him.

Domenico Ferrata started to clean out the Huns from the Vatican. For personal safety he took up his residence outside. This placed him also at a disadvantage. L'Abbé Daniel relates that on one occasion he was so imprudent as to take a cup of coffee at his desk. He was seized with violent sickness. He understood what had happened and insisted on being taken home. There he died two days later, Oct. 10, 1914.

In Ferrata's case an inquiry was actually ordered. Powdered glass was discovered in the sugar. But a broken bowl officially accounted for that. It seems that shortly after one of his servants disappeared. This servant had, until the coming of Ferrata, been an orderly to Mgr. von Gerlach. Subsequently he was identified as an officer of the German artillery.

And this is practically all the evidence that l'Abbé Daniel has to show that Cardinal Ferrata went the way of Rampolla and Pius X.

NOVEL CASES IN THE COURTS

In State v. Fountain, 168 Northwestern Reporter, 285, a conviction for maintaining a liquor nuisance is affirmed. The opinion by the Supreme Court of Iowa was written by Judge Ladd. According to defendant's testimony, it appeared that he had been in the garbage business and employed a number of men as scavengers. He testified as follows: "It is hard to get a fellow to work in the scavenger business unless you give him a little drink. I have been 30 years in the business, and have always kept liquor for them. There are lots of fellows you cannot get to work unless you give them a little whisky to drink. Some days it was raining and they came in cold and wet and I got out a bottle." He also testified that he got no pay for the liquor. A Government liquor license was found in the building, and a goodly number of bottles of whisky were also discovered hidden in various places. The court says: "Fountain testified, in substance, that he purchased the whisky with the design to give most of it to the men in his employment in order to induce them to continue working for him. * * * The tender solicitude of such a philanthropist for his employes is always very touching. This scheme of reducing expenses in the employment of laborers formerly was quite extensively pursued. The roustabout about the saloon or tavern was paid in drinks, and in numerous large enterprises intoxicants were regularly issued to employes in lieu of a portion of their wages, always to the profit of employers. But the plan has been quite generally abandoned. Under modern methods, payment of fair wages, gauged according to the character and amount of labor exacted, is required; the workmen are allowed to determine for themselves how and for what it shall be spent. And if defendant, by pandering to the appetites of men, induced them to labor as scavengers at wages received in more cleanly employments, and thereby turned into his coffers the difference between such wages and what he otherwise must have paid, less the cost of the whisky given to them, he is not in a situation to plead this was a mere giving away or that it was not disposing of it for a consideration."

One must retreat rather than take the life of another unless he would thereby increase his peril or it reasonably appeared that his peril would thereby be increased.—Bigham vs. State, Ala., 82 So. 192.

$24,000 a Year As Traffic Man

A High-Pay Field That Needs More Men.

The traffic director of a Cleveland concern receives $24,000 a year. The traffic manager of another corporation in Detroit is paid $10,500 per year. Thus you could go on finding several cases where the salary of the traffic manager ranges above the $10,000 mark.

Why is it that some salaries in traffic management run into such big figures? To think of the number of traffic positions that pay $2,500 to $5,000 a year is of itself quite stirring, but when you strike instances where the traffic expert's income runs far above $10,000, it is enough to make any ambitious man "sit up and take notice."

The Why of the Big Salaries.

It is only right that the traffic man who knows his business should be so liberally paid, for without his direction of shipping, millions of dollars would be lost on transportation. He is the man who knows how to classify and route the shipments of his firm so as to obtain the lowest rates as well as the best facilitation of freight movements. He is the man, too, who knows the "ins-and-outs" of Interstate Commerce so thoroughly as to be able to handle claims, demurrage and other transportation problems most advantageously for his firm.

Only recently a traffic man saved his concern $24,000 on shipments from C. F. A. territory to their new plant in Chattanooga. Another saved $9,751 in shipping 66 carloads in two weeks. Another saved $25,000 by applying a differential rate on 1,000 cars from Pittsburgh to Canada.

More Traffic Men Wanted.

The shortage of traffic men who have attained the required efficiency standard is greater to-day than ever before. Thousands of business corporations need expert traffic managers. Boards of Trade, Chambers of Commerce, State Railway and Public Utility Commissions need Traffic Secretaries and Experts. Half a million smaller shippers must employ consulting Traffic Managers who will direct the work of five to a dozen concerns. There are thousands of Assistant Traffic Managers needed in large Railroad, Industrial and Association Traffic Departments.

How to Train.

Heretofore, there has been no simple way to master the details of traffic management. Realizing the crying need for trained traffic experts, and seeking relief, the American Commerce Association offers to give men the training required to make them competent to handle the problems of most economical distribution. The training is given by mail and can be studied in spare time, at home. Though the most complete and thorough training is given, the Course is remarkably easy to master, and through the Association costs but a few cents a day.

Write for Free Book.

This book will show you how to train by mail under a staff of practical traffic experts; and how these leading traffic men make clear to you every point about Freight Rates, Classifications, Tariffs, Bills of Lading, Routing, Claims, Demurrage, Express, Ocean Trade, Laws of Carriers, Interstate Commerce etc., etc.

WOLVES OF CHARITY

Not All the Pious Solicitors Are Honest, and Inquiries Are In Order

By HOWARD STRONG,
Secretary, Chamber of Commerce, Rochester, N. Y.

A BLACK man with clerical sideburns entered an office in New York with an air compounded equally of suavity and self-importance and presented to the man behind the desk a soiled sheet of letter paper.

"Relief Association of Hebrew Settlement Workers," the imposing letterhead began, "and the Welfare Homes for Children, Widows, and Other Unfortunate People, a branch of which is to be established in or near every large city in the Union."

"This is to certify," the letter read, "that the bearer, Elder ——, (the name pencilled in with elegant flourishes,) is duly authorized and commissioned to solicit and collect funds and donations for the help and the promotion of the above-named work.

"Do not hesitate to help us, as we do hereby guarantee you that every penny or penny's worth will be spent for the direct promotion of the work and for the welfare of the poor and needy who may come under our care, as there are no salaries or wages paid any one connected with the work. * * *"

"Do you have institutions for these orphans?" the business man asked when he had glanced through the letter.

"No, Suh, we doan' believe in no institutions."

"Oh, you put them out in families, I suppose?"

"No, Suh, we doan' believe in families taking care of them, neither."

"Well, where on earth do you keep them?"

"Why, Suh, we just keeps them here and there, some with us and some at our fahms, and gives them what they needs."

"Orphans, you say?"

"Why, chilluns what is needy and hungry. I reckon you'd call them orphans, Suh."

"Now, look here, my man, you don't expect me to contribute good money to an association that can't tell me anything more definite about its work than that?"

The black visitor bristled. Raising a powerful hand, he thundered back:

"You refuse to suppoht our work for de Lord? I tell you, Suh, you better think twice. The Master whom we serve has power to blight you and your fambly, and, Suh, I assuah you that He will do so!"

Seeing that even this produced no immediate effect, the Elder, impossibly dignified, turned and left.

Hebrews? Sure They Are!

But it happened that the gentleman who was thus consigned to a horrible fate had access to certain information about the Relief Committee of Hebrew Settlement Workers, the substance of which is this: The negroes who maintain the organization have headquarters at Atlantic City and branches in Philadelphia and New York. Originally the Relief Association of Colored Settlement Workers, they now claim the name "Hebrew" because, they declare with unsmiling gravity, they are Hebrews—the only genuine article. They speak the true Hebrew tongue; it came to them straight from above. The whites who call themselves Hebrews cannot understand it; clearly they are not Hebrews at all—only Jewish people!

They run a grocery store and meat market on one of New York's best negro avenues and claim to work two small farms. The chain of benevolence is complicated. They solicit funds to buy equipment for their farms, which send produce to their market, which turns over its profits to the "widows, children and other unfortunate people." Their solicitors get no commissions—perish the thought! They even work at trades part of the time, but on the word of an officer of the association, "they are cared for just like the orphans."

The headquarters of the association at Atlantic City has been raided by the police, and one of its Elders who escaped from the raid was captured, convicted of being a Fagin, and sentenced to prison. He is now out on bail, having been released on a writ of error.

No accounts are kept; the money from the store is spent "as needed." The officers never give any clear statement of the relief actually accomplished and take refuge when questioned in unctuous quotation of Scripture.

And yet the Relief Association of Hebrew Settlement Workers has for several years actually solicited and received funds from hard-pressed and supposedly hard-headed business men who didn't bother to question the suave collector too closely.

"Charity suffereth long, and is kind." No one has satisfactorily answered the riddle presented by the typical American who will shave a fraction of a mill from his manufacturing costs with relentless care and will cheerfully throw his gifts to any plausible solicitor.

This curious state of things was notorious in the early days of the war. Solicitation schemes ranging all the way from outright, shameless stealing to delicately scented society "benefits" sprang up on every side. A public shocked into unaccustomed liberality could not and did not discriminate between the great majority of sincere efforts to alleviate misery and the wretched minority of unutterably mean and selfish enterprises.

These halcyon days could not last. Many of the grosser frauds were stopped. The exposure of the Army and Navy Bazaar in New York in the Autumn of 1917, at which a net sum of $645 was raised for relief at a cost of over $71,000, added perceptibly to the caution of the giving public.

But the normal situation is one in which a varying but unfailing percentage of charitable gifts goes astray. Consider one national organization whose neat little miteboxes adorn the counters of hundreds of drug stores, bar rooms, and hotels all the way from Fifth Avenue, New York, to Santa Barbara, Cal. This society has never produced any evidence of substantial usefulness. Its vague financial reports, when they can be obtained, show only a trifling expenditure for genuine relief.

When the miteboxes first came to the attention of alert inquirers, several years ago, they asked funds for an institution which, on investigation, was found not to exist. After a collector had been arrested the organization was forced to take the miteboxes out of one large city.

Incompetent Charities.

Money goes astray, also, through sheer incompetence, which in the long run is even more disastrous to social welfare work than imposition. Appeals to the public may be classified roughly in three groups: Those made by useful, efficient, and wholly worthy organizations—and they are many; those made in good faith by organizations which waste their income by loose management or unintelligent control, and those made with deliberately fraudulent intent. The third class is, of course, much the smallest of the three. The second is considerable.

There is only one safe rule for the man or woman who wishes to avoid these charity pitfalls. Ask information.

The National Information Bureau, with headquarters in New York, has undertaken to act as a clearing house for information on this subject, and has begun to study the work of more than 200 organizations as the sequel to a year's successful service in standardizing war relief. Originally established as the investigating agent of a number of the large war chests, the bureau has already studied over 400 war relief enterprises, published two indorsed lists, and safeguarded the giving of sums aggregating more than $40,000,000.

Ten Safety Points.

The bureau is a co-operative and non-commercial, directed by a board representing jointly the contributing public and organized social work. The prominent business and public men who compose it—men like Dr. Rush Rhees, President of Rochester University; Samuel Mather of Cleveland, Paul D. Cravath, and Robert W. de Forest of New York—have joined with experienced leaders in the substantial social agencies, men from the Red Cross, the National Child Labor Committee, the Carnegie Corporation, the Cincinnati Council of Social Agencies, Community Service, Inc., and similar organizations to formulate a set of standards to which responsible, efficient agencies are already conforming. The ten points by which in the matured judgment of this group men a thoroughly worthy social or civic organization can be judged are as follows:

Active or responsible governing body holding regular meetings, or other satisfactory form of administrative control.

A necessary purpose with no avoidable duplication of the work of another efficiently managed organization.

Reasonable efficiency in conduct of work, management of institutions, &c., and reasonable adequacy of equipment for such work, both material and personal.

No solicitors on commission or other commission methods of raising money.

Non-use of the "remit or return" method of raising money by the sale of merchandise or tickets.

No entertainments for money raising purposes, the expenses of which exceed 30 per cent. of the gross proceeds.

Ethical methods of publicity, promotion, and solicitation of funds.

Agreement to consult and co-operate with the proper social agencies in local communities with reference to local programs and budgets.

Complete annual audited accounts prepared by a certified public accountant or trust company, showing receipts and disbursements classified, and itemized in detail. New organizations which cannot furnish such statement should submit a certified public accountant's statement that such a financial system has been established as will make the required financial accounting possible at close of prescribed period.

Itemized and classified annual budget estimate.

The National Information Bureau indorses those organizations which meet the ten requirements, and makes every possible effort to assist those which do not meet them, but which are sincere in their work, to modify their methods so that indorsement becomes possible.

THE WINTER NECESSITY

OPPORTUNITY SITS ON YOUR DOORSTEP—By George Creel

It is the common belief that opportunity knocks once and, having knocked, returns no more. This is what Gilbert Chesterton would call the Ultimate Lie. It has no other purpose than to serve as an excuse for shiftlessness and failure.

OPPORTUNITY is not content, and never has been content, with any single summons. It is not even the case that she comes and goes. Opportunity stays.

Her home is not in the clouds, but right on the doorstep of everyday life. Patience and steadfastness are distinguishing qualities. Instead of a single tap, her knock is the continuous drumming of a machine gun.

It was always To-day, more than ever before, it is the truth. The world is waking to a great to-morrow. In industry, in business, in commercial life and in the professions, old barriers have broken down and new avenues have opened to ambition. Each day offers men and women the chances that they missed yesterday.

To-morrow was never a bigger or more inspiring word. There is no excuse for failure when every gate to advancement is wide open. The men and women who fall back or stand still, have only themselves to blame. Their obstacles are not in front of them but inside them.

The failures in life, for the most part, are those who choose to fail—those people who talk about "bad luck" instead of confessing laziness; who whisper mysteriously about "pulls" when they ought to be thinking about push; who moan about never having had a "fair start."

It is the self-starter that the world needs to-day—the man or woman who figures each morning as a new race with a fighting chance to finish first.

Developing Initiative.

The trouble with most people is that they are flabby-minded without knowing it. This is principally the fault of our schools. As it is to-day, with certain notable exceptions, the educational system of the United States kills initiative, deadens imagination and makes originality an offense.

Uniformity is the ideal—the idea to have all pupils doing the same thing at the same time in the same way. Children are placed in regular rows, and the prize schoolroom is the one in which deadly routine has been brought to perfection. Where our educational system falls down most completely, however, is in its failure to get across the truth that the human mind has got to be exercised. Boys and girls come to maturity with the idea that the mind is an automatic device and that it will "take care of itself." As a consequence memory goes, concentration fails, will-power weakens, imagination disappears and the result is a general fatheadedness that stands helpless before the simplest problems of life.

How to Exercise Your Mental Powers.

Mental fat, however, can be worked off just as physical fat can be burned away by proper exercise. This is where Pelmanism comes in.

Opportunity is for the strong mind—the eager ambition, the quick decision, the driving purpose.

These are the things that Pelmanism will help you to get. It does not matter whether you are a laborer or a professional man, a merchant or a farmer, a clerk or a skilled worker—Pelmanism will show you the essentials to success. It may not carry you to the top run of the ladder, but it will make you climb.

Pelmanism does for your mind what a physical instructor does for your body. It develops mental power just as scientific exercise develops muscle. Followed honestly, it will give greater power of self-realization and self-expression in word, thought and action. It will stop wool-gathering and mind-wandering. It will develop mind, character, personality, giving ambition, energy, concentration and self-reliance.

Judge Lindsey's Testimony.

Judge Ben B. Lindsey, the world famous founder of the Juvenile Court of Denver, has had a long and intimate experience with the failures of our modern life. For twenty years he has sat on his bench and watched the steady flow of human beings who have "missed the right road," and it is out of the sure knowledge thus gained that he bears this testimony:

"I first heard of Pelmanism while in England on war work. It was the topic on every tongue. I investigated Pelmanism and came to firm belief in it. There is no earthly reason why the mind should not be trained as the body is trained, why it should not be strengthened as muscles are strengthened. It is a big thing to have Pelmanism in the United States, because it will carry a message of courage and ambition into every life willing to receive it."

Make no mistake. It is not a "pill system." There is no miracle about it. You receive in proportion to what you give. But any man or woman possessed of a common school education, and contributing ordinary application, will find in Pelmanism an answer to the problems of life.

GEORGE CREEL

The course comes in twelve lessons—twelve "little Gray Books." They are sent one at a time, and the student fills out work sheets that are gone over, with pen and ink, by a staff of trained instructors. There is nothing arduous about the course. Half an hour daily will enable the conscientious student to finish in three months. It does require application. Pelmanism has got to be worked at. Its rewards, however, are rich, permanent and of steadily increasing value.

Pelmanism is neither an experiment nor a theory. It has stood the test of twenty years. Its students are in every country of the world. Its benefits are attested by hundreds of thousands of men and women in all walks and conditions of life.

In bringing Pelmanism to America, the needs of the United States have been considered at every point. Plan, methods and principles remain the same, but American psychologists have Americanized the lessons and American instructors carefully trained in the course will pass upon every work sheet.

The twelve lessons of Pelmanism are reviewed briefly in the following paragraphs. Read carefully and investigate Pelmanism. Become a Pelmanist, as have 400,000 others, who have found Pelmanism to be what they both needed and wanted.

The following will give you the synopsis of the course:

The Science of Self-Realization Everything in nature realizes itself; but civilized man often fails to do so. To succeed he must be mentally efficient, and there are many factors which operate to prevent this efficiency. In order to vanquish opposition to his advancement, man must understand himself and his surroundings. In this lesson we point out the way. We show how the mind works. We define mental ability and show how it is developed.

Purpose Or What Is Your Aim? This is one of the most vital lessons of the course. Analyze yourself according to its instructions, and you cannot possibly emerge from the ordeal the same man; you see things in a new light, and you see yourself advancing. Interest and purpose are the key words.

Knowledge and the Senses There are two worlds: one external and one internal. The senses act as lines of communication, undeveloped senses mean little knowledge and poor ideas—but trained senses spell efficiency.
